BOWDOIN VS. WESLEYAN

Bowdoin meets Wesleyan in debate this evening at Middletown, Conn., and will support the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that, constitutionality being waived, a graduated income tax should form a part of the Federal revenue system." The agreement provides that the debate shall be amateur in all respects. This provision has been observed rigidly by the Bowdoin men. They worked together in Brunswick during the recess and had speaking practice daily during the final days of the preparation. The team is composed of Charles F. Adams, Jr., '12; Ernest G. Fifield, '11; Burleigh C. Rodick, '12; and Earl F. Maloney, '12, alternate. Professor Davis accompanied the team to Middletown.

IBIS LECTURER—PROF. SANTAYANA

The undergraduates, faculty, and friends of the College are particularly fortunate in having the opportunity to hear Professor George Santayana of Harvard University, who speaks to-night under the auspices of the Ibis upon the subject of "Shelley: the Influence of His Opinions upon His Writings." Professor Santayana is an eminent student of English literature and also a gifted speaker. The lecture is to be held in Memorial Hall at eight o'clock.

PRINCETON, 11; BOWDOIN, 1

The Bowdoin team opened the season of 1911, March 28, by a defeat at the hands of Princeton on the grounds of the latter. The score was 11 to 1. The weather conditions were very unfavorable, as it was a cold, raw day with a high wind blowing. Woodcock was not very effective and allowed 14 passes. Grant, who succeeded him, showed up well. The fielding feature of the game was a diving catch of a fly by Purington. For Princeton, Sterrett played well in the field and clouted the ball in great shape.

PRINCETON, 7; BOWDOIN, 0

The second game with Princeton was played in the rain and had to be called at the end of the fourth inning. Means was in the box for Capt. Lawlis' men and his lack of control at critical moments was disastrous. Purington was kept out of the game by a sprained ankle and Grant took his place in the field.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, 13; BOWDOIN, 5

In the third game of the series, Bowdoin was defeated by St. John's College, Brooklyn, by a score of 13 to 5. Both pitchers were touched up rather freely, Bowdoin getting fourteen hits and St. John's 10.

Grant for Bowdoin showed good pitching form, but blew up in the sixth inning, when the Catholic college scored seven runs. Wilson had a good day with the stick, registering three safeties.

The game was played on an emergency field not suitable for baseball purposes, and as a result there were a number of errors on both sides. The weather was chilly and a high wind handicapped the players.

BROWN, 6; BOWDOIN, 2

In the best game of the trip, Brown defeated Bowdoin, April 1, on Andrews Field, by a score of 6 to 2.

Means pitched the whole game for the White and showed very good form. He allowed only six hits, but these came at critical times and resulted in scores. Clifford at first base was the star of the infield and executed a number of very difficult catches. Wilson played a steady game behind the bat. The team kept up their batting streak and made as many safeties as their opponents.

Brown's infield played in mid-season form and the whole team put up an excellent game. Reilly and Nash were their stars.

The weather continued cold and raw for this last game of the series, and, by agreement of the managers, was called at the end of the seventh inning.

The results of the games as indicated by the scores, are, indeed such as not to inspire optimism concerning this year's baseball aspirations; but considering the conditions, the showing made by the team was creditable. The weather throughout the trip was cold and windy, and did not allow the practice which the manager had planned for in New York City. The first time the team stepped on an outdoor field this year was the warming up before the first Princeton game.

The team batted much better than usually is the case, during the trip, and the weak point seemed to be in base running. This weakness can soon be remedied when Coach Norton gets his charges working out on the Delta. The infield worked well together for early season and Weatherill, the new man at third, seemed to fit in well. O'Neil at short played up to form. Clifford at first did some sensational work. Wilson behind the bat was very steady and compared very well with the opposing catchers. The outfield did not play up to the form of the infield, but batted fairly well.

Of the pitchers, Means showed up very well in the Brown game. Grant did good box work in the St. John's game aside from one bad inning, and may round into a winner. Woodcock was very erratic, but this may be expected of a southpaw at the first of the season.

The team reported excellent treatment throughout their visits at the various colleges. In New York they stopped at the Hotel York. A number of Bowdoin graders were at the St. John's game, and met the team elsewhere. Strict training rules were observed.

Coach Norton got his first line on his charges during the trip and while not entirely pleased with the showing made, believes that the chances for a winning team are not at all discouraging.

Those to make the trip were Capt. Lawlis, Clifford, Brooks, Wilson, O'Neil, Means, Purington, Grant, Woodcock, Skolfield, Weatherill, Norton, Coach, and Leigh, manager.

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE DEBATE

Preparations are now being made for the Freshman-Sophomore debate, which will be held about April 28. The class teams have already been selected, and L. A. Crosby, P. H. Douglas and M. W. Greene, with C. B. Haskell as alternate, will speak for 1913, while the Freshmen debaters will be E. C. Gage, A. E. Gray and A. W. Newcombe, with R. E. Simpson as alternate. The question for discussion is, "Resolved, That United States senators should be elected by direct vote of the people." The Freshmen, who will be coached by Callahan, '11, will uphold the affirmative side of the question, and the Sophomores, whose coach is Marston, '11, will defend the negative.

The New Orient

The new Orient Board takes up its work with a feeling of regret that it must face its task with so little experience. The short span of college life makes it necessary that one board of editors shall be replaced by another just as it is beginning to profit by its year’s labor. The new board can only partly profit by the experience of the old and must traverse somewhat the same path. While this is true we may gain much from the many good qualities of the work of the old board and realize that many of its errors were of our making and therefore a part of our own experience.

It is impossible to speak of an Orient policy as a fixed and definite set of plans. Each incoming board must introduce its own ideas and must endeavor to carry them out honestly. But in a broader sense there should be an Orient policy which can be identified with what is best in the Bowdoin spirit. In this sense we feel that we share a common bond with past editors. We feel that each has endeavored to do his utmost toward a better Bowdoin. In this spirit we, too, wish to act.

That we shall make mistakes in so doing is inevitable. Not only do we lack the mature judgment of manhood, but we have as yet not even attained the dignity of Seniors. With this in mind we ask only that criticism be offered in the same spirit in which we will strive to do our work in the year to come, a true love for old Bowdoin.

To the Team

The baseball team has returned from its trip with a record of defeats, but its record of work is by no means so bad as might appear. Coach Norton reports that the men have done well under the circumstances. Without a day of outdoor practice they had to make a very hard trip and in one game at least played very good ball. It is no time for criticism but rather for encouragement. This the Orient extends to a team which has worked and is working at its best.

The New Baseball Coach

The Orient extends a hearty welcome to Coach Norton. As yet he has hardly been seen on the campus, but his attractive personality has won him the loyalty of all the men who made the trip in his charge. A scholar as well as an athlete, he is an admirable man to coach a team which shall well represent the White.

INDOOR MEET

The annual indoor interclass meet, held in the Town Hall, Friday, March 17th, was won by the Juniors with 41 1-3 points. The Seniors, Sophomores and Freshmen finished in the order named, with 22, 19 and 16 2-3 points respectively. Three events, the 780-yard run, the mile run, and the 45-yard low hurdles, were run on the outdoor track. The winner of the 780 was no surprise, but many were mildly astonished at the fine race run by Russell. He was an easy second with Gray third. The result of the 45-yard low hurdles upset the dopester’s sheet, McKenney’s speed overcoming the form of the others, although McKenney was not altogether crude in the latter respect. McFarland was second and Wigglin third. The mile was run in slow time, especially the first few laps. Hall won with Howe a good second and Skillin third.
The indoor events in the evening were run off in good shape with the help of "Nick," who was right in his element. The shot-put was won by G. Kern with 35 ft. 1-2 in. Frank Smith was second and Simpson third. Kern's and Simpson's puts were made in the trials. The Juniors scored every point in this event. The high jump was won by Green with 5 ft. 5 in. L. T. Brown did well in spite of a lame foot, taking second. Pierce was third. In the 25-yard hurdles, Wiggin and McFarland were again nased out, this time by Frank Smith. Wiggin was given second and McFarland third. The pole vault was won easily by Hubbard. Kern, A. S. Merrill and Mason were tied for second and third places, and divided the four points among them. The 20-yard dash had more contestants than any other event and it was necessary to run several heats. McKenney finally won it with Purington second, and Skolfield third.

The relay races were close and exciting. The Juniors beat the Freshmen and the Sophomores beat the Seniors. In the finals the Juniors and Freshmen won. The judges awarded the drill to the Juniors, with the Seniors second and the Freshmen third.

The relay race between Bates, 1914, and Bowdoin, 1914, was won by Bates.

The High School relay was won by Brunswick.

CONFERENCE OF PREPARATORY SCHOOL PRINCIPALS

To-morrow is to be held a conference of principals and school superintendents of the preparatory schools of the State to consider the matter of college entrance requirements, and relations between the college and the schools. The first session will be held in the morning in Hubbard Hall. At noon the visitors will be guests of the Faculty at the Eagle Hotel, after which an afternoon session will be held. The agitation is along the lines of the movement started at Harvard, and the idea of the conference is to see if the schools feel the need of changes. The principal schools will be represented.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

The College Preacher on Sunday, March nineteenth, was Samuel McChord Crothers, Litt.D., of Cambridge, Mass. He is the author of "The Gentle Reader" and "By the Christmas Fire." Dr. Crothers spoke simply, but with a direct appeal, upon the relation between work and worship, taking his text from Chronicles I. He said, "the King appointed singers unto the Lord to lead the hosts with song and praise," and showed how necessary spiritual inspiration was, and how it glorified the work of the world. Dr. Crothers spoke also in the "Church on the Hill" at the morning service.

VESPERS SERVICE

The speaker at the Vesper Service on Sunday will be Mr. J. O. Robbins, who has recently been a missionary in the Philippines. Mr. Robbins will speak of his impressions of his work there, upon the subject: "America's Opportunity in the Philippines." Mr. Robbins is a Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, in which capacity he has recently visited many of the largest American Universities.

Last year he spoke in many cities before large audiences under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. After graduating from Brown he was a mining engineer in Alaska for some time, before leaving for the Philippines. In the evening, Mr. Robbins will talk very informally at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House about the life in the Philippines and the opportunities for college men presented there. The leaders of Missionary Study Classes and collectors for Mr. Hiwale are specially urged to be present.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Pejepscot Sunday School and Boys' Club opened again this week. They have been closed for some time because of sickness of the pupils.

The Gym Class for Grammar School Boys, conducted by the Y. M. C. A., is meeting Saturday mornings with Bert Morrill as leader.

The box of clothing for Dr. Grenfell will be sent on the first ship this spring for Labrador. More clothing, or magazines for the Sailors' Mission in Gloucester, will be gladly received by the Social Service Committee.

Bishop Codman will hold a conformation service at the Episcopal Church, Sunday evening, to which all Episcopal students are welcomed.

ZETA PSI DANCE

The Senior Delegation of the Zeta Psi Fraternity entertained with a dance at the Chapter House, Friday evening, March 24th. Mrs. Cooper, of Rockland, served as chaperon. The patroynes were Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, and Mrs. Hartley C. Baxter, of Brunswick. Lovell's Orchestra, of Brunswick, played for the order of twenty dances. The committee of arrangements consisted of Fred C. Black, '11, of Rockland; Frank H. Burns, '11, of Bristol Mills, and D. Scribner Hyler, '11, of Rockland.

Among the guests were Misses Margaret Hutchins, Sarah Baxter, Helen Baxter, Margaret Day, Helen Merriman, and Alfreta Graves of Brunswick; Misses Helen Cooper and Hazel Perry of Rockland; Misses Ione Lackee, Florence Horne, and Doris Powers of Portland; Miss Mildred Lamb of Sangerville; Miss Caro Chapman of Fairfield; Miss Golda Gushee of Farmington; Misses Eleanor and Katherine Leydon of Bath; Miss Marion Greene of Madison and Miss Estelle A. Sweet of Augusta.

College Notes

The mid-term review of classes will take place, Monday.

Burns, '11, broke a finger in baseball practice, Tuesday afternoon.

Brummett, '11, Wiggin, '11, and Duffey, '14, attended the Brown game.

The baseball men had their first outdoor home practice, Tuesday afternoon, on the Delta.

The date for the Minstrel Show has been set as April 22, the Saturday after the Rally.

D. K. Merrill, '14, has been chosen president of a grammar school baseball league in Portland.

The Bowdoin debaters, who meet Wesleyan totay, stayed at the Copley Square Hotel, Boston, last evening.

Herr Leutge, German Exchange Professor at Exeter, will address the Deutscher Verein on April 13.

Sewall, '13, stopped a runaway horse attached to a grocery wagon, on Maine Street, one afternoon before college closed for the recess.

The candidates for assistant manager of baseball have been busy the last few afternoons clearing snow from the diamond on Whittier Field.

Professors Woodruff, Sills and Nixon attended the meeting of the New England Classical Association at Exeter, N. H., March 31 and April 1.
A Pop Concert for the benefit of the town library is to be held in the Town Hall on May 1. The orchestra will be led by F. E. Kendrie, '90, and the program will include many college songs.

Debaters representing Portland and Lewiston High Schools will meet in Brunswick, Saturday, April 15, to decide the winner of the Bowdoin Inter-scholastic Debating League.

AT THE ART BUILDING

A copy of Vuillefroy's "Return to the Herd" by Mrs. Annette Estelle Saunders has been added to the art collection. The original hangs in the Luxembourg.

LIBRARY NOTES

The Library has recently received, through the courtesy of the Inter-Collegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, a set of three books, depicting in text and photographs the last three annual track and field meets of that Association.

The first book has for its subject the Intercollegiate championships of 1908 which were held on Franklin Field of the University of Pennsylvania. The second volume treats in the same way the 34th annual meeting at Soldiers' Field, Harvard University, 1909, and the third volume deals with the 35th annual meeting at Philadelphia in 1910.

These books are unusually well illustrated with photographs showing all the events, most of them being action pictures. In each book the photographs are accompanied with a full textual and statistical description of the meet. In fact, the books contain for each year a complete record of every performer, including all who were eliminated in the preliminary trials. The same detail is extended to the first and second cross country runs which were held at Princeton in November, 1908, and at Boston in 1909.

Another feature of great value is the compilation of a set of statistics showing every point winner and his performance for every meet from 1876, the date of the Association's organization, to the present. These statistics were secured after long search by the editor and are found in no other book.

The Library has just received, through the kindness of Gen. T. H. Hubbard, the special edition de luxe of Admiral Peary's "North Pole," together with a number of other valuable books relating to Arctic exploration.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

The choice of a successor to Dr. Woodrow Wilson, as President of Princeton University, has been narrowed down by a process of elimination, to John H. Finley of the City College of New York and John Grier Hibben, now occupying the chair of logic at Princeton.

Many well known university professors will deliver addresses at the Second Annual Conference of Instructors of Public Speaking in the colleges of the North Atlantic States. The meetings will be held at the City College, New York, on April 14 and 15.

The eighteenth annual indoor gymnastic exhibition and track meet was held at Bates on the evening of April 3rd.

Preliminary trials are being held in several colleges in preparation for the New England Inter-collegiate Oratorical contest to be held here May 4th.

An item in the report of Dean Hurlbut of Harvard states that the 2308 undergraduates of Harvard had to their credit, or discredit, a trifle over 75,000 inexcusable cuts during the last college year.

A new tabulation of students at the University of Minnesota shows that the total attendance is 5641.

An eight weeks' course in embalming has been established temporarily at the University of Michigan.

The authorities at Oberlin College have decided to eliminate algebra and trigonometry from the list of required subjects in Freshman year, contending that a type of mind capable of profiting by mathematical training may receive the necessary development from the classics.

The students of Columbia University are to present to the trustees a petition asking that a $10 athletic assessment be added to the tuition fee.

At Princeton, 65 undergraduates failed to survive the mid-year examinations.

Nearly a thousand students at the University of Illinois are earning their own way.

Yale will probably not follow Harvard in allowing partial certification for entrance examinations by preparatory schools, including the public high schools.

The Wisconsin law which exempts from taxation all property owned by colleges, has been declared unconstitutional.

Of the 400 members of Congress, 297, or about sixty per cent., are college men. Nearly one hundred colleges or universities are represented in this number.

Conferences similar to that scheduled for tomorrow, between the preparatory school principals and the members of the Faculty, were held recently at the University of Cincinnati and the University of Michigan. The movement for the co-operation of colleges and preparatory schools on the subject of entrance requirements seems to be thriving.

Harvard has established a Bureau of Research in Municipal Government.

Fearing the establishment of compulsory chapel at the University of Pennsylvania, the students in each dormitory have appointed one of their number to serve as a "human alarm clock" each morning.

The University of Pennsylvania has established a course in wireless telegraphy and has equipped a complete laboratory to afford practical instruction.

The new University of the Philippines located in Manila, of which Rev. Dr. Murray Bartlett has been appointed President, is meeting with splendid success. Its School of Fine Arts has almost 800 enrolled.

The Cosmopolitan Club of Yale is making a collection for the benefit of famine victims in China.
Alumni Department

'57.—Hampden Fairfield died at his home in Saco, Wednesday evening, March 16, after a long and painful illness, dating back some few years. Mr. Fairfield was born in Saco, December 8, 1835, the son of Hon. John Fairfield, Governor of Maine in 1839, '42, and '43. Mr. Fairfield secured his common and high school education in Saco. After completing his college course he studied law with Mr. Moses Emery of Saco, and was admitted to the York county bar in January, 1860. In November, 1870, Mr. Fairfield came to Saco to practice his profession and lived there ever since. In 1859, Mr. Fairfield married Miss Ellen Perkins, daughter of Captain Hovey Perkins, at Kennebunk, Me. He is survived by his wife and five children.

The greater part of Mr. Fairfield’s life was given to the practice of law. He was signally successful in his work and built up an extensive business. In politics he was a Democrat, giving to his party his aid and help at all times. In his social relations, Mr. Fairfield was liked and respected by all who knew him. As a citizen, Mr. Fairfield was true to his principles and aided every cause for his city.

'67.—Winfield S. Hutchinson, lawyer, and one of the best known residents of Newton, Mass., succumbed to heart trouble March 20, 1911, in Newton. Mr. Hutchinson was born in Buckingham, Me., May 27, 1845. He attended Paris Hill and Hebron academies and was graduated from Bowdoin in the Class of 1867. He graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1873. He had been identified with the American Bell Telephone Company since 1892. He was a director in this company, as well as in the Central Union Telegraph Company, and was formerly vice-president of the Western Telephone and Telegraph Companies. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities, the Masons and the Boston City Club.

'76.—Oliver Crocker Stevens, a Boston lawyer, died at Pasadena, Cal., Saturday, March 25, born June 3, 1855. Mr. Stevens secured his preparatory education in the Boston grammar and Latin schools and graduated from Bowdoin in 1876. In 1884, Bowdoin conferred upon him the degree of A.M. In June, 1879, he graduated from the Boston University Law School with the degree of LL.B. Mr. Stevens had been a member of the Board of Overseers of Bowdoin and at one time was president of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Boston. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Julia Burnett Smith Stevens, and a brother.

'80.—Hon. D. J. McGillicuddy, '81, of Lewiston, has appointed Col. H. A. Wing of Lewiston, as his private secretary. Col. Wing is a well-known Maine newspaper man. In 1892, he started the Lewiston Sun. In 1896, Mr. Wing became correspondent from Maine for the Boston Herald, a position he held until the change of management in 1910. Since then he has been State correspondent for the Portland Evening Express. Col. Wing is a member of the present Athletic Council.

'93.—Mr. J. W. Lambert is superintendent of schools for the district of Kennebunk and Kennebunkport, Me.

'99.—Dr. Frederick H. Files died at Madison, South Dakota, on March 1, after an illness of pneumonia. Dr. Files was born in Gorham and was a graduate of Bowdoin and of the Medical School in 1899. Dr. Files was active in fraternal circles, being at one time grand master of the Masonic order in South Dakota.

'00.—Harold P. West of Auburn, died suddenly in the Bellevue hospital in New York City, Saturday afternoon, March 26, 1911. His illness had been but brief, beginning with rheumatic fever, complicated with the grip. Mr. West has been a private tutor in French and German in New York this winter and has been a most successful teacher. Mr. West was only 33 years of age at the time of his death. After graduating from Bowdoin, he studied at the Columbian University at Washington. Later he attended several European schools, including the Sorbonne in Paris.

'06.—George Parcher, M.D., has been appointed assistant surgeon in the United States public health and marine hospital service at Ellis Island, New York Harbor.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911. Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students. The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction. The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital. For catalogue, apply to

ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.
NEW GYM RALLY

"The best yet" is the promise of the Student Council for the big Spring Rally which occurs next Friday evening, April 21, in Memorial Hall. The members of the Council are working hard in preparation for the big event, but are saying nothing. Judging, however, from the high standard of success of every enterprise the 1911 Council has undertaken, the night will be one to be long remembered by Bowdoin undergraduates.

The slogan of the big affair will be the "new gym" and this subject which is so close to the students' interests will be given a large share of attention in the speeches. The list of speakers is not yet to be given out, but it will absolutely be the best, the most carefully selected and most enthusiastic collection of orators ever gathered together in old Memorial.

In addition to the speeches and the uncorking of enthusiasm for the new gym, there will be the band in full force with some new pieces and lots of harmonized noise. There will also be a souvenir for each one there and this will be something original and appropriate, and there will be refreshments and plenty of the necessaries with which to smoke.

A large number of alumni will be back to "sing to old Bowdoin" once more and every student is urged to do his best to secure as large a number of sub-freshmen as possible.

Remember and prepare for the date, one week from to-night. Memorial Hall can nicely accommodate 338 Bowdoin students, in addition to a large number of alumni and friends. The question is, can the roof stand all those outbursts of enthusiasm.

The faculty will turn out, alumni from miles around are going to turn out, surely every student will be there.

MINSTREL SHOW

April 22 has been set positively as the date for the annual baseball Minstrel Show. This is the night following the big Spring Rally and a large number of alumni will stay over for the black-face entertainment. Those who are entertaining sub-freshmen will also do well to keep them over for the show.

R. H. Toothaker, who has been director of the minstrels since the establishment of the yearly event, is at the head of this year's production and is being assisted by Mr. Kaharl. Under their tutelage the chorus and principals have been working for more than a month and the results of their efforts will be seen on the 22d in the most finished and professional black-face performance ever put on by the students.

Frank Smith will start those "funny, funny jokes" at centre and at the extreme ends will be seen those old-time favorites and side-splitters, "Mistah William Clifford and Mistah Artuhh Welch." Callahan, L. Brown, Woodcock, and King will also occupy wing positions and assist in the festivities.

The first part of the show will contain a number of new features beside Artie Welch's voice and Bill Clifford's mouth which will be surprises to the audience. The olio, however, will contain an innovation in Brunswick theatrical circles. It will be in the line of a return to the old southern plantation life and melodies. Old Black Joe will be rendered in a way to make Prof. Baker turn green with envy and the lighting effects bid fair to rival the most startling novelties offered at the "Pastime." From curtain to curtain the show is bound to please and amuse the audience, from the seniors in the bald-headed row to the small boy in the top gallery.

Tickets for the performance will be placed on sale at Chandler's and the date for purchasing them will be announced later.

RESULT OF BALLOT ON INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

At the fraternity meetings, Wednesday evening, a ballot was taken on the subject of interfraternity baseball with the following results: Psi Upsilon, Theta Delta Chi, Delta Upsilon, and Beta Theta Pi voted in favor of the games, while Zeta Psi and Kappa Sigma opposed them. Delta Kappa Epsilon voted in favor of games providing that they be played at 6 a.m. or at 5 p.m., so as not to interfere with track and baseball practice. The vote of Alpha Delta Phi was not received.
DEBATE WON BY WESLEYAN
Judges Give Decision Against Bowdoin by Two to One Vote

Wesleyan won the intercollegiate debate from Bowdoin last Friday night by a divided vote of the judges. It will be recalled that Bowdoin won by a similar decision in Brunswick last year, and that Wesleyan was victorious in the first debate held between the two colleges two years ago.

Each of the teams this year, after having failed to anticipate correctly the line of argument selected by the other side, succeeded poorly in readjusting its case to meet that of its opponents. Moreover, Bowdoin was obviously at some disadvantage in having to support a graduated income tax; one of the judges stated that the team performed this difficult task "magnificently." This statement should in no way discredit, however, the victory of the Wesleyan debaters, who succeeded in establishing a reasonable presumption against the tax as a part of our federal revenue system. Both teams showed good form.

Burleigh C. Rodick spoke first for the affirmative and endeavored to show that the tax was necessary to restore equilibrium to our present tax system since attempts to reach personality have failed; and for the additional reason that the tariff bears too heavily on the less well-to-do.

This argument was admitted by C. M. Panunzio, the first speaker for Wesleyan. He worked out several practical difficulties, however, in the administration of the tax and said the tax would drive capital from the country.

E. G. Fifield, speaking second for Bowdoin, described the practical working of a tax modeled on that in use in England.

G. T. Buck spoke second for Wesleyan and said that we should not try to use England’s tax because the economic and social conditions of the two countries differ. He held the English method of collection and the idea of graduation to be incompatible. If we adopted the tax the officers of its administration could not or would not be selected by civil service and corruption would result.

C. F. Adams, the last speaker for Bowdoin, endeavored to prove that no tax now existing in the United States taxed wealth according to the theory of "ability to pay." He tried also to show the fiscal necessity for the income tax and held that if more money is to be raised by the Federal government the income tax should be used. An income tax, he said, was necessary to tend to curb governmental extravagance and for the reform of our budgetary system.

W. R. Montgomery closed the main speeches of the negative. He said that if our tax system was defective we should reform our budgetary system. England, he held, does not have a graduated tax. The system, he said, is founded on a flat rate.

Comparing the two teams, one might call them about equal in form. In rebuttal, neither side was remarkable. There was much repetition of things already proved or admitted by the other side. Some points were made which were too remote from the point at issue and several mis-statements were made. The most sufficient reason why Bowdoin lost was that she did not meet the practical objections thrown up by the negative.

After the debate a college smoker was held in the Chi Psi lodge in honor of the visiting team.

LECTURE BY PROFESSOR SANTAYANA

Professor Santayana of Harvard University spoke in Memorial Hall last Friday evening upon the subject of "Shelley" under the auspices of the Ibis. Professor Santayana lectured fully upon the philosophy of Shelley without considering the text and import of his writings except as they reflected the opinions of their author. The idealism of this great poet was the particular theme of the lecture. Professor Santayana showed completely that the extremes to which this philosophy carried Shelley are not essentially discouraging. Likewise, he also showed that the poet’s works are famous even though he did not put his whole mind into them, a circumstance quite contrary to the usual rule.

Considering this special element of idealism in detail, Professor Santayana carefully displayed the excess of passion and the extreme freedom of spirit that so particularly characterize Shelley. The fact that this poet believed that man could himself expel evil from his nature proclaims his lack of understanding nature. Shelley was also extremely variable in ideas, consequently he could form no fixed idea of the universe. His failure to realize that freedom of spirit cannot produce freedom of action consequently led Shelley on to more distant and likewise insecure heights of idealism.
A poet, then, having such an excessively idealistic temperament must then exhibit his nature in his books and poems. In fact, Shelley cares for none of his poems unless they really emanate from his heart. His change from atheism to pantheism only followed as a result of his changing imagination. Although he wrote upon such varying and such fragile principles, he, nevertheless, has won fame and renown from his writings through their excellence. Marvelous he is in his nature, marvellous his works are in their elegances.

PROFESSOR DUNCALF RESIGNS

Assistant Professor Frederick Duncalf of the History Department, at a meeting of the Faculty held Tuesday, tendered his resignation. Professor Duncalf will go next year to the University of Texas, where he will be Professor of Mediaeval History, ranking second in the History Department.

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE OF PRINCIPALS

Although no definite action was taken at the meeting of preparatory school principals held here last Saturday, the conference was productive of many valuable suggestions. After President Hyde had welcomed the visitors, an informal discussion of entrance requirements was started, during which Dean Sills answered the questions of the delegates in behalf of the Faculty. The discussion was continued at the afternoon session, and it developed that there was a considerable sentiment among the principals in opposition to the present requirements in Latin. It is probable that no change in entrance requirements will be made before the fall of 1912.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At chapel last Sunday, Mr. J. O. Robbins, Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, spoke on "America’s Opportunity in the Philippines." In his talk, he gave interesting illustrations in the daily life of a missionary in the East. The men who are endeavoring to win the Orient for Christianity are not merely ministers with Bibles under their arms; they are strong influences in the moral and social uplifting of the region. From the untiring efforts of the missionaries and the improvements that have resulted from American government and industry, the Philippines have experienced a marvelous change for the better. There, where the people are waking up to the benefits of Christianity, is the chance for young American men to render wonderful service to their country and to mankind. Indeed, the opportunities are plentiful for those who wish to live not merely for themselves but for humanity.

NEW BOOKS BY FORMER BOWDOIN PROFESSORS

Two new books have recently been published which are of especial interest to Bowdoin men. One is a book dealing with college administration and written by former professor William T. Foster while the other is a poem, entitled "The Pond," by William A. Houghton, former professor of Latin.

Professor Foster’s book deals with life problems such as those met by every modern educator, and especially the matter of the use of the elective system. It is the result of a deal of research work on the part of the author and is carefully written. It is divided into two parts: the first taking up the historical study of college administration, and the second dealing with the critical study of the methods of the present day. An especially interesting chapter is that one dealing with the relation between college studies and success in real life. The book is published by the Houghton-Mifflin Co.

The poem by Professor Houghton is three hundred and fifty lines in length and is very artistically bound and illustrated. It is an idyl of boyhood presenting a picture of the water sports of boys of fifty years ago. The verse is smooth and clear and the reader is pleasingly led through the varying scenes of boyhood life. The book is issued by the Brunswick Publishing Co.

In another column will be found an account of the Student Conference held annually at Northfield. Bowdoin should be represented by a good delegation this year, instead of one of the smallest as in the past. It may be that this lack of interest has been due to a misunderstanding of the objects of the Conference. It is distinctly not a conference purely for those who are intending to enter the ministry or some similar work. While the primary purpose of the Conference is religious and its spirit is deeply earnest, it stands for the broad type of Christianity which the college man should take with him into his daily life, his home, his professional or business world. At the Conference itself the social and athletic side of life is not neglected by the students, with their fraternity gatherings and athletic events. Here at Bowdoin we know what the influence of a great personality like that of President Fitch may effect. His name stands with those of others of equal ability and international reputation upon the list of speakers. At such a conference, moreover, the student is thrown into contact with that larger college world of which his is but a part and has the chance to discuss timely problems with vigorous men from other colleges. A representative Bowdoin delegation would influence many preparatory school men who are there toward choosing Bowdoin for their college.

All these facts should serve to make every Bowdoin man who is interested in the furtherance of a broad and manly Christianity, give the matter of going to Northfield careful consideration.

Interfraternity Baseball

Shall or shall we not have an inter-fraternity baseball league here at Bowdoin this spring? This is the question which the Student Council is at present trying to solve. At the request of the council the several fraternities put the matter to vote last Wednesday evening. The result of the voting is seen in a separate article published in this issue.

Unless a more general interest is shown, Bowdoin cannot maintain such a league this season. That this is the case is a matter of considerable regret, for there is no better means of drawing the fraternities together in friendly rivalry, and the presence of such a league insures a larger number of men becoming actively interested in a popular sport.

The main objections to the league seem to be a fear that interest therein will detract interest from the 'varsity baseball and track teams. This should not prove true for the poor showing made by candidates for the second baseball team last spring after the inter-fraternity league had been given up for this same reason proved rather conclusively that this objection was not well grounded.

With regard to the track team, every man in college knows that if he is to be a member of the track squad he can have nothing to do with his fraternity team. Now the Orient assumes that the best interests of Bowdoin always come before those of the fraternity and for this reason it does not seem plausible to believe that any man in college who is of service to either the baseball team or the track team will allow himself, or be allowed by his fraternity men, to take part in 'fraternity baseball when he should be down on Whittier Field working for the college. Why not have a league similar to that which has been so successful at Brown? There the games are played at 6.00 A.M., and all members of varsity squads of the sports in season are barred from participation.

Seven inning games can easily be played and the Orient believes that if this sort of a league is once started it will prove most successful. Are we to let our laziness or our bad judgment stand between us and a proposition which will result in a whole lot of good for those who are actively interested, for the organization represented by the teams, and for the college as a whole?

A census on the liquor question in Social Science 2 at Brown University last week, resulted in eighteen total abstainers, ten occasional drinkers and two moderate drinkers. 'Rah for Prohibition!

Some of the robins on the campus, Sunday, could give us all a good lesson on making best out of a bad situation. The day wasn’t exactly what they expected, but they didn’t mind. They made for the only dark plot of ground on the campus, the narrow line above the steam pipes and got right down to business. While we were watching for about a minute we saw three good-sized worms picked out. We call that getting busy.

BOWDOIN’S STRONG MEN

Dr. Whittier has just prepared a list of the men who have passed the highest tests of strength in the physical examinations which are given to every man who attends Bowdoin in the academic department. The examinations are the same as those given at Harvard under the direction of Dr. Dudley A. Sargent. Dr. Sargent is himself a graduate of Bowdoin in the Class of 1873 and was for six years physical director of the college. It was while serving in this capacity that Dr. Sargent worked out much of his system of physical education which has since become famous the world over.

The list includes the first two highest records in each of the strength tests given and also the records of the two men who have passed the highest total strength tests since 1888, when Dr. Whittier began his service at Bowdoin. The strength tests are given in kilograms. The ages and residences given are those when the tests were taken. The records are as follows:

Total Strength:

1st. Edward Rawson Godfrey, '99; Strength of Lungs, 18; Back, 342; Legs, 717; Upper Arms, 476.1; Fore Arms, 103; Total Strength 1716.1; Age 19; Weight 186.6 pounds. At the time this was taken it was a collegiate record.

2d. Walter Bradley Clarke, '99; Strength of Lungs, 27; Back, 270; Legs, 550; Upper Arms, 588.4; Fore Arms, 145; total 1520.4; Age, 20; Weight, 155.3 pounds.

Strength of Lungs:

Strength of Back:

1st. Edward Rawson Godfrey, '99, Bangor, Me., Age 19—42; 2d. Horace Eugene Glidden 1900, Age 22, Sebec, Me.—325.

Strength of Legs:

Strength of Upper Arms:

1st. Walter Bradley Clarke, '99, Portland, Me., Age 20, Triceps, 37; Biceps, 43; Total 538.4; 2d. Edward Rawson Godfrey, '99—Age 21, Triceps, 46; Biceps, 22; Total 494.

Strength of Fore Arms:

1st. Edward Rawson Godfrey, '99—Right, 82; Left, 81; Total, 163; 2d. Walter Bradley Clarke, '99, Right, 73; Left, 72; Total, 145.

THE FRIAR DANCE

On Monday evening was held the first dance given by the Junior Society, the Friars. The entertainment took place at Riverton Casino, Portland, with dinner at 6.30 and dancing at 8.00. About fifteen couples enjoyed an order of dances for which music was furnished by Miss Bernadette Moreau's Orchestra of Portland. The patronesses were Mrs. Neal Cox and Mrs. Carl B. Smith of Portland. Among the guests were the Misses Eleanor Strickland, Marion White, and Hazel Savage of Bangor; Misses Margaret Starbird, Evelyn Edwards, Rose Tyler, Alberta Robinson, Olivia Bagley, and Martha O'Brien of Portland; Miss Elizabeth Fuller of Rockland; Miss Rachel Chaddock of Reading; Misses of Boston; Miss Mary Swaney of Standish; and Misses Lina Andrews and Margaret Sewall of Bath.

The active members of the society are Bradford, Brooks, Cressey, Gray, Hurley, G. C. Kern, McKenney, Newell, F. A. Smith, Welch, and H. A. White, 1912.

The members from 1911 are Brummett, Cole, Dennis, Howe, Pierce, Robinson, E. B. Smith, J. C. White, and Wiggin.

NORTHFIELD STUDENT CONFERENCE

The twenty-fifth session of the Northfield Conference meets this year June 23 to July 2. From six to eight hundred men will be present, representing over one hundred institutions. It is hoped that there will be fifty delegates from Maine, including twelve to fifteen from Bowdoin.

The cost will be about eleven dollars for board and tent, and five dollars for conference fee, which the Association hopes to be able to pay. Reduced railway rates will be granted. Any man who applies early may secure waiterships, which makes the total cost only about five dollars.

Among the speakers will be: John R. Mott, chairman of the Conference, Secretary World's Student Christian Federation, Secretary, Student Y. M. C. A. of America, presided at Edinburgh World's Henry Sloan Colvin, Pastor, Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York. Speaker at Northfield for many years. Graduate of Gale and Union Seminary.

Harry Emerson Fosdick, Pastor, Baptist Church, Montclair. Prominent in civic affairs, and labor reform. Graduate of Colgate and Union.

E. T. Colton, Secretary, International Committee Y. M. C. A., addressed students of South America last year. Graduate of North Dakota.

Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd, D.D., Secretary and President, Episcopal Board of Missions, Graduate of University of Virginia.

President A. P. Fitch, of Andover Seminary, College Preacher, Bowdoin; Maine Student Conference, Harvard, 1900, Union Seminary, 1904.

H. Roswell Bates will be one of the mission study leaders.

Bowdoin is one of the few New England colleges that has never been adequately represented at Northfield; the first delegation went in 1904, the largest was 8, and last year's was only two. David R. Porter, 1904, the first delegate thus answers the question: "Why should Bowdoin men go to Northfield?"

"When I first saw the delegations at Northfield numbering from five to a hundred from other eastern colleges and universities I said to myself, 'What a pity that more Bowdoin men do not realize the importance of this conference.' We first delegates vowed that we would endeavor to make more men see the rare enjoyment and healthy inspiration of this great gathering. We also saw that to the two hundred preparatory school boys there, we could advertise the best side of the college. I hope you will have this year enough grace and endurance to persuade even some who are nearing provincialism that Northfield has become a great intercollegiate event. Every undergraduate should go there at least once. Bowdoin should have at least fifteen men there this year."

President Fitch writes:

"As a student I thought of Northfield as an ultrapopulous place which promoted an emotional abnormal, and provincial religious life. When I finally went I discovered that there was a free, joyous, single-hearted atmosphere throughout the conference. The men from the various schools and colleges were a selected group of fine vigorous spirits, frankly and earnestly religious, but also normally and attractively so. The speaking was for the most part excellent, there was plenty of sport and recreation mingled with the Bible study and devotional meetings. I think every man who was there was glad that he had come and was the better and bigger for it. For my own part I look forward immensely to going up to this year’s conference."

Diary of a Bowdoin Delegate

Left Portland Friday with seven other fellows on the Boston boat. Got to Northfield next noon—quiet old elm shaded streets, old Colonial houses, on banks of Connecticut. Conference meeting on Northfield Seminary campus. Our tent is on high bluff, fine view up the river into three states. At like bears with 300 other shirt sleeved college fellows, who gave their yells between every mouthful! Opening meeting in big Auditorium, then Bowdoin men met in one of our tents for a "talk around." We all like the Conference. Gave Bowdoin cheer for other college delegations tenting near us, and turned in, tired and happy.

Sunday. Rather warm. Fine address by Colton in morning, over 2000 there. Delegates all wore white shirts and flannels. Took a long walk in afternoon with Bob on hills behind river. Great view. We talked about some of the things that have been spoken of here; were both impressed with the saneness of the religion represented, and the strength of its appeal. Conference gives one a great chance to rub elbows with fellows from other colleges, with other view points. A fellow ought to be a better around college man for coming to Northfield. Sunset meeting on Round Top most impressive, Sat near grave of founder of this Conference, D. L. Moody, and watched sun set behind foothills of Green Mountains. Helpful talk on "Unselfish service after College." Evening service in Sage Chapel—delegates only, most impressive service I ever attended. Wish we could get Mr. Speer as a college preacher at Bowdoin.

Tuesday. Started off with four sets of tennis before breakfast. In afternoon the Maine delegates baseball team beat the Williams team, but later Yale licked us—no wonder, they had three Varsity men playing. Their delegation fills one whole building—over 120. West Point men threw one of their men in pond for fussing girls at Hotel Northfield,—loud cheers by crowd.

Thursday. Usual morning program, with Bible study before breakfast—wonderful sunrise today—and Bible class at 9, led by Dartmouth man, with five different colleges represented in it. Had fine discussion this morning on the college man’s attitude toward the Bible. Dropped in to Mission Study Class at ten—heard about Confucianism and Hinduism, Hiwale told about latter. At eleven heard out-of-doors conference on ministry—do we need more ministers, or merely more big, fully capable ones? Speer and Mott spoke at Auditorium. Maine men gave an ice cream feed in Glen in afternoon—Brown, quartette, members of Athletic Committee of Cadets, etc., present. Dave Porter spoke at our "Goodnight" meeting.

Friday. Fourth of July Track Meet. Big crowd, townspeople, visitors, girls, etc. All kinds of events, from potato race to mile-run. Last event was an obstacle race through the pond, under nets, over backstop, etc! Dartmouth won the meet, Yale second. Bowdoin won nothing! hope to take part next year. Grand celebration in evening; auditorium packed; every delegation has costumes, etc. We marched in behind Hiwale, in his native costume, each wearing a sheet with one letter of B-o-w-d-o-i-n. Gave song and cheer—along with 100 other colleges. Good patriotic address, not too long, and then we all celebrated around a 60-foot bonfire. Sang college songs until 11:30. Great celebration.

Sunday. Conference is over. Speer gave final addresses. Going home to live it all out; "end of the conference is the beginning of the campaign." Glad I came—hope to have dozen Bowdoin delegates next year.

Come to the Northfield meeting next Thursday evening and hear from the men who have been there. Y. M. C. A. room, 7 o'clock.

FACULTY NOTE

During the Easter Recess, Dr. Whittier visited Columbia, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Lawrenceville School, Haverford, Rutgers, New York University, and Springfield Training School in search of suggestions for the proposed new gymnasium.

College Notes

Mid-semester warnings were issued this week. The next baseball game is April 22, with Bates at Lewiston.

Tuttle, '14, is coaching the Freeport High School baseball team.

As usual many sub-freshmen will be invited to attend the Rally, April 21.

The Hubbard grand stand has been prepared for the spring athletic season, this week.

Arthur Hubbard, '14, has been confined to his home at Portland by illness during the past week.

The annual reception and dance of Beta Theta Pi will be held at the chapter house on April 28.

Herr Leutge, German Exchange Professor at Exeter, spoke before the Deutscher Verein, Thursday.

W. A. MacCormick, '12, attended the Conference of Eastern College Y. M. C. A. Presidents at Amherst, last week.

The candidates for Assistant Track Manager have been busy at Whittier Field, where they have dug a jumping pit.

H. L. Robinson, '11, C. O. Page, '13, and W. Brown, '14, were officials at the Morse High School Interclass Meet held at Bath, Friday.

Paul H. Emery, '13, is to leave for Dixfield, Me., the first of next week, where he is to teach in the high school for the remainder of the year.

Dr. Loy, Professor of Chemistry at Simmons College, read a paper on Welsbach burners before the Chemical Club at the Beta House, Saturday evening.

The baseball team has had hard luck in finding suitable grounds for practice the past week. The candidates for Assistant Manager, however, have been working on Whittier Field, which will soon be in condition.

Professor Allen Johnson is writing several articles for the new "Cyclopedia of American Government," to be published this year under the editorship of Professors McLaughlin of Chicago, and Hart of Harvard.—Yale Daily News.

A meeting of the Augusta Club was held Monday. The new officers elected were the following: President, Locke, '12; Vice-President, Burleigh, '13; Secretary and Treasurer, McCargo, '14. It was voted to hold a meeting on the first Tuesday of every month.

An article of local interest appears in McClure's Magazine for April. It is written by the son and the grandson of Harriet Beecher Stowe, Charles Edward Stowe and Lyman Beecher Stowe, and describes how she obtained the inspiration for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in the Church on the Hill and wrote the book at her Federal Street home.

'55.—Rev. Edward Hawes, D.D., died in Washington, March 14, at the age of seventy-seven. He was born in Topsham, Me., graduated from Bowdoin in 1855, and Bangor Seminary in 1858. During his life, he held pastorates varying in length from six to fifteen years in Waterville, Me., Philadelphia, New Haven, and Burlington, Vermont. He was a delegate to the International Council in London in 1891 and represented his denomination at a meeting of the Congregational Union in Canada. For a number of years after he left Burlington, Dr. Hawes was field secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief. He gave his heart as well as his time to this important undertaking and wrote and spoke effectively in its behalf. A man of scholarly instincts and quiet dignity, devoted to his calling, he was a good representative of the older school of New England clergymen.

'71.—William Sullivan Pattee, dean of the College of Law of the University of Minnesota, died at his home in Minneapolis, April 4, 1911. Prof. Pattee was born in Jackson, Me., Sept. 19, 1846, and graduated from college in 1871. He was admitted to the bar in 1878 and was placed at the head of the university law school in 1888. Dean Pattee was the author of several text-books on law, chief among which was the volume published in 1909, entitled, "The Essential Nature of Law, or Ethical Basis of Jurisprudence."

'89.—Judge Sanford L. Fogg and family of Bath will soon move to Monmouth, where the judge has purchased a farm. Wednesday evening, April 5, they were tendered a farewell party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Payne, when they were presented a silver water pitcher.

'96.—George T. Ordway has recently become Vice-President of the Engineering Securities Corporation at 43-49 Exchange Street, New York City.

'02.—Daniel Irving Gross, who has held a pastorate at Marshfield, Mass., from 1907-1911, has accepted a call to the pastorate at Nashua, N. H. Mr. Gross was educated in Thornton Academy, University of Colorado, and at Bowdoin, where he was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. He then attended the Harvard Law School two years and Andover Seminary three years. He is the author of a book of poems, "What, Saxon!"

RESOLUTIONS

Hall of the Kappa of Psi Upsilon, April 11, 1911.

The Kappa Chapter is called upon to record the death of Brother Oliver Crocker Stevens of the Class of 1876. A distinguished member of the legal profession in the City of Boston, he was always loyal to his college and served her in various capacities. By his death the Kappa Chapter loses a loyal and honored brother. Therefore be it

Resolved, That we express our sorrow at his death and extend our sincere sympathy to those bound closer to him by ties of friendship and family.

Hall of the Kappa of Psi Upsilon, April 11, 1911.

In the death of Brother Edward Hawes of the Class of 1855, the Kappa Chapter of Psi Upsilon loses one of its oldest and most respected alumni. He had spent a life of service in the ministry and had gained high honor in his calling. By his death the Kappa Chapter loses a loyal and respected elder brother. Therefore be it

Resolved, That we express our sorrow at his death and extend our sincere sympathy to those bound closer to him by ties of friendship and family.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911.

Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to

ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.
ALL OUT FOR THE RALLY!

The biggest Rally within the memory of the present college generation is to be held at 7:30 to-night in Memorial Hall. It has been distinctively labelled the “New Gym Rally” and will make good its title as the following list of speakers will convince you:

President William DeW. Hyde.
Mr. Charles T. Hawes, ’76, of Bangor.
Professor George T. Files, ’89.
Principal William E. Sargent, ’78, of Hebron.
Dr. Frank N. Whittier, ’85.
Mr. John Clair Minot, ’96, of Augusta.
Other attractions will be the Band with new pieces, something unique in souvenirs, and something satisfying in refreshments. Everybody out!

MINSTREL SHOW

The annual Baseball Minstrel Show will be held to-morrow evening at the Town Hall. All those who have not yet secured seats may purchase them now at Chandler’s. The general admission is $50 and $35 for reserved seats. The Baseball Association needs the money and the entertainment will be good. It is especially urged that those who are entertaining sub-Freshmen invite them to stay over for the show. Remember that the production is not all “coon songs” and dancing. There will be ballads sung by the well-known Glee Club favorites, Tibbetts, Parkman and Davis. The Quartet will also be heard, and Loring Pratt will be seen in an artistic female impersonation. You can’t afford to miss it.

BOWDOIN VS. BATES

The first Maine college game will be held to-morrow afternoon, April 22, when Bowdoin meets Bates at Lewiston. This contest will not, however, count in the Maine college series, but is merely an exhibition game. This should not detract from the interest in it, as it will afford a chance to get a line on both teams, especially the new pitchers whom both aggregations will use. The game will be on Garcelon Field, at 2:30 P.M.

Those to make the trip will be Capt. Lawlis, Wilson, Clifford, O’Neil, Weatherill, Smith, Purington, Russell, Tilton, Brooks, Daniels, Grant, Woodcock, Dodge, Leigh, manager, and Brady, coach. Grant, Dodge or Woodcock will be used in the box.

BOWDOIN, 7; MAINE CENTRALS, 6

On Patriots’ Day in a well played game on the Forest Avenue Grounds, the ’varsity defeated the Maine Centrals of Portland by a score of 7 to 6. Dodge started the game and showed up well for a new man. He was replaced by Means in the 5th who held his opponents to two hits. Several new men were tried by Acting Coach Brady. Tilton showed that he was handy with the stick as did Russell. Daniels was used for an inning but had no opportunity to exhibit his fielding ability. Taken all in all, the team made a very creditable showing. Their base running has always been weak but shows some improvement. About the same team will be used in the lineup against Bates on Saturday next.

NEW HAMPSHIRE-VERMONT TRIP

The baseball team will leave Sunday morning on the Dartmouth trip. Two games will be played with that institution, on April 25th and 26th and two games with the University of Vermont at Burlington, on April 28th and 29th. The team will return on the 30th. The list of those taking the trip has not been given out yet, but probably will include the same infield which made the spring trip, and an outfield chosen from Smith, Purington, Russell and Tilton. The pitching staff is still a very doubtful quantity, and will be chosen from those who make a good showing in this week’s games.

TRIALS FOR ORATORICAL LEAGUE CONTEST

The trials to determine the Bowdoin representation in the New England Oratorical League contest, which is to be held here May 4, took place in Hubbard Hall on Monday afternoon at 2:45. The speakers and their subjects were as follows:

Ernest Gibson Fifield, ’11, “Citizens or Criminals.”
Burleigh C. Rodick, ’12, “International Peace.”
Chas. B. Haskell, Jr., ’13, “American Worship of Mammon.”

E. B. Smith was chosen representative and A. H. Cole alternate. The judges were Professors Mitchell, Sills, Davis, and McConaughy.

MEETING OF THE STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council voted Monday afternoon to organize interfraternity baseball under the control of a board of managers of the teams. An additional requirement is that the captain, coach, and manager of the baseball and track teams shall decide what men are to be excluded from the games on account of training for the college teams.

It was also voted that the Freshmen shall wear their white caps until Ivy Day.

NEW REGULATION FOR GRADUATION HONORS

It has been deemed advisable, in order that the terms may mean more, to alter the rules for honors at graduation. Accordingly the following rules will go into effect, but probably not this year: “Summa cum laude,” seven-eighths A’s; “magna cum laude,” three-fourths A’s, and another eighth B’s; “cum laude” seven-eighths A’s or B’s. No student shall receive any of the above unless he has completed three years’ work in the college.

MEETING OF M. I. A. A.

The Executive Committee of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association held a special meeting last Saturday afternoon at the Penobscot Exchange, Bangor. The business of the meeting consisted in acting on the amendments to the Constitution and By-Laws of the Association. It was voted to revise the constitution as a whole making the articles more definite in form and meaning. The Rules governing the meet were made to conform almost wholly with those of the New England Intercollegiate Association.

A list of officials for the Maine Meet to be held at Waterville, May 13, was presented by Secretary W. A. MacCormick of Bowdoin, and approved by the Committee. A. W. Buck, ’12, Manager of the Bates Track Team, and W. A. MacCormick, ’12, of Bowdoin, were appointed as a committee to compile and publish the new constitution. It will probably be ready for publication by May 1.

Plans were made for carrying on the meet at Colby and the committee decided that all entries should be sent in to the Secretary as early as the first of May.

The Executive Committee of the Association who will have charge of the Maine Meet this year, is composed of, W. McDonald, ’12, University of Maine, President; A. W. Buck, ’12, Bates, Vice-President; W. G. Chapman, Jr., ’12, Colby, Treasurer; W. A. MacCormick, ’12, Bowdoin, Secretary.
THE ETA DELTA CHI HOUSE PARTY

The Eta Charge of Theta Delta Chi held its annual reception and dance Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Chapter House. The reception was held from three until five o’clock and was attended by many of the townspeople, faculty, and students. Cut flowers, pinks, daffodils, and smilax formed the decorations for the occasion. On the reception committee were Mrs. Herbert E. Cole of Bath, Mrs. Wilmot B. Mitchell, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, and Mrs. William H. Davis of Brunswick. During the afternoon, refreshments of ice-cream, cake and punch were served by Caterer Given. At nine began an order of 22 dances for which music was furnished by Kendrie’s Orchestra of Brunswick. The ladies of the reception committee, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Woodruff, and Mrs. Davis, acted as patronesses.

Among the guests were the Misses Helen Sherman and Dorothy Grant of Bar Harbor; Misses Margaret Sewall, Louise Harriman, Margaret Torrey, and Gertrude Dillon of Bath; Miss Edna Dennison of Freeport; Misses Evelyn Edwards, Helen Schonland, Elizabeth Ware, Helen Richardson, Edith Monroe, and Elizabeth Payson of Portland; Miss Inez Mace of Aurora; Miss Marjorie Burns of Malden, Mass.; Miss Louise Waterman of Roxbury, Mass.; Miss Ruth Edwards of Cambridge, Mass.; Miss Helen Yorke of Augusta; and Miss Helen Percival of Auburn.

The delegates from the other fraternities were Hugh Warren Hastings, 1911, Alpha Delta Phi; Arthur Harrison Cole, 1911, Psi Upsilon; Philip Herman Hanson, 1911, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Stetson Harlowe Hussey, 1911, Zeta Psi; Seward Joseph Marsh, 1912, Delta Upsilon; Walter Nelson Emerson, 1911, Beta Theta Pi.

EASTERN COLLEGE METHODS OF SUPPORTING ATHLETICS

A letter containing questions with regard to the management of athletics was sent to authorities in several of the most important eastern colleges by Secretary McFarland of the Student Council just before the Christmas recess. Certain of these questions pertained to the mode of financial support of athletics and the answers to these questions should be of interest to every thoughtful Bowdoin man. In the editorial column further comment is made upon the present situation in this matter with reference to the facts here stated. Letters were sent to the following colleges: Amherst, Brown, Dartmouth, M. I. T., New York University, Tufts, Union, Wesleyan, and Williams.

With regard to subscriptions—subscriptions as understood here at Bowdoin being voluntary payments made to the managers of the various teams for which no definite return such as a season ticket is given—not one of these colleges reports their use in the support of athletics.

The other important question was in regard to the so-called “blanket tax,” as to its amount, returns given for it, its method of collection, whether by the college through the term bill or by the student body through its athletic association and finally its apportionment among the branches of athletics. The “blanket tax” implies the collection of money from the student body in one assessment for which direct return may or may not be given. As the systems in each college differed to suit individual circumstances they are given in some detail so that their usefulness in meeting Bowdoin conditions may be better adjudged.

At Amherst for the last two years a general athletic ticket, costing $10, has been used, admitting to all games under the control of the Athletic Board. The tickets are sold by competitors for the various Athletic Association offices and the money turned in to the Treasurer of the Athletic Board. The apportionments to the various teams are made by this Board. This method has been very successful for two years.

Brown has recently adopted a “blanket tax” providing for a $9 payment per year giving membership in the Athletic Association, Tennis Association, and season tickets for all home games; this is to be collected by officials of the student body.

Dartmouth issues season tickets selling for $10.00 which admit to all home games, and sold by officials of the Athletic Association.

Tech issues a season ticket selling for $3.00 admitting to all home games, and sold by officials of the Athletic Association.

The vague discussion about The New Gym Rally, the new gym which has been current for some years, has at last crystallized into definite action. The appeal for funds has been made to the alumni and Dr. Whittier has spent much time and effort in getting the best ideas along lines of construction from the most prominent eastern colleges. So it is entirely fitting that this, the eighth annual Bowdoin Rally, should be called the “New Gym Rally.” We have heard occasional references to the new gym in past Rallies, but this year those two words are to be its keynote. The Student Council has spared no effort to make this Rally excel all those in the past. To-night will be gathered in Memorial Hall a body of men to pay honor to old Bowdoin; part of them will be friends; part those who look forward with eagerness to the day when they shall be Bowdoin men; part those who see Bowdoin about them a living present; and part those who look on her with the eyes of happy memories. The spirit of love for Bowdoin which they display is, after all, the real heart of the value and success of this New Gym Rally.

An Obsolete System

In another column may be found a résumé of the systems at present in operation in several of the more prominent eastern colleges, for the financing of athletics. The inquiry was made in behalf of the Student Council because it was felt that there was an undergraduate sentiment in favor of some reformation of the present system. The Orient now wishes to throw the matter open for thorough and careful discussion among undergraduates and alumni. Inquiry this spring has revealed a more decided sentiment of dissatisfaction with the present method of subscriptions.

Familiarity with this present method must, in our opinion, breed contempt. A dozen managers and their henchmen spend much valuable time in ingloriously trotting up and down stairs in pursuit of money to support the teams of Bowdoin College. The thoughtful student locks his door, dodges across the hall or into the cellar; his thoughtless brother is trapped, explains at great length why he doesn’t sign, or else signs with the air of a martyr to custom. The manager goes his way to meet the same experiences again and again.

Such a haphazard way of carrying on a financial matter, the annual figures of which mount into the thousands, is manifestly un-businesslike. Anywhere outside of college walls it might well be counted absurd. In the first place it is not economical. It is a decided waste of time to the men engaged in collecting. The time so spent might be much more profitably used in college activities or studies. Moreover, what little business experience there may be for a manager in unbusinesslike pursuit of individual men would be at least balanced by the adoption of methods of collection and disbursement as in many colleges to-day, which are businesslike.

The chief charge which can be brought against this present system is its unfairness. An examination of the manager’s books reveals the fact that in a great many cases the poorer student gives as much support to the teams as another much better able to spare the money. Further examination shows that nearly the same list of men have unpaid subscriptions from last year on the manager’s books; and that the majority of these men are amply able to pay, if we may judge by their expenditures in other lines. We have even heard such men openly boast of the fact that their names were so left. It is unfair to the student who signs and pays each year to punish such carelessness. The support of college athletics should be, above all else, manifestly fair.

Other arguments might be cited against the system, such as the carelessness of many men in signing in for a certain date with the words “I promise to pay” and then deliberately breaking such promise. Poor as it is, this method has supported with greater or less success the athletics of Bowdoin College in the past. But we feel that there is a real and a serious undergraduate sentiment in favor of a change.

As to just what this change shall be neither the Orient nor the Student Council has any definite plan. Whatever plan may be later brought up should be carefully examined and criticized by the student body. No change could be effectively made which did not have the hearty support of the college. That the student body may be familiar with the methods of other institutions in the east the Orient publishes the résumé of these methods. No special one could be advocated for Bowdoin, at least not until further study of conditions here. But it is significant that all of these colleges have dropped the subscription system. All of them provide for a compactness of management which is impossible with subscriptions for individual branches. It is worthy of note also that in addition to these colleges, many colleges smaller than Bowdoin, and even preparatory schools, have methods which are more compact and unified.

In closing the Orient asks for a careful and thoughtful consideration of the matter by every undergraduate, for it is for him primarily that the matter is of importance. We would welcome any communication from undergraduates, alumni, or members of the faculty, whether in criticism of our attitude towards the present plan, or in advocacy of some improvement. We feel that all of us should strive to have the most economical and the fairest possible management of Bowdoin.

By Way of Postscript While we believe that the subscription method has the faults we have outlined above we also wish to remind the college that it is at present in operation. The managers report greater difficulty than ever before in getting support for their teams. However much dissatisfaction there may be with subscriptions, the Bowdoin College teams need support now. Let every man meet his share squarely.

per year, placed on the term bill and collected through the college office. The University Treasurer turns it over to the Athletic Association which apportions it among the different branches.

At Tufts $5 per year is placed on the term bill, this being purely a tax and not including admission to any games. The funds are in the custody of the Athletic Association for distribution.

At Union a campus tax of $11 is levied by the college office. This tax includes admission to all home games. The Athletic Board distributes the money among the different branches.

The system in vogue at Wesleyan is of especial interest to Bowdoin because the conditions are much the same in the two colleges. Every undergraduate (unless excepted as provided below) must pay an annual campus tax of fifteen dollars. This tax covers all athletic sports and entitles the man to admission to all games on the field and gymnasium floor except the Interscholastic games. It also provides tennis nets and keeps the courts in order, and provides for the expenses of the undergraduate body such as debating, representation by undergraduates at Alumni banquets, etc. The tax is collected as follows: On or before the first Saturday in the fall term $8; winter term $4; spring term $3. Any undergraduate who cannot pay the tax may appear before a committee consisting of the Financial Secretary of the Athletic Council, the undergraduate Secretary-Treasurer, and another member of the faculty elected by the undergraduate body. This Board of Relief investigates the case and remits the whole or a part of the tax. The tax is collected by the competitors for assistant managements and is credited on their competition. Any undergraduate who does not pay the tax, or such part of it as the Board of Relief requires, is posted on the second Saturday of the term on the undergraduate bulletin board, and is excluded from all participation.
in undergraduate affairs, athletic and otherwise. The college authorities have nothing to do with the tax and are absolutely neutral with regard to it, regarding it as much an undergraduate affair as the administration of any undergraduate funds would be. The Athletic Council makes the apportionment of the funds on the basis of budgets handed in by the managers. The accounts of the mangers are audited weekly during the season.

At Williams the men are expected to pay an assessment based on the budgets of the managers and divided among the students on the basis of a percentage of the room rents, such rents being of wider range than at Bowdoin and being a fairly good esimate of a man's ability to pay. Every student is admitted to all home games and it is entirely a matter of honor with him whether he pays or not. There are very few cases of non-payment. Men working their way through college are not assessed and scholarship men have their assessment reduced by 1-4 of the average assessment. All men who have made their varsity letter in major sports are allowed a reduction of 1-4 the assessment for each one.

In summary it may be said that all these colleges have dropped the system of subscriptions as in vogue at present at Bowdoin.
Three, Amherst, Dartmouth, and Technology, have season tickets, the purchase of which is entirely voluntary as far as the statistics sent show. One, Williams, has a sort of honor system, making payment a matter of personal honor. Three, New York University, Tufts, and Union, have an athletic tax placed on the term bill and collected by the college treasurer.
Two, Brown and Wesleyan, have a tax laid and collected by the student body and aimed to include practically every student in college, with compulsory measures in the case of Wesleyan.

TRACK NOTES

In response to the daily calls of Coach "Burt" Morril, over ninety men have reported during the past week for track practice. There is still room on Whittier Field for ninety more men to practice and it is very essential that every man who can do anything should come out. The Maine Meet is only a little over three weeks away and before the end of that time a team must be picked to represent Bow-doin in the State.

If suitable conditions are found a training table for track men will be started next week.

NEW PLAN FOR PUBLISHING COLLEGE CALENDAR

The Student Council has approved a plan for publishing the college calendar which is designed to place the work on a firmer business basis and at the same time insure a high grade calendar. The plan is to choose this year a member of the Class of 1912 and a member of 1913 who shall have the right to publish the calendar in 1911-1912. Next year a mem-er of 1914 will be chosen to assist in the year following.

This will give each man two years' experience on the calendar and tend to make its publication a more profitable venture. Applications from 1912 and 1913 should be handed at once to McFarland, '11, Secretary of the Council.

A CORRECTION

In the article headed "Bowdoin's Strong Men" in the issue of April 14, it was stated that Edward Augustus Dunlap was a member of the Class of 1895 and a resident of Richmond, Va. Mr. Dunlap was a member of the Class of 1903, and at the time the strength test was taken, was a resident of Brunswick.

DEBATING COUNCIL MEETS

The Bowdoin Debating Council held a meeting last Monday evening, April 17, at which officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Burleigh C. Rodick, '12.
Vice-President—Charles Francis Adams, '12.
Secretary-Treasurer—Seward J. Marsh, '12.
Manager of Teams—Carl B. Timberlake, '12.

The matter of more than one intercollegiate debate next year was discussed and was favorably received. From present indications, at least two outside debates will be undertaken hereafter. Correspondence was authorized with Williams College, Wesleyan University, and the University of Virginia.

The council decided to hold a banquet and for that purpose Retiring President William Folsom
Merrill, '11, appointed the following committee:
Burleigh C. Rodick, '12; Earle L. Russell, '12; and
A. Donald Weston, '12.

The report of the Treasurer shows a deficit of $70.00 which must be met by this year's organization before further work may be carried on. Most of this debit comes from the expenses of the Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League. A committee consisting of Earl F. Maloney, '12; Charles F. Adams,
'12, and Ernest G. Fifield, '11, was appointed to consult the faculty as to the advisability of continuing the existence of this league.

The year's work of the Council will close with the Interclass Debate April 28. The outlook for next year's team is very bright. Of this year's team and the Bradbury debaters, but one member will be lost by graduation, Ernest G. Fifield. The two lower classes, according to Prof. Davis, have some excellent speakers who will develop into intercollegiate timber next season.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF LAMBDA OF ZETA PSI

On March 1, 1911, death removed from our number a beloved and respected brother, Frederick Thomas Files, Class of 1883, a man of sterling integrity and with an honorable career. Therefore be it Resolved, That we express our own sorrow at the death of this honored brother and extend to his bereaved relatives and friends our sincerest sympathy.

RAYMOND W. HATHAWAY,
JOHN L. HURLAY,
GEORGE F. WILSON,
For the Chapter.

Brunswick, Maine, April 20, 1911.

The Bowdoin Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi has suffered heavily of late in the death of three of its most honored brothers,— Rev. James Holwell Kidder, '33, on March 17th.

Winfield Scott Hutchinson, '07, on March 20th.
William Sullivan Pattee, '71, on April 4th.

Brother Kidder has been for the past forty-three years Rector of St. Paul's Church at Owego, New York, where he died.

Brother Hutchinson, besides being prominent as a lawyer, has been a director of the American Bell Telephone Company, and of the Central Union Telegraph Company.

Brother Pattee went west within a year after graduating from Bowdoin, and held an instructorship in Greek at Lake Forest University from 1872 to 1874. Then he taught in Northfield High School, meanwhile studying law. He was admitted to the bar at Fairbault, Minnesota, in 1878, began practice at Northfield, and was sent to the state legislature from Rice County in 1884. In the spring of 1888, Continued on page 24, second column

'81.—Edgar O. Achorn, LL.D., is delivering a course of lectures on "The Growth and Development of Law" at Lincoln Memorial University. Mr. Achorn is a member of the firm of Achorn and Bates, attorneys and counsellors-at-law, at 18 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

'88.—Joseph Williamson has been appointed County Attorney of Kennebec County.

'00.—Charles G. Willard, who graduated from the Harvard Law School last June, successfully passed his examinations for admission to the Massachusetts Bar in January. Mr. Willard is at present sub-master at Punchard High School, Andover, Mass.

'02.—Harrison K. McCann, who has been for four years the Advertising Manager of the New York Telephone Company, has accepted the position of Advertising Manager of the Standard Oil Company, and entered upon his new duties. Mr. McCann has served the New York Telephone Company most ably and conscientiously. By the use of well-prepared advertisements he has created a good feeling between the telephone users of the metropolitan district and the monopoly that controlled the service. There is thus reason to believe that he will equally well serve the Standard Oil Company.

'03.—Governor Plaisted has announced the nomination of Harrie L. Webber as judge of the Auburn municipal court. Mr. Webber was born in Lisbon, June 20, 1880. His parents moving to Auburn when he was two years old, he received his education in the public schools in that city, graduating from Edward Little High School in 1899. He was graduated from Bowdoin with honors in 1903. He was very popular in college, winning first prizes for Freshman and Sophomore declamations, and being very successful as reader for the musical clubs.

Mr. Webber shortly began reading law in the office of his brother, George C. Webber, Esq. In February, 1908, he was admitted to the bar, since when he has been a member of the law firm, G. C. and H. L. Webber. Mr. Webber is a Mason, an Elk and a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

'04.—Rev. John F. Schneider, pastor at Danville, Vt., has been given an increase of salary of $100, besides a gift of $100 for an extended vacation.

'03.—S. O. Martin, who has been at work for the Government at Washington in the Bureau of Corporations, is at present in South America making personal investigations of business methods in several South American countries. On his return he is to become a professor in the Business Administration Course at Harvard University.

'03.—The marriage of Robert C. Bisbee to Elizabeth Edwards Andrews at Lawrence, Mass., on March 18, is announced.

'05.—There was exhibited at the 86th Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design, held this winter by the winter academy, a landscape by Charles Bayley Cook, which has received much praise and favorable comment, it being one of the three best landscapes displayed.

'06.—Cards have been received announcing the wedding at Hong Kong, China, on Feb. 7, of Ralph Grant Webber, now located in the Philippines, and Delia Delight Rice, formerly of Columbus, Ohio.

'08.—Karl B. Kilborn completes his studies this June at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

the legislature granted an appropriation for a law school in connection with the state university. Pattee was chosen to take charge of the new school, which opened in 1888. He has remained Dean ever since, and has been dearly beloved by all his students and his colleagues.

The chapter takes this opportunity of recording its deep grief and its reverence for the memory of these brothers, who have so long brought honor to the fraternity in their lives.

BOWDOIN AND WHO'S WHO

Investigations carried on by the Library Department show that the names of ninety-nine Bowdoin graduates appear in "Who's Who in America." Among the professions represented are 27 lawyers, 38 educators, 8 pastors, 4 physicians, 4 manufacturers, and a variety of other professions including military service, government service, U. S. Life Saving Service, journalism, literature, mechanical engineering, consular service and finance. Of the educators by far the greater percentage are instructors in colleges or universities. The list includes two U. S. senators, three who have been or are state governors, five college presidents, and one Arctic explorer.

BATES, 10: BOWDOIN, 9

Bowdoin and Bates met on Garcelon Field, Lewiston, Saturday, April 22, in an exhibition game. It was sad to be beaten, but aside from that, it was funny. The game put up by both teams was too poor to be considered a fair indication of their respective merits or how well either can play. It was simply an off day for everyone.

There were just one or two redeeming features of the "exhibition:" namely, "Squanto" Wilson's catching and the Bowdoin batting rally in the ninth.

Duvey, the Bates pitcher seemed new at the game, and does not look like a very formidable opponent in the State series. Grant and Woodcock both pitched good ball, were steady in pitches, and with good support would have won the game. A number of Bowdoin students went up with the team.

BASEBALL NEWS

Results of games of Maine colleges to date are:
April 19—Colby 13, Maine 12 (exhibition).
April 19—Exeter 9, Bates 1.
April 22—Colby 12, Hebron Academy 5.
April 22—Bates 10, Bowdoin 9 (exhibition).

The Bowdoin Interscholastic Baseball League opened in whirlwind style last Saturday afternoon on Whittier Field, when Brunswick High defeated their old rivals, Morse High of Bath, by a score of 6 to 0. Capt. Leonard for the locals pitched a remarkable game, allowing no hits. Only four Morse High men reached the first sack and three of these forlorn hopes got there by errors. The Brunswick boys bunched their hits in the sixth and seventh and brought in the winning runs. Quite a large crowd turned out for the game.

The team which is making the Dartmouth trip, consists of the following: Wilson, c.; Clifford, 1b.; O'Neil, 2b.; Weatherill, ss.; Lawlis (Capt.), 3b.; Smith, 1f.; Purinton, c.f.; Tilton, r.f.; Means, Woodcock, Urquhart and Grant, pitchers.

Coach Norton has recovered from his attack of the measles and is accompanying the team on the Dartmouth trip. Acting Coach Brady, or "King" Brady, as he was familiarly called at Dartmouth, while here only a short time, by his pleasing and unassuming manner, has made a large number of friends. Brady was well fitted to take Norton's place as they were team-mates for two years at Hanover. He was one of the few men who ever made his three "D's." Aside from playing baseball he was captain of the basketball team and a forward for four years, considered one of the best basketball men the Green ever turned out, and was also quarterback on the football team his Senior year.

A full report of the games played on the New Hampshire-Vermont trip will be published in the next issue.

THE NEW GYM AT LAST

The New Gym Rally has come and gone and we are going to have a New Gym.

If this is the last of the Spring Rallies that will be held in Memorial Hall it certainly was a fitting climax to the series and one which will stand as a memorial to the new gymnasium.

In the old gymnasium, the band was there in full force and enlivened things considerably. The Student Council presented every one with a neat souvenir in the form of a "B" ash tray, and ice cream cones and cigarettes were distributed during the evening.

President E. B. Smith of the Council opened the meeting and struck the keynote of the rally by saying, first, that we should have the new gym, and then that it was the duty of the undergraduates to show the alumni by their work on Track Field and Diamond this spring that we deserve the new gym.

President Hyde, the first speaker, reviewed the process usually employed for raising money for Bowdoin improvements, especially considering the Sargent gymnasium fund, and then stated the present condition of the subscriptions for the new gymnasium. He brought out the answer raised by a number of the older alumni to the request for subscriptions: "This is a young man's enterprise; let the young fellows show whether they want it or not." He then launched the proposition of a student subscription, to indicate to the friends of the college how earnest we are about it. He stated that the outlook was very bright, and that if the student subscription was a success, the gymnasium was assured. In closing he paid a graceful tribute to the unfailing devotion and the character of Dr. Whittier.

Mr. Charles T. Hawes, '76, of Bangor, the next speaker, told about the conditions at Bowdoin when the gymnasium was held in any available space. He outlined the development of the gymnasium facilities from the old carpenter shop, to Memorial Hall, to South Maine Hall and finally the building of the Sargent gymnasium. He told of the keen interest taken in athletics in the old days and mentioned the famous crews of '83 and '85, the former having on it Prof. Moody, and on the latter, Dr. Whittier. He then emphasized the point brought out earlier that the students should show, this spring, in athletics, that they deserve the new Gym. In closing, he assured the students that the "alumni and friends of Bowdoin will not stop until the building is built and equipped and paid for and turned over to the college."

Prof. Wm. E. Sargent, '78, of Hebron Academy, followed Mr. Hawes with some reminiscences of Bowdoin as he knew it as a student, of its teachers and its spirit. He also told of the impetus Dr. Sargent gave to Bowdoin athletics. He then turned to the subject of the spirit of the college and concluded with a tribute to President Hyde.

Dr. Whittier was the next speaker on the platform, and received an ovation which lasted several minutes. After a review of the work done on plans for the gymnasium, he proceeded to tell "Where, When, and Why?" As the plans have been brought before the students elsewhere we will omit them here. He told how the money was raised for Whittier Field and then how the result of the student subscription in that case was the donation of Hubbard grandstand. In conclusion he said, "Men of Bowdoin, it is up to you to do what they did fifteen years ago. The result of your student subscription will spell the success or failure of the project."

J. C. Minot, '86, was the last of the alumni speakers. He dwelt upon the fact that Bowdoin should, this spring, in her athletics prove to the alumni that she is deserving of a new gymnasium, and show them that the old lighting spirit is still here. As his concluding thought, he pointed around the Hall to the honored alumni whose memory lingers there, to the men of Bowdoin's past and said "there are Bowdoin's traditions. Something of what these men were and did will come to us here, we feel its presence in the hall and we see it on the campus. Yours is the priceless heritage to be one with those alumni, and yours is the place and duty to live so as to be worthy to be ranked with them as Bowdoin's sons."

Capt. Lawlis of the baseball team and Capt. Lawrence McFarland of the Track Team, made short speeches outlining the conditions and problems confronting this year's teams and asked for the support of the entire student body in building up the squads.

The Rally closed with yells and Bowdoin Beata. It was a rally where there was plenty of enthusiasm and noise and Bowdoin spirit, and the Rally which accomplished something, which will go down in college annals as a memorable affair. Every student there came away a better Bowdoin man.

BETA THETA PI HOUSE PARTY

The Beta Sigma Chapter of Beta Theta Pi holds its annual reception and dance at the Chapter House to-day. The reception was held from four until six this afternoon and was enjoyed by about 250 guests. Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, of Brunswick, Mrs. Fred H. Davis of Cambridge, Mass., and Mrs. Edward T. Little of Brunswick, received. Mrs. Copeland and Mrs. Ham poured tea, Mrs. Baxter and Mrs. Nix our poured coffee, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Parsons served punch. Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. W. H. Davis, and Miss Mason floated. The catering for the occasion is done by Mrs. R. L. Townes. An order of 24 dances begins at nine, for which music will be furnished by Kendrie's Orchestra. Several alumni are present for the reception and dance.

Among the guests present are the Misses Frances Little, Frances Skolfield, and Grace Lunt of Brunswick; Misses Frances A. Skolfield, Lydia Skolfield, Olive Barnes, Annie Brown, and Katherine Johnson of Portland; Miss Alice Brummett of Dorchester, Mass.; Miss Susan Downing of Jamaica Plain, Mass.; Miss Grace Hine of Dedham, Mass.; Miss Georgia Young of Winchester, Mass.; Misses Rose Davis and Dorothy Bird of Rockland; Miss Lula Barber of Yarmouth; Miss Blanche Usher of New York City; Miss Inez Giles of Providence, R. I.; Miss Pearl Davis of Bridgton; Miss Molly Hutchins of Fryeburg; Miss Vodisa Greenwood of Farmington; Misses Genevieve Dwinal, Iva Record, Etta Miller, Katherine Jenkins, and Ruth Jenkins of Auburn.

The delegates from the other fraternities: Edward Hacker Weatherill, 1911, Alpha Delta Phi; Fred Raymond Lord, 1911, Psi Upsilon; Harry Lawrence Wiggin, 1911, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Alonzo Garcelon Dennis, 1911, Theta Delta Chi; Fred Charles Black, 1911, Zeta Psi; Meredith Bodine Auten, 1912, Delta Upsilon; and Benjamin Hinckley Riggs, 1912, Kappa Sigma. Delegate from the Bete Eta Chapter of the University of Maine: Benjamin Oris Warren, 1911, of Fryeburg.

The committee in charge of the reception and dance is composed of Lawrence Davis, '11, of Bradford; Edward Eugene Kern, '11, of Woodfords; Lowell Sanborn Foote, '12, of Dover, N. H.; Joseph Henry Newell, '12, of Richmond; and Daniel Earl Gardner, '13, of Calais.

INTERCLASS DEBATE TO-NIGHT

The Sophomore-Freshman debate is to be held at 8 o'clock this evening. The affirmative of the question: "Resolved, That United States Senators should be elected by direct vote of the people," will be upheld by the Freshman team, consisting of E. C. Gage, A. E. Gray, and A. W. Newcombe, with R. E. Simpson as alternates. The negative will be supported by the Sophomores, who are L. A. Crosby, P. H. Douglas and M. W. Greene, Coaches Marston, '11, and Callahan, '11, have been devoting much time to the Sophomore and Freshman teams, respectively, and a debate that will justify a large attendance is expected.

THE MINSTREL SHOW

The Minstrel Show held last Saturday evening, April 22, in the Town Hall, was voted by the audience to be the best in years. Under the skilful direction of Mr. Tothaker and Mr. Kahali, the baseball management put on a show well worth attending.

The "Bones" were Welch, '12, King, '12, and Callahan, '14, while the "Tamboos" were: Clifford, '11, Woodcock, '12, and L. Brown, '14. The Quartet consisting of Tibbetts, '12, Wilson, '14, Davis, '12, and Parkman, '11, assisted the ends and chorus. Frank Smith, '12, was interlocutor, and L. Pratt, '12, and Eaton, '14, appeared in the Overture.

The Olio featured a plantation scene which gave opportunity for an exhibition of fancy rifle shooting by Mr. Hill and Mr. Brandon of Portland, and also for southern melodies and some sketches by "Artie" Welch. L. Smith, '13, Hastings, '11, and Parkman, '11, took prominent parts.

THE MARCH QUILL

The last two numbers of the Quill, if we may judge from the fact that only one contribution (not counting the "pen pictures") from a lower classman has been deemed worthy of acceptance, seem to show that the editor's appeal for heartier undergraduate support has not yet met with a satisfactory response. If any Sophomore or Freshman feels the stirrings of literary ambition, here is an opportunity to do a quiet service for the college quite as substantial as any athletic achievement and perhaps more profitable to himself.

The editors, however, must assume some part of the responsibility for the comparative weakness of their March number. Why have the "Silhouettes" lately disappeared altogether? Under thoughtful management, this department might be one of the most profitable in the Quill, exerting a censorship over those aspects of the literary and social life of the college in which the editors are, presumably, more closely interested than their Oriental brethren.

Surely, brief causeries on topics of live interest are preferable to an exchange column made up of comments on articles which no Quill reader except the "Postman" has seen—comments, moreover, that seldom find their way back to the writers whose work they deal. In the present case the Postman column is written with judicious care; but I entirely agree with Dean Sills that the main function of this department should be to present a selection from the best verse of the other magazines.

The Postman had a prophetic warning of the March Gray Goose Tracks when he remarked that "humor of the highest type seems to be lacking in college magazines." It may be radical to advocate the abolishing or revamping of two departments of the Quill; but if the Gander Club can be made to yield nothing but insanities, "O, reform it altogether."

Certainly there should be some provision for such a bracing and human thing as genuine satire, but perhaps it is a mistake so rigidly to prescribe the machinery.

Mr. White's Diary, the longest article in this number, is the sort of record that any cheerful and observant youth, returning from Europe, might be glad to show his affectionate mates; but it would appear to better advantage as part of a fraternity program than in the pages of the Quill. It has the interest which attaches to even the most impromptu transcript of a vivid experience, but this interest is not literary. Here are the raw materials of a Quill article, not the finished product. My censorship reflects less on the writer of the diary than on an undergraduate body which compels the editors of its literary journal to fill up their pages with unsuitable matter. Mr. White has an eye for the contour, color, and movement of things marine, and a zest in noting the amiable follies of his fellow-travellers. These qualities, supplemented by an uninspiring criticism of himself, would serve him well in literary work. His interest in the eccentricities of character suggests that he might profitably try something in the vein of O. Henry or of Leonard Merrick.

Mr. Eberhardt's story, "The Greater Glory," shows an admirable firmness of plot for a mere sketch, revealing character through action and making its point distinctly. The movement is rapid but

At the Minstrel Show last Saturday night 350 out of 800 tickets were sold. A goodly share of these were to outsiders. The management went to a great deal of pains, and amidst adverse criticism put on a creditable performance. It was worth the money. We do not here plead for the show as a permanent institution at Bowdoin, in fact, we question if it represents the best Bowdoin can do in that line,—but as long as we have a show, let us support it properly, and relieve baseball of its annual debt.

Bowdoin and Who's Who

In another column we print the results of an investigation with regard to the Bowdoin men in Who's Who. Its results are very gratifying. It shows that Bowdoin's men have been prominent not alone in the past, but in the present.

The Yale Daily News published a list of men from important colleges listed in Who's Who as follows: First, Harvard, with 813; second, Yale, 681; third, Michigan, 271; fourth, Columbia, 261; fifth, Princeton, 219; sixth, Amherst, 205; seventh, Pennsylvania, 200; eighth, Cornell, 167; ninth, Williams, 123; tenth, Virginia, 122; eleventh, Wesleyan, 121; twelfth, Chicago, 88; thirteenth, M. I. T., 52, and fourteenth, R. P. L. 17.

In this list Bowdoin was entirely omitted, but her list of ninety-nine names gives her the twelfth place in the list in actual numbers. In percentage of living graduates she stands much higher. With about 1800 living academic alumni her percentage is about 5.5.

Judging from the figures of the Yale News and the statistics of living alumni given the last World's Almanac, only two of these colleges won higher, Amherst with 6.3 per cent. and Wesleyan with 6 per cent.

The New Gym

"It's up to you." With such words Dr. Whittier addressed the Bowdoin men gathered at the New Gym Rally last Friday night. The real college demand for a new gymnasium as expressed by other means than speeches and cheers was the question of paramount importance. Since that night five days have elapsed. In that time what have the Bowdoin undergraduates done to answer that question?

The Orient is proud to report that they have subscribed up to Wednesday night under the conditions outlined by President Hyde, the sum of eight thousand dollars. Since there is a goodly percentage of men who have not yet subscribed, this sum will be augmented to nine or ten thousand. We understand that a thousand dollars has also been raised by the first and second year students in the medical school. The greater part of all these pledges, moreover, has been raised from the two upper classes and its payment will fall on them and not on their parents. Do the Bowdoin men of to-day want a new gymnasium? Such a response to the appeal for money must answer most emphatically, Yes.

On Wednesday night the college celebrated a baseball victory over Dartmouth. Such a victory adds strength to the appeal of the college for a new gymnasium. Bowdoin has had teams in the past and has teams today which well represent her against any eastern college. Her men are out working hard to give her a high place in athletic sports.
That they are so working is added proof of the real want of adequate gymnasium facilities to train men for their best.

With such a response from the undergraduate body the Orient turns confidently to the Alumni with the request that they back up the enterprise with the same spirit that has been shown by the students in the past week. While the amount raised for the work may be only a small part of the whole, it is a telling argument that the undergraduates feel a real and pressing need for the new gymnasium. We can only appeal to the Alumni to meet this need by rounding out the sum needed to turn the present plans into a reality.

not confused, and the style is rather spirited; altogether, a promising piece of work. One or two stylistic errors may be noted. "Leaves" as an intransitive verb meaning "to go away" (p. 83) is a colloquialism. "Little could be said concerning their description" (p. 83) is an awkward sentence which adds nothing to the picture. "Domine" (p. 86; last line, is probably a misprint for dominus." Instead of "It was Captain LeBlanc, the bravado, who replied." (p. 84) it would be simpler to say "The bravado replied." The story ends with a sentence broken off in the middle. As the writer learns his technique, he will grow to dislike this obvious kind of rhetorical flourish, for he will find that suggestiveness of language is entirely compatible with grammatical completeness.

The first "pen picture," is a lively monologue, consisting of the sounds emitted by one college Ajax during the Sophomore-Freshman rush. It gives dramatically a clear idea of the fortunes of the battle, and conveys a sharp impression of the scruff of feet, the quick taking of breath, the thud and impact of a hundred tough young bodies. "The Infinite Past," although not free from the conventional, states the tragedy of a life-history tersely. These sketches, whose brevity forces the writers into a wholesome objectivity, give admirable practice in directness and compression.

We are glad that Dr. Choate's stirring verses are reserved for us in this number of the Quill.

Mr. Baker's poem, "The Dreamer," shows that the writer is susceptible to delicate impressions and has considerable feeling for the values of words. But his mastery of the technique of verse, as well as his power of visualization, is still imperfect. Individually his lines are smooth enough; but the reader does not feel a unifying rhythm running through the poem; the author seems to have thought it through by lines, not by a larger unit. He needs also to look out for his adjectives, which sometimes give the effect of mere padding—as, for instance, "his drear and formidable task so grim;" and sometimes savor of "preciousness,"—as "sentient breezes," "muted grace." I am a little doubtful whether "mote sunbeam" is permissible English. Surely it was the necessity of rhyme which made the sound of the bell "stray" upon the breezes. The split infinitive might be avoided, with metrical advantage, by an inversion,—"wholly to lose." These defects are worth pointing out in detail, since sometimes the writer visualizes clearly and ophrases aptly, as in the line

"And smiled to see the lucid fern-bound pool."

Judged by undergraduate standards, Mr. Baker's performance is distinctly creditable.

The theme of this poem—the sensuous appeal to a reclusion of a placid bit of natural scenery—is one peculiarly characteristic of undergraduate verse. The sensitiveness of our college poets to the charms of external nature is often fine, but one is struck by the tenuous and pallid quality of the sentiment. In place of anything approaching passion, we have gentle, slightly aimless reverence. The mood of the present poem, notwithstanding the dreamer's "ecstasy" and throbbing pulses, is somewhat faint and languid. Why do we so seldom find expressions of that more imperious mood of youth which cries,

"O my life, have we not had seasons
That only said, Live and rejoice!
That asked not for causes and reasons,
But made us all feeling and voice?
When we went with the winds in their blowing,
When Nature and we were peers,
And we seemed to share in the flowing
Of the inexhaustible years?"

I hope that some of our undergraduate poets read the excellent article (in the Nation for Nov. 3, 1910) by Professor H. S. Canby on the Yale prize poems for the last dozen years. After highly commending the seriousness of purpose and the regard for form which these poems show, Professor Canby seeks to state the reason for the vague disappointment which a reading of them leaves, and he finds it to be a lack of intensity—"again and again, correctness, calm, or at most a timid romance, in place of the daring self-expression, the warm sensuousness, the impetuous liberty which were associated, in the last great poetic period, with youth." I shall take the liberty of quoting, in conclusion, two paragraphs from this article, which, however, should be read in its full form.

"I do not wish to be misunderstood. It is not Sturm und Drang, not emotionalism or sentimentality that I seek. Young men of our generation, neither weep nor rave—ever in private; why, then, should they do so in verse? But the peculiarly intense relations of youth with the world are no less vivid in the experience because, outwardly at least, we take them more calmly. In many respects we are more impressionable at twenty-one than were our great-grandfathers. Such things as beauty, heroism, the inspiration of great books, friendship, and love must move us, as them, strongly, in the time of youth. And, therefore, in reading these poems one is more surprised that intensity is ever absent than impressed by an occasional passionate appeal. Has budding love so little color that a young poet can afford to write with coldness on other themes? Or, if the old fires have lost their heat, has the death-struggle of our faith little significance, of it—except for an excellent sermon in verse—one hears only a few weak and wandering cries? Does the grip upon power mean little for a youth entering upon a world where there was never before so much to conquer? It is well enough to say, 'I cannot compare with an old man in skill, in poise, in restraint; but if youth writes poetry at all it should spring from passion. It should express his mind if he has one; it should at all costs speak from his burning heart.

Surely, until there is passion flinging from the heart it is scarcely time to give counsel as to subject or form. There is such passion in Americans, though, save for Whitman, we have been so ignorant of ourselves, or so heavy of speech, that it has seldom found vent. Much of this fire of our life burns in our universities. It spurs with jets of passing flame in many quaint and many excellent fashions—at the games, in friendship, in loyalty to the college which gave us our social and intellectual birth. But the American in college is shy in the presence of his emotions and reticent bety-twelve beyond the reticence of a none too expressive world outside. All forms of sentiment but the athletic he distrusts and hides aesthetic speculation with his prayers and his mother’s picture in his inmost chamber. He reads far more poetry than he confesses; he thinks far more, but seldom dares declare it of his own.

It is for the poet to give this frozen world relief.
It is for the poet to speak out with passion if there is fire at the heart of our colleges. He may blander, but if his need to speak is strong the proper means of expression will be grasped by him more readily than by another.”

SUNDAY EVENING MUSICAL SERVICE

A special musical service has been arranged for Sunday evening chapel at 7:30. Those who are to take part will be Mr. Kendrie, ’10, now at the Harvard School of Music, violinist; Mrs. Davis, soloist;
Mr. Newell, ’12, cornettist; and Mr. Twombly, ’13, organist. President Hyde will preside at the service.

ZETA PSI CONVENTION

Fred C. Black, ’11, and Paul C. Lunt, ’13, with Frank H. Burns, ’11, as chairman, were the delegates from the Lambda Chapter of Bowdoin at the Sixty-fourth Annual Convention of the Zeta Psi Fraternity which was held under the auspices of the Eta Chapter of Yale, April 19, 20, 21, with its headquartes at the Astor Hotel, New York City. Besides the above delegates, about twenty alumni of the Lambda Chapter were present.

After the transaction of business at the headquartes, April 19th, the three hundred and fifty who were attending the convention left for New Haven, where they were taken around the Yale grounds.

The convention picture was taken on the steps of Woolsey Hall, after which was given a delightful organ recital by Professor Harry B. Jepson of Yale. Following supper in the Commons Dining Hall, the members were entertained at a play at the Eta Chapter House, returning to New York that night.

On the twentieth, after the business meeting, sight-seeing autos left the Hotel for the houses of the Phi Chapter of New York University and the Alpha Chapter of Columbia University.

At eight-thirty in the evening of the twentieth, a smoker and minstrel at the Grand Central Palace in New York, engaged the attention of the delegates.

The climax came April twenty-first, when the banquet was held on the roof garden of the Hotel Astoria, with four hundred and fifty members of the Fraternity present.

KAPPA SIGMA BANQUET

The Bowdoin and Maine chapters of Kappa Sigma held their first joint banquet, Tuesday evening, April 18, at the Elmwood Hotel, Waterville.
Nearly the entire number of undergraduate members of both chapters and a large number of alumni from throughout the State were present.

J. Everett Hicks, Bowdoin, ’05, New England D. G. M. of the fraternity, presided at the head of the table and after a talk on “Scholarship” called on Edward O. Leigh, Bowdoin, ’12, for response to the toast, Alpha Rho. Other speakers and toasts were as follows: Karl D. Woodward, Maine, ’12, Psi; Ashton H. Hart, Maine, ’11, Kappa Sigma; Ernest
L. Goodspeed, Bowdoin ’09, Alumni; Earle R. Russell, Bowdoin, ’12, Kappa Sigma Spirit.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Karl D. Woodward and Maurice McCash, of Maine; and Wm. H. Callahan, ’11; George Duffy, Jr., ’13; and Earle Russell, ’12, chairman, of Bowdoin. About seventy-five attended the banquet.

College Notes

When the news arrived that Bowdoin won over Dartmouth, 9 to 4, Wednesday, the Band was marshaled instantly in front of chapel to lead the crowd on a snake dance down town and a march to the houses of various Faculty members. The keynote of the responses was that Bowdoin must land the State Championship this spring. A bonfire in front of chapel completed the celebration.

Leavitt, '13, has taken the agency for Borup's new book, "A Tenderfoot with Percy."

The Pop Concert at the Town Hall on May 1 will be attended by everyone who is interested in the welfare of the Town Library.

The Second Year Class of the Medical School has subscribed $235 for the new Gym.

The baseball team will return from the New Hampshire trip, Sunday.

D. K. Merrill, '14, has returned to college after three weeks' absence on account of illness.

Professor Johnson delivered a lecture on the contents of the Art Building, Thursday morning.

Whittier Field has been closed to baseball practice during the New Hampshire trip of the team.

The first home game of the season will be played with Maine on Whittier Field, a week from Saturday.

A conference of the captains and managers of the fraternity baseball teams was held Wednesday afternoon.

President Hyde spoke at the banquet given in connection with the Webber hospital campaign, at Biddeford, Monday night.

The subscription lists for the new gymnasium have been circulated at the various fraternity houses this week and the results are promising.

Mr. Charles G. Wheeler, '76, has recently completed a book entitled "A Shorter Course in Woodworking: A Practical Manual for Home and School."

At the dedication of the Swett Memorial Art Museum in Portland, April 22, Prof. Henry L. Chapman charmed his audience by an address on The Relation of Art to Nature.

A twenty-dollar prize has been offered by the Ibis for the best college song written by an undergraduate. The judges are the Faculty members of the Ibis: Professors Chapman, Johnson, Sills, and Cram.

ART BUILDING NOTES

Several antique dishes have been loaned to the Art Building by Miss Harriet Shaw. The most of them are of Spode porcelain, an old English ware of the eighteenth century. Of the others, four are of the Italian Ginori ware, and one of the Lowestoft.

A carved ivory card-case and fan, together with a jeweled box of shell, adorned by silver mountings from Miss Susan Carey, of Bath, have been placed in the building.

Among the money on exhibition are two modern Italian coins procured by Prof. Cram, a Confederate bill and old bill of State currency.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF DELTA UPSILON.

Whereas, it has pleased a divine Providence to take from life our alumnus and brother, Harold Preston West of the Class of 1900, be it

Resolved, That we express the deep sense of loss felt by the fraternity at the death of a brother which during his life at Bowdoin was true to the best ideals of our fraternity both as a friend and as a fellow-worker, and who carried the same spirit with him in his later life.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere sympathy to those who through relationship were bound even closer to him, and who cannot but feel a yet deeper loss.

MISSION NOTES

The annual American Marathi Mission Report contains the following which should be of interest to every Bowdoin man:

"The greatest permanent gain for the Satara work this year was the coming of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Hiwale. After five years of study in America Mr. Hiwale has entered upon his work with the spirit and devotion of a foreign missionary and he is also free from the physical and linguistic disabilities which handicap the foreign-born all his days."

Satara, the city in which Mr. Hiwale is working, is an old Hindu capital, eighty miles south of Bombay. The city has a population of 22,000 and is a political district of over a million and a half. The Satara station has long felt the depressing effect of a lack of funds for maintaining work, but it has a church of over 200 members and a station school, and work is developing in the village against decreasing opposition.

Following is the Hiwale Report of the Bowdoin Y. M. C. A. for 1910:

Students pledged $207.00
Students paid 187.50
Faculty and friends pledged 83.00
Faculty and friends paid 83.00
From Class of 1909. 54.00
Total amount sent to Mr. Hiwale, 1911. $324.50

LIBRARY NOTE

One of the notable additions to the library this year consists of a series of finely bound periodicals relating to applied electricity, given by Charles L. Clarke, esq., of the Class of 1875, a prominent electrical engineer of New York City. This collection of over one hundred volumes contains a practically complete set of the Electrical World and also of the London Telegraph Journal and Electrical Review.
Alumni Department

'97.—Rev. H. E. Dunnaek was reappointed pastor of the Augusta Methodist church for his eleventh year, thereby breaking the record of length of service in one place in the Maine conference, at the eighty-seventh annual conference just completed at Biddeford.

'99.—The trustees of the Free Public Library of Somerville have announced that they have secured Drew B. Hall of the Millicent library at Fairhaven as a new librarian of the Somerville library.

'00.—Philip M. Palmer, formerly Professor of Modern Languages, has become Professor of German at Lehigh.

'03.—Clement F. Robinson, counsellor-at-law, has located at 120 Exchange Street, where he has taken an office with Woodman and Whitehouse.

'04.—William E. Lunt, holding a Sheldon travelling fellowship from Harvard, is studying at the British Museum in England this spring; Mr. Lunt was last year instructor in history at the University of Wisconsin.

'04.—Philip M. Clark has formed a partnership with J. Duke Smith for the practice of law under the name of Smith and Clark. They occupy offices at 402-403 India Building, 84 State Street, Boston.

'05.—Lieut. H. E. Marr is stationed at the Vancouver Barracks in Washington.

'05.—Herbert J. Dudley was recently elected mayor of Calais. Mr. Dudley was born in Pembroke in 1871, where he received his early education before entering college. He studied law with the late General B. B. Murray of Calais, and was admitted to the Washington County Bar in 1899. Besides holding many offices in the city government of Calais, he has served as a Republican attorney of Washington County since September, 1910. Mr. Dudley is very popular in his city, being a Mason, Red Man, and a member of the St. Croix Club.

'08.—Thursday evening, Sewall W. Percy of Bath, was married to Miss Virginia Pingree of Bath. The ceremony was performed at Portsmouth, N. H., at the North Congregational church by Rev. Lucius H. Thayer. Mr. and Mrs. Percy leave this week for Akron, Ohio, where they will make their home.

'09.—Henry W. Lancey is Superintendent of the Somerset Woolen Company, Monson, Mass.

'10.—William E. Atwood is located at Dixfield, Me., with the Dixfield Toothpick Co.

'11.—Charles D. Robbins is with the firm of William P. Bonbright and Co., Bankers, 24 Broad Street, New York.

'10.—Ralph S. Crowell of Bangor, has accepted the appointment as cashier of the Bangor office of the Eastern Steamship Company.

It will be interesting for many to learn that the following Bowdoin alumni are principals of secondary schools in Maine. At the head of academies are: J. F. Moody, '71, Bridgton; Ridgley C. Clark, '08, Fryeburg; W. E. Sergeant, '78, Hebron; H. K. White, '74, Lincoln; J. A. Scott, '98, Monson; F. H. Dole, '97, North Yarmouth; Ernest R. Woodbury, 95, Thornton; Ralph S. Smith, '04, Washington. At the head of high schools are: G. H. Larabee, '88, Bangor; H. E. Cole, '83, Bath; Clarence W. Proctor, '08, Belfast; A. F. Cowan, '01, Biddeford; Edgar Kahari, '99, Brunswick; E. L. Bartlett, '90, Buxton; George R. Gardner, '01, Camden; C. E. Richardson, '09, Danforth; Russell Taylor, '08, Freeport; Chas. C. Shaw, '03, Gorham; W. K. Hilton, '84, Livermore Falls; J. A. Hamlin, '00, Oldtown; S. M. Hamlin, '00, South Portland; Ralph S. Robinson, '05, Thomaston; Frank D. Rowe, '06, Warren.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911.

Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to

ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.

BRUNSWICK, MAINE, 1910.
THE MAINE GAME

The first game of the Maine State Baseball series will be played to-morrow when Bowdoin crosses bats with the University of Maine on Whittier Field. The team from Orono will be accompanied by a band of roosters and with Ryan in the box are confident of victory. Leland Means will do the pitching for Bowdoin and the form he has displayed throughout the early season games is an assurance that that department will not be weak. The team is commencing to work like a machine now and with any kind of luck will put up an exhibition such as the followers of the white may well be proud of. The band will be there and every student should also be there to support the team's first home appearance. The management has not yet announced who will be secured to pitch the first ball of the season, but it is assured that some one of no little prominence will officiate.

The game will be started promptly at 2:30 P.M. and the admission is 35 cents, 15 cents extra for the grand stand.

Remember that in rooting for the team this year we are not only making a State championship possible, but giving support to the cause of the New Gym. So all out to-morrow to cheer for Capt. Lawlis' New Gym Baseball Team. The line-up will be as follows:

Bowdoin
Weatherill, ss..........................c, Smith
Smith, 1f..................................r.f., Scales
Wilson, c..................................c.f., Fulton
Clifford, 1b..............................3b, F. Cobb
Lawlis, 3b..................................1b, Beane
Purington, c.f.............................2b, Abbott Brooks, r.f..................................p, Ryan O'Neil, 2b..................................1f, McCarthy Means, p..................................ss, H. Cobb

ORATORICAL LEAGUE CONTEST

The second annual oratorical contest under the plan of the New England Intercollegiate Oratorical League was held Thursday evening in Memorial Hall. The league is composed of Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Wesleyan and Williams, and it is planned to hold the contest at each college in alphabetical order. The representative of each college delivers an original oration before a committee of five judges, composed this year of Prof. I. L. Winter of Harvard, Prof. J. A. Tufts of Exeter, Prof. W. B. Munro of Harvard, Judge Arthur P. Stone of Boston, and Dr. C. E. Meloney, assistant superintendent of schools in New York. The contestants this year and their subjects were as follows:

"China's Progress—America's Prejudice," Henry Smith Leiper of Amherst.

The business organ of the league held a meeting the afternoon of the contest. The officers for this year are F. M. Fallon, President, and E. B. Smith, Secretary-Treasurer. At the contest in the evening President Hyde presided and afterwards a reception was held at the D. K. E. House.

BOWDOIN 2: DARTMOUTH, 4—APRIL 25

Dartmouth defeated Bowdoin in a pitcher's game, on Alumni Oval, Hanover. Both teams fielded well and the Green won by Eckstrom's fine work in the box. He allowed the White only two scattered hits. Means pitched a fair game and aside from a little batting bee in the fourth held his opponents safe. Bowdoin's runs were made in the fourth, also. Smith, the first man up, hit safe and was advanced on an error and a sacrifice by Clifford; Wilson reached first on an error; was advanced by Clifford's sacrifice; both men scoring on another error by Donahue. The fielding feature of the game was a fast double play, Weatherill to Clifford.

BOWDOIN, 9: DARTMOUTH, 4—APRIL 26

The proteges of Coach Norton came back in the second Dartmouth game and trounced his former teammates to the tune of 9 to 4. Everybody on the team hit the ball hard and touched up Gammons and Olsen for a total of 15 safe ones. Lawlis, Purington, Wilson and Urquhart got three baggers and Smith a two-bagger. Besides these men Clifford and Weatherill got two hits apiece. Urquhart pitched a steady game and had it not been for errors the Green would have tallied only one run. He allowed only five hits and struck out 9 men. This was exceptionally good work, as he put on a suit that afternoon for the first time in two weeks.

BOWDOIN, 2: VERMONT, 8—APRIL 28

Lawlis’ sluggers couldn’t seem to unbend the curves of Malcolm, the Vermont Freshman pitcher, and were defeated by the Green Mountain Boys by a score of 8 to 2. Means was not as effective as in the Dartmouth game and inexcusable errors by the infield helped to swell the score. Weatherill, the first man up in the first inning, drew a pass and scored on Wilson’s drive. With this slight lead things looked good for Bowdoin until the third, when Vermont made two tallies. Bowdoin scored again in the sixth, Vermont getting her other runs in the fifth, sixth and eighth. The game was played on Centennial Field before a large crowd.

BOWDOIN, 0; VERMONT, 0—APRIL 29

The second game with the Vermont team was held in conjunction with the Maine-Vermont dual track meet. The contest was replete with errors on both sides and only the excellent boxwork of Winkler prevented Bowdoin from scoring. Urquhart pitched a steady game, allowing only seven hits. Weatherill got two clean hits, one of them a three-bagger. This, with the two bloopers of Wilson and Clifford, was all of the hitting Bowdoin did. Winkler played an all-around star game for Vermont, getting two hits.

M. I. A. A. MEET

The seventh Annual Meet of the M. I. A. A. will be held at Waterville, May 13, only one week from to-morrow. Provision has been made with the M. C. R. R. to carry at least two hundred students from Brunswick on the 8 o'clock train, Saturday morning. It is hoped that this number of fellows will accompany the team to a meet which promises to be the closest ever held in the State. Reduced rates of $1.80 round trip have been obtained and the railroad tickets will be good from Saturday morning until the following Monday.

The trials will be run off in the morning at ten o'clock and the finals will begin at two in the afternoon. Let a lot of fellows take advantage of the low rates and back up the team!!

A Word of Tribute

Now that the plans for Bowdoin’s new gymnasium have assumed a definite aspect we feel that we should pay high tribute for the student body to the one man who has done most to work out those plans—Dr. Whittier. He has seen the idea of a gymnasium grow from a vague future dream to a definite present reality.

Two years ago he described vaguely in figures of speech our beautiful new gym out by the pines; two weeks ago he pointed out plans and figured in dollars and cents. Such a result has been to a great extent the result of his earnest work in every way. He has talked the plan for years; this spring he spent much valuable time in finding out what was best for the new gym; when he had found out he acted and we have seen the results. In behalf of Bowdoin men we wish to pay this slight tribute to the earnestness and unselfishness which has made the planning of the new gymnasium a more lasting honor to Dr. Whittier.

Musical Club “B”

At its meeting this week the Student Council took action on the matter of insignia on hats and caps by refusing to allow members of the Band and Glee Club to wear the initials of their organization with the B on hats or caps in the future. With this action we heartily agree, not because we wish to deprecate the good work which is being done by both of these organizations, but because we wish the B on the hat to be a distinctive mark of a “B” man. The only value of such insignia lies in its distinctiveness, which is immediately lost in the case of such general use. There have been several instances where men who have been to a few rehearsals of the band or made one or two glee club trips have immediately taken it upon themselves to buy a hat bearing the M. B. A. Such men do not merit such a privilege, but as there seems to have been no specific requirements to be met in order to earn this right, every man who has had any connection with the two organizations has been his own judge as to his claim to such an honor. While the services of both the above mentioned organizations are of great value, their insignia, if any, should not encroach upon that worn by B men. As it is now, the “B” is too common. The action of the Student Council is to be commended heartily for its effect in making the “B” more highly prized.

DELTA UPSILON HOUSE DANCE

The Bowdoin Chapter of Delta Upsilon is holding its annual house dance at the chapter house, to-night. The affair is in charge of the following committee: Harrison M. Berry, 1911; Lawrence McFarland, 1911; Theodore W. Daniels, 1912; Edward O. Baker, 1913; Samuel W. Chase, 1914. The patronesses are Mrs. F. W. Brown, Brunswick; Mrs. W. H. Davis, Brunswick; Mrs. S. S. Thompson, Brunswick; Mrs. W. A. Hill, Rockland; Mrs. Jennie Bird, Rockland.

Among the guests present are Mrs. R. H. McFarland, Portland; Mrs. B. M. Harmon, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hill, Rockland; Mrs. Jennie Bird, Rockland; Mrs. George T. Green, Jr., Warren, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kingsley, Augusta; Mr. Walter Hendee, Augusta; Professor and Mrs. W. H. Davis, Brunswick; Professor and Mrs. F. W. Brown, Brunswick; Mrs. S. S.
Thompson, Brunswick; Mr. William E. Atwood, 1910, Dixfield; Mr. A. W. Wandtke, 1910, Augusta; Mr. Earl L. Wing, 1910, Kingfield; Misses Madeline Bird, Dorothy Bird, Helen Wise, Vivian Billings, Marion Gurdy, Rockland; Misses Mabel Hughes, Margaret Day, Alfretra Graves, Sue Winchell, Brunswick; Misses Gladys Berry, Marion Swift, Gardiner; Miss Emily Wilbur, Warren, R. I.; Miss Dorothy Palmer, Bath; Miss Katie Maxim, Wayne; Miss Helen Stackpole, Biddeford; Misses Ethel Withee, Nellie Lander, Luella Russell, Farmington; Miss Viola Dixon, Freeport; Miss Hazel Webb, Hallowell; Miss Margaret Burns, Saco; Miss Katherine Carr, Frankfort; Misses Abbie Harris, Henrietta Croson, Portland; Miss Helen Carmen, Los Angeles, Cal.; Miss Ethel Palmanter, Oakland, Cal.

The delegates from the other fraternities are Ernest G. Finefield, 1911, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Fred R. Lord, 1911, Psi Upsilon; Charles L. Oxnard, 1911, Kappa Sigma; Frank H. Burns, 1911, Zeta Psi; Harold K. Hine, 1911, Beta Theta Pi; Arthur C. Gibson, 1911, Alpha Delta Phi; George W. Howe, 1911, Theta Delta Chi.

Music is furnished by Stetson's Orchestra and Morton is the caterer. The guests will attend the Maine game to-morrow.

NOMINATIONS FOR THE BOARD OF OVERSEERS

In order to fill the vacancies caused by the death of two members of the Board of Overseers of the college, Dr. George T. Little, Secretary of the Alumni Committee on Overseers, has written to the alumni for nominations and has received the following list of candidates to be voted upon before June 10th by the alumni: Herbert M. Heath, '72, A.M., of Augusta; Augustus F. Moulton, A.M., of Portland; William Edgar Rice, '75, A.B., M.D., of Bath; John Andrew Peters '85, A.M., of Ellsworth; Frederick Lincoln Smith, '86, A.M., of Philadelphia; Wilbert Grant Mallett, '91, A.B., of Farmington; Frederick Howard Dole, '97, A.M., of Yarmouth; Reuel Washburn Smith, '97, LL.B., of Auburn.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At Sunday chapel, President Hyde showed how Love is not easily provoked and how many troubles it avoids on that account. A bad temper is one of the worst mischief-makers in the world. Since it gets us into a lot of trouble, we must do all in our power to prevent an outburst of wrath. Every time we yield to bad temper, we lose friends and make enemies. In the professional world of to-day, such a temper is a luxury, in which no man can afford to indulge.

Righteous indignation, however, is justified. The Scripture does not assert that Love and Charity are never provoked, but that they do not fly into moods of anger. They always consider the other person first.

SOPHOMORE-FRESHMAN DEBATE

At a debate between the Freshman and Sophomore classes, held last Friday evening in Hubbard Hall the freshmen won the decision by a unanimous vote. The question for debate was: Resolved, That United States Senators Should be Elected by a Direct Vote of the People. The winning side defended the affirmative and the losers, the negative. The speakers for 1913 in their order: Merton William Greer, Paul Howard Douglass and Laurence Alden Crosby. In rebuttal, Douglass led the team, being followed by Crosby and Green, and in an especially strong speech closed the case. For the freshmen, the speakers in order were: Alfred Watts Newcombe, Alfred Everett Gray and Elwin Collins Gage. These men spoke in the same order in their rebuttal and Gage in his rebuttal speech is considered to have won the debate for his side. The alternates who acted as time keepers were: Charles B. Haskell, Jr., for the sophomores, and Richard E. Simpson for the freshmen.

Prof. Davis presided and the judges were: Prof. F. E. Woodruff, Prof. C. T. Burnett and Rev. J. H. Quint.

Much credit is due to the coaches of the competing teams, William H. Callahan for the freshmen, and Harold P. Marston for the Sophomores. The members of the Debating Council in charge of the arrangements for this contest were: A. Donald Weston, '12, Carl B. Timberlake, '12 and Harold P. Marston, '11.

MAINE SERIES

May 6—Bowdoin vs. Maine, Brunswick.
May 6—Bates vs. Colby, Waterville.
May 10—Bowdoin vs. Colby, Brunswick.
May 10—Bates vs. Maine, Lewiston.
May 17—Maine vs. Colby, Waterville.
May 26—Bowdoin vs. Colby, Waterville.
May 24—Maine vs. Bowdoin, Orono.
May 27—Maine vs. Colby, Orono.
June 7—Bates vs. Colby, Lewiston.

The last out-of-State trip of the 1911 baseball team was taken this week, when Bowdoin met Tufts and Harvard on their own grounds. A full account of these games will be printed in next week's Orient. The following men took the trip: Lawlis, Capt., Wilson, Clifford, O'Neil, Weatherell, Smith, Purinton, Brooks, Means and Urquhart.

The baseball teams of Bowdoin, Bates, Maine and Colby present a puzzle to the person who attempts to forecast the State championship. All four seem to have the same strength and weakness; namely, strength in batting and weakness in the pitching staff. In the games played to date the only pitchers who have shown themselves capable of winning a pitcher's battle are Means and Ryan of Maine.

Means, although only winning one of the five games he has pitched, has not been hit hard. He let down the sluggers of Brown University with only six hits and averages eight hits a game, to date. The other pitchers for Bowdoin are doubtful quantities. Grant is a good, steady man and with good support can be counted upon to pull the team out with the long end of the score. Urquhart, who pitched brilliant ball on the Vermont trip, is ineligible for the State series, and Means and Grant will probably do all the pitching against Bowdoin's Maine rivals.

Ryan of Maine will be remembered for his excellent work two years ago when he won his game against Harvard. He nearly duplicated this performance last week when the Crimson won from the boys from Orono by the close score of 5 to 4. In this game Ryan allowed but five hits and struck out seven men. The other members of Maine's pitching staff are doubtful quantities and as yet have not shown winning form. Ryan will be probably opposed to Means in the game to-morrow and a line on their respective ability can be gained at that time. Linquist has made the best record for them, pitching good ball against the Pilgrims, a Lewiston local aggregation. His try-out in that game, however, was not sufficient to get a good line on his ability. Stimson, the pitcher used against Harvard, was hit for 12 safeties in that game, although he showed that he has some puzzlers by striking out 8 Harvard men. Duvey, the man who pitched against Bowdoin in the exhibition game, was touched up for fourteen hits.

McDougall and Taylor will probably do the box work for Colby this spring. Harvard connected with Taylor's offering for 13 hits last week, and he was also hit freely in the Maine-Colby exhibition game. McDougall pitched against Boston College but showed no exceptional form. Colby looks rather weak in the twirling department just at present.

Behind the bat Wilson of Bowdoin has the undisputed reputation as the best catcher in the State and is better than ever this year. Smith, Maine's backstop and captain, is above the average of college catchers.

The infield of all four colleges can hardly be compared as yet. None of them have shown exceptional form, but a snap judgment would be that Bowdoin and Colby have the best supporting infielders. The vulnerable point of the four infielders seems to be the keystone sack, and shifts have been made in this position on two of the four teams since the beginning of the season.

Colby and Bates have heavy hitting outfields, while Bowdoin has a trio of as speedy and sure men in the outer gardens as she has had in many a day. Maine's outfield is average.

The comparative batting of the teams cannot yet be ascertained, but all are capable of piling up a big score against an easy pitcher.

By way of summary, then, there seems to be a scarcity of strike-out pitchers and plenty of good hitters. Unless Ryan and Means develop, it is a safe bet that there will be no shut-out games in the series. Bowdoin's chances for winning the championship look as good as any of her Maine rivals. The White will at least figure in the final games, and with better student support than is usually given the team, is likely to carry away the pennant.

But baseball at best is an uncertain game; baseball with heavy batting teams is especially uncertain; the most careful of forecasts is liable to be upset; and the only safe thing to predict is that the Maine series of 1911 will be one of the most interesting, most well-matched and hard-fought contests in years. And remember, Bowdoin will be in it all the time with a hard-working team worthy of the college's heartiest support.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL STARTS

Two divisions of the teams are made in the schedule of the inter-fraternity league. The first section contains Beta Theta Pi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Zeta Psi, Alpha Kappa Kappa, and Theta Delta Chi, while in the second section are Delta Upsilon, Phi Chi, Alpha Delta Phi, Kappa Sigma, and the non-fraternity nine. The complete schedule follows:

Saturday, April 29—Alpha Delta Phi vs. Kappa Sigma.

Monday, May 1—Zeta Psi vs. Theta Delta Chi.

Tuesday, May 2—Phi Chi vs. Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma vs. Non-Fraternity.

Wednesday, May 3—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Beta Theta Pi.

Friday, May 5—Phi Chi vs. Alpha Delta Phi.

Monday, May 8—Theta Delta Chi vs. Alpha Kappa Kappa.

Tuesday, May 9—Kappa Sigma vs. Delta Upsilon, Alpha Delta Phi vs. Non-Fraternity.

Thursday, May 11—Zeta Psi vs. Beta Theta Pi.

Friday, May 12—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Alpha Kappa Kappa.

Monday, May 15—Kappa Sigma vs. Phi Chi.

Wednesday, May 17—Zeta Psi vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Thursday, May 18—Alpha Delta Phi vs. Delta Upsilon, Phi Chi vs. Non-Fraternity.

Friday, May 19—Theta Delta Chi vs. Beta Theta Pi.

Monday, May 22—Alpha Kappa Kappa vs. Beta Theta Pi.

Tuesday, May 23—Theta Delta Chi vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon.

The opening game in the inter-fraternity league was played on the Delta, Saturday afternoon, when Kappa Sigma defeated Alpha Delta Phi, 8 to 2. The line-ups:

Kappa Sigma—C., Byles; p., J. L. Barbour; 1b., Snow; 2b., Minotti; 3b., Weston; ss., Duffy; l.f., Torrey; c.f., Sylvester; r.f., Skelton.
Alpha Delta Phi—C. F. S. Wiggins; p., A. L. Pratt; t.b., Winslow; z.b., Bull; 3.b., Towle; s.s., C. Tuttle; l.f., Hastings, Smith; c.f., E. S. Purington; r.f., Parkman.

College Notes

The Massachusetts Club is planning an outing down the bay some time late this month. A baseball game and a clambake will be among the attractions, and it is hoped that several out-of-state freshmen will attend.

Mr. McConaughy is to speak at the Abbott School, Farmington, Sunday.

Coach Norton has recovered from his illness and is with the team again.

Many from college were present at the Pop Concert given for the Town Library, Monday night.

Wednesday, the Examining Committee of the Boards of Trustees and Overseers visited the college.

The students are glad to hear that none of the Bangor fellows here suffered the loss of his home in the big fire.

May 17 and 18 there will be a meeting of prominent deans and administrative officers here. Dean Penn, of Princeton, will be the principal speaker.

The Library has recently added a contemporary copy of the "Acts and Laws" of the General Court of Massachusetts, in which the charter of Bowdoin College is given.

Mr. F. P. Valentine, General Traffic Manager of the New England Tel. & Tel. Co., will give an address in Hubbard Hall, at seven o'clock on Monday evening, May 8th, on "Opportunities for College Men in Public Service Corporations."

The committee to hear the trials of the Alexander Prize Speaking is made up of the following men of the faculty: Prof. Mitchell, Prof. Davis and Mr. Stone. Prof. McIlwain, Prof. Nixon and Mr. Evans have been chosen to hear the Commencement parts.

'61.—The Class of 1861 has lost a loyal classmate and staunch friend in the death of Gen. Stephen H. Manning, who died at his Lewiston home, Wednesday, April 27. Not only has his classmates suffered a great loss, but the many friends of this ardent supporter of the Union must also undergo a great misfortune.

Gen. Manning was born in Lewiston in 1834, the son of Samuel and Susannah Manning, two of the early settlers of the city. He was prepared for college at the Lewiston Falls Academy, entering Tufts College in 1857. At the completion of his Sophomore year, he joined the Junior Class at Bowdoin, thence graduating in 1861. The call to arms reached the college before graduation, but Gen. Manning secured leave to enlist as a volunteer, at the same time receiving his degree.

The career of Gen. Manning in the army was one marked by renown and distinction. Enlisting as a private in the spring of 1861, he was mustered out with the rank of Brigadier-General, October 5, 1866. During his service, he was rapidly promoted as a reward for his bravery and ability. His conduct of the quartermaster's department won the commendation of the superior officers with the ultimate honor of rank as General.

After being mustered out of the service at his desire, Gen. Manning entered business first in Baltimore and later in Wilmington, N. C. Here he made a host of friends in spite of the fact that the last traces of the rebellion were not yet removed from these Southerners. Nevertheless, he was esteemed so highly in the county of Hanover, in which the city of Wilmington is located, that for sixteen years he, a Northerner, was sheriff, an office jealously guarded and sought for by Southerners.

At the end of sixteen years of worthy service in this position, Gen. Manning returned to Lewiston to live comfortably and peacefully during his old age. Gen. Manning married Miss Sarah Walker of Rumford, and the union was one of harmony and happiness during her life, her death occurring fourteen years ago. With the eminent courage that marked his public career, he bore his public grief like the hero he was in all vicissitudes.

The surviving Maine heroes of the war will miss Gen. Manning greatly, so well was he known and so much was he loved. At the annual meetings of the 5th Maine Regiment at Peak's Island each summer, he was always a popular figure and a prominent leader in affairs of the regiment. He was a member of the Custer post of Lewiston, and has served as its commander. Gen. Manning was also a leading figure in the Loyal Legion.

"General Manning was a favorite in and out of his class. His social qualities, his genius of good fellowship, his unblemished character and his quaint habit of thought and expression made him an unforgettable and lovable factor in undergraduate life."

'89.—William Morrell Emery, city editor of the Fall River News, is a candidate for the office of librarian of the Millicent Free Library of Fairhaven. The position of librarian has just been made vacant by the resignation of Drew B. Hall, '99, who has been appointed librarian of the Somerville Free Public Library. Mr. Emery has been reporter and editor on Lowell, Providence, and New Bedford papers, besides contributing to various weekly publications. Mr. Emery is considered by his friends to be especially fitted by education and training for the position of librarian. In 1892, he received the degree of M.A. from Bowdoin.

Gift for New Athletic Building

A single donor has given $25,000 to erect an athletic building in memory of Gen. Thomas W. Hyde to be called the Gen. Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building. This building will be connected with, and for practical purposes, be a part of, the new gymnasium. Of the $100,000 required for the combined gymnasium and athletic building the following sums are already assured:

For the Gen. Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building $25,000
From Mr. George F. Bowdoin 10,000
From Alumni and friends 12,000
From Students of the College 8,000
From Students of the Medical School 1,000

Total $56,000

Bowdoin College Medical Department

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911. Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to

Alfred Mitchell, M.D., Dean.
EVERYBODY UP TO WATERTOWN

To-morrow morning at 8 o'clock a track team composed of thirty men will go to Watertown to represent Bowdoin in the annual State Meet. In order to make the fight which is necessary to win the meet this year, such a team must be backed up by every Bowdoin man. The faculty have granted a holiday and since the last issue of the Orient, lower railroad rates have been obtained. A rate of $1.50 round trip will be charged, the tickets being good for Saturday only, and the rate of $1.80 round trip being good from Saturday until the following Monday. Under such conditions not a man can afford to miss a meet which promises to be the best ever held. So everybody take it upon himself to board the morning train and journey to Watertown to push the team on to victory for Bowdoin.

BOWDOIN, 5; TUFTS, 3—MAY 3

In a game featured by the good work of the opposing pitchers, Means and Smith, Bowdoin defeated Tufts by a magnificent batting rally in the seventh and eighth innings. The game was played with a gale blowing across the diamond and with the temperature several degrees below baseball weather. This fact accounts for the numerous errors charged to both teams.

Means allowed only three scattered hits, none of them counting in the score and pulled out of several bad holes caused by errors behind him. Smith of Tufts pitched a fine game, also, and allowed only six hits. Both pitchers had good strike-out records, Means retiring 12 Medford men in this way, and Smith, 14 Bowdoin batters. Bowdoin's hits were bunched well, all but one being made in the seventh and eighth. The game was played on the Tufts athletic field at Medford.

BOWDOIN, 0; HARVARD, 3—MAY 4

Bowdoin's inability to hit Capt. McLaughlin of Harvard, resulted in a shut-out game at Cambridge last week. Harvard’s three runs were made by combinations of hits and errors in the second, third, and eighth innings. Urquhart worked steadily throughout the game and was not hit hard by the Crimson batsmen. The infield played good ball and executed a fast double play, O'Neil to Lawlis. Aside from the scoring innings the Harvard batsmen were retired almost in order. The contest was held on Soldiers' Field, Cambridge.

BOWDOIN, 7; U. OF M., 6—MAY 6

In one of the most exciting games ever pulled off on Whittier Field, Bowdoin shoved the winning run over in the last half of the ninth inning last Saturday, and sent Maine home defeated by a score of 7 to 6. Both pitchers were effective, but Bowdoin's scores came as a result of bunching of hits.

"Pewt" Purington was the hero of the day and by two beautiful drives to deep left, one in the first, and one in the eighth, brought in five runs. Clifford also was able to solve Ryan's puzzlers, getting two hits.

The Maine infield worked very smoothly and Ryan in the box, aside from the unlucky innings, retired his opponents in 1, 2, 3 order. Means pitched a good game, despite his injury of the day before, and steadied down in the eighth and ninth innings and kept the Orono lads from getting away with the game.

Bowdoin started things with a rush in the first inning when Wilson walked, stole second and came home on Clifford's single to centre. Ryan hit Lawlis, the next man up, and then Bowdoin's "Trias Speaker" cleared the bases with a two-bagger, making the score 3 to 0.

In the third after Scales was thrown out at the plate on a frustrated attempt at a double steal, Fulton who had reached first on an error and was advanced to second, on Scales' attempt to steal, came in on F. Cobb's single. In the sixth, Maine made two more runs on Daniels' wild throw to third, and in the same inning took the lead when Ryan's two-bagger scored Abbott.

Again in the seventh, a three-base hit by Scales and a sacrifice fly by Fulton, gave the visitors another tally.

But Capt. Lawlis' men earned the title of a fighting team when in the eighth with two men out and one on base, Clifford hit safe, Lawlis walked and Purington faced out his second timely drive which emptied the bases and gave Bowdoin the lead 6 to 5. But after the game was thus stowed away for the second time, Maine evened things up in the ninth when Bob Weatherill misjudged an infield fly and Scales came home.

With the last of the batting order up, Bowdoin supporters were settling down to watch an extra inning contest; but Daniels, who made his début in a Bowdoin uniform that afternoon, the first man up, hit a nice single over third. He was advanced to second on a fielder's choice which placed Means on first. Weatherill, next man up, laid down a nice bunt which put Daniels on third. Smith hit a grounder to Abbott and Daniels with a pretty slide, beat the ball to the plate and the game was won.

Wilson and Smith put up an excellent exhibition behind the bat and held the runners close to the bases. Wilson snatched the only base of the contest. Daniels fitted in well in O'Neill's place at second. The team's weakness in base-running seems to be remedied and the main trouble was with the infield fielding. With a few shifts, Coach Norton plans to fix this matter up, however.

A fair-sized crowd was present, including the band and the cheering was good.

BOWDOIN, 4; COLBY, 0—MAY 10

Bowdoin won the second game of the State series, Wednesday afternoon, when Colby was shut out by a score of 4 to 0. From a Bow-doin standpoint it was the most satisfactory game of the season thus far. Woodcock, a twirler who heretofore had not been reckoned with, pitched a nice game, allowing only six hits and having excellent control. The team fielded behind him in fine shape, playing fast, inside baseball, the errors being all the results of difficult chances. At the bat the team hit well and consistently and had it not been for poor work on the bases would have scored more than four tallies.

Colby started the game with MacDougall in the box, but he was replaced by Burroughs in the fifth. The “White” sluggers were beginning to take kindly to his curves when he was injured. While receiving a throw at first, standing on the base line, Purinton, the runner, ran into him and sprained his ankle. Mac-Dougall finished the game in the box. The fielding of the visitors was ragged and extra bases were repeatedly the results of careless throwing on their part.

Bowdoin’s runs were made in the third and fourth. Daniels laced out a two-bagger with one down in the third and came in on error by the third baseman. In the fourth, Squanto hit safe, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and came home on a wild pitch. In the same inning with one out, Lawlis drew a pass and raced home on Purinton’s two-bagger.
“Pewt” stole third and came in on Russell’s single. Daniels flew out and Woodcock got a single. Weatherill ended the inning with a fly to Sturtevant in deep left.

In the eighth with one out, Lafleur reached first on a hard grounder which Bob Weatherill failed to handle. Sturtevant followed with a single. Bowker, the next man up, hit to left.

Russell threw to the plate and Squanto receiving the throw ran out to third, tagged Sturtevant who was forcing Lafleur off third and then threw to Clifford at the plate, catching Lafluer easily. This was one of the fielding features of the game and showed what “heady” ball Coach Norton’s men are playing now. In the ninth another one of the fastest plays ever pulled off on Whittier Field, was executed with a man on third and first. Wilson threw to Weatherill on the second bag and with a quick return Good was caught at the plate. Lawlis made a neat pick-up stop of a grounder in the fifth.

O’Brien did good work with the indicator with a number of close decisions. A good mid-week crowd was present and the day was all that could be desired.

Wanted! Bowdoin Men to Help Win the Meet

The makers of the “dope sheets” have spent busy hours in working out paper results of the meet at Waterville to-morrow. So far as we can see their results are bound up in “ifs” and Bowdoin goes up with no unequal chance for the meet. Two months ago we heard everywhere that we had no track team at all, while to-day we have thirty good men and true, not famed champions to be sure, but hard-working Bowdoin fighters. When we sent a team to Waterville four years ago with all the odds on paper against us, we lost by a fraction. Let every Bowdoin man be on hand there to-morrow to back up a team which has the Bowdoin grit to turn a paper defeat into an actual victory.

Decorating the Campus

The primitive man delights in bright colors. The North American arrayed himself for battle with an embellishment of gaudy paints. The savages of Australia and Africa, the barbarian races of the world from time immemorial, have sold their birthrights for messes of flaming dies and staring stuffs. And so to-day we who are termed the young barbarians of the land, as we linger in the stage between imbecility of infancy and the civilization of maturity, gain a rare pleasure from the artistic tastes of our managers and advertising agents. We rejoice to see posters of brilliant hues and startling messages nailed to the campus trees. We greet them gleefully as we rush to breakfast in the morning. Our fond gaze falls upon them as we issue from chapels, and as we pass to and fro intent upon the labors of the day; and at eventide, as the long shadows of the chapel towers fall upon the observatory and the pines beyond, regrettfully we mark them fading into the twilight. They are indeed a source of much joy to us who are undergraduates. But it is possible that our alumni, our faculty, and our friends who visit us here, may not take a similar pleasure in those bright productions. It is also possible that bulletin boards were meant to present such art treasures to the gaze of an admiring world.

We have a Student Council, which has been diligently seeking immortality by the originality of its ways, and which is deserving of the veneration of all of us. Yet we dare to think that it could strengthen its position even more, and we would suggest that in making its last wild grasp at fame it publish an edict relegating all posters to the bulletin boards, which edict shall be unchangeable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. Then in pace requiescat.

RESULTS OF TENNIS TOURNAMENT

For the last two weeks the tennis tournament to determine the members of this year’s team, has been in progress. The two men who reached the finals made the team, the winner being second man and the loser third man. The fourth man was decided by matches between the players previously defeated by the players in the final round.

In the preliminary round McCormick beat Tuttle 6-1, 6-1; Nixon beat Fifield 6-2, 6-3; Curtis beat Burleigh 6-2, 6-0; Briggs beat Torrey 6-1, 6-0; Dole beat Burns 6-4, 10-8.

In the first round Hichborn beat Haskell 6-1, 6-2; Merrill beat Gardner 6-4, 6-4; Hastings beat Slocum 13-11, 2-6, 8-6; McCormick beat Nixon 6-1, 6-0; Curtis beat Nichols 6-4, 6-1; Partridge beat Greene 6-1, 6-1; Brummett beat Wilson 6-0, 6-2; Briggs beat Dole 7-5, 6-3.

In the second round Hichborn beat Merrill 3-6, 6-0, 6-0; McCormick beat Hastings 6-2, 6-2; Partridge beat Curtis 6-1, 6-2; Briggs beat Brummett 8-6, 1-6, 7-5.

In the semi-finals McCormick beat Hichborn, 2-6, 9-8, 7-5; Partridge beat Briggs 6-2, 7-5.

In the finals McCormick beat Partridge 10-8, 6-4, 5-7, 1-6, 8-6.

M. I. A. A. MEET

The seventh Annual Track Meet of the M. I. A. A. opens to-morrow morning at Waterville under conditions that bid fair to make the meet the closest track contest that has ever been held in the State. For the first time in history the outcome of the meet is absolutely in doubt; no one college seems to have any decided advantage. Maine and Colby both go into the meet confident of victory. The records of their dual meet last Saturday only strengthen their confidence. Bates, with a well balanced team and the remarkable showing of last season to encourage them, forms a factor that must be reckoned with. While Bowdoin, with no stars and no brilliant pre-season records will send to Waterville a team of thirty hard-working, hard-playing men, filled with the spirit that has accomplished so much in the past.

The most notable figure in the sprints, perhaps, is Captain Nardini, of Colby. In last Saturday's dual meet Nardini captured first place in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Bowdoin's principal entry in the century is McKenney, while Mayo, of Bates, and Deering, of Maine, must be reckoned with. In the 220, Nardini's time of 23 seconds in Saturday's meet looks good. Bowdoin, however, puts forward a hard man to defeat in E. B. Smith, and Duvey, of Bates, a relay star, may upset calculations.

The quarter mile is regarded as a toss-up between Walker, of Maine (last year's M. I. A. A. winner) and Holden, of Bates (if the latter runs), Haskell, of Bowdoin, has done the distance in good time. The 880-yard race is generally conceded to Holden, of Bates, who established a record of 1:56 at last year's state meet. Emery, of Bowdoin, Cates, of Colby, and Morris, of Maine (first and second in last Saturday's dual meet) will divide the other points.

In the distance runs we have Houghton, of Maine, Hall, Emery, and Skillin, of Bowdoin, and Holden, of Bates. The two-mile looks like Maine with two such men as Powers and Houghton; although Bowdoin expects much of Hall. Powers won the event Saturday with a time of 10 minutes and 3 seconds.

Bates looks to Blanchard for two firsts in the hurdles. Blanchard took first in the high hurdles last year and second in the low event. The other probable point winners are Vail, of Colby, Smith and Hammond, of Maine, and Wiggan and Jones, of Bowdoin.

The pole vault and high jump appear to lie between Maine and Colby, the broad jump seems to be between Bowdoin and Bates. Rogers, of Maine, with a record of 11 ft. 7 in., leads the field of competitors in the vault. Herrick, of Colby, who took first in the high jump last year, still looks good, although Bowdoin expects Greene and Pierce to be in the running. Greene won the event in the Indoor Meet and Pierce took second in the State Meet last year. Woodman, of Bates, and St. Onge, of Maine, are other good men in this event. The broad jump brings out such men as McFarland, of Bowdoin, last year's winner with a jump of 21 ft. 9 8-10 inches and Holden, of Bates, who actually defeated McFarland, but was disqualified. Nardini, of Colby, is also formidable in the event. Thompson, of Bates, is looked upon as a dark horse in the jump. He has done 21 ft. 9 in.

Of the weight-throwers Maine confidently expects Shepherd to outshine everyone. His new record of 121 ft. 9 in. in the discus, which was established last Saturday, certainly seems hard to touch, but stranger things have happened. Gove, of Bates, has thrown the discus 120 feet, and F. Smith and Tibbetts (Colby) are strong in this department. The shot put seems to be between Gove and Shepherd, who have each put it over 30 feet. Kern, of Bowdoin, and Welch, of Colby, will probably also figure strongly in this. Of the hammer throwers, Hastings, of Bowdoin, if in form, will make a strong bid for first. Hastings, in times past, has thrown over 124 feet. Welch, of Colby, Andrews, of Bates, and Beare, of Maine, are the other dangerous men in this event.

BOWDOIN'S VICTORY IN ORATORICAL LEAGUE CONTEST

A large audience filled Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, May 4, to hear the five orators who took part in the second annual contest of the New England Intercollegiate Oratorical League. Seldom does one have the opportunity to listen to such clear, straightforward, and effective speaking as was given during the evening. Each man who spoke in the contest was a carefully trained and accomplished orator who brought great credit to the college which he represented. E. Baldwin Smith, '11, was the winner of the contest and was presented with a gold medal; and W. R. Montgomery of Wesleyan received honorable mention.

The order of speaking was determined by lot immediately before the contest, and first place fell to Mr. Montgomery. His subject was "The Hope of Democracy" and his oration appealed strongly to the audience. He showed how our government is changing from a representative to a more democratic form of government, and pointed out the need of educating the people, and especially the children, under this form. The widespread establishment of playgrounds, the speaker argued, would meet this need.

The second speaker was Morris Jacob Wessel of Brown, who spoke on "The Jewish Spirit." He discussed the spirit of the Jewish people, past, present, and future, and asserted that both Jews and Christians should do all that they can to bring themselves into closer relationship with each other. Mr. Wessel was a very attractive speaker.

The third oration was given by Mr. Smith, the winner of the contest. His subject was "A New Aristocracy." The theme of his oration was the obligation college trained men ought to feel to make their country better. His speaking was very sincere and effective. One felt he meant every word he said.

Francis M. Fallon followed Mr. Smith. “Beecher in England” was his subject. He explained how the great Beecher kept back the English people from giving aid to the Confederate States during the Civil War.

The contest ended with the oration of Henry Smith Leiper of Amherst, who spoke on “China’s Progress—America’s Prejudice.” Mr. Leiper’s personality was most pleasing. He spoke with fervor and conviction. His oration was an admirable presentation of China’s wonderful advance to the front. The speaker asserted that the Chinese nation is greatly misunderstood. He criticised America’s attitude toward the yellow man, and advocated closer and more sympathetic relations on the part of the United States with this great commercial power of the East.

LEAGUE ELECTED OFFICERS

The New England Intercolligate Oratorical League elected the following officers for next year, at a meeting held here last week: Geo. L. Buck, Wesleyan, ’13, President; Eugene F. Bradford, Bowdoin, ’12, Vice-President; D. H. Kulp, Brown, ’13, Secretary-Treasurer.

MEETING OF COLLEGE OFFICERS

The College Association of Officers, which is composed of the administrative officers of Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Tufts, University of Maine, Williams, and Yale, is to hold a meeting here May 17 and 18. At the meeting, which will be informal and the proceedings of which will not be accessible to the public, there will be a discussion of college policy. Among those in attendance will be Dean Hurlbut or Assistant Dean Castle, of Harvard; Dean Jones of Yale; Dean Emerson, Dartmouth; Dean Olds, Amherst; Dean Ferry, Williams; Dean Stevens, U. of Maine; Dean Wren, Tufts; Prof. Hayden, Registrar of Tufts, and Dean Sills, of Bowdoin.

Prof. Nichols, of Wesleyan, is president, and Prof. Burnett, of Bowdoin, secretary of the association.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

Interest in the fraternity series has not wavered a bit since the schedule was opened. Each nine is putting forth all possible efforts to strengthen its personnel, and each contest has its full share of spectators.

Thursday morning, May 4, Delta Upsilon trimmed the non-fraternity men, 19 to 7. The line-ups:

FOOD FOR THE FANS

No stolen bases on “Squint” in the State games so far. Guess Bowdoin’s brilliant backstop has taught the other base-runners the eighth commandment.

Colby’s six left-handed batters looked easy for Woodcock. He pitched a steady game throughout. “Pewt” Purington has three extra baggers in two games to his credit. The outfields will have to back up some to get his drift drives.

Daniels is getting better every game and is hitting nicely. Russell is also hitting well.

“Big Bill” Clifford is right in the game every minute. That was a pretty pay when he covered home in the Colby game and caught Roy Good.

The accident to Burroughs in the Colby game is one of a type often misunderstood in the grand stand. Purington could not stop to get out of the pitcher’s way. A runner always has right to the base lines. It was not unfair tactics; it was baseball.

As stated in the Orient, Linquist is developing rapidly as Bates’ star twirler. The Lewiston institution is looming up in the pennant race.

Watch Wilson run the bases. He cuts them perfectly, and has pilfered three in the last two games.

Dr. Whittier will be present at a meeting of the athletic officers of New England colleges on May 19.

Prof. Sills will attend a meeting of the New England College Entrance Board on Friday and Saturday.

Many of the fellows attended the plays presented by the Knickerbocker Stock Company and Toby Lyons recently.

A joint concert is to be given by the Bates and Bowdoin Musical Clubs in the City Hall, Lewiston, on Tuesday, May 16th.

The joint cabinet meeting of the Christian Association will be held Monday evening. The place has not yet been decided upon.

Joe O'Neil's leg, which was so injured in practice as to render him unable to play in the Maine or Colby games, is gradually improving.

The faculty voted that Saturday be a half-holiday in appreciation of the money that has been raised by the undergraduates for the new gymnasium.

On the librarian's desk in Hubbard Library is a picture containing the members of the Class of 1875 who attended the Thirty-fifth Reunion held at the Dombegow House, Brunswick, last year.

The ringing of the college bell at seven A.M. is to be discontinued, in accordance with a vote of the faculty. Also, the bell is henceforth to be rung on standard time rather than by the college clock.

The Freshmen chosen to take part in the trial competition for the Alexander Prize Speaking are: C. A. Brown, Buell, Cunliffe, Eaton, Farrar, Gray, Hamblin, Leigh, Munroe, Newcombe, Russell, Simpson.

Mr. Elon G. Borton, National Traveling Secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, spoke briefly in chapel yesterday morning and gave an informal talk in the Y. M. C. A. Room in the evening.

Mr. F. P. Valentine, general manager of the New England Tel. and Tel. Company, spoke in Hubbard Hall, Monday evening, on the opportunities open to college men in the public service corporations.

Thursday evening Dr. H. P. Little, of Colby College, sometime Fellow of The Johns Hopkins University, who has been with the U. S. G. S. in field work in the West, gave an illustrated talk upon "Glaciers" before the Chemical Club.

Alumni Department

'77.—Mr. George W. Tillson, formerly chief engineer of the bureau of highways of Manhattan, has been appointed consulting engineer for Brooklyn, with a salary of $8,000.

'80.—Emery W. Bartlett, Esq., is editor of the Los Angeles Examiner, at Los Angeles, Cal.

'02.—A reception was tendered by the various organizations of the men and women of the Pilgrim Congregational parish, Nashua, N. H., Thursday evening of last week, to the new pastor, Rev. Daniel I. Gross, and Mrs. Gross. Besides the members of the congregation, the pastors of every Protestant church of Nashua, and scores of church people of other denominations attended. The reception was held in the chapel of the church which was elaborately decorated.

While a licentiate, Mr. Gross preached at Beverly, Mass., but since ordination, he has been at Marshfield, Mass., until he began his Nashua pastorate last Easter Sunday.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE
MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911.

Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to
ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.
BRUNSWICK, ME., 1910.
NEW ENGLAND MEET

The twenty-fifth annual meet of the New England Intercollegiate Association will be held to-morrow at Pratt Field, Springfield, Mass. The trials were run off this afternoon and the finals of the meet will take place to-morrow. Bowdoin is represented this year by a team of six men who left Thursday morning on the eight o'clock train. The men who took the trip are: Capt. McFarland, '11, who will compete in the broad jump; T. E. Emery, '13, who will run the mile; H. W. Hastings, '11, who will compete in the hammer throw; H. H. Hall, '13, who is entered in the two-mile; J. H. McKenney, '12, who is entered in the hundred yard dash; and C. H. Stevens, Medic., who will compete in the discus throw. The team was accompanied by Coach B. C. Morrill, Manager W. A. MacCormick, '12, and Assistant Manager C. R. Crowell, '13. While in Springfield the men will stop at the Clinton Hall Hotel.

TEEN TOURNAMENT

The New England tennis tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club courts in Brookline begins May 22. Bowdoin will be represented by Captain Black and W. A. MacCormick, '12, in the singles, and Captain Black and B. W. Partridge, Jr., '11, as the doubles team.

The Maine Tournament begins here on Thursday, May 24. Captain Black, MacCormick, Partridge, and Hitchborn, '11, will enter the singles with Black and Partridge, and MacCormick and Hitchborn as doubles teams.

BOWDOIN, 6; NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE, 1—MAY 16

With Urquhart in the box and good support behind him, Bowdoin defeated New Hampshire State, Tuesday, by a score of 6 to 1. It was the first home appearance of the lanky Freshman twirler and he did himself proud, allowing only five scattered hits, striking out 8 men and allowing no passes. Sanborn for the visitors weakened in the last part of the game and allowed a number of costly hits and passes. Brackett, the first man up for the visitors, hit safe for two bases, stole third, and scored on Wilson's wild throw to Lawlis. This was all the scoring done by the New Hampshire boys. In the 5th Jones came near scoring on a combination of bad throws, but was put out at the plate by Clifford.

Al. Grant distinguished himself both at the bat and in the field. He made four pretty catches in right, two of which looked like hits. He also drove in two runs by nice singles. Squanto hit the ball hard, getting three safe bingoes out of three times up, one a two-bagger. The fielding feature for the visitors was made by Brackett in the eighth. He made a sensational stop of a grounder by Weatherill, touched second and threw to first, catching the runner. Urquhart fielded his position in good shape and ended the game with seven assists to his credit. It was fine baseball weather, but there was only a small attendance.
BOWDOIN ORIENT

Sanborn, 4. Struck out—By Urquhart, 8; Sanborn, 2. Umpire—John O'Brien. Time—1 hr. 35 min.

Bowdoin plays Colby to-morrow at Waterville. The same fine-up will be used as in the New Hampshire game and Woodcock will do the slab work. Next Tuesday Capt. Lawlis' men will journey to Orono to play the second game with the U. of Maine. Means and Ryan will oppose each other in the box and the contest promises to be a good one.

THE TUFTS GAME

The big out-of-state baseball game occurs one week from to-morrow when Bowdoin crosses bats with Tufts in Portland. From all advance reports this should be one of the fastest college games pulled off in the State of Maine this year. In the box for Tufts will be Harry Martin, their prize twirler, and considered by experts one of the best college pitchers in the country this spring. To back up that statement is the fact that he has already signed a contract with "Connie" Mack to join the squad of the world's "champs" at the close of college. Urquhart will do the slab work for the White and will attempt to duplicate the trick of Means a few weeks ago when he let down the Medford boys with three hits. These two box artists alone should be a big drawing card. Tufts is coming to Portland primed to wipe out their early season defeat and Lawlis' men can be counted on to play the game every minute from gong to gong. The management has made arrangements with the Maine Central for a $1.95 round trip fare and the students ought to turn out in a body to see the contest. It will be gilt-edged college ball. Don't miss it.

M. I. A. A. MEET

Maine 41, Bates 39, Colby 39, Bowdoin 16, is the story of the Seventeenth Maine Inter-collegiate Track Meet. Maine's well balanced team was not sure of its victory till the last event when Rogers who won the pole vault, besides determining the outcome of the meet, broke the state record in that event, clearing the bar at 11.20 feet. Two other records were broken. In the 440-yard dash Holden of Bates won from Walker of Maine in the prettiest race of the day in 51.8 seconds. Walker ran a beautiful race.

In the discus throwing some rare form was seen, the record throw from the 7-foot circle being 120.50 feet by Gove of Bates. In the trials Gove made one beautiful cast of 130 feet, but slipped out of the circle, thereby disqualifying the throw.

From the spectators' point of view it was the most interesting meet ever held in the history of the association, for every event was hotly contested and the total number of points was more evenly divided than ever before. It was the universal comment, however, that the performances would have been much better if they had been run on a better field. It is the opinion of the Orient that the Maine meet should never be held again on the Colby field till a 220-yard straightaway has been built there and the track put in better shape.

However, no one team suffered any worse than the others with regard to the condition of the field. Added to this is the nuisance of the smoke from the locomotives in the Maine Central yards which, rolling in clouds across the field, obscured the view of the events, choked the contestants, and dirtied the spectators.

Nardini of Colby, was easily the star of the meet, winning three firsts: The 100-yard dash; 220-yard dash; and the broad jump. He will be heard from at the New England this week.

Bowdoin made a lamentably poor showing compared with the past. Bowdoin's best was not enough to win this year.

In the 100-yard dash McKenney of Bowdoin drew the outside lane in the finals. It was a wretched place to run and he did well to take third. Hastings took Bowdoin's only first—in the hammer throw which he won easily.

The only second places won were by Captain McFarland, who took second in the broad jump, and Emery who ran second to Strout of Maine in the mile. Captain McFarland surprised himself and every one else for, on account of the injury which he sustained at the indoor meet in March when he broke a muscle in his leg, he did not expect to place.

Emery ran a strong race and with two more years ahead of him should be a top-notch before he graduates.

Five thirds fell to Bowdoin: Wilson took third in the 880-yard run, Stevens in the discus, W. Green in the high jump, McKenney in the 100-yard dash, and Hall in the two-mile. With more experience every one of these men will be able to better his performance considerably.

The sentiment about the college is that Coach Morrill has done all that could be done with the material he had and that every man did his best. The past is secure, the future is what Bowdoin men and spirit will make it. Below is a summary of the events:

220 Yard Dash—Nardini, Colby, first; Duvev, Bates, second; Shrumpt, Maine, third. 23.1-5 seconds.

220 Yard Hurdles—Blanchard, Bates, first; Smith, Maine, second; Phillips, Maine, third. 20.2-5 seconds.

Broad Jump—Nardini, Colby, first; McFarland, Bowdoin, second; Holden, Bates, third. 20.15 feet.

Discus Throw—Gove, Bates, first; Shepard, Bates, second; Stevens, Bowdoin, third. 120.54 feet.

Shot Put—Shepard, Maine, first; Gove, Bates, second; Shepard, Bates, third. 39.04 feet.

Pole Vault—Roget, Maine, first; Herrick, Colby, second; Johnson, Bates, third. 11.20 feet.

One Mile Run—Houghton, Maine, first; Emery, Bowdoin, second; Townner, Maine, third. Four minutes, 39.1-5 seconds.

440 Yard Dash—Gove, Bates, first; Walker, Maine, second; Bowen, Colby, 513-5 seconds. (New Record.)

100 Yard Dash—Nardini, Colby, first; Deering, Maine, second; McKenney, Bowdoin, 10.1-5 seconds.

120 Yard Hurdles—Blanchard, Bates, first; Smith, Maine, second; Woodman, Bates, third; third, 17.3-5 seconds.

Half-Mile Run—Cates, Colby, first; Holden, Bates, second; E. Wilson, Bowdoin, third, 2 minutes 3 4-5 seconds.

High Jump—Herrick, Colby, first; Kempton, Bates, second; Green, Bowdoin, third. Height, 5 feet. inches.

Hammer Throw—Hastings, Bowdoin, first; Earce, Maine, second; Welch, Colby, third. Distance, 118.05 feet.

Two-Mile Run—Power, Maine, first; Whitney, Maine, second; H. H. Hall, Bowdoin, third. Time, 10 minutes, 11 1-5 seconds.

MASSACHUSETTS CLUB OUTING

The members of the Massachusetts Club will take the 2:10 train for Bath to-morrow, May 20. From Bath a launch will be taken for Southport, an eight-mile sail down the bay. On arriving in Southport a ball game will be in order to furnish a good appetite for the clam bake that is to be provided by Capt. F. H. McKown. It will be a good time all the way and it is hoped that all the members will turn out.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

Since Wednesday, May 10, three games have been played in the interfraternity series. By trimming Zeta Psi, 9 to 6, Beta Theta Pi keeps her slate clean and is tied for first place in Division A with Theta Delta Chi. Kappa Sigma added another victory to her credit by defeating Phi Chi, 6 to 1. Last Wednesday afternoon Delta Kappa Epsilon lost a close, hard-fought game to Zeta Psi by the score of 9 to 8.

The game between Beta Theta Pi and Zeta Psi was played Thursday afternoon, May 11. The summary:

Beta Theta Pi—C., Brummett; p., Archer; 1b., Burnham; 2b., Alling; 3b., Gardner; ss., L. Brown; If, Hart; cf., Hall; rf., Nason.

Zeta Psi—C., Burns, LaCasce; p., Lewis; 1b., Kennedy; 2b., Bickford; 3b., LaCasce, Burns; ss., Black, Badger; If., Kent; cf., Badger, Black; rf., Wright.

Innings:

The Seniors have assumed the cap and gown for the rest of the year. It seems to us an admirable custom to be well carried out. We have been glad to note that nearly every man in the class has appeared in Senior garb at chapel and trust to see the number increase rather than decrease. If half the class grow lax in keeping up the custom for the next two weeks, the whole effect is lost. To see gowns here and sweaters there in the Senior form would be no compliment to the dignity of the class.

The account of the track meet of last Saturday in one of the state papers was cut out on last Monday from the copy in the periodical room of the library. We have noticed other instances of the same sort recently which show that this method of petty theft is not entirely past. It seems absurd that college men should stoop to clip out an article from a paper which could be bought for two or three cents. If it has been done thoughtlessly such carelessness is unpardonable. Articles from all save two or three papers will be gladly clipped out by the attendant at the librarian's desk, after they are a day old. Let us see no more mutilation of the current newspapers.

THE FEBRUARY QUILL

The February Quill presents one more bit of evidence that there is now going on in our literary circles a rehabilitation of the Eighteenth Century. Two of the three articles in the number indicate that the fervor of romanticism is passing; and the third article may be designated not unfairly as typical undergraduate realism.

The author of "The Blue Stockings and Elizabeth Montagu" has gone to the 18th century for his materials. In such a gossipy sketch we would wish for greater individuality of style as a compensation for the trivial details related. Aside from this we are glad to have so many interesting anecdotes, and to have them in such a convenient form.

"The Bowdoin Tomb," written in the eighteenth century couplet, is a finished piece of verse that will appeal peculiarly to Bowdoin men. In addition to its value as a poem it supplies us with historical information which many of us are glad to know.

That a drinking bout looms big in undergraduate imagination is evidenced by "The Downfall of Finnegan." The writer has not yet learned how to handle the Irish dialect, and he does wisely to subordinate the conversation to the straightforward narrative. The narrative portion is vigorous and holds our attention to the end.

The presence of only one undergraduate article in this number is regrettable. Something is needed to stir the dry pens of undergraduates. For the Quill belongs primarily to the undergraduates; and there are men on the campus who are thoroughly capable of adorning its pages. The Quill has its friends as well as its critics; and these friends are anxious that it retain its place among the first of the college magazines.

C. W. S., '07

THE APRIL QUILL

The April number of the Quill, like its immediate predecessors, is filled largely with contributions from other than undergraduate sources, and, however great the inherent interest and literary excellence of alumni and faculty contributions, their predominance gives the reader a publication like the Quill a sense of something lacking. The first article by Professor Davis is a clear call to the men of the college to remedy this condition, to develop a more creditable literary activity and to improve the exceptional opportunities which lie in their grasp. His suggestions (page 100) are eminently practical, and his answer in the following pages to those who ask "What shall I write?" is ample justification for the article.

The same author, in "The Haunt of Pomola," gives us a well-executed pen picture of the mount-tain monarch of the Maine wilderness. Those are to be pitied who can climb Katahdin, or see it from a distance, and still scoff at the old Indian belief as absurd. Pomola is far more real than many things which nobody thinks of disputing.

A poem from Isaac Basset Choate of '62, is always welcome, and in the graceful lines of "The Singer's Share," he shows us a glimpse of the poetic spirit which has consecrated his life and work.

The dramatic effort "Romance" is a somewhat pretentious piece of work. Perhaps a reader here and there will have a little honest doubt as to just what it pretends to be, but that is probably the fault of the reader. The excellent bit of writing which begins at the bottom of page 107 makes the whole allegory worth while.

The sonnet by Mr. Baker is marred by several errors of punctuation and lack of punctuation, and by obvious verbal carelessness. The expressions "thou....have" and "thou....grow" are not English. In its conception, however, the sonnet is admirable, and some of its lines are most happily phrased. The technique of the sonnet is not to be mastered in a few trials.

The pen pictures are vivid sketches, and the under graduates who can do so well where brevity and condensation are required, should not be content to stop there. It would be of interest to know if Mr. Greene's swamp experiences resulted in pneumonia, and how many trout Mr. King caught and how he cooked them at the camp fire. The verses "A Lumber Camp" may well be grouped with the pen pictures, since they admirably fill the requirements of that class of work.

Like earlier reviewers I feel that the Postman could make his department of more interest to his readers if he filled it with well chosen verse from other college literary magazines rather than with comment on articles and stories which the Quill readers do not see. I heartily agree with the Ganders in their conclusions regarding a Freshman dormitory at Bowdoin, but feel that their comment on the subject could better have been made in the style of the "Silhouettes," a department which was particularly well conducted in the Quill of former years.

It is a bit startling to note that the Quill is now in its fifteenth volume. So short a time ago it seems that the writer, as editor of the Orient, was earnestly urging the establishment of such a literary monthly—"trying to start something," as Orient editors have been doing for forty years. The boys of '88 notably Baxter and Young, who founded the Quill made a splendid beginning, and through the years the successive boards have rarely allowed a number to fall below the high standard of the early years. If the reviewers appear to dwell chiefly upon the occasional stylistic error or faulty rhyme, it is because the general excellence of the whole goes without saying, and because that is the traditional way with critics and criticism. The Quill is a credit to Bowdoin, and has nothing to fear from comparison with the other publications of the college world which have a similar aim.

JOINT CABINET MEETING

Monday evening, the joint meeting of the old and new Y. M. C. A. Cabinets was held at the New Ivan Inn. After supper the business meeting, over which ex-President Allen presided. Mr. Allen heard the reports from the chairmen of the outgoing committees and the tentative plans of the chairmen for next year. A discussion of the past and future work ensued.

In his talk, Mr. McConaughy emphasized three things which should be looked after carefully, namely, college activities, town activities, and community at large. At the college, the Y. M. C. A. should provide more frequent smokers and musical entertainments, and establish closer intimacy between the fraternity and non-fraternity students. In the town, more attention should be given to gymnasium work and to the Sunday School activities. In regard to the community at large, Mr. McConaughy recommended more deputations to surrounding towns for the purpose of religious and social improvement.

As Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming year, Mr. Fifield will have charge of the Employment Bureau.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. McCormick, the new President, took the chair and outlined his plan for the future.

FACULTY NOTES

The different members of the faculty will spend the summer months in the following places: President Hyde will be at Jaffrey, N. H.; Prof. Chap- man will be in Brunswick the greater part of the time; Prof. Woodruff will teach at the summer school at the University of Vermont for a part of the time, and will spend the rest of the time in Brunswick; Prof. Johnson will be at Industry, Maine; Prof. Little will spend the summer months at Mere Point; Prof. Moody will be in Brunswick; Prof. Filer will go to Mere Point for the summer; Prof. Whittier will be in Brunswick most of the time; Prof. McIlwain, Dr. Cram, Prof. Mitchell, and Prof. Davis will go abroad for the summer; Dr. Copeland will be at Woods Hole, Mass., for several weeks; Prof. Brown will study at Cambridge; Prof. Sills will be at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, during July and August, and in Brunswick after the first of September; Prof. Hutchins, Prof. Ham and Prof. Nixon will remain in Brunswick; Prof. Cathlin will study at the University of Columbia; Mr. McConaughy will make a trip to the Pacific coast; Prof. Duncaill will be at the University of Wisconsin; and Mr. Evans will spend the summer in Camden, Maine. Before sailing for England and Scotland, Prof. Davis will be at the University of Columbia, where he will teach English Speech and Interpretative Reading.
DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW GYM

The following is based on the letter which is being sent out by the Committee on the New Gymnasium to the alumni of the college.

The new gymnasium fund has now reached $58,000, leaving $42,000 to be raised. The committee hopes that the graduates will respond promptly so that the entire sum may be raised by Commencement.

Dr. Whittier has studied the best athletic buildings in the country and the building planned will be thoroughly up-to-date in all respects. It is planned to place it back of the Chapel and Maine Hall, facing the quadrangle as shown in the accompanying cut.

There will be two connected buildings, the gymnasium proper and the General Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building. The gymnasium proper will be 180 ft. by 80 ft. The first floor, which will be level with the ground, will contain lockers, showers, two bowling alleys, a room for the athletic managers, rooms for fencing, boxing, squash, and handball, and a storage room. The second floor will be taken up principally by the main exercising room, 107 feet by 77 feet. There will also be two offices and a special exercising room; and on the floor above, a visitors' gallery and trophy room.

The athletic building will be 140 ft. by 112 ft. It will be steel framed and the floor will be of screened gravel subsoil. It will be large enough for a full-sized baseball diamond. There will be room to kick 40-yard goals in football practice or to lay out two tennis courts. A portion near the gymnasium will be set aside for track, being screened off by a net. It is also planned to have an elevated running track ten feet wide, also screened by a net, and measuring 14 laps to the mile.

It is not planned to build a swimming pool (indicated by the dotted line in the cut) at this time, as the belief is growing that it is better to have the same in a connected building; and it is hoped that at some future time one may be provided.

THE WIRELESS STATION

Bowdoin students, especially those studying electricity, were much interested in a description recently published of Tech's wireless apparatus.

In this respect, Bowdoin, although not a scientific school, feels that Tech has no advantage, for she also has a successful wireless station. This apparatus is in the hands of Prof. Charles C. Hutchins, who began to set it up about a year ago. The station, although somewhat incomplete, was in operation during the last part of last year, but additions have been made to it little by little until now the outfit is complete in every way.

This station is in reach of practically every sending station because it has an unusually suitable tuning coil. This instrument can be tuned to receive any message of wave length from 175 to 4000 meters. Messages are received from far down the coast about every evening. Messages have been received from as far south as Washington, and the transatlantic steamers are frequently heard from. The press dispatches from the Wellfleet station on Cape Cod from which the news is sent to the steamers which are at sea, can be easily taken down, so distinct do they come in. From the nearer stations, such as the Cape Elizabeth Naval Station, Portsmouth, or the Boston Navy Yard, messages are frequently received. Occasionally messages are received from the stations at Newport, the Capes of Delaware and Washington. It also frequently hears from Mr. Rogers of Portland. The sending part of the apparatus has never been fully tried out but it is known that its messages come in strong at Portland.

The aerial is located on top of Memorial Hall at an altitude of eighty-five feet, and the apparatus is installed in a room in the physics end of the Science Building. This room was originally intended for a room with a constant temperature and is equipped with double doors, double windows and double walls. Thus it is an ideal room for the receiving of messages as no outside noises can penetrate to disturb the operator. The current for the work is taken from the town circuit and is transformed by a large one kilowatt transformer.
College Notes

Lyman Cousins, '03, visited the campus, Wednesday.

The campus has been put in excellent condition for Ivy Day and Commencement.

Dr. Raymond Calkins of Portland, is to be the college preacher for next Sunday.

Belknap, '13, is being detained at his home in Damariscotta on account of illness in his family.

Wednesday evening, a reception was tendered to the visiting administrative officers of other colleges, in Hubbard Hall.

The track department is busy arranging the list of entries for the Interscholastic Meet, which is to be held here a week from Saturday.

The members of the New Hampshire State Baseball Team spent Tuesday night at the various houses, before going to Lewiston, Wednesday, where they played Bates.

Prof. G. T. Little left this week for Pasadena, California, where he is to attend the conference of the American Library Association, held from May 18th to the 24th.

The men selected for the Alexander Prize Speaking Contest, June 16th, are: Crowell, '13; Douglas, '13; Dunphy, '13; Eaton, '14; M. W. Greene, '13; Hurley, '12; Leigh, '14; Loring Pratt, '12; Welch, '12. The alternates are (1) Rodick, '12; (2) Baker, '13; (3) Buell, '14.

President Francis Callahan of the Freshman Class, has named the committees to arrange for the class banquet and the class canes. The banquet committee is made up of Callahan, chairman; Cunliffe, Fowler, LaCasce, D. K. Merrill and A. L. Pratt. On the canoe committee are Lappin, Mason and Shepherd. The class yell was composed by Gibson.

E. G. Barbour, '12, has been re-elected president of the North Yarmouth Academy Alumni Association. E. L. Russell, '12, was chosen vice-president of this association, and P. E. Donahue a member of the executive committee. Russell, Lunt, '13, and L. A. Donahue, '14, were selected to serve on a new committee which aims to strengthen athletics at the academy.

MISSIONARY EXPOSITION

An event of interest to Y. M. C. A. men is the first great Missionary Exposition held in America, which is being given in Mechanics' Building, Boston, closing to-morrow. It has been named "The World in Boston" and amply justifies its title since it comprises exhibits of everything from Home Missionary work among the immigrants at Ellis Island to Foreign Missions in India and Japan. The three-fold purpose of the Exposition is to picture the lands in which missions are maintained, the conditions under which the missionaries work and the progress being made towards realizing the ideal of a Christianized world. An idea of the scale upon which the Exposition is carried out may be had when it is stated that ten thousand persons take part as guides and impersonators of natives in the foreign scenes. Several New England Colleges were represented by large delegations.

Intercollegiate Notes

A Colorado ranchman has paid for his college education at Colorado College by discovering some footprints of prehistoric dinosaurs and selling them to the Field Museum of Chicago.

During the first half-year of the University extension courses at Harvard, 666 students were registered. Eleven courses were given, the most popular being in English Literature and Composition.

Cornell has extended the campus boundary to include a new tract of land upon which a $300,000 dormitory will be erected.

President David Starr Jordan of Stanford has issued an order that the committee on athletics abolish intercollegiate baseball at the University. He witnessed a game between Stanford and the University of California recently and became highly indignant at what he termed "systematic muckerism" as manifested by the raucous joshing of pitchers and other players from the grandstand, the bleachers, and even the field itself.

More than a hundred Eastern college boys have already inquired of Chas. Harris, director of the Kansas Free Employment Bureau, as to the prospects for employment in the Kansas wheat fields during the coming summer.

Dr. Samuel H. Murlin has been installed as President of Boston University as successor to President Huntington.

Ex-'48.—Lafayette Grover, a most influential citizen of Portland, Oregon, died at his home in that city May 10, of last week. Mr. Grover attended Bowdoin two years, from 1844 to 1846, but did not graduate. From 1846-1850, he was a teacher and law student at Philadelphia. Upon the completion of his studies in 1850, he was admitted to the Pennsylvania Bar. In 1851, Mr. Grover began the practice of law in Oregon.

During his long residence of over 60 years in Oregon, Mr. Grover has been a respected and admired citizen. He has served his city and state and country in most worthy and patriotic works. As a lawyer, he has been eminently successful. As an office-holder in his state, he has served justly and properly the interests of all. As a member of the National Congress, he has proved his worth and ability frequently and won esteem and respect widely.

Immediately upon entering into his work as a lawyer at Oregon, Mr. Grover was elected Prosecuting Attorney and Auditor of Public Accounts, which office he ably filled. From 1853-1856, he was a member of the Legislative Assembly of Oregon, and became Speaker in 1856 for one year. Mr. Grover immediately affiliated himself with others in the interests of education, becoming Trustee of Willamette University in 1853 and serving efficiently and well for seventeen years. In 1854, he was awarded the degree of Master of Arts by Delaware College.

Meanwhile, Mr. Grover had served in the Indian Wars of 1853 and 1855-56. At the close of these uprisings, he was appointed United States Commissioner to audit the Spoilation Claims of the Rogue Indian War of 1853 and the Indian War Claims for the years 1857-1858.

Upon the completion of these services he was elected to the House of Representatives from Oregon for the year 1858-1859 in recognition of his ability and value which he had so well shown in his previous services. Mr. Grover entered Congress as the first member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity to serve in that judicial body. As an even greater triumph and honor, he was elected Governor of Oregon in 1870. For seven consecutive years, he served his state most excellently in this capacity. From 1877 to 1883, he was a member of Congress as Senator from Oregon.

In all these various capacities, Mr. Grover has been a proper and able man. His worth was early recognized by his fellow-citizens and rewarded by the rapid advancement in office which was offered him. He held positions of honor which but few attain so soon and hold so long. As an alumnus from Bowdoin in the West, Mr. Grover has been a well-known and firm supporter of his college. As a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, Mr. Grover was one of the oldest surviving members.

'97.—Charles B. Lamb of Saco, has accepted the position of principal of the High School of Leominster, Mass., and will immediately enter upon his work. For the last two years, he has been superintendent of schools for the towns of Gray, Windham and New Gloucester. Mr. Lamb prepared for college at Saco High and Thornton Academy. After graduation from college, Mr. Lamb entered the Methodist ministry. Owing to ill health, he did not continue this work, and has been for the last few years engaged in teaching school in and around Old Orchard.

'10.—R. E. Fisher is principal of the Sabbatus grammar school and assistant in the High School.

'10.—Richard R. Eastman is working for the New England Telephone Company with headquarters in Boston.

'07.—John W. Leydon, Instructor in Modern Languages at Worcester Academy, has been appointed Exchange Teacher to Germany by the Carnegie Foundation and a year's leave of absence has been granted him by Worcester Academy. Mr. Leydon will leave this country during the coming summer and will spend the year in Berlin or Frankfort on Main, returning to Worcester during the following summer.

I. C. A. A. A. MEET

Bowdoin will be represented at the Eastern Intercollegiate Meet at the Harvard Stadium, Cambridge, to-morrow, by E. Wilson, '12, G. C. Kern, '12, and W. S. Greene, '13, who will be accompanied by Coach Morrill. Capt. McFarland will not accompany the team, the Athletic Council having excused him on account of his having accepted a position which necessitates his leaving college on May 27.

Bowdoin, 9; Colby, 2—May 20

Bowdoin won the second game with Colby last Saturday on Alumni Field, Waterville, by a score of 9 to 2. The up-State team hit the ball well but lost through poor base running and fielding. Woodcock pitched a steady game and pulled out of a bad hole in the eighth inning in nice shape. Lawlis' men were fast on the bases, making 7 steals and bunched their hits. In the field Bowdoin played their best game of the season, only one error and that a difficult chance, being charged against them. Wilson held the Colby base runners close to the bags and not a single attempt at a steal was made. Woodcock and Wilson each got two hits and Purington continued to maintain his good batting average. The speedy centerfielder sprained his ankle in a slide to second in the eighth and was replaced by Russell. The fielding feature of the contest was Harlow's spear-throwing of a fly in deep short after a long run with his back to the plate. A high wind blowing across the field marred the work of the players and the clouds of dust slackened considerably the speed of both teams.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL AWARDS TRACK B'S

At a meeting of the Athletic Council, Monday night, the following men were awarded their B's: McFarland, '12, Hastings, '11, Emery, '13, and McCormick, '12, manager.

The track captain for 1912 will be Robert Danforth Cole, 1912, of Arlington Heights, Mass., who was elected at a meeting of the track men, Wednesday morning.

INTERSchOLastic MEET

The annual Interscholastic Meet will be held on Whittier Field to-morrow, beginning at 10 A.M., when the preliminary heats will be run. The finals will be called at 2 P.M. Entries have been received from twelve preparatory schools, as follows: Portland High School, Hebron, Deering High School, Bangor High School, Biddeford High School, Edward Little High School, Lewiston High School, Maine Central Institute, Mexico High School, Thornton Academy, Westbrook Seminary, Leavitt Institute. The meet is believed to be between Hebron and Westbrook Seminary, with the odds in favor of the former. Hebron won the Dartmouth Interscholastic two weeks ago while Westbrook took first honors at the Maine schoolboys' meet last Saturday. Portland High, so strong in years past, is rather an unknown factor this season and appears somewhat weaker than usual. The other schools can be counted upon to make things interesting. The pole vaulting of Belcher of Hebron will be watched with particular interest. Belcher did 11 feet 8 without trouble at Hanover and has exceeded this mark in practice. It is believed that with favorable weather conditions to-morrow the Hebron athlete will make a new world's interscholastic record. As usual, the various schools will send large bodies of rooters to support their teams.

N. E. I. L. T. A. TOURNAMENT

Bowdoin was represented at the Longwood Tennis Tournament in Boston the first of the week by Capt. Black and MacCormick. Partridge was declared ineligible on Sunday and so was not allowed to compete.

In the first round of the singles MacCormick drew R. C. Hay of Vermont. After a close first set won by Hay 10-8, MacCormick lost the second 6-3. McCollister of Tufts defaulted to Captain Black in the first round. In the second Parker of Tech., one of the first four men last year, defeated Capt. Black, 6-3, 6-3.

In the doubles Black and MacCormick drew the best team entered, that of Dartmouth, Harris and Nelson, who won the match, 6-1, 6-0.

In the singles Johnston of Amherst, seems the best man, and in doubles Harris and Nelson of Dartmouth.

At a meeting of the Association at the Brunswick, Tuesday night, Johnston of Amherst, was elected President; Nelson of Dartmouth, Vice-President, and Conyer of Williams, Secretary and Treasurer. Bowdoin was represented by Manager Fuller.

THE NEW ENGLAND MEET

Although Bowdoin's best at the New England I. C. A. A. Meet last Saturday was to qualify only one man, Captain McFarland, in the broad jump, the team fought its hardest and stuck it out till the last. The team was met at the Springfield Station by Henry P. Chapman, '06, captain of the '05 football team, and was quartered at Clinton Hall. Friday forenoon the men visited the Springfield Country Club as guests of Mr. Harry B. Johnson.

The meet itself was the fastest in the history of the Association, seven records being smashed. There was a heavy rain Friday, but Saturday was clear and warm and favorable in every way for the record-breaking performances. The accommodations were of the best, with spacious quarters for the contestants, a wide, fast track, and plenty of room for the spectators. About 5,000 were in attendance.

The Bowdoin team did its utmost to figure in the summary presented below:

Hammer Throw—Won by A. H. Tilley, Dartmouth, distance 146 ft. 6½ in. (new record); second, H. E. Harden, Dartmouth, distance 146 ft. 5½ in.; third, L. G. Metcalf, Tech, distance 130 ft. 6½ in.; fourth, R. E. Lewis, Dartmouth, 129 ft. 3 in.
100-Yard Dash—Final heat won by D. B. Young, Amherst; second, Nardini, Colby; third, A. Lyman, Williams; fourth, R. V. Snow, Williams. Time—10 2-5.5.

Running Broad Jump Won by Gutterson, Vt.—
Distance 23 ft. 1 3-8 in.; second, E. Bartlett, Williams, distance 22 ft. 2 1/8 in.; third, Nardini, Colby, distance 20 ft. 8 1/2 in.; fourth, E. M. Roberts, Amherst, 20 ft. 4 1/2 in.

200-Yard Dash—Won by Young, Amherst; second, R. V. Snow, Williams; third, W. E. Robison, Wesleyan; fourth, J. D. Lester, Williams. Time—22 1-5 seconds.

Discus Throw—Won by O. V. Chamberlain, M. I. T., distance 121 feet 5 1/2 inches; second, L. E. Lovejoy, Dartmouth, distance 119 feet 6 inches; third, A. E. Bartlett, Brown, distance 118 feet 10 1/2 inches; fourth, G. A. Gove, Bates, distance 117 feet 10 1/4 inches.

Final heat won by Gutterson, Vermont; second, Smith, Dartmouth; third, N. E. Smith, Maine; fourth, V. S. Blanchard, Bates; time, 24 3-5 seconds (a new record).

Pole Vault—Won by P. Maxon, Trinity, 11 ft. 9 1/4 in. (record); L. B. Rogers, Maine, W. C. Salisbury, Tech., O. E. Holdman, Dartmouth, tied for second place; height, 11 ft. 6 in.

PSI UPSILON CONVENTION

The 78th annual National Convention of Psi Upsilon convened at Portland, Wednesday afternoon, May 24, under the auspices of the Kappa Chapter of Bowdoin. The convention has called delegates from 22 colleges and universities of America, extending from Maine to California, together with large numbers of undergraduate and alumni members, the following colleges being represented: Union, University of New York, Yale, Brown, Amherst, Dartmouth, Columbia, Bowdoin, Hamilton, Wesleyan, University of Rochester, Kenyon, University of Michigan, Syracuse, Cornell, Trinity, Lehigh, University of Pennsylvania, University of Minnesota, University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, University of California.

The convention opened at the Falmouth Hotel, Wednesday evening, with a smoker at which speeches were made by various distinguished members of the fraternity. Thursday morning the annual business session of the convention was held, after which the delegates left for Brunswick on a special train. Late in the afternoon President Hyde received the delegates at the house of the Kappa chapter, and after a dinner at New Meadows Inn the party returned to Portland for a skating party at the Rollaway. To-day's programme includes a sail down the bay, a clambake at Long Island, and a ball game between the Eastern and the Western delegates. The convention closes to-night with a banquet at the Falmouth. The speakers at the banquet will include ex-Governor Quimby of New Hampshire, toastmaster: Chief Justice Emery, of the Maine Supreme Court; Judge Joseph W. Symonds of Portland; George S. Coleman of New York, chairman of the executive council of Psi Upsilon; Professor Homer E. Keyes of Dartmouth; and George E. Fogg of Portland.

The members of the committee in charge are George E. Fogg, '02, alumni adviser; Earl Baldwin Smith, '11, chairman; Oliver T. Sanborn, '11, Philip W. Meserve, '11, Loring Pratt, '12, Arthur H. Cole, '11, Robert F. King, '12.

FACULTY NOTES

President Hyde is to deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon at Phillips-Andover Academy, June 11th.

A meeting of the classical teachers of the State is to be held at Bates College, May 26th and 27th. Prof. Woodruff will have a paper of readings from Lucian. At the evening meeting, Dean Sills will lecture on "The Ideal of Universal Peace in the Works of Virgil and Dante."

Dean Sills is to attend a meeting of the representatives of Maine colleges at the office of State Superintendent of Schools Smith next Saturday. The discussion will be on the relations between the schools and colleges in Maine.

Prof. Mitchell spoke at the Teachers' Meeting, in Searsport, last Friday, on "Reading and Rectitude."

The Visiting Committee of the College Boards, which is composed of Rev. S. V. Cole, of Norton, Mass.; ex-Gov. W. T. Cobb, of Rockland, Judge F. A. Powers, of Houlton, and Mr. F. O. Conant, of Portland, visited the college, Wednesday.

To the Delegates of Psi Upsilon

To the delegates of the 78th Annual Convention of Psi Upsilon, who have been the guests of the college for the past few days, the Orient extends sincere and hearty greetings in behalf of the college. Bowdoin takes great pleasure in entertaining the delegates of a fraternity whose members have made its name known throughout the land and which numbers among its ranks the Nation's Highest Executive. And to the officers of the fraternity who have selected Kappa Chapter as the host for the convention the college signifies its appreciation of their choice.

Opportunities for Concrete Loyalty

At this season each day brings the opportunity for the undergraduates to show their loyalty to the college. This is especially true of the coming week. The game with Tufts tomorrow should call forth a large attendance to encourage a hard working team when they are playing one of their hardest games. At the same time, the rest of the college should so entertain their guests at the Interscholastic Meet that they will be imbued with the determination to make Bowdoin their Alma Mater. And next week the finish of the struggle for the State Championship brings another opportunity. Bowdoin can win it by winning one game. But let us have a clean slate and the united support of the student body.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING

At the Student Council Meeting last Monday afternoon, several important matters were taken up for consideration. There has been some talk about college relative to the advisability of lowering the standard of awarding track "B's." According to the present method a man must take either a first or second in the Maine Intercollegiate Meet in order to win a B. The arguments against this are that the time has now come when it is harder to win a third place in the Maine Meet than it was to win a second a few years ago, and already two of the colleges in the state have adopted the proposed standard. The council unanimously disapproved of the proposed plan.

The date for the mass-meeting for the election of the 1911-1912 Student Council was set for Tuesday evening, June 6th. At that time the track and baseball managers, together with their assistants and a cheer leader next year, will also be elected. Printed ballots will be distributed for voting; the Australian system being used.

The council earnestly desires more men to hand in their names as candidates for the position of calendar publishers. On the evening of the mass-meeting the council will announce the names of the Junior and Sophomore who have been selected. As yet only three Sophomores have handed in their names to Secretary McFarland, and not a single Junior has appeared in the field.

The matter of continuing the custom of sending delegates to fraternity dances was also discussed, but no action was taken as it was deemed advisable to learn the sentiment of the fraternities not represented in the council. A meeting will be held later to which delegates from the latter chapters will be invited.

The sentiment of the council was strongly in favor of having a Junior Week at some time during the year and holding all the house parties at one time. The present system breaks in upon college work altogether too much. It is thought that there is a possibility of having the mid-year examination period begin three days earlier so as to end on a Wednesday, leaving three days for a "Junior week."

SUNDAY CHAPEL

Rev. Raymond Calkins, of Portland, spoke at Sunday chapel on the practical side of Christianity. The gist of his talk was the value of Christians as the fishers of men, living men who devote their energies to ameliorating whatever conditions they find need improvement. He refuted Robert Ingersoll's statement that "fishers of men" was a fitting term for Christians, in that their religion takes them out of the natural element of mankind and makes them suffer in the life they are forced to live. True Christians, however, find intense pleasure in helping out their fellow beings. But it must be borne in mind that such Christians and not those who seclude themselves from the world are the only ones which are of practical value. Once there was a New York clubman who gave up all his society pleasures and business, after he was converted, and became a hermit. That man could have done much more good for humanity had he remained in his former activities, purifying society and elevating business principles. Thus we see that active, practical men constitute the need of modern Christianity.

AT THE ART BUILDING

In the north end of the Art Building is an interesting array of photographs which W. C. Allen, ’11, obtained while traveling in England and Scotland. They comprise photographs of paintings from galleries and of architecture, especially of the famous cathedrals. The pictures will remain on exhibition until Ivy Day.

DON'T GET LEFT IVY DAY

Last week Manager Morss signed in over two-thirds of the 1912 Bugle Edition. If you want any copies, sign up at once. Have your copies delivered to you Ivy Day morning at your fraternity house. Don't wait till Ivy Day to get your Bugles, sign up now and make sure. Every man in college should have a Bugle. It's a record of the past year in prose, verse and picture. Jokes and grinds never equalled, and that cover design is a feature. A unique and brand-new idea. See for yourself on Ivy Day. $1.50 a copy.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

The most important event in the interfraternity league in the last week was the Deke victory over Theta Delta by the score of 11 to 6. This defeat pulls Theta Delta Chi down into second place, and gives the Betas a clean slate with three wins. Delta Upsilon finished her schedule with a triumph over Alpha Delta Phi, 8 to 3, Thursday afternoon, May 18. The Alpha Kappa Kappa-Beta Theta Pi game was forfeited to the later, while the contest booked between Phi Chi and Non-Fraternity for Thursday morning, May 18, was postponed. This makes the second game set ahead, the other being the Deke-A. K. K. argument. The date of the Theta Delta-Beta game was changed from Friday afternoon, May 19, to yesterday afternoon.

Theta Delta Chi lost her first game of the season to Delta Kappa Epsilon, 11 to 6, Tuesday afternoon. The line-ups:

Delta Kappa Epsilon—C., Crosby; p., Savage; 1b., Devine; 2b., Haskell; 3b., Wiggin; ss., W. Holt; cf., Burleigh; cf., Hughes; rf., Cunliffe.

Theta Delta Chi—C., Tutt; p., Dole; 1b., Wood; 2b., N. Tuttle; 3b., Brown; ss., Joy; 1b., Barton; Nixon; cf., Howe, Buell; rf., Nixon, Barton.

College Notes

The lawns at Whittier Field are being put in good condition.

The Zeta Psi house party is to be held June 1st, 2d, and 3d.

The Band played at a lawn party near Pejepscot, Tuesday night.

Purington’s ankle, which was injured in the Colby game, is improving.

The Monday Night Club held a meeting at the Zeta Psi House this week.

L. W. Pratt, ’13, has been confined to his room with the German measles.

Brooks, who has been sick for some time, resumed baseball practice, Monday.

The Freshman banquet is to be held at the Falmouth Hotel in Portland, June 10th.

Gray, ’14, has been obliged to go to his home in Portsmouth, N. H., being threatened with rheumatic fever.

Rodick, ’12, who has been at home sick with the German measles, returned to college the first of the week.

From the appearance of the reserve men, it seems as though next year’s baseball team will be a good one.

Prof. Woodruff attended the wedding of his son, Robert Thomson Woodruff, in Wellesley, Mass., Wednesday.

Monday afternoon and evening the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity enjoyed a set-up furnished by their Freshmen at the Gurnet.

The following men have been selected to speak on Commencement Day: John Leslie Brummett, Arthur Harrison Cole, Charles Boardman Hawes, Chester Eliphig Kellogg, William Folsom Merril, Earl Baldwin Smith.

Intercollegiate Notes

Harvard has arranged an annual exchange of teachers with four well known small colleges of the West—Colorado, Grinnell College of Grinnell, Iowa, Knox, and Beloit. Every year Harvard will send a professor who will spend an equal portion of half an academic year with each of the four colleges. In return, the colleges will each send a young instructor to serve as an assistant in some Harvard course for half a year. It is understood that the first Harvard professor to take part in the exchange will be Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of the Department of History.

Statistics gathered at Princeton show that 40 per cent. of the students are working their way through college, in some degree.
The University of California has added to its curriculum a course in scoutcraft. The course includes a study of woodcraft and camping.

Brown will next year revise her curriculum from the three-term to the two semester system. Special work in economics is also planned.

Hazing has been abolished at the University of Pennsylvania. The undergraduate committee and the Senior Sphinx Society, after a series of meetings, have issued this announcement. The movement has come from the student body alone and was influenced in no way by the Faculty or Trustees. There will be a committee of fifteen, five from each of the three upper classes, to enforce the rule.

Dr. Guy Potter Benton, president of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, will be the next president of the University of Vermont. Dr. Benton was offered the presidency of Boston University.

The Columbia tennis team is, as yet, unbeaten, having won seven straight victories.

A new “travelling fellowship” of $25,000, established by Alfred Kahn of Paris, will soon be awarded to some educator, preferably from a southern or western college. Mr. Kahn has established fellowships in France, Germany, England and other countries. The appointee is to travel in, to live in, unknown lands, to receive the broadening influences available and returning to give his pupils the benefit of this influence.

Harvard is to have a new school for advanced instruction in medicine. It will begin next fall, and will take the place of the present Summer School of Medicine.

Stevens Institute of Technology celebrated its fortieth anniversary May 27th. That date also marked the acquisition of the famous Stevens Castle, a landmark on the Hudson. The castle will be slightly remodelled to serve as a dormitory.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF THETA OF DELTA KAPPA EPSILON,
May 22, 1911.

"Whereas, It has pleased God, in his infinite wisdom, to take from us our beloved brother, Lafayette Grover, of the Class of 1848; be it

Resolved, That we of the Theta Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon, extend our heart-felt sympathy to his family in this time of bereavement; and be it

Resolved, That in his death the Chapter loses a faithful and earnest member, and the Fraternity, a loyal brother."

'57.—Gen. Charles Hamlin, son of the former Vice-President Hannibal Hamlin, died at his home in Bangor, May 15, 1911. Gen. Hamlin has lived in Bangor since 1865, and conducted a successful law business. He has been a most prominent citizen and one of the most respected men in the state. His nature was such that he drew to himself hosts of friends and won the esteem of all.

Gen. Hamlin was born at Hampden, Me., September 13, 1837. He received his early education in the Hampden, Bridgton, and Bethel academies. He graduated from Bowdoin in the Class of 1857. Following his graduation from college, he read law with his father, and was admitted to the bar in 1858. He began the practice of law in Orland, near Bucksport.

In the summer of 1862, he assisted in raising the 18th Maine Infantry, a regiment famous for its active fighting strength, afterwards re-organized as the First Maine Heavy Artillery, in which he served as Major at the defence of Washington until 1863, when he resigned to enter the field in more active service, having been appointed Assistant Adjutant General upon the staff of Major-General Hiram G. Berry.

Major Hamlin remained with this division until February, 1864, when it was consolidated with the second corps and participated in the Battle of Gettysburg and the subsequent campaigns including Kelley's Ford, Locust Grove, and other engagements. For his service in the field of Gettysburg, he received the official thanks of Major-General Humphrey, commanding the division. In February, 1864, he
Mr. Woodruff graduated from Bowdoin College in 1906, and later from the Harvard Law School. Since he was admitted to the bar, he has had a successful career in Lynn, Mass.

'06.—Cards have been received announcing the wedding of Mr. Edward Russell Hale and Miss Ethel May Mitchell on the evening of Thursday, the 25th day of May, at Kittery Point, Maine. Mr. Hale is a graduate of the Harvard Law School, now practicing law at Haverhill.

'07.—Ensign Otis, nominated by Gov. Plaisted for coroner in Knox County, will be the youngest man in the state holding that office when his commission is issued.

'07.—John W. Leydon, instructor in French and German in Worcester Academy since his graduation, has been appointed by the Carnegie Foundation as exchange teacher to Prussia. After the registration season at Worcester Academy, he will leave for Germany in late August.

'08.—William R. Crowley is representing Longmans, Green and Company in the Long Island Territory.

'08.—The engagement of Miss Marian Lowell of Lewiston, to Nathan C. Weston, is announced.

IVY DAY

With the approach of the end of another college year, the members of the Class of 1912 commemorate their last week as Juniors by the ceremonies of Ivy Day, which mark for them the completion of three pleasant years at old Bowdoin.

The annual Ivy Day baseball game was played with Bates this morning, and while Bowdoin's victory over Bates last Tuesday assured her the State championship, interest in the game was nevertheless as intense as if the championship were still in doubt. This afternoon the customary literary exercises were held in Memorial Hall. These consisted of the oration, the poem, and presentations. The planting of the Ivy by the walls of Hubbard Hall followed the exercises. Shortly after came Seniors' last chapel, conducted by President Hyde. The Ivy Hop this evening marks the close of the exercises of the day.

Frank Arthur Smith of Calais, the president of the class, presided at the exercises in Memorial Hall and made the presentations. The class was led in marching by Edward Oliver Leigh of Seattle, Washington; while at the beginning of the exercises, prayer was offered by the chaplain, Kenneth Churchill of Newtonville, Mass. The oration was delivered by Charles Francis Adams of Auburn, and the poem by Eugene Francis Bradford of Bangor. The committee in charge of the exercises for the day consists of George Fabyan Cressey, of Portland, chairman; George Clark Brooks of Reading, Mass.; Raymond White Hathaway of Providence, R. I.; Arthur Deethan Welch of Portland; and George Frank Wilson of Albion.

IBSEN

The prose dramas of Henrik Ibsen from the time of their presentation have been the subject of controversy: a controversy as to whether Ibsen marks the birth of a new drama, drama that is modern and vigorous and true to life, or whether Ibsen marks the final steps in the decadence of the art of playwriting.

This controversy has not been free from bitterness. Ibsen is at the head of that school of playwrights, so-called realists, men who explore the nookiest regions of society and who on gaining access to light and air, paint, for the playgoing public, the things that they saw there. The controversy continues because few can read Ibsen without being moved either by admiration or deep disgust. The most vigorous of those who censure Ibsen is the venerable William Winter. Mr. Winter's denunciation of Ibsenism is so marvelously sketching as to induce us to break the bounds of respectful silence and laugh at his words. Ibsen has never lacked defenders and expositors, some of whom are at one with Winter in going to extremes.

If we are not Ibsenites, and, as William Winter said, are one of a long file marching lockstep behind the great Norwegian, we shall hold that the dramas of the master tend to uplift mankind; that they lay bare to the bone the weaknesses of men; that they revolt against the conventional ethics of our "shallow, callous, and material civilization;" and that they set up a new moral system; that they are realistic; and that they tell the truth. Those of us who are not Ibsenites will hold that the characters of Ibsen are sick, melancholia, unnatural; that the plays are morbid, and their influence unhealthy.

It may not be out of place to recall here the story of one of his more interesting dramas, that entitled "Ghosts." Two of the characters in this play are Mrs. Aveling, whose husband is dead, and her son Oswald, an artist, who has just returned home after an absence of two years. In memory of her late husband, who it is made evident, was in life an extremely dissipated man, though he contrived to conceal the fact from the eyes of the world, in memory of her husband she determines to build an orphanage. Among her counsellors in this project is a minister of the gospel, Pastor Manders, who is bound by tradition, possesses little or no common sense, and who is quite incapable of personal sympathy, though sincere in his beliefs. Just before the dedication of the orphanage, Mrs. Aveling is talking the matter over with Manders when they discover Oswald drinking wine and making love to his mother's maid-servant, an illicit daughter of a carpenter who is building the orphanage. When Mrs. Aveling believes that she has intimations that Oswald is following in the footsteps of her husband, she whispers to Manders in a horror-stricken tone, "Ghosts," and the curtain falls on the first act. In the rest of the play the orphanage burns down and is held to be symbolic of the ruined life of Mr. Aveling. Oswald and the servant Regina cease their love-making with little inconvenience and Oswald is left alone with his mother, whereupon he discloses to her that he is afflicted with a gradual mental breakdown, destined finally to become complete dementia. It is, he explains, a disease inherited from his father. He asks his mother, who is now beside herself with anguish, to give him morphine.
when he reaches the final stage of his mania. Mrs. Aveling rushes with wild hysteria about the room and as the curtain drops on the last act, stands before Oswald, her hands twisted in her hair, speechless with terror, while the latter sits motionless before her saying, "the sun, the sun."

Now from the portrayal of such scenes of horror, there may come some benificent influence. But it is by such scenes that the opposition of certain healthy-minded persons has been aroused. I do not think it is unfair to say that the tone and temper of "Ghosts" is characteristic of Ibsen's sociological dramas. In all of them criples abound, afflicted with discases spinal, mental, and moral. There are beings who are selfish to the last degree. Nearly all of the characters act in a manner both inmattoral and silly; persons of disordered wills who neither talk nor act sanely.

A Mr. Huneker, who holds the position of dramatic critic on the New York Sun and who has been called the leading expositor of the present dramatic school, has this to say on the charge of morbidity in Ibsen: "Touching on this accusation of morbidity and sickness, may there not be gleaned from Shakespeare and Goethe many half-made and brain-sick men and women?" This is quite true. Mr. Huneker is not wrong. But it is equally certain that in almost every "Shakesperian drama, there can be found some beautiful character, a Portia, a Desdemona, to set off those characters who are intensely evil. In Macbeth, it is true, not many individuals can be found who are to be admired for beauty of character. But wherein all the plays of Ibsen can there be found a Portia or a Cordelia. Is not the contrast necessary in drama or in any work of art. It is very easy to see that vice is made terrible. It is easy to admit that the plays of Ibsen move us deeply. But is it not a cheap device to fill the stage with unmitigated gloom and horror. The thrills we gain are childish. Shocks and horrors are easily contrived, hence the abundance of bowie knives, revolvers, and circular saws in modern melodrama. But the excellence of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde as played by Mansfield, lay quite as much in the actor's interpretation of the sad and gentle doctor as in the impersonation of the fiend, Edward Hyde. With the Ibsenites a strong play seems to be Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde with Dr. Jekyll left out.

The before-mentioned Mr. Huneker in an article on the drama Ghosts admits in a curious way the gloom of Ibsen. Speaking of that last conversation between Mrs. Aveling and her son Oswald, not yet entirely mad, he says: "I know of few more touching scenes than the conversation between mother and son and the horrible confession which follows. It is like a blast from a charnel-house." And in a similar article on the play Hedda Gabler: "As in a dream (he writes) we divine the past of the humans he sets strutting before us and we leave the theatre as if obsessed by an ugly nightmare."

The final reinder of the apostles of gloom is simply: It's all true, isn't it? We believe in painting things as we see them. Ghosts is realistic. It is real life. Ibsen, we are informed, holds truth to be more essential than beauty, assuming that that is not a confusion of terms. Mr. Winter quotes Ibsen as saying substantially: "I go down into the sewers, I explore, I bring forth the things that I find there and hold them up for inspection." Mr. Ibsen apparently saw through a glass darkly, and while we can well doubt whether his eyes were not dimmed and his vision obscured by an innate cynicism, it is pertinent to inquire, again to quote Winter, whether the product of an exploration of the sewers is fit for the stage. That cannot be fairly called the truth which is but a half truth. Mr. Ibsen may have reasons for not exposing the noble side of human nature, but he has no reason for assuming that the picture of baseless that he presents is a true reproduction of human nature. There is more of good than of bad in the world. It is as wrong to picture the world as all bad as all good. Sensible persons have no desire for either extreme. We are frank to admit that the characters of Shakespeare may often strut in doublets and hose as one Ibsenite puts it, and that they often talk more like gods than men, but in their passions, emotions, and in their actions, they are as true to human nature as is possible. Ibsen is not the first realist; men have preceded him who may fairly lay claim to having portrayed life more truly than has the Norwegian.

I have spoken of certain of Ibsen's works as sociological dramas. I referred to his later plays, Hedda Gabler, Ghosts, Little Eyolf, A Doll's House. These are so-called because they are supposed to deal with the problems of society. The problem of a play would naturally be the meaning of the play as a whole. Ibsen has seen the evil in human nature; and now writes plays to question mankind concerning it. In the illustration of his meaning, he has used what are known as symbols. The symbol is an object in the play; it may be an omenage, a wild duck, or a horse pistol. When, after the play has proceeded to some length, we take the symbol and apply it as a touchstone to the whole play, the meaning of everything is supposed to become perfectly lucid. It is this use of symbol that has caused the charge against Ibsen of obscenity of meaning. Indeed, a small volume has been written by the Professor of English in Smith College to explain the very symbols. Edmund Gosse, a friend of Ibsen's, said: "Ibsen's exact meaning in the detail of these symbolical plays will long be discussed," though he added that they repay the closest study. But after all, if in its presentation to an audience, the whole point of the play is lost in mystery, if the mean side of life is deprived for the reason for it being apparent until we read a treatise on the subject, the ennoblement resulting from the play is quite as problematical as its meaning.

It is, therefore, not surprising that Ibsen's meaning is often misconstrued. It is often laughable because some find meanings and problems in Ibsen's plays that he had no intention of inserting. In A Doll's House, the heroine is a woman who has been brought up like a doll. Indeed she has never had an original thought of importance. It is altogether accurate to say that her husband treats her more as he would a canary bird or pet squirrel than a human being at par intellectual with himself. After eight years of married life she awakens to the fact and leaves the house at midnight. The reverberation of the door downstairs as she departs, intensely tragic to some, strikes the chord of approval in the hearts of those interested in women's rights. Says Mr. Huneke, a bit apologetically, "The play seems a trifle outmoded today—not because its main problem will ever grow stale but because of the many and conflicting meanings read into it by the apostles of feminine supremacy. Ibsen declared in one of his few public speeches that he had no intention of representing the conventional emancipated woman."

So much for the problems of Ibsen. It is questionable whether the stage is suited to setting forth of problems, especially when the value of the play depends on the discernment by the audience of what the problem really is. The stage is to picture life, it is to set life before our vision that we may see it. What is pictured and the way it is done depends on the skill of the dramatist. But first of all the audience gathers in what it sees and what it hears. We can easily suppose it beyond the power of the audience and beyond its inclination to determine by symbols the ulterior meaning of the play which is hidden in mysticism. And the audience is not to be blamed if it prefer simple words and actions to watching an actress sit in the middle of the stage, and think hard in an effort to analyze her sub-conscious self. Nor do social problems seem to lend themselves to writing of noble drama. Is not the stage for art? Is not art, beauty? To dwell on social problems is not to make one happier or better. For anyone continually to dissect the pathological side of human beings must tend to make him melancholic.

The melancholic and the morbid is not the tragic. Shakespeare wrote his tragedies and they are intensely sad. They are never sick. Tragedy may be healthy, it may be strong, it may be virile. But the normal healthy human mind does not dwell upon and has not patience with what Mr. Huneke calls the "exteriorization of emotional states." The melancholic man, he who dwells upon his sins is driven from our company. This man has the "blues." We avoid him. The most life-giving philosophy is to recognize one's sins and then to walk away with firm step and resolve not to sin any more. Why repent ninety-nine times for the same identical sin? Why set two hapless puppets upon the stage, man and wife, in "Little Eyolf" and for a whole act have the air fogged with bitter recriminations, self-analyses of sin, and accusations of faithlessness first by Punch and then by Judy. Pity such disordered minds for not having a spiritual fount from which to draw strength, but let us bar them from becoming a public spectacle. The public was sated with such scenes as the details of the infamous Thaw trial.

Ibsen has accomplished nothing new. He has pictured the race as naught but "gas and gaiters," but he is not original in that ignoble thought. Dean Swift has done it before him. Hamlet expressed in a sentence the substance of the same philosophy. Whatever may be the truth in point of mind, it is degrading. The human race never has and never will thrive on a philosophy that teaches them they are but vainties.

Ivy Ode

Words by James Bailey Allen

Air: Fair Harvard

"With joy and with sorrow permingled, we meet
At last on this long look-into day,
Yet e'en tho our sadness is not without cause
Let it not o'er our spirits gain sway;
For altho now three years have so pleasantly passed
And but one more looms now into view,
Yet with fond recollection throughout our whole lives
We shall cherish their memories true.

"To our dear Alma Mater, we tenderly plant
By these walls green ivy so fair
As a token of love and affection so firm
Which to Bowdoin, Our Mother, we bear,
As its rootlets spread deep and tenaciously cling Pressing deeper each year,
Even so may our love for Old Bowdoin grow firm
And ne'er become withered and sere."

The 1912 Bugle

The 1912 Bugle comes out to-day on time and is well up to the standard of other volumes. As is customary, it has been dedicated to a prominent graduate of the college, this year to Edward Stanwood, Litt.D., the editor of the Youth’s Companion and a loyal worker for Bowdoin. The cover of the book is distinctive and unusual, being done in white with black decorations. The design is a simple one with the seal of the Bowdoin family as its center. Another new feature is the photogravure frontispiece of the Art Building. Throughout the book the press work is well done, the drawings being well defined.

In subject matter this issue is, of course, of much the same make-up as previous Bugles. There are the usual pages of statistics of Faculty, Class, Fraternity, Society, Clubs, and Athletics, with the grinds at the end. The drawings illustrating these departments are unusually good and compare favorably with the high mark set last year. The issue is also unusually well supplied with snap shots which help to make it interesting.

All in all, it is a Bugle which is among the best. Every man in college should have one to serve as a remembrance of a happy year.

The Ivy Hop

The patronesses for the Ivy Hop this evening are Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. George T. Little, Mrs. Charles C. Hutchins, Mrs. George T. Files, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, Mrs. Wilmot B. Mitchell, Mrs. Frank E. owing to the condition of the atmosphere. He struck out 16 men and held his opponents safe in pinches. Wilson had a hard job cut out for him, stopping the speedy shots of Bowdoin's twirler; but he was more than equal to the occasion, for no passed balls were recorded against him, and he allowed no stolen bases.

Maine's runs came in the sixth with no outs on a combination of hits and errors. Means steadied down after these tallies, however, and fanned the next three men. Weatherill and Smith were the big hitters for Bowdoin, while Scales of Maine got three of Maine's five binges. Grant distinguished himself by another sensational catch in right and drove in a run in the eighth with a nice drive to centre. The support given Means was good, and all in all, the team played the best game of the series thus far.

BOWDOIN, 3; TUFTS, 4—MAY 27

In a well-played game, before a large crowd, Tufts defeated Bowdoin on the Forest Avenue Grounds, Portland, last Saturday, by a score of 4 to 3. Martin of Tufts gave a fine exhibition of pitching, striking out 12 men and holding his opponents safe in pinches. Uraghart, after the first inning, pitched a steady game and had it not been for errors behind him, would have won it. The game came near being tied in the ninth when Lawlis drew a pass and Grant reached first on Kelly's error. Daniels reached first on a fielder's choice on which play Lawlis was tagged out between third and home. Purinton batted for Tilton and fanned. Uraghart, next man up, knocked a slow grounder to Kelly who fumbled it badly and Grant and Daniels scored. Weatherill walked and with one run needed to tie the score and two men on bases, Frank Smith was struck out by the Medford twirler. Grant played a star game in right making four puts-outs and keeping Tufts from a score in the eighth by a pretty throw to the plate.

By shutting out Bates on Garcelon Field, Memorial Day, the Bowdoin team won the undisputed title to the Maine State Championship for the season of 1911. Whether Lawlis' champs came out of the series with a perfect percentage was decided this morning on Whittier Field. At the first of the season, after the unpromising spring trip, few supporters of the White credited their team with more than a fighting chance for the pennant. But under Coach Norton's careful training, to whom much of the credit for the team's showing is due, and hard work of the whole baseball squad, a team was evolved which demonstrated its undoubted superiority over the other Maine State aggregations.

Ex-Capt. "Bill" Clifford at first, Capt. Bob Lawlis at third, and "Pewt" Purington in centre, played their last game in a Bowdoin uniform this morning and, although there are some first-class reserves on the squad, the loss of these men, especially in hitting, will be felt keenly next year.

Means and Wilson make up the best battery Bowdoin has had in years and in the outfield Grant, Smith, Tilton, and Purington are able to rob the opposing batters of more than one hit. Daniels and Weatherill have done excellent work around the keystone sack.

The season has been a great success from all points of view. In the managing end E. Leigh has carried through a long, varied schedule with great credit to the college and himself.

It is to be hoped that "Jack" Norton can be secured as baseball mentor for next year's team. Under him with material now available the champs should repeat the trick next year.

BOWDOIN WINS STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

BOWDOIN, 4; BATES, 0 — MAY 30

The White took the fifth straight game in the State series on Memorial Day by shutting out Bates with no hits in an errorless game. It was a beautiful game to watch; fine day, fine crowd and both teams playing fast ball. Bates only made one fielding error but to win was out of the question with Means pitching such ball. Not even a scratch hit was made on him and he fanned 10 men. It was by far the best exhibition of twirling in the State games this year. Aside from his work in the box, Means entered the batting column in the seventh with a long drive which would have been a home run if the big pitcher had not slipped and fallen on third. As it was it brought in Tilton, and he scored later on Weatherill's double to left. Bowdoin's first run came in the first inning, when Smith reached first on an error, stole second and scored on Wilson's Texas-leaguer over second. In the eighth, Wilson passed, stole second, was advanced to third by Clifford's sacrifice and scored on Lawlis' hit. Wilson caught a good game, and got two nice hits. Daniels at second accepted six chances without an error and got a nice hit. Tilton in centre got two clean drives also and gobbled three flies in nice fashion. The record of Means is the best made by Maine twirlers since the days of Jack Coombs, now with the big leagues. The kind of ball the team played last Tuesday is unbeatable on most any college diamond.
KAPPA SIGMA DANCE

Alpha Rho Chapter of Kappa Sigma enjoyed their annual dance in Pythian Hall, Wednesday evening, May 31. Preliminary to the dance the fraternity with their guests dined at the Hotel Eagle, and from there went to the hall. The ball room was tastefully decorated with palms, ferns, college and fraternity banners and pillows, with a large crescent and star, the emblem of the fraternity, in electric lights as a feature.

The patronesses were: Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham of Brunswick, Mrs. Frank M. Stetson of Brunswick, Mrs. Alexander N. Snow of Belfast, and Mrs. Charles P. Greenleaf of Portland. Music was furnished by the college orchestra and an order of twenty-four dances was enjoyed. At intermission fruit salads, and ices were served. The favors were little billikens with the letters of the fraternity engraved on them.

The delegates from the other fraternities were: Alpha Delta Phi, Chester E. Kellogg, ’11; Delta Kappa Epsilon, William C. Allen, ’11; Theta Delta Chi, Harold P. Marston, ’11; Delta Upsilon, Lawrence McFarland, ’11; Beta Theta Pi, George C. Kern, ’12; Alpha Kappa Kappa, Alfred W. Johnson; Phi Chi, Hudson R. Miller.

Among the guests were noticed: Miss Rena M. Greenwood of Medford, Massachusetts; Miss Florence Carll of Waterville, Miss Harriet Estes, Miss Anna Snow, Miss Katherine McMahon, Miss Lucy Stetson, Miss Alice McKinley of Brunswick; Miss Florence Warren of Gorham; Miss Gertrude Callahan of Lewiston; Miss Winona Norcross of Augusta; Miss Lida West of Mechanic Falls; Miss Frances Pollard of Oldtown, Miss Sara Palmer of Bangor, Miss Kathleen Duffey of Gardiner, and Miss Audrey Duffey of Medford.

The committee in charge was composed of: Edward W. Skelton, ’11, Carlton Greenwood, ’13, and Walter J. Greenleaf, ’12.

ALPHA DELTA PHI RECEPTION

The Annual Reception of the Bowdoin Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi was held Thursday at the chapter house. In the receiving line were Miss Helen Chapman, Mrs. Charles C. Hutchins, Mrs. Gardner Cram, Mrs. H. G. Parkman of Portland, and Mrs. J. Curtis Swain of Jamaica Plain, Mass. Tea, coffee, and punch were served by Mrs. C. W. Tuttle, Mrs. Alice Little, Mrs. Edgar Kaharl, and Mrs. Frank P. Weatherill of Brunswick, Mrs. J. D. Clifford of Lewiston, Mrs. Mark Sewall of Bath, and Mrs. Frederick H. White of Bangor, assisted by Mrs. Thomas H. Riley, Jr., Mrs. John W. Riley, Miss Sue Winchell, Miss Edith Weatherill, Miss
ZETA PSI HOUSE PARTY

The Zeta Psi Fraternity held its annual house party on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. At the reception and dance on Wednesday, the patronesses were Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Charles C. Hutchins, Mrs. Hartley C. Baxter, Mrs. Frederick W. Brown, Mrs. Paul Nixon of Brunswick, and Mrs. Alfred S. Black of Rockland. The chaperones were Mrs. George W. Smith of Rockland, and Mrs. W. H. Davis of Brunswick. An order of twenty-four dances was enjoyed, for which music was furnished by Kendrie's Orchestra. On Thursday the guests were entertained at dinner at the Gurnet.

Among the guests present were the Misses Ione Laclee, Doris Powers, and Martha O'Brien of Portland; Misses Hazel Perry, Helen Cooper, and Elizabeth Fuller of Rockland; Misses Margaret Day, Alfreida Graves, Helen Merriman, Gertrude Sudder, Anne Johnson, Leona Thompson, Gladys Umberhird, and Emily Felt of Brunswick; Miss Marian Greene of Madison; Miss Marian Crowell of Richmond Hill, N. Y.; Miss Grace Sweet of Providence, N. Y.; Miss Mildred Lamb of Sangerville; and Miss Margaret Ke Paige of Damariscotta.

The delegations from the other fraternities were William H. Clifford, '11, Alpha Delta Phi; Fred R. Lord, '11, Psi Upsilon; Robert M. Lawlis, '11; Delta Kappa Epsilon; Arthur D. Welch, '12, Theta Delta Chi; Harrison M. Berry, '11, Delta Upsilon; John L. Curtis, '11, Beta Theta Pi; Leon S. Lippincott, '13, Alpha Kappa Kappa; and Walter W. Hendee, '13, Phi Chi.

The committee in charge of the house party: Fred C. Black, '11, of Rockland; Stetson H. Hussey, '11, of Blaine; Reginald E. Foss, '12, of Skowhegan; Paul C. Lunt, '13, of Portland; and Richard E. Simpson, '14, of Portland.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

Each of the divisions of the interfraternity league has finished its schedule. Beta Theta Pi leads Division A, and Delta Upsilon leads Division B, each having an unsmirched record of four victories. These two wins will now battle for the final championship and cup.

In the last game of the first division the Betas trimmed the Theta Delts. The Deke-A. K. K. game has been forfeited to the former team. The Phi Chi-Non-Fraternity game, which was postponed indefinitely, is not included in the accompanying final standing.

FRESHMAN BANQUET SPEAKERS

The Freshman banquet committee has named the toast-master and men to have responses at the banquet. C. A. Brown will be toast-master, and the men who will respond with toasts are Weatherill, Alling, Buell, Payson, Chase, Heywood, Newcomb, Fox, and Schwey.

RESULTS OF M. I. L. T. A. TOURNAMENT

In the finals of the intercollegiate tennis match held Saturday, F. C. Black, '11, won the championship of the singles, and H. A. Woodman and C. R. Clason of Bates, won the doubles championship. In both cases the winners were competing against representatives of their own colleges. The matches in detail were:

F. C. Black of Bowdoin defeated W. A. MacCormick of Bowdoin, 6-1, 8-6, 6-8, 6-4.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911. Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students. The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth-year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to

ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.
Brunswick Maine, 1910.
The business man who merely makes money for himself and his associates within the letter of the law, skimming industrial enterprises, manipulating securities, paying excessive salaries, granting favorable contracts, misusing inside information so as to rob the public of reasonable service, the employee of decent wages, the stockholders of fair profit; is now well understood to be the thief and public plunderer he is. To be an honorable and honored business man, one must rise to the larger righteousness, which serves the public economically and efficiently, treats employees justly and generously, and deals with investors and creditors openly and fairly.

In politics we are just beginning to understand that the man who votes for or against a tariff; for or against a reciprocity treaty; for or against workmen's compensation; for or against a public utilities commission, according as it affects his business, or his profits, or his class, or his locality, and not according to what he believes to be best for the country and the public as a whole—and there are thousands of such business, professional and public men among us—that man does all that is possible for a man to do in these times of prosperity and peace to put himself in the class with Benedict Arnold as a man who puts his individual interests above the interests of the public; or who is, in plain words, a traitor.

Good and evil were doubtless mixed in Tom Johnson much as they are in us all. But when he spoke and voted as Congressman and as Mayor to reduce the tariffs, franchises and fares by which he had made his millions, in order that neither he nor others like him might have further opportunity to plunder the public and filch unearned pennies from the pockets of the poor; he gave us a fine example of what the larger righteousness demands of men in public life.

Monday, June 19

Each train brought back a number of alumni and by evening the campus had assumed the true commencement week appearance.

Alexander Prize Speaking

Monday evening nine men chosen by elimination trials, competed in Memorial Hall for the Alexander Prizes of twenty and ten dollars for excellence in public speaking.

The judges were Alpheus Sanford, Esq., '76, of Boston; Rev. Malcolm Dana of Hallowell; and Principal Harlan M. Bisbee, '98, of Exeter, N. H. First prize was awarded to Arthur Deehan Welch, '12; second prize to Robert Devore Leigh, '14. The program is given elsewhere.

Tuesday, June 20
Class Day

Tuesday was given over completely to the graduating class. The exercises were held in Memorial Hall in the morning and in the afternoon under the Thorndike Oak.

The Class President, E. Baldwin Smith, presided over the exercises; Robert M. Lawlis acted as marshal; and the committee in charge consisted of Stanley W. Pierce, Harrison M. Berry, George H. Macomber, Stetson H. Hussey, and John J. Devine. At the exercises in the morning, prayer was offered by the class chaplain, Willard H. Curtis. The oration was given by Joseph C. White, and the poem by Carl B. Hawes. Music was furnished by Chandler's Orchestra of Portland.

The oration in shortened form and the poem are given below:

The Oration
THE VALUE OF A COLLEGE EDUCATION

Another Commencement Week has come and another class stands ready to graduate from Bowdoin. A smiling world, an indulgently smiling world, offers a test for the value of devoting to a college education these four of a man's best years. The value of a college education is a question that is often before us. The high school boy has to decide whether he shall spend four years and considerable money on something that does not seem to be directly connected with his future life or whether he shall go directly to work or to some specialized technical school, where he can earn a living or gain knowledge which he can apply directly to earning a living. The same question affects all who are connected with the care or education of youth, and hence is a broadly interesting subject of discussion.

No man could hope to give an answer applicable to all cases but this seems to be a peculiarly fitting time and place to consider some of the advantages of a college course.

In order to understand the fundamental character of these advantages and the value of devoting four years to activity which has so little direct connection with life, let us look at some cases wherein men have failed, and let us see in what way a college education would have bettered their condition.

Miss Jane Addams, a social worker of Chicago, in her book on "Democracy and Social Ethics" cites the case of an alderman in one of the lower wards of Chicago. He worked upon the ignorance of the foreigners who were not citizens and gave them an absolutely incorrect idea of the aims of American democracy. In their lack of experience, they judged the government by the few manifestations which they saw. This alderman was a miniature Tweed, Croker, or Barnes. They, too, owned their constituents, but since their activities covered a great city and state, their work of autocratic ruling was more difficult. The voters who supported them were not all ignorant foreigners, and consequently they had to take advantage of other deficiencies which college remedies. One of these deficiencies is inability to think in large terms, to deal with large concepts. Many men who have had experience are still unable to think of things as wholes. This inability to think in large terms is well illustrated in men's voting. Constantly we hear the complaint that a man always votes a straight party ticket or that he is a muggump. But neither of these lines of conduct is wrong. The man who supports the candidates of one party or the man who supports those candidates whom he thinks best, irrespective of party, has the sanction of great example; he is following in the footsteps of men whom history has judged great. But how can these two opposite modes of procedure be both good? If a man votes a straight party ticket because he believes that he is serving best his country, he is doing well, or if a man is an independent voter because he believes that as such he can best serve his country, he also is doing well. But the man who supports one party because he wants that party to win or to attain his own ends is doing ill and the man who is independent because it is easier than assuming the responsibility of shaping party policy is also doing ill. The selfish political boss, the corrupt voter, and the man who chooses his candidates independently rather than take the trouble of entering into the work of party nominations are all making political mistakes. Often these mistakes are due to an inability to deal with large concepts. The State, the Nation, Society, mean little to men whose minds have not been trained to think in such terms. We cannot censure such men, but we can demonstrate the relationship between their small particular activities and the great universal ends for which they were designed. But some men of great experience, able to deal with gigantic concepts, are still social failures and not in harmony with their fellow-men. The leaders in the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company have had such experience as comes to but few men, and think in terms immeasurably greater than those of the average citizen. Substances which we buy by the gallon or ounce, they handle by the reservoir or ton, but the adverse decisions of the Supreme Court show that there is something wrong. They do not use their great experience and minds for the best interests of society.

Now we have considered three cases wherein men have failed in their relationships to their fellow-men; wherein their social activities have been marked with friction. First was the case of the crassly ignorant foreigners who have so completely lacked experience that they were hoodwinked and college trained as political tricksters. Next was the case of the blindly voting man who was unable to see his political acts and their true relationship to great ends. Finally we had the case of men, who, although they had great experience and were able to see particulars in the light of great ends, were unable to choose the best ends. All these failures are due to a single fault, the lack of breadth of mind. It is to overcome this fault that college training is designed. A college trains a man to meet his fellow-man at every point and does away with the friction incident to poorly rounded characters or misapplied activity.

But how can a college that takes a man for four years away from the world train him for life in the world? How can a man at college gain the experience we have found so necessary?

The answer to this last question depends upon the definition of the word "experience." We may experience a thing indirectly or vicariously as well as directly. For instance, if a man wishes to become an architect he goes where he may learn from the experience of others or from carefully planned experiments, those facts which it is necessary for an architect to know. So it is with all men. We are bound to live in a social environment, but to live harmoniously with men we must know them. As in the case of the architect, this necessary knowledge might be gained by direct experience and desultory reading, but how little a man could learn in this way!

College, through its curriculum and its numerous activities, furnishes a man with much of the experience necessary for success. But we have seen that a man also needs the ability to fit his small particular acts into the great purpose of his life. College training in the subject alone for an A.B. degree, the student is constantly dealing with large, complex concepts. Above all, college endeavors to show men the goal of life. It shows what activities are worth while and what activities are not. The great trust magnates were not in harmony with the aims of society. They took a narrow, selfish, rather than a broad, social, aim. College courses are designed to give the student the broadest possible outlook. Possibly these strongest ethical teachings come not from college courses, but from college traditions. As has been well said, "moral ideas must be dramatized before they reach the mass of men." The biographies of the saints have been the main guide to the stumbling feet of thousands to whom the Credo has been but mysterious words. It is the lives of great men that remind us rather than the abstract ethical teachings.

A man is inspired to raise himself to a higher level when he is surrounded for four years with notable traditions and the memories of men who have made their lives sublime.

Bowdoin is peculiarly fortunate in her traditions. Her history, running back for more than a century, has always been shaped by the highest ideals and adorned with the names of great sons. This hall stands as a Memorial to her great service in the Civil War, the memories of such men as Reed, Fuller, Howard, Hawthorne, Longfellow, live and shall always live in the hearts of her sons and a company of graduates is now filling the place in our country's history left vacant by these older men. Surrounded by such teachers and such examples, no man could live for four years at Bowdoin without having his ideals raised and broadened.

And so we have the completed man. The college man has, by means of his studies and undergraduate activity, been through many and varied experiences; he has been accustomed to think in terms commensurate with the problems of this great country; and finally he has been given, in the ethical teachings and traditions of his college, compass and charts, by means of which he can keep true his course of life. That a college education will assure the success of a man is proved untrue by numerous examples and that a college education is absolutely necessary is also untrue, but college does offer the inestimably great opportunities that we have considered, which, if seized by the young man, will become the greatest asset of his life.

The Poem

The new is ever peopled by the old,
By fantasy and vision of the past;
We who are here to-day are not alone:
The years long gone are hover'ring phantom-winged
About us still. Dim olden memories
And potent legends of an earlier day
Are ours. An hundred fleeting years have sped Since out from Bowdoin's halls they went who were Her earliest class. Their names and fortunes linked
With ours remain, for she whom we have hailed
The fost'ring mother of our youthful years
Watched them departing in the fading glow
Of eventide. Fair spirit of the pines,
The first has gone, the last shall never come!
Each class in turn is hers to guard and keep;
Each from her loving charge goes forth to hold
Its place against the warfare of the world.
She knows and loves them all. Grave men and sad,
Mere boys who laughed and died, she bade them go,
To welcome them again. Her fond eyes watched
Their every step; their honors all are hers.
The echoed names of Bowdoin's sons have rung
From arch to arch adown the vaulted halls
Of fame. The sea of time shall sound those names,
Swirling against the eddies that rise
To-morrow and to-morrow from the shore
Futurity, that looms beyond untied.
The singer and the teller of fair tales Went from her shrine. She watched and waited till

As the college year closes it may be well to look back over the course we have traced as a student body and recount our various achievements. Surely it has been a fruitful year.

Never have student activities been more keenly pursued, and never has the moral tone of the college been better. To those who complain that the college spirit is dying we would but point to the subscriptions made toward the new gymnasium by the student body. Does the amount subscribed indicate that Bowdoin undergraduates are showing lack of spirit and loyalty.

And are there those who feel that scholarship has lowered? We point to the four men who successfully passed the Rhodes scholarship examinations, a larger number than from the three other colleges in the state combined; and to the election of Mr. Kern as the next representative from Maine. Have our athletics been of an inferior grade? Does the state championship in football and the state championship in baseball won by six straight games, indicate any falling off in those departments?

True, the track team was the poorest ever put upon the field by the college, but with the graduation of such a host of stars as were enrolled in 1910, coupled with the lack of material left in college and the injuries suffered by nearly every old "B" man from Captain McFarland down, there is no cause for criticism save for the gameness displayed by those who competed.

In tennis we share the honors with Bates. Does the splendid growth of the Y. M. C. A. during the year indicate anything but good? Does the work of the dramatic and musical clubs deserve other than the heartiest commendation? Have those who have been our guests at our social functions been impressed by any laxness in that phase of college life?

Surely it has been a year of marked progress in every direction and to each and every man, from President Hyde down, who has had a part in this splendid development and in these splendid achievements, the Orient offers its congratulations.

Another commencement has come and gone at old Bowdoin. With it has come the visit of many of her faithful alumni, and with it another class of men has gone out to take up the duties of that life which lies beyond the campus. To the former we extend our heartiest welcome and to the latter, our sincerest congratulations and good wishes. To our other guests and friends the Orient also extends a hearty welcome in behalf of the college. To-day we have seen another Senior class pass from the midst of our student life. May the busy world feel the influence of their presence as our little college world has felt it. Always striving for the best interests of their Alma Mater the present class may surely feel that their influence upon college policies, college traditions, and college government will be missed. May the future hold all good things in store for them.

Next fall another Senior class will appear to take up the leadership in college life laid down by 1911. To these men the Orient extends a hand of greeting, for we feel that the calibre of the men of 1912 is such as to assure a continuation of the clean, sincere, harmonious relations that have existed throughout the college during the past year.

To Our Departing Professors

To each and every one of our faculty members who depart for new fields at the close of this year, the Orient extends the best of good wishes. May your experiences here have been such as to create a warm spot in your heart for our old Maine college and may the sun of prosperity shine upon you as you journey from us.

They came again. The heart of one who held The nation's helm was hers. When war's dim shroud Had shadowed all the land, and mothers mourned Their lost, Fair Bowdoin sorrowed for her slain. When rank by rank the weary files came back, She welcomed men who wore Fame's laurel wreath, The light turns gold and purple, dies away, And rises on a splendor far more great. A pinnacle of dreams, a fairyland That comes and goes. The living light shall shine Forever, nevermore to fade nor dim. For in the glory of the morrow shall The past transcended be. The retrospect Is hidden by the dawn—all hail the morn! To-day the fostering mother sits above Her winding paths, her towered walls, and white Still spires that reach and touch the arching blue. The brooding genius of the pines, she looks Upon the vision of the fleeting years. What hidden thoughts are hers we may not know. Her penetrating glance has pierced the haze Of time; her sibyl mind has marked the days To come. Age; old and ever young, she reigns The mistress of a many-honored shrine, Whereon repose fair gifts and fairer deeds Wrought from the life-blood of her sons. These walls, Inscribed with sacred names that fire the soul, Are hers. A monument more lasting still Of song and tale is hers. But greater far And dearer is that heritage of deeds Unsung, of honor, faith, and trust, bequeathed By them who toil against the face of odds, Whose labors knew no rest, but who uprose From failure and discouragement, who bore Their banners ever high, who marched and fought With honor to the end. Them too she watched, For they, too, were her sons.

And now she still Is sitting by the pines to mourn the lost, To welcome home her children from the world. She holds the many treasures of the past, Bequeathed her by her sons of then and now As does a mother, when her child is gone Hold mem'ries of an idle day, stray thoughts And pictures fair, wee garments, broken toys, The sweet, sad solace of the passing years. Now smiling with a gladness near to grief, She looks upon her youngest sons, who leave The shelter of her arm. Up then, unbar The gates! Fling forth soul-whole into the morn That bursts with golden streams of light from out The burning flood-gates of the East! We go!

The exercises in the afternoon under the Thorndike Oak consisted of the Opening Address by Lawrence McFarland; the History, by William H. Clifford; and the Closing Address by Arthur H. Cole.

The Opening Address

Mr. McFarland said in part:

To-day's exercises, friends, mark the end of the college career of the class of 1911. To-morrow we pass out into life to prove our worth. It is a time when feelings of sadness are mingled with those of joy.

The going out suggests a picture which hangs in a certain Massachusetts gallery. It is a homely New England scene but quite true to life. It is at dawn, as the golden light behind the hills on the horizon shows. In the distance lies a long road winding down through the misty valley to appear beyond on the hilltop. On this hilltop stands a young man with a packet hung over his shoulder. He has paused at the end of his climb up the hill and turns to take one more look at the old home which can be seen in the valley. It is a typical old Maine farm with a long well-sweep in the yard, a weather-beaten house from whose chimney a thin column of smoke is seen rising in the damp morning air. It is Springtime, too, as is shown by the fresh green leaves and the roses climbing over the doorway, and in the doorway there stands a mother, with her hand shading her eyes as she watches her boy disappear over the hilltop. And by her side there stands a little barefoot boy who clings to her skirts and rubs the tears from his eyes with his grimy hand.

Just so to-day our common mother, our Alma Mater, Old Bowdoin, is watching the departure of another class of sons who, after a four years' climb up the hill of college life, stand at the top with sunshine of opportunity breaking upon them. And just as the little brother is left behind, so we are leaving behind our younger brothers, the underclassmen.

But shall such sad thought displace all joy? By no means. For truly joy is ours—the joy which comes from an accomplished purpose, and with just the same spirit of joy with which that old mother will welcome her boy on his return home, so we the members of the class of 1911, welcome our guests to-day—you who have made possible the privileges we have enjoyed; you who have guided our steps while we have been here; and you who by your interest in us have spurred us on. To all of you we extend a hearty and joyous welcome.
Extract of Class History

Mr. Clifford said in part:

History repeats itself and class histories in particular must be to some extent repetitions of the preceding ones, even that of our illustrious class. It would be an easy task to thrust fame upon every member of this class but the necessity of an expurgated edition was quickly perceived. An effort has been made here to have our personal anecdotes both interesting and intelligible to our assembled guests.

Freshman year seems to have been the most eventful of the four, perhaps because of the large number in the class then, but more probably because a large majority were green and fresh in those days and prone to do the sort of thing for which freshmen are noted. The freshman class, being the largest in the history of the college, attracted much attention the first morning we marched into chapel. After the chapel rush this attention turned to deep respect.

In about a week we began to appear in large straw hats of various colors and shapes. The baseball series with the sophomores came along soon and we were defeated, but later managed to tie our heavy opponents of 1910 in the football game.

The most important events of the rest of this year were the numerous razzos on which we were taken by our friends of 1910. The year closed with a very successful banquet in the Lafayette in Portland.

Sophomore year we established a precedent by raising the freshman class without the use of the paddle. The task could not have been assigned to more competent hands. The year closed with our Sophomore banquet in Lewiston.

We came back junior year after a long vacation to take more active interest in the affairs of the college. The experience which everyone had undergone the first two years began to be of value. The year was full of instructions which must be left out because of lack of time. It was a busy year for everyone.

Senior year opened quietly indeed. This year furnishes little material for history. Most of the class have acted with a becoming dignity which concludes the frivolous story of our college life.

Let us be serious for a moment, for with all the relief we feel, on getting through there is an undertone of seriousness to all our gaiety. We entered college with about a hundred; we graduate with about seventy. Let us think on this Class Day of those former classmates who, for various reasons, are not here to take part in the exercises. All of them are thinking of this day and wishing, as we do, that they were with us.

What has 1911 done for Bowdoin? We do not boast, but say simply that we have tried to do our best. In athletics, altho we have not attained such remarkable success as 1910, our record is good. In scholarship and undergraduate activities we have done our share. We leave our alma Mater feeling that she is none the worse for our stay in her halls. There is better interfraternity feeling than when we entered, college politics are cleaner, and college morals higher now than then. Whatever we have done to bring this about, whatever services of ours have benefited Bowdoin, have been done gladly. We claim no credit for them; to have done less would have been to shirk our duty. We entrust the undergraduate life of the college to succeeding classes, knowing that they, too, will prove themselves worthy of the responsibility and that old Bowdoin will continue to prosper. And we hereby pledge that when the years have passed and we are doing our part in the world's work, when this season of the year comes round, our thoughts and our footsteps will often turn hither. And we vow that in the fullness of time:

"We'll send our sons to Bowdoin in the fall."

Parting Address

Mr. President, Classmates, and Friends of 1911:

In 627, a company of monks, with Paulinus at their head, pierced the wilderness in the north of England and reached the court of Edwin, King of Umbria. He was a little comely king, and listened with interest to the teachings of the holy men in the little company, who, as they spoke, created intense excitement among the people, for some favored and some reviled them. So the king called a great council to meet on the seashore where he would submit the question to all his subjects, "Shall we or shall we not embrace this new and strange religion?" On the day appointed the people gathered. The beach was crowded. Suddenly a hush rang over the throng for an elderman, old, hoary-bearded, and far-famed for his wisdom, rose and addressed the people in the strong and refined language of his race and time, "Life is like a sparrow's flight through a banquet hall; he enters at one door and flies across to disappear through the door on the opposite side. If these monks can tell us aught of whence he comes or whither he goes, let us follow them."

These keen words of the old heathen sage might well express the questionings of the modern man of the college life as it exists to-day. We come and go, class close-treading on the heels of class and the man to whom the college life is unknown, might well inquire, "You enter and pass out. You gather together and disperse, to be lost in the world. Why come you and what becomes of you when you have gone? What relation exists between the life you now lead and that which comes after?" The college is a peculiar institution but stands justly for a good deal in American life. Here we are placed for four years, removed, for the most part, from the turmoil and excitement of the world. To the casual observer it might seem we did little but roam about our spare time, engage in petty businesses and boisterous games, talk, and stare at books. Even to the more careful observer it might appear we did little but learn out of many volumes and grow healthy from many sports. But a deeper mission stimulates the college and keeps it alive, and a richer gain than facts and muscle comes to the college man. We go from college wealthier, more than wiser, for as one cannot stay in the bracing air of the mountains without acquiring that feeling of physical well being, so one cannot abide in the atmosphere of the college without gaining those ideals which live in him and inspire him with the emotion of moral health. Free from the contact of pressing circumstances, we can calmly consider the outside life and plot the true relation which we should bear to it when we break our sequestration, cast our eyes forward to the rough weather ahead and plan our course.

The university may yield a richer harvest of knowledge and quite naturally, for that is its province, but it cannot breathe on a man and fill him with those clear-cut ideals which the college freely offers and we notice not as we acquire. When one enters into the life of an institution like Bowdoin, he comes into close relationship with men a little older than himself, and, as we might expect, comes to emulate them, who in their course had mixed with men a little older than themselves for a year or so, had learned from and by them, and finally seen them leave. And so the chain extends. Gradually as a cycle of stories gathers around a noble character like King Arthur or Jeanne D'Arc, a set of ideals comes to cluster about a college, and each entering class catching the fiery cross from the hand of the departing, carries it onward till at length the spirit of the college becomes imbued with that set of ideals and no one can come within the borders of its influence without being uplifted and inspired. Such has been the glorious career of Bowdoin and as knights in their vigil before the morrow's conflict, we here have lingered before the shrine and breathed in its divine spirit.

Yet one may well ask what merit have these ideals when we are in the rough and practical life of the world. In answer, I would say, they are the standards by which we measure our motives and actions, the concept to which we may endeavor to make the "muddy particulars" attain. As the scientist from time to time must return to the standard of measures of length and capacity that he may keep his own measures as nearly exact as possible, so we must revert at times to those ideals, plotted when we were outside the complexities and entanglements of the world, that we may hold our lives as true to our best purposes as we can.

Class after class reaches its senior year and goes forth, and Bowdoin remains. But each class before it parts might well look back and question itself, "Have we added anything to Bowdoin's high ideals? If so, what?" We today are looking back on our course, and what do we find? Every class can boast of a virility in athletic pursuits and consciousness in scholastic endeavors, but we need not chronicle these. 1917 has lived out a higher ideal.

When she gathered together nearly four years ago, she was composed of individuals who stood apart from one another, but now she is one whole. And why? Because the class has lived out, each member by himself, that ideal, sincerity: which, being translated into men's relationships, means frankness and honesty, true considerateness. If the undergraduates can find little in our lives here to emulate, we beg of them to catch this spirit and hold it clear of taint.

Because of that open-mindedness which each man has preserved toward his fellow, never, I believe, has a class gone through with better feeling reigning between its members. At our Junior exercises we broke away from the system of combines and dirty politics and established an artificial method of nominations which we hoped would bring with some measure of surety the offices to the most deserving men. In the Senior elections, there was voiced some dissatisfaction with the scheme because it lacked provision for minority representation. Therefore the method was abandoned by a general compromise but the elections went through with no combines and no attempt at unfair methods. In the interfraternity organizations, Student Council, Athletic Council, Ibis, Deutscher Verein, and other clubs, absolute sincerity has been maintained as to the nomination and election of new members. Each man was brought up and considered on his own merits regardless of his fraternity affiliations. Such a spirit of fairness and honesty has facilitated the work of the year and made it one of the most delightful possible as far as the internal life of the college was concerned.

But today we not only should be looking behind us over the back trail but forward over the sands we have as yet untrodden. So it behooves us to gather this ideal firmly into our grasp and see what it means shall be our attitude when we go to try our strength on new paths, what relation does hold between the college life and the life beyond the door.

Since we have been thinking of the expression of sincerity in the politics of college, we naturally turn to its expression in the larger and more strenuous politics of the outer world. College men through their contemplations of the evils of the outside political life from their sequestered corner and the abilities they have acquired to analyze and pass judgment on the merits of the political questions, have a power within them for good in whatever community they find themselves placed. That power they should neither neglect nor when used, turn in the wrong direction. With their power to see the right they ought not to cover their eyes with one hand and loosen the other to mischief. President Roosevelt has said: "We never can afford to forget that the most important factor in the success of this country is the factor of individual citizenship. I do not care if you had the most perfect laws that could be devised by the wit of men or the wit of angels they would not amount to anything if the average man were not a pretty decent fellow.  Nothing can take the place of the individual factor, of the average man's quality of character, his industry, his energy, his decency, his determination to be * * a good citizen in his relations to the state." Only as each member of 1911, and, indeed, each Bowdoin man who has in his turn felt this spirit within him, keeps himself above the blind party allegiance and determined to vote for the right as he is given power to see the right, above dirty politics and bound to help to put the best man in the position he is contending for, above the mean coercion of the less fortunate voters and striving at all times to bring about the awakening of a powerful public conscience—only thus will he be living true to that ideal which Bowdoin has instilled in his heart. Only by using our powers for the best in our political relations, will we be translating into our lives to come that ideal, sincerity, which has stimulated and directed our lives while we have been undergraduates at Bowdoin.

As we have been reflecting upon the past and hoping for the future, the present hardly welcome, has almost faded from our view. Today we, as a class, formally break the ties which have bound us so closely to our Alma Mater; to-day we stand as the gladiators of Rome, ready and girt for the conflict to which we go, and to her who has fostered us and whom we can almost feel will watch us as we strive, it is most fitting that we give our parting salutation. We go but we shall not forget; and, as we go, we raise our faces to Bowdoin, veiled but not unknown, and hail her.—Ambituri Salutamus."

The class then seated themselves in a circle on the grass in front of Memorial Hall, smoked the Pipe of Peace, and sang the Farewell Ode, of which the words and music were written by Chester E. Kellogg.

Farewell Ode

Farewell, O Alma Mater,
Farewell to tower and hall,
Thy memory ever tender
We'll cherish one and all,
With fondest hopes we gathered
In answer to thy call,
Now all too soon we're scattered
To prosper or to fall.

Then let the smoke go curling
In token of our love,
And may the breeze come sighing
In sympathy above—
Wherever duty's calling
However far we rove
Thy memory ever-glowing
Our hearts to tears shall move.

After marching about the campus, cheering all the college buildings, ending with Bow-doin cheers in front of the chapel, the class shook hands all around, and each man said good-bye to every one of his classmates.

Commencement Hop

The festivities on Tuesday were brought to a close by the Commencement Hop. At nine o'clock began an order of twenty-four dances for which music was furnished by Chandler's Orchestra of Portland. The patronesses were Mrs. William DeW. Hyde, Mrs. George C.
Riggs, Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Charles C.
Hutchins, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, and Mrs.
William H. Davis.

THE NEW BUGLE BOARD

At a meeting of the Class of 1913 held June 7, the Bugle Board for next year's issue was chosen as follows: Charles E. Bull, Laurence A. Crosby, Albert P. Cushman, John E. Dunphy, Edward O. Baker, Leon E. Jones, D. Earl Gardner. Frederick T. Edwards was elected Art Editor.

At a later meeting, L. A. Crosby was elected editor-in-chief and A. P. Cushman business manager.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY

There will be four new members of the Faculty next year.

W. E. Lunt, Ph.D., Bowdoin, '04, comes from the University of Wisconsin to take the position of professor of history and political science in place of Prof. Charles H. McIlwain, who goes to Harvard.

Orren C. Hormell, A.B., a graduate of the University of Indiana and recently an instructor in history in Clark University, takes the place of Assistant Professor Duncafl in the department of history. Mr. Duncafl returns to the University of Texas as professor of history.

N. E. Loomis, S.B., M.S., Ph.D., Beloit, '08, is to assume the position of instructor in chemistry in the college and medical school and instructor in geology. Mr. Evans of the department of chemistry is to study at the University of Wisconsin.

E. G. Fifield, A.B., Bowdoin, 1911, takes up the work of Mr. McConaughy as instructor in English and secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. McConaughy has been given a year's leave of absence to study at the University of Columbia.

Mr. Stone leaves next year to continue his studies at Harvard. His courses will be taken by Mr. Alvord.

STUDENT ELECTION

At the spring elections held Tuesday, June 6, in Memorial Hall, the following officers were elected:

- President Athletic Association—John L. Hurley, '12.
- Vice-President Athletic Association—Frank A. Smith, '12.
- Cheer Leader—Seward J. Marsh, '12.
- Track Manager—Cedric R. Crowell, '13.
- Tennis Manager—George O. Cummings, '13.
- Fencing Manager—Sumner T. Pike, '13.
- 1912 Calendar—Manager—Harold C. L. Ashley, '12. (Elected by the Student Council.)
Asst. Tennis Manager—Postponed until fall.

The election was held in record time due to the fact that voting was done by a printed ballot system.

ATHLETIC CAPTAINS ELECTED

George Frank Wilson, 1912, has been elected captain of the baseball team for next year. "Squanto" has been one of the mainstays of the team for three years.

William Alexander MacCormick, 1912, has been elected captain of the tennis team. He played a steady game in the tournament this spring.

The election of John Lawrence Hurley, 1912, to the position of football captain and that of Robert Danforth Cole, 1912, to the position of track captain, has already been given notice.

THE IBIS

At the annual initiation of the Ibis, which was held at New Meadows Inn on June 3, the following men of the class of 1912 were admitted to membership: Charles F. Adams, Eugene F. Bradford, R. D. Cole, George F. Cressey, John L. Hurley and William A. MacCormick.

BOWDOIN KEEPS CLEAN SLATE

Bowdoin, 4; Bates, 3—Ivy Day, June 2

In a game full of sensational plays and surprises which took eleven innings to decide the winner, Bowdoin broke the Ivy game hoodoo and defeated Bates by the close score of 4 to 3.

Bates took an early lead by scoring two runs in the second on a combination of errors. Bowdoin followed them, however, with one run in the third when Weatherill hit safe, stole second and came in on a single by Squanto. In the fourth Bates scored another on fielder’s error. Until the seventh, things looked good for the Garnet, but in this lucky inning, Daniels lined out a three-bagger and with two out Means hit a safe one over short, scoring Daniels and was brought home by Weatherill’s single. Smith also hit safe, but Wilson lost the chance for a lead by striking out. The score was tied up tight from then until the eleventh when Grant got a hit. Daniels and Tilton both flied out and then Lee Means who already had tied the score earlier in the session, with two strikes on him, landed on one for a long two-bagger to left which brought in Grant and broke up the game.

Means pitched a good game and allowed only five scattered hits, only one of which counted in the scoring. With the bat the big pitcher was easily the star of the game. Lindquist was wild at times and, although he gave the left-handed batters some trouble, was hit rather freely. Mayo in centre field for Bates played a star game. Owing to a mistake in transmission of a telegram the umpire failed to appear and Bassett of Bates and O’Neil officiated and did very well. The usual large Ivy crowd was present.

George F. (Squanto) Wilson was unanimously elected captain of the baseball team for next year. Wilson has caught for Bowdoin for three years and is the logical man for the position. He probably knows more about inside baseball than any other college player in Maine. With him directing it, next year’s team should be a fast one.

ALUMNI DEPARTMENT

94.—Alfred V. Bliss, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Utica, N. Y., until May, 1908, has been travelling in Europe during the last two years for his health. Mr. Bliss is planning to resume his work again this fall.

94.—Charles A. Flagg, secretary of the Class of 1894, is at work in the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress at Washington, D. C.

94.—Francis A. Frost has been engaged in special work with several newspapers since his return from Paris in 1909. He has also been a frequent contributor to many magazines.

94.—H. L. Horsman has spent the past year at the New York Post Graduate School and Hospital, doing special work on the eye, ear, nose, and throat.

94.—Philip H. Moore is practicing medicine in Philadelphia, Penn. Dr. Moore is also an instructor in Ophthalmology in Jefferson Medical College, and the Ophthalmologist in charge of the Methodist Hospital of Philadelphia.

94.—Frederick J. Libby, pastor of the Congregational Church of agnolia, Mass., has resigned his pastorate, to take effect in October, when he plans to start on a year’s trip around the world.

94.—Albert J. Lord, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Meriden, Conn., has spent a great part of the year in Florida and the Mediterranean region since January, 1910, for his health.

Ex-94.—James L. Lombard has been pastor of the First Methodist Church at Scranton, Iowa, since May, 1911.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911. Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to ALFRED MITCHELL, M.D., Dean.

BRUNSWICK, MAINE, 1910.
OLD YET NEW

The college begins its 110th collegiate year with many attractions of great interest to Bowdoin men. In regard to registration, 326—twelve less than last year—have registered in the academic department. Of the 78 freshmen who have registered only 10 have signed in for the course granting a B.S. degree. Three of these men are entered for the special course introduced for those who wish to take one year in the academic department before entering the Medical School. The reason why so few men have entered the scientific course is probably because men in secondary schools had picked their college course before the new course offered at Bowdoin was adopted.

Of greatest future interest to Bowdoin undergraduates and alumni alike is the new gymnasium. During the summer the work has gone on smoothly and steadily. Many changes in the plans have been made but these changes are in no way radical. Several sets of plans have been submitted to the Gymnasium Committee, but the latest set will probably not be submitted before the end of this week. When definite plans have met with the approval of the Committee the next step will be to put the job up to some contractor. The R. D. Kimball Co. of Boston which had charge of the heating and ventilating of the new gymnasiums at the Springfield Training School and at Dartmouth, has presented plans for this branch of the work in the Bowdoin Gymnasium.

The feature of the whole building will be the Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building, the plans of which call for an athletic building surpassed by none in the colleges of New England. This Athletic Building will contain a regulation ball diamond, a section for track and field athletics, and a running track which measures twelve laps to the mile. The baseball section will be separated from the track section so that there will be no danger of conflict from the two sports.

BOWDOIN WINS FROM FORT MCKINLEY

Bowdoin opened her 1911 season on Whit-tier Field, last Saturday afternoon, and defeated Fort McKinley, 14 to 0. The way the eleven worked on its initial appearance was gratifying to the supporters of the White. The game with the soldiers each year is considered more or less of a minor contest, but the battle is important in that it affords the candidates first trying out of the season. Generally, the line held well, and forced McKinley to punt. The backfield was strong and made good onslaughts against the fort's defense. The only department in which Bowdoin was admittedly weak was in the handling of forward passes. The rest of the work was good.

Kern made both touchdowns. The first came in the second period, after the stocky fullback had zigzagged through a broken field for 35 yards. LaCasce kicked a graceful goal. The second touchdown was scored in the last quarter, when Kern carried the ball over in two rushes from the 20-yard mark. Previous to both tallies Bowdoin profited in scrimmages and exchange of kicks. In the fourth period also, Dole scored a drop kick from the 18-yard line.

For the soldiers Lehner and McGillen booted the ball in good fashion, and Linehan, Lehner and McGillen showed up nicely. Captain Taylor at quarterback managed his team well.

The summary:

Bowdoin

J. S. Brown, Walker, Shackford, I.e., Bergman, Lehner, Davitt, Henson.

Wood, 1t....................t.t., Linehan
Pratt, Pike, I.g.............r.g., Mullins, Godfrey

Score: Bowdoin, 14; Fort McKinley, 0. Touchdowns, Kern, 2. Goals from field (drop kick), Dole.

Goal from touchdown, LaCasce. Referee—John D. Clifford. Umpire—Elmer H. King. Field judge—

The training table for the football men has been established this year at the Park Hotel.

Elmer King, '11, and Medic, is medical attendant of the football team this year.

Barton, C. A. Brown, Caniff, and Leigh from the Class of 1914, are out for the position of assistant manager of football.

With the Fort McKinley and Dartmouth games already played the 1911 football season is fairly launched. Although a large number of last year's team graduated or did not return this Fall, a squad of forty-two new men and last year's substitutes is out every afternoon and with a lot of hard work there is a good chance of Coach Bergin's turning out a winning aggregation.

Of last year's team there are Capt. Hurley, Wood, and Burns to take their old positions in the line. Pratt, a member of the 1909 team who was ineligible last year, is out again for the line and Douglas and Hinch of last year's squad are playing regularly with the first team forwards. Behind the line Kern and Weatherill are back for their old positions at fullback and halfback respectively. LaCasce, who played a star game in the interclass contest last fall is making a strong bid for the other half, and Dole and Crosby, both new men, are fighting it out for quarter. J. Brown and Wing, both new men, are playing the end position and are beginning to show form. Cross, a Freshman from Shattuck School, Minnesota, is showing up well behind the line. Faulkner from Exeter, and Webster from Andover, both ends, were out for the first time this week and when they get into shape will probably be seen in the line-up. LaCasce is doing the kicking for the team this year and is performing creditably in this department. Other men who are showing up well on the squad are Holt, Abbott, McMahon, Dodge, Walker, and Simpson.

Coach Bergin is driving the men hard now and giving the squad plenty of scrimmage work. This scrimmage practice is especially needed to give the two green candidates for quarterback valuable practice in generalship. No prediction can be made yet as to the outcome of the Maine State games, but Bowdoin chances depend on the developing of a new team to meet the other three teams composed, for the most part, of veterans.

SCHEDULE

Wednesday, October 4—Dartmouth, Hanover.
Saturday, October 14—Brown, Providence.
Saturday, October 21—Norwich University, Brunswick.
Saturday, October 28—Colby, Waterville.
Saturday November 4—Bates, Lewiston.
Saturday, November 11—Maine, Brunswick.
Saturday, November 18—Tufts, Portland.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY

The college welcomes four new members of the Faculty this fall to take the places of Professor McIlwain, Mr. Duncalf, Mr. Evans, and Mr. McConaughy. Professor McIlwain goes to Harvard, Assistant Professor Duncalf goes to the University of Texas, Mr. Evans is to study at the University of Wisconsin, and Mr. McConaughy is to take a sabbatical year at Columbia University.

The position vacated by Professor McIlwain will be filled by William Edward Lunt of the Class of 1904. Prof. Lunt was born at Lisbon Falls and prepared for college at Edward Little High School. He entered Bowdoin in 1900, graduating four years later. After leaving Bowdoin he spent four years at Harvard Graduate School. While there he was assistant in Government for two years and in his last year held a traveling fellowship which took him to England and Italy. As a result of his work in this school Mr. Lunt received the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. On leaving Harvard, Mr. Lunt spent two years at the University of Wisconsin as instructor in history. Last January he was awarded the Sloan Traveling Fellowship, and in February went to England where he spent six months.

Mr. Duncalf's place will be filled by Orren Chalmer Hormell, A.M. Mr. Hormell is a graduate of the University of Indiana where he entered after preparing at the high school of his native town, Wingate, Ind. After graduating from college in 1904, he did graduate work there and received the degree of A.M. in 1905, and also received the same degree from Harvard in 1909. Mr. Hormell was assistant in History and Government at his Alma Mater in 1904-1905 and was teacher. of History in the Crawfordsville (Indiana) High School for the following three years. He then did graduate work at Harvard during the year of 1908-09 and was the Thayer scholar in the following year. During this year he was also assistant in American Colonial History at the college and was assistant in History at the Harvard Summer School in 1910. During the past year Mr. Hornell has been an Instructor in History and Government at Clark College. Mr. Hornell is married and has one child.

To fill Mr. Evans' position the college has obtained Nathaniel Everett Loomis, A.M., Ph.D. Dr. Loomis graduated from Windsor High School and Rochester Academy, both schools in his home State of Wisconsin. He then graduated from Beloit College in 1908 and was an assistant in Chemistry at Syracuse University in the following year receiving the degree of A.M. in 1909. From there he went to Johns Hopkins University where he has spent the past two years and he received the degree of Ph.D. last June. Dr. Loomis has written an article on "Lead Silicates" which was published in the American Chemical Journal in the fall of 1909. The work which he wrote in the course of obtaining his Ph.D. will be published this fall and deals with "The Hydrogen Electrode and the Calomel Electrode." Dr. Loomis will have charge of the first year medical course in Chemistry, the general quantitative work and a one semester course in geology.

In place of Mr. McConaughy, Mr. Ernest G. Fifield of the Class of 1911, becomes Assistant in English and General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his Junior year competed in the Bradbury Prize Debate for the past two years, and was a member of the 'varsity debating team which met Wesleyan last year. Mr. Fifield was also a member of the Quill Board and Bugle Board.

In addition to the new men who have been mentioned, three members of the Faculty have new titles this year. Paul Nixon becomes Professor of the Classics and History. Marshall Perley Cram has been advanced to the position of Professor of Chemistry and Mineralogy and the Josiah Little Professor of Natural Science. Henry Bissell Alvord becomes assistant professor of Surveying, Mechanical Drawing and Astronomy.

ANNIE TALBOT COLE LECTURER ANNOUNCED

The Annie Talbot Cole Lecturer this year will be Prof. Bliss Perry, Litt.D., editor of the Atlantic Monthly and Professor of English at Harvard. Prof. Perry, who received the degree of Litt.D. from Bowdoin, was lecturer at the Hawthorne Centennial celebration in 1904.

PRESIDENT HYDE SPEAKS ON THE DEATH OF SENATOR FRYE

President Hyde took for the subject of his talk in chapel, Sunday, the career of William Pierce Frye, LL.D., of the Class of 1850, who died on the eighth of August in the eighty-first year of his age.

After graduation in 1850, Senator Frye studied and practiced law; was a member of the State Legislature in 1861, 1862, and 1867; was mayor of the city of Lewiston, in 1866 and 1867; was attorney general of the State of Maine in 1867, 1868, 1872 and re-elected in 1876 and 1880; was elected a trustee of Bowdoin College in June, 1880; received the degree of LL.D. from Bates College in July, 1881, and the same degree from Bowdoin College in 1889; was a presidential elector in 1864; was a delegate to the Republican State Committee of Maine in place of Hon. James G. Blaine, resigned, in November, 1881; was elected a Representative in the Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, and Forty-seventh Congresses; was elected March 15, 1881, to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of James G. Blaine, and took his seat March 18, 1881; was re-elected in 1883, in 1889, in 1895, in 1901, and again in 1907; was elected President pro tempore of the Senate, February 7, 1896, and re-elected March 7, 1901, and December 5, 1907; was a member of the commission which met in Paris, September, 1898, to adjust terms of peace between the United States and Spain.

Senator Frye was repeatedly offered opportunities to make money in ways which many persons would have thought legitimate, by following suggestions about investments made by persons intensely interested in legislation, to whom he might be considered under obligation, if he profited by their advice. All such opportunities he persistently declined.

A railroad magnate, who had many favors to ask of Congress, remarked that he had

Greetings

With the first publication of the college year the Orient extends a hearty welcome to the entering class of Bowdoin. It urges every man to get into at once the spirit which characterizes the college made famous by her noted alumni. The active college man begins to do things at the start. The time to begin to live is during the freshman year. It is then that a man either "makes good" or fails to do so and if he fails he usually has a chance to take Freshman year over again. Certain traditions and customs prevail in every college and like others Bowdoin has hers. These are respected and lived up to by all who are true to the name of the college. So in extending its greetings the Orient Board welcomes each man to the happiest four years of his life.

To the new members of the faculty as well as to those of the undergraduate body does the Orient express its welcome. Naturally the college will miss those men who have left us to go elsewhere this year, but it wishes them good fortune. On the other hand it feels that the vacancies made by them have been well filled and that the younger members of the faculty will "make good" with the student body.

Spirit That Wins

It was especially gratifying to those who have the football interests at heart this fall to see the way in which the student body turned out to the opening game of the year. Although the game held no championship importance, it meant much to the captain, coach, and every man on the team to know that the student body was behind them from the start. The cheering and spirit in general which was made manifest in the grandstand is worthy of commendation. With every man—player and spectator alike—doing his share at the games, Bowdoin men may look forward to only victorious results.

The First Payment

Quite important with the question of the new gymnasium is the matter of the student subscriptions. One undergraduate has the honor of being the first to pay the full amount of his pledge to the fund. This payment was made on the opening day of college. Such a spirit of promptness in the payment of one's obligations is exemplary. If the same spirit is manifested throughout the student body, Bowdoin's greatest need will soon be realized.

Freshman competition for the Orient Board begins at once. Within two weeks rules and regulations governing the legislation of the Board, will be published. In the meantime, however, every Freshman who wishes to try for the Board should hand his name to either the Editor or the Managing Editor. Now is the time to get busy, so hand in your name at once and begin work.

President Hyde Speaks on the Death of Senator Frye

Continued from page 69 found in all his acquaintance with public men no other to be compared with Senator Frye in his unswerving honesty. Said this railroad magnate, "I repeatedly put large opportunities in the way of Senator Frye for gaining wealth in a perfectly legitimate manner in connection with great business enterprises; but he always firmly replied: 'I must decline. I cannot for my own gain be suspected by any man of subordinating public interests to my private welfare.'

To you young men who for the next fifty years are to be trustees, directors, representatives of the interests of others, let me commend the example of this stalwart son of Bowdoin and of Maine, who for the past fifty years has stood in high places where temptation to mix personal and private interests is subtle and urgent, yet never let the hand that earned his living owe a cent of obligation to the hand that cast his vote.

He was indefatigable in the support of American shipping and fisheries, the protective tariff, the welfare of the colored race, and honorable foreign relations.

He was eloquent, able, sincere, courageous, kindly, charitable; true to what he believed; loyal to what he represented. Out of his many services and virtues, let us select one for our emulation on this first Sabbath service since his death, in the chapel of the College which he loved.

In the complex life of to-day there is just one test of a man's honesty that really counts, compared with which all other tests and temptations are mere child's play. That is the power to draw a clear, sharp line between one's personal interests as an individual and one's social obligations as a business or political representative of the interests of others. Every man in business, professional or public life, stands in that double relation and the test of character is the power to do that double work with a single eye.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

The annual reception to the Class of 1915 under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. was held in Hubbard Hall on the first evening of the term, Thursday, Sept. 28. There was a larger crowd than usual present and the Freshmen were given a hearty welcome to the college.

The program of speaking in the debating room was as follows:
The Chairman, W. A. MacCormick, '12
The College, Pres. Hyde, Prof. Chapman
The Student Council, J. L. Hurley, '12
Athletics, Coach Bergin
The Undergraduates, F. A. Smith, '12
The Y. M. C. A., E. G. Fifeild, '11

After singing Bowdoin Beata, refreshments, consisting of ice cream, fancy crackers, and punch, were served in the Alumni Room. The committee in charge were J. L. Hurley, '12, Chairman; E. O. Leigh, '12, L. G. Means, '12, G. C. Kern, J. H. Newell, '12.

A copy of the 1911-12 Handbook, revised and improved by the addition of a folding map of Brunswick, was given to everyone present.

ART BUILDING NOTES

Mrs. George Lippitt Andrews has presented a silver goblet given to James Olcott Brown, Bowdoin, '56, on his twenty-first birthday by his father, J. B. Brown, Esq.

"Racing Home," a painting done by Philip Little, of Salem, at MacMahan's Island this summer, has been loaned by W. C. Allen, '11, of Boston.

Stanley P. Chase, '05, has loaned a Bowdoin Bronze Medal, which he won at Harvard.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL ORGANIZES

The Athletic Council held a meeting in Dr. Whittier's office Saturday evening. The Athletic Committee is to consist of Chas. T. Hawes, Chairman, Prof. Copeland, treasurer; Barrett Potter, Esq., and J. L. Hurley, auditors; Football Committee, Prof. Copeland, chairman, F. A. Smith; Track Committee, Col. Wing, Crowell, R. D. Cole; Baseball Committee, Barrett Potter, F. S. Wiggins.

This year recommendations are to be subject to the approval of the faculty. It was decided to have a Sophomore-Freshman Track Meet and Cross Country Run. A two years' contract with the University of Vermont for Cross Country Run was agreed upon.

OTHER STATE GAMES

The following is a schedule of the games to be played by the football teams of the other Maine colleges, this fall:

Sept. 23—Bates vs. New Hampshire at Durham, N. H.; Colby vs. Hebron at Waterville; Maine vs. Fort McKinley at Orono.

October 7—Bates vs. Fort McKinley at Lewiston; Colby vs. Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.; Maine vs. New Hampshire at Orono.

Oct. 14—Bates vs. Exeter at Exeter; Colby vs. Boston College at Waterville; Maine vs. Tufts at Medford.

Oct. 21—Bates vs. Colby at Lewiston; Maine vs. Vermont at Orono.

Oct. 28—Bowdoin vs. Colby at Waterville; Bates vs. Maine at Orono.

Nov. 4—Bowdoin vs. Bates at Lewiston.

Nov. 11—Bowdoin vs. Maine at Brunswick; Colby vs. Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.

ASSISTANTS AND PROCTORS
The following undergraduates have been appointed as assistants in the various courses:
Psychology: Harold C. L. Ashley, '12, of Leicester, Mass.

Economics: Paul H. Douglass of Newport.

The board of proctors for the year is as follows:
South Appleton, Frank A. Smith; North Appleton, Charles F. Adams; South Maine, William A. MacCormick; North Maine, John L. Hurley; South Winthrop, Edward L. Morse; North Winthrop, Seward J. Marsh.

College Notes
At a meeting of the Orient Board last Friday, William A. MacCormick, '12, of South Framingham, Mass., was elected Editor-in-Chief in place of Walter A. Fuller, who has entered Harvard University.

Wyman, ex-'12, has returned to college.

Cooley, ex-'14, has returned to college.

Wm. Spinney, '12, has returned to college.

Leslie Stetson, ex-'14, has returned to college.

Coach Morrill will enter the Medical School this fall.

Thompson, ex-'14, and Williamson, ex-'14, have returned to college.

Walter A. Fuller and F. Warren Davis, both '12, have entered Harvard.

A class of about 30 Freshmen is expected at the Medical School this fall.

Hathaway, '12, has returned to Providence, R. I., where he has employment.

James A. Creighton, '13, has entered Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The first game of the Freshman-Sophomore baseball series will be played to-morrow.

"Jim" McBain is now head janitor of all the buildings on the campus except Hubbard Hall.

Physical examinations are being held at Dr. Whittier's office each evening for Freshmen and candidates of the teams.

At a meeting of the Junior Class this week, D. H. McMurtrie was elected Art Editor of the 1913 Eagle in place of F. T. Edwards, who has entered the University of Wisconsin.
O. H. Stanley, '09, was on the campus Tuesday.
B. O. Warren, Maine, '11, visited friends on the campus Sunday.
Simpson, '03, spent two days at Bowdoin with his brother, Simpson, '14.
The normal class in Bible Study commenced the three courses, Monday night.
The plans for the new “Gym” may be seen any time at Dr. Whittier's office.
A Y. M. C. A. cabinet meeting was held Thursday at the Delta Upsilon House.
Among the 1911 men registering at the Harvard Law School were Lawlis and Hussey.
Fall practice of the 'varsity baseball team is held regularly on the Delta every afternoon.
Tennis candidates were called for Tuesday. The elimination tournament commences Thursday.
About a dozen men turned out for cross country work Tuesday. They were given a two-mile jog as a starter.
Many friends of "Squanto" Wilson were glad to see him in Boston at the last series of the Boston and Detroit teams.
The candidates for the Freshman-Sophomore Track squad reported to Coach Morrill on Tuesday. About twenty men were out.
Dr. Burnett visited friends in Berkeley, Cal., Portland, Ore., and Chicago, and also went through Yellowstone Park, this summer.
Smith, '12, Woodcock, '12, McFarland, '11, Kern, '12, Bradford, '12, Parcher, '12, Lombard, '13, Tibbett, '12, are going "Medic" this fall.
Freshman baseball practice commenced Tuesday. A squad of about sixteen men reported to commence work under Coach Means and Captain McKenney.
The following men have been appointed assistants in the Library: From 1912: Newell, Bragdon, Keating, Torrey, Timberlake. From 1913: Cowan, Comery. From 1914: Fox. From 1915: Ramsay, West.
The Freshmen held their first class meeting in the Gym Monday. The meeting was called to order by G. W. Bacon and presided over by G. A. Mac-Williams. F. P. McKenney of Brunswick was elected baseball captain and J. A. Lewis of Northhaven, manager.
The Y. M. C. A. will conduct its membership plan on a different basis this year. Every man in college is requested to join the Association and then if he desires, aid it by a voluntary subscription. Heretofore members have had to pay one dollar in signifying their intention to join the Association.
The Class of 1914 held a meeting in the gymnasium Monday night and elected Clifford L. Russell of Portland captain of the class baseball team, and John L. Barbour, of Brown City, Mich., manager. The following men were chosen for the proclamation committee: Earle S. Thompson, John Heywood, Ralph L. Buell, Elwyn C. Gage, Kenneth A. Robinson, Edward H. Snow, Robert G. Severance, and Henry C. Dixon, with Francis X. Callahan chairman of the committee.

Faculty Notes

Professor Little attended the thirty-third annual conference of the American Library Association which was held in Pasadena, Cal., May 18 to 24. The association numbers over two thousand librarians and there was an attendance of 582. The librarian of Bowdoin, who has attended nineteen of these conventions and for many years has been a member of the Council of the Association was the only representative from Maine. After the close of the meeting he visited many of the public libraries of the Pacific Coast and examined particularly those of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, and of the University of California. The impressive building of the latter is one of the first university libraries to be planned and constructed with reference to a great enlargement of its capacity in the future without interference with the facade or the leading architectural features of the present structure. Returning by the Canadian Pacific Railway, he took occasion to revisit the Canadian Rockies about Laggrow where in 1896 and 1901 he had spent several weeks in mountain climbing with his associates of the American Alpine Clibn. The Topographical Survey of the Dominion had honored members of his first party by giving their names to several peaks then climbed for the first time. On June 15 of this year he had the pleasure of climbing the mountain that bears his own name in the company of two Swiss guides who regularly spend their summers in this region. Though not of great height, 10,300 feet, Mt. Little is distinctly an Alpine peak, rising from an immense snow field, and offering the usual difficulties to the climber of precipitous cliffs, crumbling rock and snow cornices. Owing to danger from avalanches due to a fall of snow the previous week, the guides insisted on approaching the mountain by a circuitous route that involved crossing the crest of the continent twice. For this is one of the Ten Peaks that help form the water shed between British Columbia and Alberta; melting snow from one side goes to the Pacific, from the other to Hudson Bay and the Atlantic. The ascent, therefore, was rather laborious and occupied fourteen hours from the temporary camp, during nearly all of which time the party was roped together.
Alumni Department

'50.—Mrs. Oliver O. Howard, widow of Major General Oliver O. Howard, the famous Civil War veteran, died at Burlington, Vt., Aug. 1, of a paralytic stroke suffered several days previous.

'54.—Hon. Franklin A. Wilson died at his home in Bangor, July 2, from a prolonged illness and confinement to his bed. Mr. Wilson was one of the oldest members of the Penobscot bar and had long been prominent in the railroad and financial circles of Maine and New England. His valuable advice in the conduct of the various enterprises in which he held so many prominent positions will be missed greatly; among his many friends his loss will also be widely felt. He is survived by his wife and four children—Mrs. George Cutler of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. Charles S. Wilson, second secretary of the American embassy to Rome; Mr. Hayward Wilson of Boston, and Mr. John Wilson of Bangor.

Mr. Wilson was born in Bangor and has always made that city his home. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 1854, studied law with Albert W. Paine and John A. Peters and for a time was associated with the latter in practice, afterward forming a partnership with Charles F. Woodward, which continued until the latter’s death in 1906. In the course of his active career he held many positions of trust and was connected with many institutions and corporations.

He was a director of the old Piscataquis railroad; president of the European and North American Company; President of the Penobscot Savings Bank; Director of the First National Bank; Member of the Board of Trustees of the Public Library; Director of the Union Insurance Co.; Director and at one time President of the Maine Central Railroad; and President of the Penobscot Bar Association. Shortly before his death he resigned from all public and corporate offices.

'56.—Rev. Edwin Pond Parker, D.D., has resigned after a pastorate of 51 years at Second Church, Hartford, Conn. During all this time, his influence has been great in the entire city, due to the clear cut quality of his character in all its parts.

'89.—An address, entitled “The Minister and the Peace Question,” delivered by Rev. C. F. Hersey before the Pastors’ Union, has been published by the Peace Association of the Friends in America.

'92.—Dr. Percy Bartlett of the Dartmouth Medical School, has been elected a Trustee of the Mary Hitchcock Hospital at Hanover to succeed Prof. Charles F. Richardson. Dr. Bartlett for five years was in charge of the Boston Relief Hospital before becoming a member of the Dartmouth Medical Faculty. He graduated from Bowdoin in ’92 and from the Dartmouth Medical School in 1900.

'00.—Rev. Harry A. Beadle of Franklin, Conn., has accepted a call to Pomfret, Conn.

'00.—Prof. Simon A. Hamlin has accepted a position as Principal of Bridgton Academy and has already begun his work there. For ten years, Prof. Hamlin has been principal of South Portland High School. Under his leadership, the number of scholars has increased from 98 to 220 and the standing of the school has greatly increased.

'03.—Mr. and Mrs. John Newton Williams of Newton, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence Alice, to Mr. S. C. W. Simpson of Portland. Mr. Simpson was a Senate Official in 1903 and 1905, and during the years of 1907 and 1909 held the desirable position of Assistant Secretary of the Senate of the State of Maine. Mr. Simpson is now Secretary of the publishing firm of Benj. H. Sanborn & Co. of Boston. Mr. Simpson is a member of the Zeta Psi and Phi Beta Kappa Fraternities.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE
MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911.

Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

Bowdoin Meets Brown Tomorrow at Providence

Coach Bergin's men left this morning for Providence where they will line up to-morrow against the strong Brown University team. Brown has been going at a fast clip this season and has not lost a game as yet. The Bowdoin team is determined, however, to make a good showing against the Brunonians in this, the first contest in a number of years. The line-up for to-morrow is not yet announced, but there will undoubtedly be a number of changes in it. Faulkner, the Freshman, will probably appear and Simpson may get a chance at guard. It is doubtful who will start the game at quarterback. The team is in better shape than it has been before this season and may be counted on to give a good account of itself.

Bowdoin, 0; Dartmouth, 23

Bowdoin played her second game of the season, Wednesday, Oct. 4, at Hanover, and lost to Dartmouth, 23 to 0. The visitors were greatly outweighed and were also at a further disadvantage in working against a better organized machine. The lighter eleven, however, played brilliantly until Dartmouth's relentless attack forced the playing continually into Bowdoin's territory. Only once did the White get the ball on her opponent's land, and then she was forced to kick.

Bowdoin's attack was directed mainly at Dartmouth's flanks, while the Green played a more varied system, sideline kicks and forward passes being frequently used.

1914 Wins the First Class Game

In the first baseball game of the series, the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen by the score of 8 to 2. Hall's pitching for 1914, especially in the fourth and sixth innings, when he twirled his team out of difficulty, was a principal feature of the game. Near the close of the contest, Hall was put out of the game on account of batting out of turn through a misunderstanding. La Casce in right field made a brilliant catch with his hands crossed. For the Freshmen, Badger did star work.

CROSS COUNTRY RACE ARRANGED WITH VERMONT

The faculty has voted to approve the formation of contract with the University of Vermont for cross country races this fall and next fall. The races are to be run by teams of five men from each college. The victory will be reckoned by a system of points, the finishing position of each man counting so many points, respectively. One race will be run at Brunswick and the other at Burlington, but the place and exact date of this year's race has not yet been definitely decided, although the first contest will probably be held the first of November.

The cross country squad has now been working over a week. Owing to the fact that Bowdoin did not compete in such a race last year, it is difficult to judge the possibilities of the team. Among the candidates are: Hall, '13; Auten, '12; Timberlake, '12; Wish, '13; Tuttle, '13; Tufts, '13; Tarbox, '14; Melcher, '15; Bacon, '15, and others.

An interclass track meet will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 18 and 19, at Whittier Field. The list of events includes:

- 600-Yard Run.
- 330-Yard Run.
- 120-Yard Dash.
- 70-Yard Dash.
- 55-Yard High Hurdle.
- 120-Yard Low Hurdle.
- Shot-Put.
- Hammer Throw.
- Discus Throw.
- Pole Vault.
- Broad Jump.
- High Jump.

As the success of the college track team in the Maine Meet next spring depends largely upon the interest shown in this interclass meet, it is necessary for every Senior, Junior, Sophomore and Freshman to turn out. Coach Morrill will be at the field every afternoon to train the men from 3:30 to 5:30. All entries should be handed as soon as possible to Captain Cole, Coach Morrill or Manager Crowell.

SECOND TEAM LOSES TO WESTBROOK SEMINARY

The Bowdoin second team lost to Westbrook Seminary, 21 to 0, last Saturday afternoon at Portland. The seminarians outplayed the collegians in every department of modern football. The feature of the game was a triple forward pass worked by Tyler, Purington and Wheeler of the Seminary. Abbott was the best ground-gainer for Bowdoin.

TEENISS TOURNAMENT

The annual fall tennis tournament was begun this week with thirty-two competitors entered. This tournament will bring before the attention of the management the new men who will be likely candidates for the positions to be filled next spring. During the next two weeks an attempt will be made to get a match tournament with the faculty team.

DEATH OF REV. JOHN S. SEWALL, D.D., ’50

The Rev. John Smith Sewall, D.D., vice-president of the board of trustees of Bowdoin College, died at his home in Bangor, Wednesday morning. He had been critically ill since Sept. 24.

Professor Sewall was born in Newcastle, March 20, 1830. He visited Japan as a member of Commodore Perry’s expedition, and afterwards entered Bangor Theological Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1858. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 1850 and received the degree of Master of Arts in 1855, of Doctor of Divinity in 1878. He was chaplain of the Eighth Massachusetts Regiment during the Civil War, and was professor of rhetoric, oratory and English Literature from 1867 to 1875. He was professor of homiletics in Bangor Theological Seminary from 1875 to 1903. Since then he had been professor emeritus and had engaged in literary work. Dr. Sewall was chaplain of the Maine Commandery of the Loyal Legion at the time of his death and a member of the Hannibal Hamlin Post, G. A. R., of Bangor. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity.

DELA UPSILON CONVENTION

The 77th Annual Convention of the Fraternity of Delta Upsilon is being held this week, October 12, 13 and 14 under the auspices of the Rutgers Chapter at New Brunswick, N. J.

The delegates from the Bowdoin Chapter of Delta Upsilon are Seward J. Marsh, ’12, of Farmington, and James A. Norton, ’13, of Phillips, Me.
NEW MEMBERS OF THE MEDICAL FACULTY

The following is a list of the new members of the Medical Faculty: Alfred King, A.M., M.D., of Portland, Lecturer in Surgery; William Wheeler Bolster, A.B., M.D., of Lewiston, Instructor in Physiology; Ambrose Herbert Weeks, M.D., of Portland, Instructor in Internal Medicine; Thomas Jayne Burrage, A.M., M.D., of Portland, Instructor in Internal Medicine; Edwin Motley Fuller, Jr., A.B., M.D., of Bath, Instructor in Pathology and Bacteriology; Carl Hervey Stevens, M.D., of Brunswick, Instructor in Pathology and Bacteriology; Elmer Henry King, A.B., of Portland, Demonstrator of Histology; Oramel Elisha Keaney, M.D., of Portland, Clinical Assistant in Surgery; Lucinda Blake Hatch, M.D., of Portland, Clinical Assistant in Obstetrics; Harold Josselyn Everett, A.B., M.D., of Portland, Clinical Assistant in Obstetrics; Roland Banks Moore, M.D., of Portland, Clinical Assistant in Obstetrics.

Faculty Notes

Dean Sills left last Friday morning for Boston. There on Friday night he represented the college at the meeting of the Boston Bowdoin Alumni Club, and spoke at the post-prandial exercises, giving to the alumni a brief report of the present affairs and condition of the College.

The Bowdoin faculty will be largely represented and will take an important part in the annual meeting of the Maine Teachers’ Association, which is to be held this year at Augusta on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Oct. 25, 26, and 27. Dean Sills is chairman of the Association Department of Classics. Professor Mitchell is chairman of the Department of History, and Professor Files is secretary of the Department of Modern Languages. Professor Cram will read a paper on “Co-ordination of Chemistry Courses” before the Department of Science, Friday afternoon, and sometime during the session Professor Nixon will read before the Department of Classics scenes from the “Menæchmi” of Plautus, together with original metrical translations.

Professor Ham delivered an address before the Twentieth Century Club of Bangor on Tuesday, October 3, on Municipal Government in Germany.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At Sunday Chapel, President Hyde commented upon an essay, entitled “Fundamental Education,” which he had once seen. The theme dealt altogether with the question of play, which is best defined as the enlistment of the entire personality in a coveted end. An important part of every college man’s education should be to play some game,—football, baseball, golf, or tennis. The man who, in this way, learns to play acquires health, a by-product of play. It next remains for him to carry the spirit of play into his work. If a person enters upon his tasks in that spirit, he will perform them in an eager, passionate, and enthusiastic manner. Only the man who pursues a study in that spirit can become a scholar. One should adopt the same attitude of play towards life as a whole, treating his chances for kindness and service as parts of a great game. When a man endeavors to follow God’s will in this spirit, he is a Christian.

ANNIVERSARY ODE

CLASS OF 1861

Commencement 1811: Fiftieth Anniversary

“We’re half-way through.” So sang our oldist when The years gone by, like those to come, were twain, And chose the happy phrase as fit refrain To tell of years that ne’er should come again. Since then we’ve more than halved the century; But what of that? There’s still no dearth of time, Nor will be while the patient aeons climb Toward the top-round of eternity.

Nay, what of that or this? A hundred years, It will be all the same to you and me, Whether we pledge the passing century In aqua pura or the cup that cheers; For years will go, and lives will multiply, With earth below and overhead the sky.

We’ve reached the goal where all ambitions cease; And now mid shadows lengthening like our days, A paean to this year of Jubilee we raise, And sit us down in idleness and ease.

Life’s duties done, henceforth perennial peace Is ours; and though not all our brows with bays Are crowned, we fear not on the west to gaze, Nor apples pluck of the Hesperides.

Since sad allusions hath our scribe forbade, All sadness to the shades we’ll relegate, And laugh amain, like him of old, whose mad Guffaw, for all life’s ills was anodyne, Whilst this long looked-for day we consecrate With oft oblations of a classmate’s wine.

Class spirit ran high among the two lower classes in their annual baseball game on the Delta. The men of the Freshman class exhibited marked signs of loyalty to their numerals. If class spirit of this kind is fostered and checked sufficiently, true college spirit is sure to result. It is well to remember, 1915, that one class is only one part of the college and the spirit of the former should never supplant the spirit of the latter.

Time to Act For the last two years the fall track meet between the two lower classes has been called off because enough men have not turned out. Such spirit as this will never pull the Bowdoin track team from last place in the Maine Intercollegiate Meet to a front position. If the defeats in track which Bowdoin suffered last spring mean anything to the undergraduates it is up to them to wipe out defeats this year. Now is the time for every man who has any track ability at all to show real college spirit. A championship team cannot be developed in the short time available in the spring. The time to begin to do so is this fall. It is up to every single man to help put Bowdoin up in track athletics where she rightfully belongs. Those who can’t go out on the field and work can at least urge others to do so. You men who do not know whether you have any ability or not should make a point to find out. The coming Interclass Meet affords a fine opportunity to lay the foundations for a good team next spring.

Thoughtlessness It seems only fair to attribute any form of irreverence in chapel exercises to thoughtlessness on the part of the offender. By irreverence we do not mean “wooding” the men as they come in on the morning of some athletic contest. This is a feature which concerns the fellows in their relations with each other. But disrespect in any form, especially of low talking and laughing during the Scripture reading and prayer is brought directly to the one who is conducting the service. It is not a matter of religion but of gentlemanliness. The fellow who doesn’t think may not only show his disrespect towards the leader but he may deprive “the other fellow” of the benefits which he gets from the devotional services. Such a spectacle which can often be seen in the daily chapel services would only give a chance visitor the impression that Bowdoin men are more thoughtless than reverent.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES The first Y. M. C. A. meeting of the year was held last Thursday evening, Oct. 5, and was a Bible Study Rally. There was a large crowd out to listen to the inspiring address of David R. Porter, ’06, on “College Men and the Bible.” Mr. Porter began by calling attention to the remarkable extent of Bible Study in the colleges today. saying that there were more men studying the Bible in the colleges of North America than there were men on the athletic teams of all the institutions, that more men were enrolled in voluntary Bible Study than there are members of all the college fraternities. It would have been heralded as a remarkable event if two-thirds of the Freshman class at Princeton had gone out for the football team but that number had entered Bible Study classes and nothing was heard of.
He then made a comparison between the undergraduate spirit at Harvard and Yale which shows two contrasted types. Yale is a democracy. There seems to be a common level which the spirit of the college demands that the students shall keep. No one is allowed to fall below this level morally, intellectually, or socially, or, on the other hand, is he allowed to rise above it. The result is that the individual is lost in the type. Harvard, on the other hand, is not so democratic. There is the "Gold Coast" which has but little to do with the rest of the college. It is every man for himself. Whatever a man does is looked upon as his own business and the college pays no attention to it. The result is that, while weak men succumb, strong individuals are developed, men who really have an individuality of their own. The spirit of Bowdoin should be a combination of these two. There is no danger that Bowdoin will cease to be undemocratic but there is a danger that it will neglect the development of the individual.

In the realm of religion where the fundamental facts of life are to be discovered there is danger that we will take the opinions of the crowd around us and not think things out for ourselves. Bible Study is an opportunity for us to discover for ourselves the truth in the matter, to see for ourselves what Christianity is, and to decide our own relation to it.

The Bible Study classes of the Y. M. C. A. started this week on the same plan as that followed last year. They meet in small groups of 5 to 10 men led by a student leader. Twenty-two groups have been formed. Every fraternity is represented and all are urged to enroll in one of the courses. The courses are Social Significance of the Teachings of Jesus, open to Seniors and Juniors, Normal Class leader, Prof. Davis; Life of Christ, Sophomores and Freshmen, Normal Class leader, Mr. Fifield; Men of the Old Testament, Normal Class leader, Prof. Woodruff.

The speaker at the next Y. M. C. A. meeting, Thursday, Oct. 19, will be Rev. John H. Noit, Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Lewiston, Me. He is a speaker of great ability and a good audience should turn out to hear him.

Snowden's "World as a Spiritual System," and H. Calderwood's Handbook of Moral Philosophy, all from President Hyde; "Report of the Sec. of U. S. Agricultural Department of Appalachian Region," from Charles L. Clarke, Class of 1875.

The Library has furthermore received many interesting reports and notes from the U. S. Government.

It has also acquired Bullfinch's "Age of Chivalry" by exchange.

A LETTER FROM AN ALUMNUS OF FIFTY YEARS

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, JUNE 14, 1911.

Dear President Hyde:

You may recollect perhaps, that I told the Alumni at last Commencement that the “Class of ’60” were by no means mummies, that the good red blood still flowed thro’ our veins, that we were as young as ever we were.

Well, I thought I would prove my faith by my works, in my favorite manly sport, so I took my gun and went afield.

The result I give you in the “Record of Game” shot by me in 1910, herewith enclosed.

I beg to add that this is also the record of my life made 50 years after my graduation at Old Bowdoin.

A record in a sport where the eye must be true and the muscles firm and nimble.

Very sincerely yours,

W. W. Thomas.

The “Record of Game” shows a total of 666 water fowl, 471 land birds, and 64 fur, making a grand total of 1,201.

THE NEXT COLLEGE PREACHER

This year an exceptionally strong list of College Preachers has been provided and the first one on the list is Rabbi Charles Fleischer of Boston, who will be here next Sunday, Oct. 15. Rabbi Fleischer was born in Breslau, Germany, in 1871, and came to America with his parents in 1880. He received the degree of A.B. from New York City College in 1888, Litt.B. from the University of Cincinnati in 1893, and in 1894 he became Rabbi of Temple Adath Israel of Boston. In addition to being a successful preacher he is also a well-known lecturer. Some of the subjects of his famous lectures are Democracy and Women, Aristocracy, Individuality, Facts and Fictions about the Jews, Human Nature, My Discovery of America.

He will speak in the Congregational Church in the morning at 10.45, conduct chapel service in the afternoon, and in the evening meet informally any students who may care to make his acquaintance.

ART BUILDING NOTES

“Sante,” a painting done by Alger V. Currier, has been presented to the College by the widow of the artist, who gave instruction in drawing soon after the opening of the Art Building, from 1896 to 1900. The picture, which has always been a great favorite, was here at the time of the artist’s teaching and afterwards. It represents an old man of pleasing and innocent expression who is just tasting a beverage.

A Mexican Card Receiver and Box, the Box being painted by the daughter of Lafayette, are exhibited in the Boyd Gallery, the present of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Robbins.

An embroidered work bag, exhibited in the same case, has been presented by Mrs. Lucy E. R. Purnell. The Boyd Gallery has been partially refurnished during the summer.

The portraits of Wm. Bowdoin and Dr. McSparren have been loaned to the Metropolitan Museum for an exhibition of Colonial Paintings.
College Notes

At the meeting of the class in English 6 next Tuesday evening, there will be a discussion of the pledging system at Bowdoin. All students are invited to attend the meeting.

Simpson, '14, has returned to college.

Craig, '13, returned to college, Tuesday.

W. T. Johnson, '06, was on the campus, Tuesday.

H. A. Davis, ex-'12, was on the campus, Monday.

The faculty is holding a fall tennis tournament on the faculty court.

Frank Smith, '12, is coaching the Brunswick High School football team.

Captain Hurley witnessed the Brown-Massachusetts "Aggie" game, Saturday.

A meeting of the Board of Proctors was held at the Hotel Eagle last Monday night.

The Topsham Fair has claimed the usual big crowd of Bowdoin fellows this year.

In the Detroit-St. Louis game Saturday, "Squanto" Wilson got one hit and one run.

Alfred Grce, '14, while watching the Freshman-Sophomore baseball game last Saturday, was struck by a foul ball and is suffering from a fractured nose.

"Squanto" Wilson, '12, returned to College Tuesday, after a season with the Detroit-American team.

In the Brunswick Golf Club tournament being held this week, President Hyde defeated Dean Sills, thus gaining a place in the semi-final round.

A number of students attended the reception given to Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Quint in the Church on the Hill, last Tuesday evening.

The results of the games played Saturday by the Maine college elevens are as follows: University of Maine, 12; New Hampshire, 0; Colby, 0; Dartmouth, 12; Bates, 18; Ft. McKinley, 0.

James G. Lathrop, formerly coach of the Bowdoin Track Team, has been secured to coach Bates for the coming season.

Prof. Woodruff, who is an alumnus of the University of Vermont, represented Bowdoin at the recent inauguration of President Benton.

The following men are candidates for Assistant Football Manager: H. A. Barton, C. A. Brown, W. H. Cunliffe, Jr., and R. D. Leigh.

At a meeting last week, the Student Council approved the Sophomore proclamations and decided that the Freshmen should wear a regulation cap of black with a white button. October 24 was set as the date for fraternity initiations.

Just before the opening of the fall term the Eighteenth Annual Meeting of the Maine Library Association was held for the second time in Hubbard Hall. About fifty librarians were present who expressed themselves pleased. No formal papers were presented but discussions were held on various literary subjects.

In an article on college debating in the October issue of The Century Magazine, reference is made to Bowdoin, and particular emphasis is laid on the fact that several members of her debating squads have been men of athletic ability. The statement about Bowdoin follows:

"It is not generally true that debating is restricted 'to the socially ostracised and physically unfit,' as is said of some eastern universities. On one Bowdoin debating-squad, for instance, were the captain of the track team, the quarterback of the football team, and the pitcher of the college nine. Another team of the same college included the best long-distance runner, the champion tennis-player, and the editor of the college daily."

The article also says that Bowdoin College has won over fifty per cent. of her contests with Amherst, Wesleyan, Clark, Vermont, Syracuse, and Cornell. The author is Rollo L. Lyman, who is associate professor of rhetoric and oratory at the University of Wisconsin.

During the summer vacation Professor and Mrs. Mitchell traveled through England and Scotland. Landing at Liverpool they went slowly through the midland counties visiting Lichfield, Rugby, Coventry, Kenilworth, Warwick, Stratford, and Oxford. At London they spent ten days and were here joined by Professor and Mrs. Davis who had come to London by the way of Plymouth, Wells, Glastonbury, Warwick, Stratford, and Oxford. From London they went to Edinburgh stopping en route at Cambridge, Lincoln, and York. After a stay at Edinburgh during which they visited Abbotsford and Melrose Abbey, they proceeded through the Trossachs to Glasgow, thence to Ayr, Dumfries, Craigend, Melrose, Eddleston, and other places made famous by Robert Burns and Thomas Carlyle. From the Burns country they went down to the Lake Region, visiting Keswick, for forty years the home of Southey, Grasmere, where Wordsworth spent a large part of his life, Ambleside, and Coniston Lake, near which is Brantwood, for twenty-five years the home of John Ruskin. Sailing from Liverpool on the Canadian, Saturday, September 16, they reached home on the 26th. They report a trip full of interesting sights and enjoyable experiences.

RESOLUTIONS

Hall of Delta Upsilon.

Whereas, It has pleased a divine Providence to take from this life our brother, Leo Edgar Hafford, formerly of the Class of 1909, be it

Resolved, That we express the deep sense of loss felt by the fraternity at the death of a brother who during his life at Bowdoin was true to the best ideals of our fraternity both as a friend and as a fellow-worker, and who carried the same spirit with him in his later life.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere sympathy to those who through relationship were bound even closer to him, and who cannot but feel a yet deeper loss.

'69.—The School of Mines of the University of Pittsburg, located in that city, is now enjoying a most prosperous year under the guidance of Dr. M. E. Wadsworth, dean of the school since 1907. During the past three years, through the untiring efforts of Dean Wadsworth, this school has been coming forward with leaps and bounds, until to-day it is regarded as one of the leading institutions for instruction in mining in the United States. Dean Wadsworth has introduced an elective system and in connection with this plan holds personal conferences with each man whereby he can develop the students along the lines of their greatest capabilities.

Previous to his election to the University of Pittsburg, Dr. Wadsworth was Instructor in Mathematics, Mineralogy, and Geology at Harvard University from 1873 to 1885, was President of Michigan College of Mines from 1887 to 1899, and became Dean of the Pennsylvania State College of Mines in 1901. He is the author of about 200 books and pamphlets on subjects related to Geology, Mining Geology and Education. Notable among these are his works, entitled, "Crystallography," "Lithological Studies," "The Azoic System," and "Geology of the Iron and Copper Districts of Lake Superior."

'96.—Harry Oakes is now engaged in mining in New Zealand, he having gone to that country immediately after being graduated from college. He has been spending his vacation at his home in Foxcroft during the past summer.

'97.—F. H. Dole, formerly principal of North Yarmouth Academy, is now teaching in the Boston Latin School this year.

During the past summer the following marriages have occurred among the alumni and undergraduates of the college:

'00.—Mr. Clifford A. Bragdon of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Florence Wilkins of West Hartford, Conn., on July 1 at West Hartford, Conn.

'00.—Mr. Henry Woodbury Cobb of Bath, Me., and Miss Mabel Harlan Benner of Medford, Mass., on Aug. 17 at Dorchester, Mass.

'03.—Dr. Malcolm S. Woodbury and Miss Stella Baker of Kansas City, Mo., on Aug. 16 at Kansas City, Mo.

'05.—Mr. Frank E. Seavey of Boston, Mass., and Miss Georgia M. Duncan of Bath, Me., on Aug. 1 at Sabino, Me.

'07.—Mr. Edward A. Duffy and Miss Alice F. McCarthy of Portland Me., on Aug. 30 at Portland, Me.

'03.—Mr. Samuel Braley Gray and Miss Bessie Pendleton Benson of Bangor Me., on Sept. 14 at Bangor, Me.

'09.—Mr. William M. Harris and Miss Theresa McKinley of Brunswick Me., on Aug. 30 at Portland, Me.

'10.—Mr. Ralph Edwin Gilmore Bailey of Granby, Mass., and Miss Mary Eleanor Kateon of Bath, Me., on Aug. 4 at Granby, Mass.

'10.—Mr. Ralph S. Crowell of Bangor, Me., and Miss Helen L. Miller of Bangor, Me., on June 17 at Bangor, Maine.

'11.—Rev. Paris Miller and Miss Stella Soule of Freeport, Me., on Sept. 20 at Freeport, Me.

'12.—Mr. Raymond W. Hathaway of Providence, R. I., and Miss Grace M. Swett of Providence, R. I., on Aug. 16 at Providence, R. I.

'12.—Mr. George C. Brooks of Reading, Mass., and Miss Rachel Smith at Reading, Mass., on Aug. 16.

'12.—Mr. Earl F. Maloney of Thomaston, Me., and Miss Stella Cram of Liberty, Me., on June 27 at Liberty, Me.

Ex-'13.—Mr. Charles R. Farnham of Bath, Me., and Miss Ruth Haskell of Bath, Me., on Sept. 4 at Bath, Me.

The Ninety-first Annual Course of Lectures will begin Thursday, October 13, 1910, and continue to June 21, 1911.

Four courses of lectures are required of all who matriculate as first-course students.

The courses are graded and cover Lectures, Recitations, Laboratory Work and Clinical Instruction.

The third and fourth year classes will receive their entire instruction at Portland, where excellent clinical facilities will be afforded at the Maine General Hospital.

For catalogue, apply to

NO GAME WITH NORWICH

Owing to the fact that the management of the Norwich University football team because of lack of finances, has cancelled the game which was to be played to-morrow afternoon on Whittier Field, Bowdoin is left with an open date for this week. Manager King, as soon as he received word from Norwich last Monday that they would be unable to fulfill their contract, spent his time for two or three days trying to arrange a game with some other team, but without avail, as all possible institutions have scheduled games for the date. The next contest will be Bowdoin's first game in the Maine series, Colby at Waterville one week from to-morrow, Oct. 28. The team has been practising hard all this week and hopes to present the strongest line-up of the season thus far against the up-State rival. It is hoped that Douglas and Weatherill will be in shape to play this game, although it is doubtful whether this will be the case. A large delegation should make the trip to Waterville to see the game and give the team the support they need and deserve. Announcement of the excursion will be given later.

Bowdoin, 0; Brown, 33

Bowdoin fell before Brown, 33 to 0, on Andrews Field, Providence, Saturday, Oct. 14. Although the Brunonians were not in proper form and showed only intermittent flashes of their real ability, they succeeded in scoring five touchdowns and a field goal, largely through the long runs by Sprackling and Crowther. The Bowdoin men made first down several times through the Brown line, but were unable to bunch their gains and at no time were dangerous. Practically all of the play was in Bowdoin's territory, except, as happened several times, Brown lost the ball through fumbles. Bowdoin's nearest approach to the Brown goal was in the second period, when the White recovered the ball after Crowther had fumbled on Brown's 40-yard line. Weatherill tried for a field goal, and although his direction was perfect, there was not enough steam in the boot, and the ball fell short of the posts.

Kern was a veritable whirlwind on the field, and both his offensive and defensive work kept the eyes of the spectators riveted upon him. Several times he was through the line and making a tackle that was clean and hard, while with the ball he was the hardest kind of a runner to stop. Weatherill and Faulkner also played a strong game, and Hurley on the right wing showed up well.

Sprackling, Crowther and Bean were the particular stars for Brown. Crowther and Sprackling each made two touchdowns, the latter reeling off several runs, one of 75 yards through a broken field for a score. Crowther made consistent gains on plunges through Bowdoin's line and returned one kick 65 yards before Kern nailed him on Bowdoin's 10-yard line. Bean got away for one run of 55 yards and a score, besides making numerous smaller gains.

The summary:

Bowdoin
Adams, Shipley, Breteron, l.e, Hurley
Kratz, l.t., Hurley
Goldberg, l.g., Burns
Mitchell, Bohl, c., c., Douglas, McMahon
Gottstein, r.g., Pratt

Jones, Snell, Repko, f.h., f.b., Kern
l.h.b., Faulkner, Wing

Score—Bowdoin, 33; Bowdoin, 0. Touchdowns—
Sprackling 2, Bean, Crowther 2. Goal from field—Sprackling. Goals from touchdown—Asbaugh 4, two 11-minute and two 12-minute periods.

SECOND TEAM LOSES TO HEBRON

The Bowdoin second team did not fare much better than the 'varsity last Saturday, for they lost to Hebron Academy, 19 to 0, in a game in which they were outplayed. From start to finish the Hebronians kept the ball in their opponent's territory, and time after time the prep school players worked the forward pass and other plays for good gains. Bow-doin was unable to cope with the Hebron formations, and twice did the whistle prevent Hebron's scoring another touchdown. Penalties were frequent.

The summary:

Hebron

1914 WINS SECOND GAME

Altho the Freshmen made a good showing, Thursday, they were defeated by the Sophomores in the second and decisive game of the baseball series by the score, 6-3. The work of both teams showed a marked improvement over that of last Saturday.

Barbour's pitching for 1914 was first-class. "Lew" Brown put up a good game at shortstop, and Snow and Minott showed up well. For the Freshmen, Allen made himself conspicuous by hitting a home-run. On third base, Kuhn did excellent work.

MEDICAL SCHOOL OPENS

The Medical School of Maine opened Thursday for registration. The year marks the beginning of the ninety-second course of lectures given by this school. There are numerous changes in the officers and faculty this year, and a large number of new instructors has been secured.

Perhaps the most essential change in the curriculum consists in providing for instruction of third-year students in three specialties which were formerly given only to students of the fourth year. These specialties are the diseases of the eye and ear, of the nose and throat, and genito-urinary diseases. After the current year this plan will give the fourth-year student more time for purely clinical work.

Another change will be a provision for prolonged and systematic clinical training of third-year men in the making of physical examinations. Increase of practical clinical work is the keynote in the changes in the courses of both the third and fourth years. The number of hours of instruction has also been materially increased.

It is expected that 35 or more men will have registered by Monday, making the largest entering class in years.

TENNS TOURNAMENT

During the past week the annual fall tournament has progressed to the final round. This match will be played by Merrill, '13, and Gardner, '13. Many close and interesting matches have been played and the new men have shown up well. The most closely contested matches were played by Merrill, '13, and Savage, '13, in the second round when the former won, 0-6, 6-3, 15-13; by Nixon, '13, and Card, '15, in the same round when Nixon won, 7-5, 12-10; and by Gardner, '13, and Eaton, '15, in the semi-finals when Gardner forced his way to the final round by winning, 10-8, 3-6, 7-5.

A partial summary of the matches follows:

SECOND ROUND
Auten, '12, defeated W. S. Greene, 13: 6-2, 3-6, 6-1; Merrill, '13, defeated Torrey, '12: 9-7, 6-4; Gardner, '13, defeated Nixon, '13: 7-5, 7-5; Eaton, '15, defeated Means, '12: 6-4, 6-8, 6-4.

SEMI-FINALS
Merrill, '13, defeated Auten, '12: 6-4, 6-3; Gardner, '13, defeated Eaton, '15: 10-8, 3-6, 7-5.

NOTICE FROM THE DEAN

Commencing with the next semester, no student will be allowed to take six courses, unless at least one-half of his grades for the preceding semester, are B or better.

(Signed), KENNETH C. M. SILLS, Dean.

A LETTER FROM THE QUILL BOARD

To the Alumni and Undergraduates of Bowdoin College:

GENTLEMEN: The Bowdoin Quill is beginning its sixteenth volume this year facing a financial crisis. The Quill has for years been a distinct literary success. Financially it has hitherto been a failure, because of the indifference of the alumni and the student body. This indifference, coupled with influences beyond our power to control, has driven the paper into debt to the extent of $250. It is the sentiment of the Quill Board that if this debt cannot be wiped out or at least materially reduced this year the publication of the Quill must cease. Literary excellence can never justify unpaid bills.

In this letter we mean simply to state facts that loyal Bowdoin men should know. We are grateful to those who have helped to support the Quill in the past, but we must have a longer and more loyal subscription list. If you wish Bowdoin College to edit a literary monthly in a creditable, business-like way, will you kindly see that your name is on our subscription list and that your subscription is promptly paid?

We will spare no effort to make the Quill an honor to the College we all love.

Respectfully yours,
LAURENCE A. CROSBY, Manager,
For the Board.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

The first college preacher this year, Rabbi Charles Fleischer, of Cambridge, Mass., spoke in the Church on the Hill and in chapel last Sunday. In the morning his text was "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself" and his subject was "Practical Religion." At afternoon chapel he spoke on the same subject. He emphasized the importance of self-respect and said that life is a fine art. "The masterful personality is best. Too many of us are dead to the world. It is never too late to learn and to become a doer of deeds, a poet of life."

Rabbi Fleischer was entertained at the Zeta Psi House Sunday evening where he met many of the college men for an informal talk.

Y. M. C. A. SPEAKER

The speaker at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Thursday, October 26, will be Hon. Augustus F. Moulton, '73, of Portland, Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Moulton has practised law in Portland since 1876. Before being called to the Bench he was prominent in politics, having been several times a member of the House of Representatives, Mayor of Deering, President of the Board of Aldermen in Portland, and successful campaign speaker. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

The subject is the first in the series of "Practical Applications of Christianity" and one on which Judge Moulton is especially qualified to speak, "Christian Principles Applied to Law."

Vol. XLI. OCTOBER 20, 1911 No. 13

At a meeting of the Board Tuesday afternoon, Dana K. Merrill and Richard E. Simpson of Portland, were elected members from the Class of 1914.

The Second Team

Now that the second football eleven has completed its short schedule we feel obliged to ask the question: "Does such a schedule of games help the college?" From the standpoint of men in secondary schools this question is answered by a clipping taken from the Portland Evening Express shortly after the Westbrook Seminary game. It reads as follows:

"Capt. Wheeler of the Seminary team is quite right in his stand regarding a game with a college second team. Such a team has no standing in athletic circles, as it does not even represent its college and goes into a game more for the fun than anything else. There is little satisfaction in defeating a team made up of second-rate men, and there is nothing on the other hand, to spur a preparatory school team to great effort if it is being outplayed. The best that can be said of such a game is that it gives the school some practice, at the risk of being crippled by injuries due to opposing a heavier eleven."

It is quite true that Bowdoin's second teams have not in the past few years represented the college as they ought. In this assertion we do not mean to say that the college has suffered a great deal on account of a string of defeats to its second elevens. It is well argued by the authorities that the games are played to reward the fellows for the way in which they have worked during the fall to help the first team. Such an argument is perfectly just and reasonable, but it is weakened by the very fact that men who are on the so-called second eleven had rather cancel a game than play on a team which does not properly represent the college. Evidently these men are the only ones concerned with the results of the games. If, then, they are the first to realize that the games ought not to be played we are forced to believe that the practice of holding second team games under the existing conditions, is wrong.

Every college man realizes what a strong advertisement an athletic team is to the college. When a college sends a team to a secondary school it must expect to have the team—made up of college men—watched and even criticised. If the team is not up to the standard then we infer that the college has been poorly represented. What effect does this have? From the above clipping we should think that the effect is far from beneficial. If secondary schools regard college competition as "second-rate" it is the business of the college to raise the standard of its representatives even in athletic departments.

Shall We Keep the Quill? In regard to the situation of the Bowdoin Quill which is stated in the letter printed in this issue, we can only emphasize all that it connotes. The question is one which must and ought to be settled by the undergraduates and alumni as a whole. When we consider that only a few over one hundred undergraduates were subscribers to the Quill last year, we readily see that this body has not done its duty. Certain individuals have been generous in contributions to this literary publication which compares well with that of any other college. One undergraduate made it possible last year to publish the Commencement number of the Quill through his own generosity. We all appreciate and admire the individual who has such loyalty. The time has come this fall when we must defend more loyally and truly the literary name which Longfellow and Hawthorne have given to our college. If we as undergraduates let the Quill be discontinued on account of failure to subscribe to it we give up our only means of preserving such a name. To keep the Quill as Bowdoin's literary publication every student in Bowdoin must support it.

Due to the forgetfulness of some fellow or his desire to play a joke on the student body, the music at chapel last Friday morning was necessarily omitted. The door leading up to the choir loft had been securely nailed evidently to keep the Freshmen from the bell-rope the day before. Whoever made conditions such might well be informed that as a practical joke the affair was unappreciated.

REGULATIONS FOR ORIENT BOARD

At a meeting of the Orient Board, Tuesday, the following regulations regarding the make-up of the board were passed.

Regulations

The Orient Board shall consist of an editor-in-chief, managing editor, alumni editor, eight associate editors, business manager and assistant business manager.

At the annual elections, held the third Monday in March, an editor-in-chief shall be elected from among the junior members of the board, an alumni editor shall be elected from among the Junior members of the board, and a managing editor shall be elected from among the Sophomore members of the board. The business manager shall be a Junior, preference being shown to one who has held the office of assistant business manager. The assistant business manager shall be elected by the board, from the Sophomore candidates. His fitness to serve shall be determined by the quality and quantity of the work done in competition.

The associate editors shall be elected in the following manner. Three Freshmen and one Sophomore shall be elected to the board annually, their fitness to serve being determined by the quality and quantity of the work submitted in competition.

When the editor-in-chief, alumni editor, or managing editor, shall have been absent from college during three consecutive issues of the Orient, the board shall immediately elect a successor from among the members of the board in the absent editor's class. Provided the absent editor returns within one college year he shall re-assume his position.

An associate editor who is absent from college one college year shall forfeit his membership on the board, and the board shall vote his position vacant. When an associate editor shall have been absent from college three consecutive months his name shall not appear on the list of members of the board published in each issue of the Orient. Upon his return his name shall again appear on the published list, provided he shall not have been absent one college year.

When the business manager shall be absent from college his duties shall be assumed pro tem., by the assistant business manager. Upon his return the manager shall re-assume his duties. Shall the assistant manager be absent more than one-half of a college year he shall forfeit his position and the vacancy shall be filled by an associate editor of the assistant manager's class.

In case of the absence of both business manager and assistant business manager, associate editors of the respective manager's classes, shall fill the vacancies for one-half year, and at the end of that time, if the vacancies continue, shall at a meeting of the board become business manager and assistant business manager, respectively.

When a vacancy shall occur among the associate editors the position or positions shall remain unoccupied until the next annual election, at which time the vacancy or vacancies shall be filled from among the Sophomore or Freshman candidates, preference being given to the former.

The rules governing eligibility to other college activities shall apply to the Orient elections.

Faculty Notes

During the past summer Prof. Lunt spent several months in England, engaged in historical research. He put in a considerable amount of his time in London at the Public Record Office, where the National manuscripts are recorded as far back as the English government records go, and at the British Museum. He also spent much time in looking over Cathedral archives.

He traveled through Chichester, Winchester, Canterbury, Norwich, Ely, Lichfield, Peterborough and Lincoln. He also passed several weeks in the university and college libraries at Cambridge and Oxford.

The cathedral towns are naturally the towns which are least progressive and retain many of the almost medieval customs. In these towns he stayed at inns which had been running from four to six hundred years.

All told it was a very pleasant and profitable trip as he obtained much valuable material.

Prof. Henry L. Chapman gave a lecture on "Skipper Ireson" before the Kennebec Historical Society at Augusta on Tuesday evening.
Seward J. Marsh, '12, and James A. Norton, '13, have returned from the 77th Annual Convention of Delta Upsilon, held under the auspices of Rutgers Chapter.

The first regular band rehearsal was held Tuesday night. A large number are out for positions.
The events in the interclass track meet which were to have been run off Wednesday, were postponed on account of rain.
The Glee Club held its first rehearsal in the Y. M. C. A. room Tuesday at 5 P.M., under Prof. Wass. There were twenty-three men out.
Y. M. C. A. Pejepscot Social Service work commences today. Later gymnasium work will be given in connection with the social work.
Thursday night, the Rev. John H. Nolin, pastor of the Episcopal Church in Lewiston, spoke at the Y. M. C. A. meeting. L. S. Foote, '12, led the meeting.

In the tournament between members of the Faculty and members of the student body Tuesday afternoon, MacCormick, '12, defeated Prof. Nixon, 6-4, 8-6, and Shepherd, '14, defeated Prof. Lunt, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

An informal Bowdoin Dinner will be held Tuesday, October 24, at Kall's Restaurant in New York. The committee in charge consists of: George R. Walker, '02, J. W. Frost, '04, Wallace M. Powers, '04, F. J. Redman, '07, and Harrison Atwood, '09.

Prof. Henry Johnson represented Bowdoin at the inauguration of Miss Ellen F. Pendleton as President of Wellesley College yesterday. He is also to be Bowdoin's delegate at the inauguration of Dr. Lemuel H. Murlin as President of Boston University to-day. Men prominent in educational circles all over the country will be present at these inaugurants.

Intercollegiate Notes

Constant increase in the number of students attending Dartmouth from the South and West has compelled the corporation to lengthen the Christmas vacation to eighteen days.
Plans for a $2,000,000 Library building at Harvard are now complete.
The new dormitory at Colby is fast nearing completion. "Roberts Hall," as the students have christened it, is three stories high, with outside dimensions 45 by 90 feet. Its cost will be $20,000.
The figures of enrolment of the Freshman Class at Harvard give some interesting information as to where the men come from. Out of 635 enrolled, Massachusetts leads with 435; New York is second with 45; New Hampshire third with 41; and Connecticut fourth with 20. The foreign countries represented are Canada, England, Germany and Switzerland.
A new system of examinations has been adopted to make it easier for men to get in from High Schools not preparing especially for Harvard examinations. Out of 83 admitted under the new plan, 47 are from outside Massachusetts, and 70 out of the 83 are from High Schools.
There has not been one Freshman hazed at the Oregon Agricultural College this year so far, a signal victory for the system of student self-government established last year.
When Tech is moved to its new location, the Alumni will be asked to "pay the freight." The cost will be $3,000,000, one million of which is already at hand.

The Commons at University of Maine, formerly used as a dining hall, has been remodeled for the use of the English Department. A decrease of one-third in cut allowances has been made at Wesleyan this year.

Credit in gymnasium work at Cornell can be secured by taking long walks three days a week.

The Marquis of Queensbury, in an address to 3,000 students at the University of Illinois, advised them to be "laughing, jolly, good old sporting Christians."

RESOLUTIONS

Hall of Theta, Delta Kappa Epsilon.

By the death of Brother Irving Wilson Nutter, which occurred at his home in Bangor on July 12, 1911, Theta Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon lost an honored and well-loved alumnus.

Brother Nutter was born in Bangor, October 6, 1886, and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1903. While in college he maintained high rank, being an honor man. During his Senior year he was Captain of the track team and manager of the football team. He was universally popular at college, as well as in his native city, where he was a member of several clubs and of the Chamber of Commerce. At the time of his death Brother Nutter was engaged in business with the Noyes and Nutter Manufacturing Company.

Hardly two months before his death Brother Nutter had been married to Miss Bertha Burnham Pember of Bangor, and to her and to his other relatives we extend our sincere sympathy.

Brunswick, October 16, 1911.

Hall of the Kappa of Psi Upsilon.

It is with deep regret that the Kappa Chapter of Psi Upsilon is called upon to record at its first opportunity the death on August the eighth of one of its oldest alumni, the Hon. William Pierce Frye of the Class of 1860.

His extended and distinguished career as a lawyer and legislator; his loyalty to his college and his fraternity; his devotion to his family and his country, and his sterling and unimpeachable integrity in everything will long serve as an inspiration. Realizing our loss we have, therefore Resolved, That we express our sorrow at his death and extend our sincere sympathy to those bound closer to him by ties of family and friendship.

Loring Pratt,
Theodore E. Emery,
Edgar R. Payson, Jr.,
For the Chapter.

Alumni Department

'75.—Dr. Woodbury Pulsifer is private secretary to the President of the Erie Railroad.

'82.—Wallace E. Mason, formerly Superintendent of Schools in North Andover, Mass., is now principal of the State Normal School at Keene, N. H.

Ex.-'94.—Archie G. Axtell has been, since September, 1910, Principal of the Blanche Kellogg Institute, an institution under the auspices of the American Missionary Association at Santurce, a suburb of San Juan, Porto Rico.

'95.—Dr. Walter A. S. Kimball, first assistant at Togus, finished his duties there Thursday, and went to his former home in Portland to open practice for himself. Dr. Kimball was on the staff of the Maine General Hospital in Portland before going to the Home at Togus in June, 1899.

'95.—Capt. Webber, 3d Company, C. A. C., N. G. S. M., of Auburn, makes known his intention to resign after three most successful years of service with his company. To the members of his company, his resignation comes not only as a surprise but also as a great loss on their part.

'98.—Donald MacMillan returned to his home in Freeport Oct. 13, from a four months trip to Labrador, where he has been studying the Eskimos and Indians.

'03.—Dr. William E. Youland has been elected interne at the New Webber Hospital in Biddeford. Dr. Youland is now in New York, where, awaiting the opening of the Hospital, he is pursuing a course in electro-chemistry and the use of the Roentgen ray in combating illness and injuries.

'03.—Irving W. Nutter, superintendent of the foundry of the Noyes & Nutter Manufacturing Co., died July 12 after an acute case of Bright's disease. Mr. Nutter was exceedingly popular in his home city, Bangor, and will be missed by his many social and business friends. He is survived by a widow.

'04.—A daughter, Susan, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace M. Powers on Monday, September 25, in New York City. Mrs. Powers was before her marriage, Miss Sarah Merriman of Brunswick.
'06.—Chester C. Tuttle of Buckfield, is now principal of the Biddeford High School. Mr. Tuttle was graduated from the Edward Little High School in Auburn, and from Bowdoin. He began teaching at the age of 17 years, and has taught in Buckfield, was principal of the High School at Bryant's Pond for two years, and principal of the Caribou High School in 1909-1910. The past year he did post-graduate work at Harvard.

'07.—Dwight S. Robinson, who for four years has been connected with the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Powder Co., has recently been transferred from Woodbury, N. J., to Washburn, Wisconsin. In his new place, Mr. Robinson will be second assistant superintendent, and will have full charge of half the plant.

'08.—Frederick Pennell, Attorney-at-Law, has offices at 85 Exchange St., Portland, Me.

'08.—Ensign Otis and Miss Elizabeth A. Farwell were married at the bride’s residence in Rockland Tuesday, Oct. 9. The couple will reside at 21 Lindsey Street, Rockland. Mr. Otis is a prominent young newspaper man. He is coroner for Knox county and is also trustee for the state juvenile institutions.

'08.—Charles Edward Files is Athletic Instructor at Portland High School this year.

'09.—Jasper J. Stahl is Instructor of Modern Languages at Reed College, Portland, Oregon. This new college of the West is under the direction of President Foster, formerly Professor in Education at Bowdoin. Next year Prof. Stahl will be at the head of the German Department and thus will be given the rare opportunity of opening a Language Department in America’s newest College.

As an undergraduate while at Bowdoin, Mr. Stahl was president of the Debating Council, a member of the intercollegiate debating team, a member of the Board of Proctors and of the Student Council. He was an editor of both the Orient and the Quill. In his Junior year, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and was awarded the Goodwin prize for the highest scholarship standing at the end of his third year. In his Senior year, he was an Instructor in German. He was then awarded the Henry W. Longfellow fellowship for general excellence in belles lettres. Mr. Stahl was a member of the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

Since July, 1909, Mr. Stahl has been carrying on special work in Germanic philology and literature at the University of Munich and at the University of Berlin. He was a member of the Germanic Seminar at the University of Berlin, and of the International Studenten Verein. While on the continent, he traveled in Italy, Switzerland, Tyrol, Austria, and Bohemia.

'10.—Harold E. Rowell is principal of the East Jaffrey High School. Last year he was instructor in the Chauncy Hall School in Boston.

'10.—The engagement of Miss Viola M. Dixon of Freeport, and William E. Atwood of Auburn, is announced.

'10.—Gardner W. Cole is principal of Foxcroft Academy this fall.

'10.—Henry Q. Hawes is principal of the new Mechanics’ Institute at Rumford, an institution just supplied that town by the generosity of Hugh Chisholm and other influential men of Rumford.

BOWDOIN VS. COLBY AT WATERVILLE

Bowdoin will play her first game of the Maine series at Waterville to-morrow, where she will meet the fast Colby team. This is considered to be one of the hardest games of the season, as Colby showed by her overwhelming defeat of Bates last Saturday that she will make a strong bid for the championship. The Bowdoin team has had an enforced rest for two weeks owing to the cancellation of the Norwich game, but those have been two weeks of the hardest kind of practice.

The members of the squad are all in first-class condition with the exception of Weatherill, the speedy half-back and his place will probably be filled by LaCasce who has been showing up especially well in practice during the last week.

The team will go into the game with Capt. Jack Hurley at right end, which assures us that that position will be well cared for. Next to him will be Hall, '14, or Pike, both of whom are sure to make good. At right guard will be the old veteran "Brosie" Burns, whose ability has often been felt for the last two seasons. In Douglas at center, we are sure of one of the best defensive players in the state, and Badger and McMahon will be right there in case anything happens to Douglas. At left guard, with Simpson as sub guard, will be Leo Pratt, who played such fine ball in 1909, and next to him will be Wood, recognized as one of the best men in the line. Left end will be cared for by either Hinch, Page, Wing, or Joe Brown.

In the backfield, Crosby and Dole will be seen at quarter, both of whom are known to be able to run the team to good advantage. At right half Henry Faulkner, the speedy "find" of the season will be seen and that he will make the Waterville boys go some to stop him or get by him is certain. His running mate will be LaCasce, who has shown such fine ability at booting the ball, and who is also a good ground gainer. At fullback will be the old reliable "Farmer" Kern of whose ability nothing need be said.

Although judging from the comparative scores Colby has a little the advantage, it is needless to say that comparative scores are deceptive and that Bowdoin Spirit will be shown by every man's fighting his best until the whistle blows.

However, to help the team, a lot of Bowdoin Spirit will be needed on the side lines. Manager King has made arrangements for especially low rates and it is hoped that every undergraduate will be seen at Waterville cheering for the White.

MERRILL WINS IN TENNIS FINALS

R. W. Merrill, 1913, of Hillsdale, Ill., defeated D. E. Gardner, 1913, of Calais, by the score 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 14-12, in the finals of the fall tennis tournament, Wednesday afternoon. Merrill gradually wore down his opponent but was held off, in the deciding set, for twenty-five games. The tournament served its purpose by bringing out new men, since none of those at the head of the list have appeared before as likely candidates for the team.

INTERCLASS TRACK MEET

The Interclass Track Meet, which was held on Whittier Field Thursday and Friday, accomplished its object by bringing to the notice of the captain and coach new men who promise to be factors in the Maine Intercollegiate Track Meet.

Captain Cole, ’12, by winning seventeen points, showed that he is in good condition to lead the team to which we pin our hopes. Smith, ’15, showed up exceedingly well as did Faulkner, ’15, and Lewis, ’15. Smith won two events, finished second in two others and took third place in the 75-Yard Dash; Faulkner won the Shot Put with 41’ 5" and Lewis won the Hammer Throw with 124’ 3". The closely contested 1½ Mile Run called forth much applause from the spectators.

The classes finished in the following order:

1915—34
1913—20
1914—16
The summary of events:

SHOT PUT—Won by Faulkner, ’15, 41 ft. 5 in.; 2d, Kern, ’12, 39 ft. 8 in.; 3d, A. Lewis, ’15, 38 ft. 3 in.
HAMMER THROW—Won by A. Lewis, ’15, 124 ft. 3 in.; 2d, H. Hall, ’14, 111 ft. 7 in.; 3d, Wood, ’13, 105 ft. 2 in.
Pole Vault—Won by Smith, ’15, 8 ft. 6 in.; 2d, Merrill, ’14, 8 ft. 3 in.; 3d, Cole, 12 ft. 8 in.
Broad Jump—Won by Smith, ’15, 19 ft. 7 in.; 2d, Floyd, ’15, 10 ft. 6 in.; 3d, Cole, ’12, 18 ft. 4 in.
75-YARD DASH—Won by Cole, ’12; 2d, McKenney, ’12; 3d, Smith, ’15. Time—8 1-5 sec.
120-YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by McKenney, ’12; 2d, Jones; 3d, Donahue, ’14. Time—15 sec.
660-YARD RUN—Won by Wilson, ’12; 2d, Haskell, ’13; 3d, Hughes, ’12. Time—1 min. 33 1-5 sec.
1 1-2-MILE RUN—Won by Hall, ’13; 2d, Timmerlake, ’12; 3d, Auten, ’12. Time—8 min. 5 2-5 sec.
HIGH JUMP—Won by Greene, ’13; 2d, L. Brown, ’14; 3d, Nichols, ’12. Height—5 ft. 2 in.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST

The scores of matches played thus far in the Bowdoin Golf Club Championship contest for the cup offered by Dean Sills, are as follows:

R. F. White, ’12, Loring, ’15, won by White, 3 up and 2 to play.
Twombly, ’13, C. Tuttle, ’13, won by Tuttle, 6 up and 5 to play.
Trotter, ’14, P. E. Donahue, ’14, won by Donahue, 2 up.
M. W. Greene, ’13, L. A. Donahue, ’14, won by Donahue, 6 up and 5 to play.
Elwell, ’15, Joy, ’12, won by Joy, 1 up.
Brooks, ’12, Skifield, ’13, won by Skifield, 6 up and 5 to play.
Mason, ’14, P. S. Smith, ’15, won by Smith, 3 up and 2 to play.

MEDICAL CLASS OF 1915

The list of students registering in the Class of 1915 in the Medical School, is as follows:
Linwood Hill Johnson, Portland.
George Craigin Kern, Portland.
William Bushman Melaugh, Portland.
Berton Charles Morrill, Augusta.
Sidney Collingwood Dalrymple, Medford, Mass.
Ralph Lester Barrett, East Summer.
Philip Albert Kimball, Tamworth, N. H.
Lawrence McFarland, Portland.
Herbert Francis Hale, New Sharon.
Robert Cole Pletts, Brunswick.
Carl George Dennett, Saco.
Harold Linwood Doten, Lewiston.
Holland George Hamilton, Brunswick.
William Dehue Anderson, Portland.
Arthur Hale Parcer, Ellsworth.
William Satterlee Leavenworth, Gales Ferry, Conn.
Eugene Leslie Hutchins, North New Portland.
George Alton Tibbetts, Brunswick.
Herbert Luther Lombard, Bridgton.
Nahum Roy Pillsbury, Biddeford.
William John Connor, Augusta.
Wendell Otis Philbrook, Greene.
Cornelius James Driscoll, Woodfords.
Raymond Willis Clark, Egypt, Me.
Chilborne R. Sylbert, Geneva, Switzerland.
Ralph Ellis Nutter, Alfred.
Gard Wilson Twaddle, Bethel.
Fred Lincoln Kateon, Bath.
Charles Wesley Kingham, Yarmouthville.
Burleigh Burton Mansfield, South Hope.
Allan Woodcock, Bangor.
Frank Arthur Smith, Calais.
Augustus Elihu Alden, Portland.

An interesting circumstance in connection with the registration is the fact that several men prominent in athletic circles in the state, have enrolled in this class. Among the number are "Bert" Morrill, Frank Smith, "Farmer" Kern, Lawrence McFarland and Allan Woodcock, who have been conspicuous on Bowdoin teams, and Twaddle of Hebron, Driscoll of Westbrook Seminary, and Connor of Augusta.

MEDICAL SCHOOL RECEPTION

On Monday evening, Oct. 23, the second annual reception was given to the men of the Medical School by the Y. M. C. A. A large number of Medical men were present. The speakers were introduced by President MacCormick who outlined the work of the Y. M. C. A. and invited them to take part in all its branches. President Hyde then welcomed them to the college and urged them to get into touch with religious work while here as the many temptations of a doctor’s life made it necessary. Dean Thayer explained the purpose and work of the school. Dr. Tobie warned the men of the difficulties that they would meet, but said that they were necessary to secure a good medical knowledge. R. D. Cole welcomed them on behalf of the Academic men and urged them to take part in some of the athletics and other activities of the college. Refreshments were served.

The committee in charge were H. V. Bickmore, Medlic, '14, Chairman; C. E. Fogg, M. '14, J. H. Moulton, M. '14, W. D. Skillin, M. '14.

To Waterville

In her first championship game of the year Bowdoin will meet Colby on Alumni Field at Waterville, to-morrow afternoon. With the team’s record for the season to look back upon it is only a matter of conjecture as to what Bowdoin men can look for to-morrow. The team has had hard games and played in exceedingly fast company but it has not played poor football. The fact that we have lost all our important scheduled games this season does not mean that we have not a team this year to depend upon. Nor does it mean that our responsibility is at all lessened. On the other hand every man who can beg, borrow or steal the necessary cash should find himself in Waterville when that game is called. During the past two weeks the team has been working afternoons and evenings to get into the best possible condition for these State games. We have very little reason to feel over-confident but we have every reason to know that the men who represent the White on the field in to-morrow’s game will work for a victory. Let the same spirit of fight and determination be shown in the bleachers and whether we lose or win every Bowdoin man will have done his best.

Fraternity Conditions

At a recent meeting of the course in English 6 which was largely attended by representative men of the college outside the course, the fraternity pledging system, or lack of system, at Bowdoin, was discussed with a view to inquiring into present conditions and suggesting possible improvements. It was a discussion worth while. It probably brought out a true picture of conditions as they are. If that is so, Bowdoin should congratulate herself upon the discovery that she has no fraternity question. She ought to be proud to learn that her eight fraternities and her non-fraternity students, who are by virtue of circumstances, in effect a ninth member in the fraternity group, live side by side in absolute harmony, with a courteous consideration and respect for each other which is an inspiration to behold.

The writer, by the advantage of a more or less active fraternity interest for some time which has led to his visiting several New England colleges on fraternity business, would not think of comparing interfraternity relations at Bowdoin with interfraternity relations as he has observed them in other New England colleges where elaborate codes of rules exist for the shaping of interfraternity interests.

We believe that Bowdoin ought, by right, to congratulate herself. But she should do more than that. It is imperative that she keep steadily on to the perfection of a system which is potent with good or evil accordingly as it is wisely used or selfishly abused, cognizant of the fact that our present happy conditions and prosperous outlook for the future are due to the high ethical standards voluntarily maintained by the fraternities in their relations with each other and to the unselfish devotion of these smaller units to the best interests of the college, without which they could not exist.

MEETING OF THE STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council held its first regular meeting of the year last Thursday in the Deutscher Verein room in Hubbard Hall. It voted to accept the resignations of Ashley, '12, and McMurtrie, '13, as publishers of the college calendar. Also to allow the management of the college band to circulate a subscription. It was further voted that a member of the Student Council should take charge of the Freshmen class elections this fall.

The Council will hold during the year weekly meetings on Monday evenings at eight o'clock in the Deutscher Verein room. At these meetings all matters relating to the undergraduate life will be discussed and acted upon.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On Friday, Oct. 20, the work was started at Pejepscot by an entertainment in the schoolhouse. Those who took part were Adams, '12, Eaton, '14, Card, '15, Hall, '15, and Weintz, '15. The Sunday School was opened on Sunday and it is planned to start the Boys' Club this week. The committee in charge this year is C. Brown, '14, Chairman; Gray, '14, and Crosby, '13. This work offers an opportunity for helping the boys up there to have a good time and teaching them something that is worth while. The committee would be glad to know the names of any who would like to take part in this work.

Faculty Notes

President Hyde spoke Wednesday night in Cambridge at the dedication of the new buildings of Andover Theological Seminary.

On Friday night President Hyde was at Phillips-Exeter Academy, where, as one of the trustees, he accepted for the school a memorial library.

Many of the members of the Faculty were present at the meetings of the Maine Teachers' Association, held at Augusta on Thursday and Friday.

REVISED PLANS FOR THE NEW GYM

The plans and specifications are nearly ready for submission to contractors for bids for constructing the new gymnasiun and athletic building. Last June, after President Hyde had announced the subscription of more than enough money for the building, the gymnasium committee at once engaged as architects, Allen & Collens of Boston, with which firm is associated Felix A. Burton, Bowdoin, '07. Since then the architects have been working to prepare satisfactory plans for the building, taking as a basis for their work the plans given in the president's report of last June. In all, eight sets of plans have been prepared, several changes have been made, and every effort has been made to get the best possible facilities for physical training and indoor athletics for the college.

Dr. F. N. Whittier, chairman of the committee, has visited some of the finest gymnasiuims in the East, in order to study the ideas of construction in these buildings and to avoid mistakes in arrangement which have been made at other institutions. Mr. Collens of the architects accompanied Dr. Whittier to Hanover to study the new Dartmouth gymnasium.

The latest set of plans, with full specifications for building, were considered by the committee at a recent meeting. Two members of the committee were not able to present at this meeting, but copies of the plans and specifications have been sent to them, and unless they or the other members who are now considering the plans suggest changes, the bids for construction will be called for in a short time.

The building, as now planned, is to be erected between the Sargent gymnasium and the observatory, the entrance facing the quadrangle between King Chapel and Maine Hall. The connecting building between the gymnasium and the Thomas W. Hyde athletic building has been done away with, and the structures will be erected with a single wall between. The gymnasium proper will measure 140 by 80 feet, and the athletic building 160 by 120 feet. The building will be of brick with rough stone trimmings. In addition to the light furnished by the windows in the walls, each building will be topped with monitors, which will give a better quality of light for indoor athletics than skylights would give. A light grade and stone steps will lead to the entrance of the gymnasium proper, and from the hallways stairs will lead down to the first floor, which will be at ground level, and another flight of stairs will lead to the second floor.

A corridor will run the length of the first floor of the gymnasium building. To the left of this will be an office for the managers of the various teams, where each will have a desk. This room will be 24 by 23 feet. Next this, on the left, will be office, 12x24, for the athletic instructor; a room for boxing, 28x32; a room for fencing, 29x32; a hand-ball court, 25x32; a hallway with stairs leading to the floor above, and an entrance to the athletic building for baseball men. On the right will be a locker room for the faculty and visiting athletic teams, containing showers, closets, bowls, etc.; a large section containing lockers for 500 men, a bathroom with seven showers, a small bathroom with tubs; a room for rubbing; and a toilet room. At the right end of the corridor will be two storage rooms, 11 by 32 feet.

The second floor of the gymnasium building will be reached by two stairways, one leading directly from the entrance and one from the other end of the building near the locker room. This floor will have the main exercising room, 112x76; a special exercising room, 23x24, for the carrying out of the exercises prescribed for students to correct physical defects; and two offices which would also be used for physical examinations.

Above the offices and the special exercising room will be a trophy room, reached from the hallway of the second floor. It is planned to keep there all athletic trophies, including cups, footballs, baseballs, and pennants won by Bowdoin teams. The trophies of former years are being collected by Dr. Whittier and will be put in order as soon as the building is ready. Arranged in the trophy room will be oak tablets, on which will be inscribed the names of all who have contributed for the construction of the building, the alumni and the students arranged according to classes, and the friends of the college arranged in order. The trophy room will be open on the side toward the gymnasium floor and will serve as a visitors’ gallery.

ATHLETIC BUILDING

The General Thomas W. Hyde athletic building will be surpassed by none in New England. The frame of the building will be of steel, and the floor of screened gravel subsoil. It will be reached from the locker room by two doors, one for the baseball men and one for the track men. The outside entrance will be large enough for a two-horse team. The building will serve for indoor practice for all of the outdoor sports now in vogue at Bowdoin. There will be an excellent opportunity for football practice when the squad cannot get out of doors. Goal posts can be erected at one end so as to give opportunity for practice in kicking 40-yard goals. There will be room for a full-sized diamond, with 15 feet on the outside of each of the baselines, to give opportunity to overrun bases. Tennis courts may be marked out when desired. A portion of the building next the gymnasium proper will be netted off for track athletics, giving a space 120 feet by 40 feet for practicing the shot put, high jump, broad jump, pole vault, short dashes, hurdles, and other events. Thirteen feet above the floor around the building will be a running track, 12 laps to the mile, with the corners raised three and one-half feet. The track will be reached from the gymnasium floor and by spiral stairways from each corner of the building next the gymnasium. The track will be separated from the diamond by a net. This building will be a welcome asset to the equipment of Bowdoin athletics, as track and baseball work can be carried on throughout the entire winter months. The annual indoor meet and athletic exhibition will, in the future, be held in this building.

Special attention will be paid to the ventilation of the buildings. Fresh air will be taken from the Hyde building into the gymnasium building through two ducts, with outlets under the radiators and in the ceiling. A blower will change the air, and when the blower is not in use, the air will be carried up by gravity by means of a steam coil placed high in the vent between the two structures. In the athletic building the radiators will be placed under the running track seven feet from the floor. By means of fans the air in the main exercising room can be changed in twenty minutes.

The new building will probably be ready for use by next Fall, and the last work in the Sargent gymnasium will probably be held this winter.
GUESTS AT INITIATIONS

The following is a list of the alumni and delegates who attended the fraternity initiations, Tuesday evening:

The members of the Psi Upsilon and Theta Delta Chi fraternities entertained their usual number of loyal alumni and delegates from other chapters, but nothing definite could be obtained concerning them.

At the Delta Kappa Epsilon House the following old grads were back: George L. Thompson, '77; of Brunswick; John Clair Minot, '96, of Boston; Harlan M. Bisbee, '98, of Exeter, N. H.; Harvey P. Winslow, '96, of Portland; K. C. M. Sils, '01, of Brunswick; Robert K. Eaton, '05, of Brunswick; Harold S. Elder, '06, of Portland, and Ernest G. Field, '11, of Brunswick. In addition to these Ernest N. Cole, Colby, '12, as representative of Xi Chapter, and Bradley T. Ross, M. I. T., '12, of Rensselaer, Ind., as delegate from Sigma Tau Chapter, were also present.

The Zeta Psi graduates who returned to their chapter for this occasion were: Prof. Henry L. Johnson, '74; Harry C. Wilbur, '94; Lyman A. Cousins, '02; Henry A. Peabody, '03; Harold W. Files, '03; H. J. Everett, '04; Prof. William E. Lunt, '04; E. J. Bradbury, '05; J. A. Clark, '05; J. S. Simmons, '09; Ralph W. Smith, 'to. The delegates from the sister chapters were: Ralph J. Paulkham, Colby, '12, from Chi Chapter, and Walter J. Rideout, Colby, '12, from the same chapter.

The graduates of Delta Upsilon were: Samuel W. Pearson, '00; Joseph S. Stetson, '97; Guy C. Howard, '98; George S. Wheeler, '98; Harrie Wheeler, '98; Farnsworth G. Marshall, '98; Emery O. Beane, '04; Thomas Walker, '96; Alfred W. Vandtke, '10; Lawrence McFarland, '11; Waldo T. Skillin, '11; and DeForest Weeks, '11. The Colby Chapter was represented by Maurice Lord, '12. Graduate from other chapters were Prof. Frederic W. Brown, Harvard, '97; Samuel B. Purush, Amherst, '97; Prof. William Hawley Davis, Harvard, '05.

Kappa Sigma entertained the following: J. Everett Hicks, '95; M. E. Clough, '90; H. P. Ballard, '10; Edward T. Penley, '91; R. W. Smith, '97. The other chapters in New England were represented as follows: Psi Chapter, C. W. Wescott, '12, of University of Maine; Alpha Lambda, B. F. Andrews, '12, of University of Vermont; Gamma Epsilon, M. T. Poore, '12, of Dartmouth; Beta Kappa, J. B. Pettingill, '12; of New Hampshire State College; Gamma Eta, H. V. Baill of Harvard.

Beta Theta Pi had the following graduates back: H. H. Randall, '00; G. R. Gardner, '01; H. D. Evans, '01; R. C. Bisbee, '03; G. H. Morrill, '07; W. S. Linnell, '07; E. C. Pope, '07; W. B. Roberts, '07; D. P. Koughan, '09; E. H. Hobbs, 'to; A. S. Pope, 'to; S. S. Webster, 'to; M. G. L. Bailey, '10; H. V. Bickmore, '11; J. E. Carland, '11; and G. H. Macomber, '11. From other chapters were E. A. White, Amherst, '89; S. P. Hitchcock, Cornell, '01; B. A. Bearce, University of Maine, '11; B. O. Warren, University of Maine, '11; R. S. Hopkinson, University of Maine, '12; F. A. Knight, Boston University, '13; R. H. Trott, Dartmouth, '14.

NOTICE

For the benefit of those who wish to bring any matters to the attention of the Student Council, that body announces that it will meet each week on Monday evening in the Deutscher Verein Room in Hubbard Hall. Communications to the Council may be handed to any of its members or deposited in the Orient's mail box in East Maine.

The Council must appoint at once the men who will have charge of publishing the college calendar this year. All who wish to try for the job should hand in their names now. One man will be chosen from the senior class and one from the junior class. Action will probably be taken at the next meeting so all names must be in by Monday night.

STUDENT MASS MEETING

On next Thursday evening there will be a Students' meeting in the Y. M. C. A. room at which college problems will be discussed by prominent men in college. The speakers will be J. L. Hurley, '12, "Centralization of Athletics"; R. D. Cole, '12, "College Spirit"; C. F. Adams, '12, "Cribbing"; F. A. Smith, '12, "College Ideas." These are things which every man is interested in and it will be worth while to see what these fellows have to say on them.

Alumni Department

The College is anxious to receive information about any of its graduates who may be engaged in teaching, and will be greatly obliged if the names of such graduates, with the positions that they at present occupy, are sent in to the Dean of the College.

'62.—Rev. Charles Henry Pope, an accomplished Boston genealogist, has completed his work upon the genealogy of the Prouty family, and now publishes it as the “Prouty Genealogy.” The “Register” of the New England Historic Genealogical Society for April, 1911, contains the following notice concerning Mr. Pope’s ability, “The Prouty Genealogy is arranged after the system used in the Register, and Mr. Pope’s work is so well known that his name on the title-page is a sufficient guaranty for the excellence of the book.”

'72.—At the recent session of the Farmers’ National Congress, held at Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 16, George M. Whitaker of Washington, D. C., was elevated to the position of President. His work as National Secretary has been so successful that the Congress gave him the new office by way of promotion. Mr. Whitaker has been a prominent journalist, and has always had a deep interest in farmers’ affairs. He is now one of the valuable men located in the dairy division of the department of agriculture.

'06.—Romilly Johnson is now singing to crowded houses, grand opera in Italy. His début was made a few months ago as Conte Rodolfo in La Sonnambula and so successfully both for singing and acting that he was at once offered the position of leading bass in the company which is now touring the north Italian cities. Mr. Johnson’s name also lends itself readily to operatic uses, and he appears before the public as Giovanni Romilli.

BOWDOIN VS. BATES AT LEWISTON

One year ago to-day the football team representing Bates, after a decisive victory over Maine journeyed down to Brunswick and fought all the afternoon with the scrappy team representing the White and at the end the score was a tie. To-morrow that same institution is to meet Bowdoin on the gridiron at Garcelon Field, Lewiston, having again sent Maine home vanquished one week previous. Needless to say, both teams are determined that this year there will be a decision as to which is the better team and needless to say, both teams will play as only Bates and Bowdoin do play when they meet in their annual gridiron struggle. Since 1904 the winner of this annual contest has not made a greater score than a touchdown and goal. To-morrow either team will be satisfied if they can win by that margin.

The mere fact that it is Bowdoin vs. Bates, should mean that every man that treads the paths of our campus will take the trip up to Lewiston to-morrow, but with conditions as they are, it is imperative. If Bowdoin wins to-morrow it will be in line for the State championship, and this thing we want and must have. From the large crowd that took the trip to Waterville and the enthusiasm displayed during the game, we are inclined to be optimistic and believe that there will be such an exodus from our gates to-morrow as happens only during vacations.

Weatherill will probably be seen again in the backfield, as his ankle is now in fairly good shape. Leo Pratt who broke a bone in his hand in the third scrimmage of the Colby game last Saturday and with that handicap played a remarkable defensive game will be out with his injury, and either Simpson, Pike or Weeks will play his position. Douglas is in bad shape after his gruelling game at Waterville, but will probably be seen in the line-up at his old position. Aside from these changes the team will present the usual line-up. Bates seems to be playing a very open game this year, relying a great deal on the forward pass, and it is a question whether Coach Bergin will rely on his strong defense and straight football to win the game or whether he will meet Bates' open play with a varied and open attack. At any rate the game will be an interesting one to watch and sensations in the line of passes and long runs will be features. All aboard for Lewiston!

BOWDOIN, 0; COLBY, 0

"The best Maine State game I ever saw," was the verdict of nearly every football fan, as he left Alumni Field, Waterville, last Saturday, after he had watched Bowdoin and Colby use every effort and last bit of strength and endurance in vain efforts to put the elusive pigskin over the last white chalk mark or boot it between the upright standards which meant victory. The weather was perfect, the field was never in better shape and both grandstands were filled to overflowing with defenders of the White and the Blue and Gray. Time and again it looked as if one or the other team was to win and alternately the rooters thought they would soon be counting the score, but when the hour of struggle was over the supremacy of either of the two teams was as far from being decided as if they had never played, as far as the score settles that question.

It was a case of a heavy, powerful team with a brilliant offense, against a hitherto unknown and unheralded aggregation, with a magnificently stubborn defence and an offense which showed brilliant flashes of form, but could not carry the ball for a touchdown. The offensive work of the two Freshmen, Harry Faulkner for Bowdoin and Fraser for Colby was of an order seldom seen on Maine grid-irons and the punting of the two was also very good. In offensive work Wood and Kern for Bowdoin and Good for Colby all did the greatest share of the work. In backfield work, especially in the receiving of punts, Crosby and LaCasee surprised everyone by the clean manner in which they caught and ran back the spirals from Fraser's toe.

In defensive work there were no stars. Every member of the eleven fought with grit and determination that can only be explained by the Bowdoin spirit.
again they were called upon to defend their goal when under its very shadow and the score tells how well they did their task. The centre trio, Burns, Douglas and Pratt, outweighed nearly twenty pounds to the man, fought like demons, Douglas especially with a sore arm and game leg fought with a spirit which was an inspiration to his team-mates.

Wood was a tower of strength on both defense and offense and Hall played a remarkable game for his first intercollegiate contest. "Stan" Hinch and "Jack" Hurley on the ends had lots of work to do and came through in fine shape.

The feature of the game came at the end of the second period, when Harry Faulkner intercepted a forward pass on Bowdoin's fifteen-yard line and dashed down the field for what seemed to be a sure touchdown, but was hauled down on Colby's 8-yard line by the fleet Roy Good. Bowdoin's chance to score was lost by the call of time before a scrimmage could be started. Twice Colby came within kicking distance of Bowdoin's goal, but on both attempts the ball went wide of the mark. Colby made use of the forward pass for substantial gains and worked their shift play to good advantage during the second half.

Although both teams had a well-developed offense, the stronger defense created an exhibition, for the most part, of defensive playing. In the third period both teams resorted to the kicking game, and again in the fourth period a punting duel ensued. There were a number of penalties on both sides, but the game was not marred by this feature. The work of the officials was very satisfactory.

The game in detail was as follows:

At the beginning of the first period Colby kicked off to Bowdoin, the ball being received by Wood who was downed on Bowdoin's 30-yard line. Faulkner circled right end for 4 yards and on the next play fumbled the pass and the ball went to Colby. On their first attempt to gain, Soule was thrown for a 4-yard loss and they lost the ball on downs. Faulkner for Bowdoin punted on first down for 45 yards. Fraser made two through left guard and Good followed with five off tackle. Fraser then punted to Kern who brought the ball back to Bowdoin's 45-yard line. Wood then made the first substantial gain of the day with a twenty-yard gain around right end on a tackle-around play. An unsuccessful attempt at a forward pass, Hinch to Hurley, followed and Bowdoin was forced to punt. Bagnall carried the ball back to Colby's 40-yard line and on the next three plays Colby made distance. A penalty of 5 yards forced the Waterville team, however, to punt and Crosby, receiving, was downed on Bowdoin's 40-yard line.

Kern took the ball for a short end run but was penalized for crawling with the ball. Faulkner did not get off well on the next play and Bowdoin was forced to punt again. With the ball well in Bowdoin's territory Good was thrown back for a loss by Burns on the first down and Fraser punted to LaCasce and it was Bowdoin's ball on their 30-yard line. Wood made his second long gain around right end, this time for 20 yards, but the White could not follow up this advantage with more yardage. Neither side was able to get yardage on the next succession of plays and was forced to punt on third down. The battle was then waged back and forth, neither side getting within kicking distance of the other's goal and the first period ended with the ball in Bowdoin's possession on their 40-yard line.

Kern opened up the second session with a plunge through right guard for 5 yards, but Faulkner was forced to punt on third down and the ball went to Colby on their 40-yard line. The forward pass was used for the first time with success on the next play, Fraser to Beach. On the next down Fraser was brought to earth with no gain, but followed with 3 yards outside of tackle which put the ball dangerously near our goal posts. A drop kick, however, by Fraser failed.

Kern took the ball for a 10-yard gain on the next play but the ball changed hands on third down. Colby failed to make distance in turn and Kern for Bowdoin pulled off another gain, this time for 6 yards. Wood failed to make it first down and Faulkner punted to Fraser who was downed on Colby's 40-yard line. Colby tried a forward pass but failed and on second down Good was thrown for a 5-yard loss. Colby punted and in turn, Bowdoin was forced to punt on third down. Good received the kick and returned it 25 yards with a brilliant run before he was downed. His teammates could not gain thru Bowdoin's line, however, and Fraser punted to Crosby, the ball being downed in the centre of the field.

Then followed a punting duel in which Colby got a little the better and by substantial gains around end and a successful forward pass, Fraser to Soule, gained 15 yards. On the next play, Colby tried to repeat the trick, and by so doing came as close as teams can come to losing the game; for it was here that Faulkner intercepted the throw and dashed down the field for an 87-yard run, being tackled on Colby's 7-yard line by Roy Good. Just as the White as lining up to make those last 7 yards the whistle blew and the first half was up.

The second half opened with no changes in the line-ups of the opposing teams. Fraser kicked off and Kern was downed after a short return. Faulkner kicked on first down. Colby made good gains and with their shift play brought the ball down well into Bowdoin's territory but lost the ball on downs. Wood got away with another long gain around right end and was downed by Fraser after a 15-yd. gain. Kern followed this up by rushing through centre for 7 yards, and then the team was set back by a 15-yard penalty. Faulkner was forced to punt and then followed another series of short gains and exchange of punts by both teams which ended by a gain of 20 yards by Good through centre. Colby again worked their shift play for good gains and took the ball down the field to Bowdoin's 5-yard line and then stopped, or rather, were stopped by that stonewall defence which the White always presented when their goal was in danger. The quarter ended with the ball in the possession of Bowdoin on her own 25-yard line.

Kern opened the last period with a substantial gain, but on the next play a forward pass was fumbled and it was Colby's ball on Bowdoin's 40-yard line. Fraser and Good, Colby's two speedy backs, made first down and from this point Fraser made another try at a field goal which failed.

Bowdoin took the ball for scrimmage on their 25-yard line and Faulkner made 6 through right tackle. Short gains followed but the ball soon changed hands and was kept shifting back and forth for some time. This see-saw resulted in gradual gains for Colby, although their offence was successful only outside of Bowdoin's 25-yard line. With 7 minutes to play, Bowdoin made a last desperate rally. Faulkner broke away for a sensational 23-yard gain around right end and Kern bucked the line for 3 yards. A five-yard penalty forced Bowdoin to punt.

Good tried an end run and was forced back by LaCasce. At this point Douglas was replaced by McMahon and Royal took the place of Beach for Colby. Fraser punted to Colby and it was Bowdoin's ball in the centre of the field. Neither team seemed able to make first down and a kicking duel followed. Pratt was replaced by Simpson, Hall by Weeks and Hinch, by Page. Colby put in Crosman for C. Soule. The last play of note was Fraser's punt to Crosby which rolled over the goal line and counted as a touchback. The game ended with the ball in Bowdoin's possession on its own 25-yard line.

The line-up and summary follows:

MEETING OF ATHLETIC COUNCIL

Tufts Game Called Off

After months of negotiation on the part of the managers and further weeks of conference on the part of Athletic Councils of Tufts and Bowdoin, it is practically assured that the game between these two institutions, scheduled for Nov. 18 in Portland, will not be played. Arbitration in this case seems to have resulted, surely enough, in a cessation of hostilities, but the fact is, that most of us would have liked to see the struggle take place. As far as can be ascertained, our athletic council was right in the position it took, even if it meant the loss of the game; for if it had yielded a point to allow the game it would have been damaging to the athletic interests of Bowdoin for the next three years. The controversy is so complicated that it is not worth while to set it down here, so we must simply make the most of it and centre our whole efforts on the games of the next ten days. There is a bare possibility that Manager King may get a substitute game, but it is unlikely, as all colleges of standing have their schedules filled for that date.

The cross country team will need the support of the student body in the race next week with the University of Vermont. The team is made up entirely of "green" men and a few cheers at the beginning and end of the race will mean a lot to the men who represent the White. Each man can be depended upon to do his best for Bowdoin but with the student body behind him he can do even more. Don't fail to be there to urge the team along.

Nothing Vague
No longer need the Bowdoin spirit be talked about vaguely in mass meetings and rallies. That indefinite something which has made Bowdoin teams gain victories, took real form at the game last Saturday. Bowdoin did not win but it was due only to that spirit which has thus far been hidden this fall, that she did not lose. The team played a victorious game in spite of the fact that the score does not show it. Those who followed the game were surprised at the defensive power which the team exhibited when it seemed as though Colby would score. The way in which the eleven men on the field responded to the first call of "Fight" from the bleachers put confidence into the hearts of all who were cheering for the White.

The same "fighting spirit" must be maintained throughout the State series if Bowdoin is to be in first position when the last game is over. Every man knows now what he is cheering for when he supports the team which held Colby last week. Consequently not one man should fail to follow the squad to Lewiston tomorrow afternoon and keep alive the famous Bowdoin spirit which was resurrected a week ago.

It seems necessary from

time to time to remind certain fellows of the fact that the reserved books in the library are not put there solely for them. The number of these books in each course is so small that it is impossible for each man to do his required reading unless the spirit of altruism is exercised to a certain extent. This idea is greatly warped in the mind of the fellow who deliberately takes a book from the reserved shelf and hides it away for his own future use. By such an act which is not due to carelessness at all, he not only prevents twenty or thirty other fellows from doing their readings but he causes much trouble to the librarians.

The same criticism holds true in the use of the reference lists posted on the bulletin board. Many fellows take such lists from the board, carry them to the reading-room and forget to return them. This practice might be attributed to a man's carelessness in forgetting to return the list, but it could be avoided by a little forethought. If while the list is gone a fellow comes in to look up his outside reading and finds no references posted, he concludes that there is no outside reading. As a result when he gets into class he has to be content with a "flunk" because of the carelessness of someone else. These conditions can be greatly improved if each man connected with reference courses sees to it that he gives the "other fellow" a fair show.
CLASS OF 1868 PRIZE SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED

Professor Mitchell announced Monday the list of Seniors who are to compete in January for the Class of 1868 Prize. The list includes Charles Francis Adams of Auburn, Eugene Francis Bradford of Bangor, John Lawrence Hurley of Malden, Mass., Earl Francis Maloney of South Thomaston, Burleigh Cushing Rodick of Freeport, and Arthur Deegan Welch of Portland.

1915 CHOSES OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Freshman Class, Tuesday, the following officers were chosen:

President, George A. MacWilliams.
Vice-President, George W. Ricker.
Secretary, George W. Bacon.
Treasurer, Edward R. Elwell.
Class Football Captain, Harry G. Cross.
Class Football Manager, Charles W. W. Field.
Class Track Team Captain, Philip S. Smith.
Class Track Team Manager, Guy W. Badger.

L. G. MEANS, 1912, ELECTED BASEBALL CAPTAIN

The baseball "B" men met in the Y. M. C. A. room last Friday and chose Leland Green ("Lee") Means of Orleans, Nebraska, to lead the team next spring. He succeeds George Frank ("Squanto") Wilson, who was elected last spring and who has been playing with the Detroit Americans this summer. Captain Means made the team his Freshman year and has since then been a leading member of the pitching squad.

MASS MEETING FOR COLBY GAME

The rally for the Colby game, held last Friday evening in Memorial Hall, brought out a good deal of enthusiasm from the student body and college spirit ran high. The rally was held mainly to show the team that the student body was behind it, and it succeeded in its purpose. Capt. "Jack" Hurley called the meeting to order, and introduced the various speakers of the evening.

The first to address the meeting was Prof. Hutchins. He spoke very interestingly on football, and gave a short sketch of the evolution of the game. He said that the first requisite of football was to play to win, the second to play it fairly.

Prof. Davis also exhorted the fellows to play the game fairly and cleanly, to be good sportsmen, win or lose, and to do their best to uphold the banner of White.

"Farmer" Kern spoke a few words which brought forth plenty of applause. He said that although as a member of the team he ought not to say much, he was confident of the result.

Coach Bergin when called on, gave a speech which was full of confidence. He said that he was absolutely sure of the gameness of every man on the team. He urged the student body to make the trip to Waterville to support the team, and cheer. He cited the Army-Navy game of a few years ago, in which the Army won through "fight," and the loyal cheering of the student body. That his confidence was not unfounded was shown by the result.

Professor Lunt spoke of the cheering. He said that last year at the games he attended the cheers were not given with enough snap. He urged the fellows to cheer hard and often, not only when victory was certain, but also when things were going against the team.

"Bill" Nixon, '13, led the cheering and the new "wow" yell was tried several times. The band was on hand with several timely selections. The speakers were all well received and were heartily applauded. The rally closed with the customary cheers and Bowdoin Beata.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING

At the regular Monday night meeting the Student Council elected as publishers of the college calendar, Alton L. Grant, '12, and D. Earl Gardner, '13.

It was voted that the Freshman-Sophomore football game be held on Saturday, November 25. In accordance with the rulings of the college, training should be begun at once by those who are going out for the class teams.

In regard to the question of the bulletin board it was thought that this board could best serve its purpose if all advertisements were posted below the glass case. This would allow more space for important notices.

The "blanket-tax" situation was discussed and tentative plans were considered. When they have been more carefully arranged the Council will submit them to the student body.
BAND ORGANIZES FOR THE SEASON

The band has recently elected B. H. Riggs, '12, manager, in place of L. A. Crosby, '13, resigned and has elected C. A. Brown, '14, as assistant manager. Rehearsals are being held weekly under the direction of Leader J. H. Newell, '12, and indicate a successful year.

LATIN DEPARTMENT WINS FACULTY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The Faculty tennis tournament, which began a week ago Wednesday, has reached the final round. Dean Sills and Professor Nixon are left to battle for the honor of winning. The score is as follows:

PRELIMINARY ROUND

Professor Nixon defeated Dr. Burnett, 6-0, 6-0.
Professor Ham defeated Professor Woodruff, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.
Dean Sills defeated Professor Davis, 6-2, 6-1.
Mr. Alvord defeated Dr. Whittier by default.
Dr. Loomis defeated Professor Hornell, 6-0, 6-2.
Professor Catlin defeated Mr. Wilder, 6-0, 6-0.
SECOND ROUND

Professor Nixon won from Professor Lunt, 6-4, 6-1.
Mr. Fifield won from Professor Ham, 6-1, 6-1.
Dean Sills won from Mr. Alvord, 8-6, 6-4.
Professor Catlin won from Dr. Loomis, 6-3, 6-2.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Professor Nixon defeated Mr. Fifield, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.
Dean Sills defeated Professor Catlin, 7-5, 6-3.
FINAL ROUND

Dean Sills vs. Professor Nixon.

BOWDOIN VS. VERMONT: CROSS COUNTRY RACE NOVEMBER 10

Final arrangements have been made for the Bowdoin-Vermont cross country race which is to be held on Friday, November 10. The teams will leave Whittier Field at four p.m. for the five-mile course, which will begin and end with one lap around the track.

As a result of the trials, Wednesday, the following men made the team: Harry H. Hall, '13; J. O. Tarbox, '14; C. B. Timberlake, '12; G. A. MacWilliams, '15; C. B. Haskell, '13; and G. W. Bacon, '15, alternate.

BOWDOIN IN ENGLAND

At a meeting of Convocation, held on Tuesday, October 24th, at Oxford University, the following decrees were proposed:

(1) "That any member of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., who shall have been graded not less than B either in Advanced Greek at the Admission Examination, or in Greek A and Greek B; and also in Greek I. and Greek II. at that University, shall be deemed to have a sufficient knowledge of Greek as required by the provisions of Stat. Tit. II. Sect. IX, "On Students from Foreign Universities," cl. 11.

(2) "That any member of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, who shall have pursued at the University a course of study extending over two years at the least, and shall have completed not less than eight courses with an average grading of at least seventy-five per cent., shall be eligible for admission to the status and privileges of a Junior Foreign student, provided that the said courses are courses which could have been counted towards the Degree of Bachelor of Arts at that University."

(3) "That any member of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, who shall have pursued at that University a course of study extending over three years at the least, and either (a) shall have obtained the Degree of Bachelor of Arts magna cum laude, or (b) shall have completed not less than thirteen courses with an average grading of at least eighty-five per cent., shall be eligible for admission to the status and privileges of a Senior Foreign Student."

This recognition which Oxford makes of Bowdoin puts it on a basis which it shares with Cornell, Brown, University of California, Columbia, Harvard, Leland Stanford, Princeton, Michigan, Vanderbilt, Virginia, Wisconsin, Yale and Haverford.
In accordance with the decree above stated, by obtaining Senior standing, a graduate of Bowdoin becomes exempt from preliminary examinations, and is able to begin reading for his degree at once; and if successful can secure the degree in two instead of three years.

This year Bowdoin has two graduates in attendance at Oxford, Robert Hale, 1910, and Edward E. Kern, 1911, both of whom were Rhodes scholars from Maine.

MAINE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Bowdoin men, both members of the Faculty and alumni, were very prominent at the meeting of the Maine Teachers' Association at Augusta, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week, and took active part in the program.

Professor Mitchell presided at the meeting of the English Department. During the past year he has been President of the Department, and at this meeting was elected chairman of the executive committee on English.

In the classical department, Bowdoin men were very much in evidence. Dean Sills was chairman of the department, and was elected to the executive committee of the association. Professor Nixon read from his translation of the "Menaechni of Plautus." Professor Woodruff attended the meeting also.

The alumni were also active in this section. Hon. Herbert M. Heath, '72, of Augusta, spoke on the "Practical Value of a Classical Training for a Man of Affairs." W. E. Sargent, '78, Principal of Hebron Academy, read a paper entitled, "How to Get the Classical Cause before the People of Maine."

Professor Piles, secretary of the modern language department, presided in the absence of the President. He had as a subject "Literature and Literary Criticism as Assets in Modern Language Instruction." Professor Ham read a paper on "New Books from Germany."

In the scientific department Professor Cram was elected chairman of the section. He addressed the meeting on the "Co-ordination of Chemistry Courses." Wm. Wing, '02, of Portland, was also a member of the executive committee, George R. Gardner, '01, opened the discussion which followed. W. G. Mallett, '91, Principal of Farmington State Normal School, read an article before the department on "Methods in Physics." Dr. Loomis also attended the meeting.

College Notes

All out for Mass Meeting in Memorial Hall at 7.30 Tonight.

Robinson, '14, is ill at his home in Biddeford.
Harold P. Marston, '11, visited the Theta Delt House last week.

H. B. Ballard, '10, and G. C. Duffey, Jr., ex-'13, have been visiting on the campus.

Professor George L. Hendrickson of the Latin department at Yale, visited the college, Friday evening.

Most of the team witnessed the Hebron-Coburn game, Saturday morning. Frank Smith, '12, refereed the game.

"Bill" Clifford, '11, was one of the officials at the game between Portland High and Bangor High at Bangor last Saturday.

Professor Johnson gave the first of a series of lectures on the Art Building and its contents, Thursday at 11:30 in the Art Building.

The north basement room in the Art Building is being prepared for an exhibition room. The workmen are tinting the walls now.

Walter H. Norton, Dartmouth, '10, who coached the Bowdoin nine last spring, has entered the rubber business. He is employed by the Enterprise Rubber Company of Boston.

The specifications for the new "gym" were sent out to the bidders from the architect's office, Monday. It is planned to break ground early in the spring, and if conditions are favorable, the "gym" will be in running order by winter.

The Brunswick High football team, coached by Frank Smith, '12, showed the effects of his coaching a week ago Saturday, by carrying Cony High off its feet, and piling up a score of 20-0. Cony High, by the way, is coached by "Al" Wandtke, '10, who is an instructor in the school.
RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF ALPHA DELTA PHI.
The Bowdoin Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi was grievously stricken by the death of one of her most highly esteemed and honored alumni, Rev. John Smith Sewall, '50, who died October 11, at his home in Bangor.
The public remembers Brother Sewall as a valiant soldier and a learned theologian, the college knew and respected him as a loyal and devoted Professor and Trustee. But we, as Alpha DELts, remember and cherish the name of a true and affectionate brother, possessed with those qualities of cordiality and kindly sympathy, which made him so beloved to those of the outside world with whom he came in contact.

HALL OF ALPHA DELTA PHI.
On July 2, the Bowdoin Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi lost by the death of Franklin Augustus Wilson, '54, of Bangor, one of her most prominent and highly esteemed alumni.

Brother Wilson was a prominent member of the Penobscot bar, and on account of his pre-eminence as a jurist, and his business ability as a banker and railroad enterpriser, was honored with many high positions of private and public trust.

'40.—William Pitt Preble, for the past four years the oldest living graduate of Bowdoin, died at his home in New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., Monday, October 23. Mr. Preble was born in Portland, April 15, 1819, and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1840 and from Harvard in 1843. Mr. Preble was a prominent lawyer and was for many years Clerk of the United States District Court in Portland. He was also the senior past grand master of the grand lodge of the Masons of Maine and was one of the three surviving members of the northern supreme grand council, who assisted in the union of the supreme councils about 40 years ago.

'60.—Rev. Edwin A. Harlow, one of the best known Congregational ministers in Maine, died at his home in Windham last Saturday afternoon, Oct. 28, after a long illness. Mr. Harlow was graduated from Bowdoin in 1860, in the same class with Thomas B. Reed, Judge Symonds, and others; and from the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1863. He was ordained at West Minot the same year. From 1863 to 1871, he held pastorates in the West, being successively pastor of the Congregational Churches at Kansas City, Mo., Grasshopper Falls, Mo., and Wyandotte, Kansas.

In 1871, he returned to the East and held a pastorate at Cape Elizabeth from 1871 to 1884. This was followed by six years of service as general missionary of the Congregational Society of Maine. From 1890 to 1892, Mr. Harlow occupied the pastorate at North Anson, and from 1892 to 1895 that at Robbinston. On account of feeble health he gave up active labor and came to Windham in 1896, where he purchased a small farm and devoted himself as far as possible to out-of-door pursuits.

Being somewhat improved in health, he spent several years in work for the Bible Society of Maine, and for five years was pastor of the Litchfield Congregational Church. Mr. Harlow has always devoted his entire interest to the aid and progress of the church in Maine. He has held many large pastorates and given his time and energy to building them up and making them prosperous in every way. Mr. Harlow's many friends sympathize with his family in their loss.

'04.—The wedding of Philip M. Clark of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Margaret Kreutz of Winchester, Mass., took place at the Church of the Epiphany in Winchester on Monday evening, Oct. 9. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will be at home after Nov. 15 at 592 Huron Avenue, Cambridge.

BOWDOIN VS. MAINE ON WHITTIER FIELD

Bowdoin and University of Maine will decide the 1911 football championship of Maine Saturday afternoon on Whittier Field before what promises to be a record-breaking crowd. From every part of New England, alumni of both institutions are coming to swell the number of undergraduates, and one of the most important struggles in the football history of the state will be witnessed by a crowd that will be numbered in the thousands. Hundreds are coming to watch the work of the splendid eleven which, often under-rated by outsiders at the opening of the season, has attained a position in which to fight for the highest possible gridiron honors in Maine. Bowdoin Spirit has been a telling factor in putting the team in that position, and Saturday afternoon Bowdoin Spirit, every Bowdoin man firmly believes, is going to win the championship. Wrapped up in this spirit, however, is the steady, conscientious work and wonderful grit of the football men. With a hard-earned tie over Colby and a grand victory over Bates to their credit, they are going after the U. of M. game with every bit of ability, grit, and spirit they have, and these three characteristics, which have been true of every other Bowdoin team, should combine to bring victory to old Bowdoin.

Preparations have been made during the week to take care of the enormous attendance. Additional bleachers with a seating capacity of five hundred have been erected on the Bowdoin side of the field, and the U. of M. cheering section will be directly opposite. The Maine men, over five hundred strong and with the band, are coming on a special train which will arrive in Brunswick about 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Rumors have been rife all the week to the effect that Bates will send down her band and a large number of students to cheer for Bowdoin. Brunswick people, too, are vitally interested in the great game, and it is expected that the Brunswick band will be present. To urge Bowdoin men to attend the game and root hard for their team is not necessary at this stage of the season.

At this writing it is not possible to name the exact line-ups with which Bowdoin and Maine will take the field, but the make-up of neither eleven is likely to be radically different from that of previous state games. Needless to say, neither side has left a stone unturned to put forth the strongest team possible.

Manager King has announced that the following corps of officials will handle the game: Referee, Ernest G. Hapgood of Brown; umpire, Thomas F. Murphy of Harvard; field judge, A. S. Macreadie of the Portland Athletic Club; head linesman, Lieut. Jacob Frank of Vermont.

BOWDOIN, 11; BATES, 0

The White triumphed over the Garnet last Saturday on Garcelon Field, Lewiston, before the largest crowd of the year by the satisfying score of 11 to 0. From a spectator's point of view the game was replete with sensations. Both of the plays with which Bowdoin scored were on long runs by Kern and another long run by Duff. Wood in the third period looked like a touchdown for a short time. Bates added to the features of the open play by successfully executing the forward pass for good gains and also gained a great deal on a clever fake kick.

It was in about the middle of the first period after Bates had secured possession of the ball on her 4-yard line and was working it out of danger, that Dennis fumbled on a line play and Kern shot out from the mass of players around right end for a touchdown. Again in the third period, this same Kern intercepted a forward pass and raced down the field for 76 yards and again placed the ball behind Bates' goal. The second try at goal was successful, the first one having failed making the final score 11 to 0.

At two or three other times during the game Bowdoin was within scoring distance of Bates, but lost the ball on downs at crucial moments. Bates came within kicking distance of Bowdoin's goal once or twice but did not come very near to scoring a touchdown.

The punting of Faulkner was superior to that of the opposing kicker and this advantage helped the Bowdoin team out of more than one dangerous position. Hurley and Hinch were down under nearly every punt and many times caught the receiver before he had moved from his tracks. Lewis, a Freshman, made his first appearance in the line and played a good steady game as well as doing some good punting. The center trio, Burns, Douglas and Pratt were as strong as usual on defense and stopped short nearly every play sent in their direction. Wood, at tackle, was slowed up on offense with a sore knee, but played his usual aggressive game and came near to scoring in the third period. Dole at quarter ran the team in good shape and played well, especially in the returning of punts. LaCasce also played a strong game in the backfield. Bob Weatherill was able to get into the game for a couple of periods and while he was in, pulled off several of the cleanest and hardest tackles of the game.

For Bates, Skip Dyer played a remarkable game and seemed to figure in every one of Bates plays. Dennis at half back also made several long gains around our ends and outside of tackle.

There was a large crowd of Bowdoin supporters in the bleachers and the rooting was especially good.

The game in detail:

Bates won the toss and Dyer kicked to LaCasce but he fumbled and Dole recovered the ball. Kern was held for no gain and Faulkner made five yards through right guard. Faulkner then punted to Remmert on the Bates 25-yard line and he brought the ball back ten yards. Dyer then made four yards thru center but was stopped by Kern. Dyer then punted to Faulkner in the center of the field. Kern hit the line for eight yards and LaCasce was unable to gain. LaCasce then punted to Remmert on the Bates 22-yard line but before the Bates man could move, Douglas had him down. Dyer then hit the line, but again Douglas was the obstacle and there was no gain. Dennis made four yards on a skin tackle play. Dyer then fumbled a poor pass and when he had recovered the ball was tackled for a four-yard loss by Burns. At this point Kern got away from the crowd and made fifteen yards around left end, bringing the ball to Bates' 10-yard line. Here, however, Dole was unable to gain, and after Kern had made three yards, Bowdoin lost the ball. Dyer then punted out to Dole who carried the ball to the Bates 35-yard line. LaCasce and Kern made small gains and an attempted forward pass from Dole was recovered by Danahy who carried the ball to the Bates 37-yard line. Dyer then punted and again Dole was the man under the ball, and carried it back ten yards. Faulkner after trying unsuccessfully to gain, punted to Remmert whom Douglas downed. Bates was here penalized 15 yards for holding. Faulkner on a fake punt tore off ten yards and Kern made seven through right guard giving Bowdoin first down in the center of the field. Kern tried twice to gain and Faulkner booted the ball for 45 yards. Dyer then tried center, but found Lewis too much for him and he was forced to give up with no gain. He then punted to Dole in the center of the field. Kern made three yards thru center altho in doing so he was injured. However, after a moment of rest he pluckily remained in the game. Faulkner then punted to Bates' 13-yard line where Wood held Remmert back for no gain. On the next play "Farmer" who was standing just outside of the play picked up the ball which had been fumbled by Dennis and rolled out from the pile, and went over the line for a touchdown. Hurley failed to kick the goal.

On the first kick off, Thompson sent the ball against the goal post and the play started from the Bowdoin 25-yard line with the ball in Bowdoin's possession. Kern failed to gain on a fake punt. Lewis booted the ball to the center of the field where LaCasce received it. Dole made four yards, but this and sixteen more were lost when Bowdoin was penalized for holding. After a slight loss by Kern, Lewis punted to Bates' 45-yard line and ran down field to center Dennis when he received the ball. Dennis found Kern too great an obstacle to gain and the quarter ended with the ball in Bates' possession on her own 46-yard line.

SECOND PERIOD

On the first play of this quarter, Dyer punted to LaCasce on Bowdoin's 37-yard line. Here a fumble lost three yards and Faulkner punted to Dennis on the Bates 50-yard line. An attempted forward pass for Bates failed, altho as a result of this play, Bowdoin was penalized for holding. This gave Bowdoin first down on her own 50-yard line. Dennis was able to get away for fifteen yards before he was brought down by Kern. Kern went through center for three, being tackled by Wood and Douglas prevented Bates from gaining ground on the next play. At this point Bates was penalized twenty yards for holding. After trying an unsuccessful forward pass, Bates punted to Dole who was downed on the Bowdoin 50-yard line. After the ball has see Dennis found Kern too great an obstacle to gain and the quarter ended with the ball in Bates' possession on her own 35-yard line.

After trying unsuccessfully to gain, Faulkner punted to the center of the field. From there Dennis made six yards thru center and Dyer repeated the performance, Kern and Douglas being the men who prevented larger gains. Kern then intercepted a forward pass and got away for twenty-five yards, but the ball was taken back thirty as a penalty for unnecessary roughness on Bowdoin's part. Faulkner then punted to Bates' 50-yard line. From here Bates was pushed back still farther as a result of a fumble, and Dyer on trying to get through the line found Simpson too much for him. Dyer then punted thirty-five yards to Faulkner who brings the ball back fifteen yards before he is tackled. Kern after losing on an attempted end play, punted to Talbot on Bates' 50-yard line. After making several short gains, Bates then punted, Dole getting the ball on his own 20-yard line. Kern immediately returned the punt, booting the ball thirty yards. Three plays by Bates netted them thirty-four yards, but two unsuccessful attempts at the forward pass gave Bowdoin the ball. Kern tried to gain on a fake kick unsuccessfully and then Faulkner punted out of danger. Bates then tried an end run and a forward pass without gaining. Bowdoin was penalized five yards for being offside, and thus when she started with the ball it was from her own 28-yard line. From here after "Farmer" had made five through center, Faulkner punted, but the ball went high in the air and Dyer got the ball and ran it back to practically the place it had started from before he was downed. From here Bates worked down the field until they had the ball on Bowdoin's four-yard line when the whistle blew for the end of the half.

Third Period

Thompson's first attempt on the kick-off went offside. The second was taken in by Wood on Bowdoin's 20-yard line and carried in twelve yards. After a series of short gains, Bowdoin punted, and Bates returned the play. Bates' punt, however, was fumbled and she recovered the ball again on Bowdoin's 25-yard line. Dyer then made three yards through center. On the next play Kern broke in and intercepted a forward pass. Quick as a flash he was out of the crowd and speeding down the field. By clever work on the start of his run he got a clear field and ran seventy-five yards for a touchdown. LaCasce kicked the goal.

On the kick-off, Dole made a pretty run in returning the ball but fumbled and Dennis recovered the ball on Bowdoin's 42-yard line. After two plays, Bates fumbled the ball and "Farmer" recovered it. After getting a couple of short gains, Faulkner punted 35 yards where Hinch tackled the receiver of the ball by what was without doubt one of the best tackles of the game. The ball was pushed back and forth on the field with little advantage for either side until Bates had the ball on Bowdoin's 12-yard line as the result of two or three brilliant forward passes. From here, however, Danahy, trying to work the forward pass was thrown for a loss and the next two plays only brought the ball five yards. When Bowdoin got the ball here, Faulkner soon put the ball on the Bowdoin 40-yard line with a pretty punt. Here on Bates' first attempt to get back to the White's goal line, Wood recovered a fumble and ran fifty yards, this being all the more remarkable as it was evident that the runner's game leg greatly hindered his progress. Shortly after this Bowdoin tried a forward pass and this gave Bates her innings. On their first play, Dennis got away for 12 yards, and would have gone farther had it not been for Weatherill's star tackle. After this Dyer was forced to punt and Dole got the ball on his own 47-yard line. Here it was when the quarter ended.

Fourth Period

This period was the most uninteresting of the game as in it no scoring was done and it was so dark that it was almost impossible to distinguish the players. This period was cut to twelve minutes. On the first play, Faulkner punted to Talbot who had taken Remmert's place, on Bates' 40-yard line. After making two short gains, Dyer punted, but unfortunately for him the ball hit against the back of one of his team mates and Wood recovered the ball. Kern was then sent around left end for five yards and a forward pass from him netted five more. Dole went through for first down, taking the ball to Bates' 20-yard line. However, Bowdoin hopes of another score were dashed when Kern lost five yards on the next play, and in the following one Bates got the ball thru a fumble. Dyer punted to the center of the field and Thompson, by one of the best spurts of speed shown on the field, recovered the ball which Bowdoin fumbled. Dyer then tried another punt and this time Dole got the ball twenty-five yards away. Weatherill then made five yards, but when he tried a second time was unable to gain. Faulkner punted and from that time until the end of the game the ball see-sawed back and forth without either team being able to gain much ground in spite of the fact that many new men were introduced into the game. On the last play, Crosby received he ball from Dyer's toe on Bowdoin's 35-yard line and there Bowdoin had the ball when the whistle blew.

Tomorrow

And now the time for the last great effort has come! When the final whistle blows on Whittier Field to-morrow afternoon either the University of Maine or Bowdoin will be the undisputed football champion of the State. According to the reports of the press in general Bowdoin has thus far shown very little championship form. But we as undergraduates are not backing a team which we think is winning through luck. We have seen its "fighting spirit" displayed and we have every reason to rely on such a spirit to make the team fight to-morrow. We know, too, that every man who represents Bowdoin in the game is going to work as never before this season to win. The entire squad is permeated with a "do-or-die" spirit. But we can't remain satisfied at that point. As in the two previous championship games the student body must back the squad to a man. The spirit of fight which the cheering section instills into the team on the field is essential to the result for which Bowdoin men look to-morrow. With team and student body working together we can expect to see the White declared champion with a clean slate.

New Relations

The Orient is glad to acknowledge the relationship established between the University of Vermont and Bowdoin in track athletics. In former years the two institutions have contested in baseball and tennis but never before have they fought for supremacy on the track. This year a contract exists which insures competition in cross country for a period of two years. We hope that the friendly spirit of rivalry which has promoted previous contests will be maintained in this new relationship.

Bowdoin Abroad

The recent recognition which the University of Oxford made of Bowdoin has brought to the college a great distinction. Through it Bowdoin is ranked with institutions throughout America which are much larger. Now, she has the honor of being the smallest institution among fourteen which has received such notice from the University of England. Not only does this bring distinction and honor to the name of the college but it pays a tribute to the quality and worth of Bowdoin's sons who rank as Rhodes scholars.

1914 CLASS ELECTION

The Sophomore class met in the gym, Thursday evening, Nov. 2, and elected officers for the ensuing year. The following men were chosen:

President, Robert T. Weatherill of Brunswick.
Vice-President, Ralph L. Buell of Portland.
Secretary, Alfred E. Gray of Portsmouth, N. H.
Treasurer, Philip R. Fox of Portland.
Lewis T. Brown of Portland, was elected captain of the class football team, and Louis A. Donahue, also of Portland, manager.

MASS MEETING FOR BATES GAME

Every “live” fellow in college was at the mass-meeting last Friday night, and every one, as he went down the stairway and out into the open air, was telling himself that he was glad he came, and was figuring on which train he should take to Lewiston. Capt. “Jack” Hurley kept things moving and introduced the speakers. At the opening of the meeting, he made some remarks himself, before calling on the speakers. He said that during the game at Waterville he could hear the “Fight, fight” of the cheering section, and it helped him wonderfully. He asked the fellows to show the same spirit at Lewiston. He said that although their defence had been strong, their offence had been weak, but promised that it would show a big improvement against Bates.

Professor Nixon said that he did not wish to see a big Bowdoin, that, in fact, he would consider it a calamity. As it stands now, about four hundred men take the “exams” every year and only about a hundred are accepted. These are picked men. If every Bowdoin man should get at least one man to take the “exams,” should talk Bowdoin to him at every opportunity we would have a class of picked men which could not be equalled. He said that it was hoped to arrange games with Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan, and Trinity next year. It was a duty to go to the Colby game, he argued, but a privilege to accompany the team to Lewiston, and that if we invaded the city three hundred strong, it would be the best "ad" which we could have.

“Brosie” Burns spoke a few words, terse and to the point. He said that he had no doubt as to the outcome, and that under Coach Bergin and “Jack” Hurley, they could not lose.

Dr. Whittier remarked that whenever he spoke at a Bowdoin rally he always felt that two things were expected of him, statistics and prophecy. As to the first, he said that Bowdoin had won eleven games from Bates, and had lost six. He had built up quite a reputation in former years as a prophet, and his rule had been invariably to prophesy a Bowdoin victory. His reputation had waned somewhat recently, but he was going to prophesy that at the end of the game the score would be Bowdoin 15, Bates 0. He paid a glowing tribute to the team, but declared that we should support the team better financially, that it is our duty to subscribe. He said that if the management does not come to us, it is our place to make a voluntary subscription.

“The fellows have a double duty to-morrow,” said Coach Bergin, “to hold Bates to nothing and not let Bates do it to them.” He urged the student body to show the same spirit which helped the team at Waterville. He said that the team could not win games by great defensive work, but that they must get the ball into Bates territory and keep it there.

The band kept the fellows’ attention between whiles, and the rally closed with a round of good, snappy cheers.

MEDICAL SCHOOL NOTES

In view of the recent ruling of the board of trustees of the Medical School, that, beginning next year, all candidates for admission must have completed a college course, it is interesting to note the small number of men in the present first year class, who have the degree of A.B. The number this year is unusually slender, there being only three, as compared with ten last year.

Seven colleges are represented in the present entering class. Bowdoin leads with nine, Bates, Colby, Holy Cross, Montreal and Laval University having only a single representative each, while the University of Maine contributes two men. It is a strange coincidence, that in both the first, and second-year classes, all but three men are natives of the “pine-tree” state, and that, in each case, the exceptions come from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut.

The medical students will take Histology in the Biological Laboratory in the Science Building this year, instead of in the medical building as formerly. The change is to give larger quarters. The instructors are Dr. Drummond and Dr. Holt, both of Portland, and Dr. Stevens.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

In his chapel talk last Sunday, President Hyde described church services as mass-meetings for the cause of righteousness. He said in part, “If anyone said to you, ‘Yes, I’m interested in football but I cannot go to the mass-meeting. The mass-meeting is not the game and I cannot waste time on mere accessories, you would repudiate his logic. Yet practically eighty per cent. of us are saying this regularly with regard to church services. The attitude of the majority is that church may be neglected, even though we are interested in that for which it stands.

Either the mass-meeting is a part of football and church is a part of righteousness, or just the opposite is true. Let us not argue in conflicting ways; Services have the same claim on us, if we are interested in the cause which they strive to further, that the mass-meeting has if we are interested in football."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Next week Nov. 12-19 has been set apart throughout the country as a week of prayer for college students. The Bowdoin Y. M. C. A. will observe this week by a series of special noon meetings from 1 o'clock to 1:30 in the Y.M.C.A. room. The following men will conduct the meetings: Monday, President Hyde; Tuesday, Prof. Johnson; Wednesday, Mr. Fifield; Thursday, Mr. Parsons; Friday, Professor Chapman.

The speaker at the meeting on Thursday, Nov. 16, will be Rev. H. E. Dunnack of Augusta, Me., who will speak on the subject, "The Unspeakable Gift." Mr. Dunnack is one of the most popular speakers whom we have the pleasure of hearing and this opportunity to hear him is one which should not be missed.

The cabinet held its monthly meeting at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House on Thursday, Nov. 2. Reports from committees were heard and plans for extending the work were discussed. The membership Committee reports a total enrollment of 193 men.

DELTA UPSILON DANCE

An informal dance is being held at the Delta Upsilon House this evening for the guests of the fraternity who have come for the Maine game, Saturday. Among the guests are Mrs. F. W. Brown, Mrs. W. H. Davis, and Mrs. S. B. Farbish of Brunswick, Mrs. Jennie Bird, Misses Madeline and Dorothy Bird, and Miss Blanche Hanscom of Rockland, Misses Charlotte Nevens and Mina Everett of Auburn, Misses Gertrude Sadler of Brunswick, Ethel Withee of Farmington, Mary Holton of Boothbay Harbor, Doris Berry and Marion Swift of Gardiner, Elsie Holmes of Bangor, Estelle Barker of Phillips, Asaphine Harvey and Imogene Wood of Hallowell, and Helen Stackpole of Biddeford.

Music is furnished by Stetson's Orchestra of Brunswick.

REV. ALBERT P. FITCH TO SPEAK

On next Sunday, Nov. 12, will be heard the second in the series of college preachers, Rev. Albert Parker Fitch, D.D. He has been here several times and is regarded as one of the best of college preachers as he always has something of interest to college men. He was born in Boston on March 6, 1877, and received his preparatory education at Roxbury Latin School, graduating in 1896. At Harvard he received his A.B. in 1900; graduated from Union Theological Seminary in 1903; received degree of B.D. from New York University in 1903; and D.D. from Amherst in 1909. He was ordained as a minister in the Congregational Church in 1903, and was pastor of First Church, Plaistow, N. H., from 1903 to 1905, and Mt. Vernon Church, Boston, from 1905 to 1909. Since 1909 he has been president of Andover Theological Seminary. He is a member of the Harvard Chapter of Delta Upsilon.

He will speak in the Congregational Church in the morning at 10:45 and conduct chapel service in the afternoon.

College Notes

All out for the Mass Meeting in Memorial Hall at 7.30 To-Night.

Professor W. B. Mitchell preached in the Congregational Church at Fryeburg on Sunday.

F. W. Hart, '12, attended the initiation of the Boston University Chapter of Beta Theta Pi, Saturday night.

G. J. Lathrop, the prospective track coach for the ensuing year, has been engaged by Bates; consequently another will be engaged.

The Faculty have voted that the Christmas vacation will begin on Friday, Dec. 22, at 4.30 p.m. instead of Saturday noon, Dec. 23, at 12:30.

A chart of the recently excavated city Priene was hung in the classical room last week. A catalogue of the chart is kept at the desk in the library.
Tony Fiske, ex-'09, was in town over Sunday. George F. Wilson, '12, is coaching the Biddeford High School football team.

Robert P. Coffin, '15, and Leon French Dow, '15, have been initiated into Zeta Psi.

R. D. Kennedy, '13, is manager of the Hubbard Grandstand as successor to Hathaway, '12.

All the rooms in the dormitories are to be equipped with new electric light fixtures by the college.

By the will of Rev. John S. Sewall of Bangor, Class of 1890, the college is left one thousand dollars.

Rubin, '15, told his unusual life-story to an interested audience at the Methodist Church, Sunday evening.

Nason, '14, Cooley, '14, and Pope, '14, walked to Lewiston, Saturday morning, to attend the Bates-Bowdoin game.

Several fellows attended morning service at Shiloh last Sunday and were shown through several of the buildings.

John Lewis, '13, who has left college on account of sickness, has been operated upon and is now getting along well.

C. A. Cary, '10, finished seventh in the recent Tech-Harvard cross-country race. He was the third Tech man to finish.

The Alpha Kappa Kappa "Medic" Fraternity has opened a fraternity house on the corner of McLellan and Harpswell streets.

Extra bleachers for the Maine game are being erected at Whittier Field. Bleachers seating 400 are being built directly in front of the grandstand.

General Secretary Fifield and President McCormick of the Y. M. C. A. spent Tuesday in Waterville, arranging for the State Conference to be held at Orono next February.

In the July number of the National Magazine is an interesting story of college life written by Robert King Atwell, '09. The reader who is well acquainted with the Bowdoin campus, would easily recognize it as the one described.

B. H. Riggs, '12, attended the initiation, banquet and dance of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Kappa Sigma at the University of Vermont as the delegate from Alpha Rho Chapter last week.

G. B. Webber has presented the college with a large picture of the Bowdoin 1911 championship baseball team done in sepia and framed in a heavy brown oak frame. The picture will be hung in the gymnasium this week.

Edward L. Morris, '12, is taking special work in surveying. He is erecting signal stations in the surrounding country and will use these in mapping the topography of the land. One of the stations will be upon the library tower, another in Bowdoinham and another in West Bath. Mr. Morris is working under the leadership of Assistant Professor Alvord.

Over 75 people will take part in the big Saturday Night Vaudeville in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, November 28, at eight o'clock. After the performance there will be dancing till midnight. There will be girls from Killarney, girls from Amsterdam, and girls from Bombay. See "The Student's Glide."

Mr. Ernest Bragdon of 8 Coffin Street, who has been working in the paper mill at Pejepscot, has taken the janitorship at the library made vacant by the death of Mr. Adams.

Mr. Joseph C. Adams, for the past three years janitor of Hubbard Hall, died very suddenly of heart disease on Tuesday evening, Oct. 31st. He had been engaged at his usual duties in the library that day, although he had been unwell for a fortnight. Mr. Adams was a kind-hearted man and had other qualities that won him friends.

At a meeting of a nominating committee consisting of representatives of each fraternity and the non-fraternity men a week ago Monday, the following Sophomore slate was drawn up:

For class president, Robert D. Leigh, Seattle, Wash.; Robert T. Weatherill, Brunswick.

For vice-president, Edgar R. Payson, Jr., Portland; Ralph L. Buell, Portland.

For secretary, Elroy O. LaCasce, Skowhegan; Alfred E. Gray, Portsmouth, N. H.

For treasurer, Samuel W. Chase, Lowell, Mass.; Philip R. Fox, Portland, Me.

Intercollegiate Notes

The Sophomore Class of Hamilton College have agreed to abolish the use of "trots" in Latin. The Latin professor, for his part, has promised to shorten the lessons.

The University of California is building a running track which will cost $20,000.

Cigarette smoking is forbidden at Notre Dame. This regulation is enforced by suspension.

A descendant of John Harvard's second cousin has come from England to enter Harvard University.

Admission to all athletic contests at Brown is covered by a "blanket tax." The charge is nine dollars.

After two years of persistent effort all traces of hazings have been removed from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The work started by the Class of 1912 has been brought to completion by the Class of 1914.

Because of the baneful influence of divorces over the students, the Nevada legislature recently seriously considered the removal of the University of Nevada from Reno to Carson City.
Alumni Department

'96.—Rev. Howard Gilpatrick is the first pastor of the first church to be erected in Flagstaff, one of the central lumber spots in Somerset County. Mr. Gilpatrick is fast building up the new parish and will make his church one of the most prosperous in that section.

'81.—Frederick C. Stevens, congressman from Minnesota, has been made chairman of the important committee on interstate and foreign relations. Congressman Stevens was a classmate of Congressman D. J. McGillicuddy. Both are members of Theta Delta Chi.

'01.—Algernon S. Dyer, formerly of the Hill School at Pottstown, Penn., has resigned to accept a position in the Berkshire School in Sheffield, Mass.

'99.—Edgar Kaharl, for six years principal of the Brunswick High School, which position he resigned last spring, is now in Germany. He has a position as English teacher in a German school and is succeeding very well in his new field.

While in Brunswick, Mr. Kaharl made many friends, both among the townspeople and the members of the college. He was deeply interested in the Athletics of the college and gave his advice and aid to the Athletic Association freely. He was particularly interested in the affairs of the football team, being a graduate member of the Monday Night Club.

'00.—George R. Gardner is principal of the Brunswick High School this year. Mr. Gardner has been very successful as teacher since his graduation from college. He is an enterprising young man and will, undoubtedly, make an efficient successor to Mr. Kaharl. Mr. Gardner has been principal of the Brewer High School for two years, principal of the Bridgton High School for two years, and has been in the Science Department of Bangor one year, and has been principal of Camden High School during the three past years. Mr. Gardner has also done graduate work in the Teachers’ College of Columbia University two summers.

'06.—Melvin T. Copeland, now at Harvard, has a leading article in the August number of the Quarterly Journal of Economics on “The Progress of the Automatic Loom.”

'06.—David R. Porter has an article in the current Educational Review entitled “Football—an impossible intercollegiate sport.”

'06.—Dr. William E. Youlou, who recently resigned as interne of the new Webber Hospital in Biddeford, has been elected to the board of pathology in the medical department of Cornell University, and has entered upon his duties at that institution.

'07.—Rev. Oscar W. Peterson, pastor of the Congregational Church at Brownfield, Me., has recently accepted a call to the church at Bristol, Vermont. A short time ago, Dr. Peterson published a book containing translations of Swedish poems, entitled, “Swedish Songs and Lyrics.”

'07.—Mr. Harold Sprague Hichborn of Augusta, Me., and Miss Bertha Margaret Batchelder of Brookline, Mass., were married Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 18, at All Saints Church, Brookline. Immediately after the reception, held in the parlors of the Hotel Beaconsfield, Mr. Hichborn and bride left for Poland Spring, where they will remain until their new bungalow at Augusta is completed. They will be at home at Augusta after January 1.

'09.—R. K. Atwell, who was last year instructor in mathematics at Syracuse University, N. Y., is this year taking a graduate course in Teachers’ College, Columbia.

'11.—John L. Roberts is teaching mathematics and science at Kennebunk High School.

BOWDOIN VS. BATES IN CROSS COUNTRY RACE
to-morrow

The cross country team will compete with the Bates cross country team to-morrow at three o’clock, in Lewiston.

The course measures four and a quarter miles. The members of the team are in good condition after their race with Vermont last week. The make-up of the team will be about the same as in that race. They lost to Vermont by a close score, and, with the experience gained in that race, may be expected to give a good account of themselves to-morrow.

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP GOES TO MAINE
Bowdoin, 0; Maine, 15

Before the largest crowd that ever assembled at Whittier Field to watch an athletic contest, the final battle in the State Championship Series was played last Saturday and resulted in a clean-cut victory for the University of Maine, by the score of 15 to 0.

Never did Bowdoin athletes work harder, or fight more stubbornly to defend the honor of the White than did Capt. Hurley and his warriors, but the quick, varied and powerful attack of the heavy Maine backfield and the good right leg of Tom Shepard were more than they could withstand.

It is needless to say that the stands and bleachers, packed full to overflowing with loyal Bowdoin supporters, were disappointed at the outcome of the game, but Maine won fairly and had a team which deserved the State Championship; so there is nothing to do but take the matter philosophically and build hopes on next year’s team. Incidentally the spectators saw one of the strongest, most powerful and well-oiled and directed teams that has won the State honors in a number of years. It was victory enough to have held these sturdy warriors, who so greatly outweighed our team, to so low a score.

Shepard’s place kicking was responsible for 9 of the points, two being scored in the third period and one in the first. The other score was made in the second period as the result of the brilliant offensive work of Capt. Parker and Carleton of Maine who marched down the field by line plunges and rushed the ball over the line, breaking up Bowdoin’s stubborn defense. Throughout the game these men made most of the yardage for their team, carrying the ball through guard and tackle on a delayed pass formation and skin-tackle play. Cleaves at quarterback for Maine did the best work at this position that has been witnessed on a State gridiron this year. He ran the plays off with precision and used excellent judgment and showed a thorough football knowledge. Maine’s brilliant offensive showing on line plays was not so much due to the ability of their linemen to make holes as it was the fact that their backfield “had the jump,” as the football phrase goes, on the Bowdoin defense. They reeled off their plays before our men were able to size up the situation and their heavy line-plunging backs hit the line in jackknife style.

In one department of the game Bowdoin outplayed Maine, contrary to newspaper reports; this was the kicking game. Faulkner punted eleven times with an average of 44 yards to the punt, and Shepard punted eight times with an average of 39.5 yds. to the kick.

In running back kicks both teams were about equal. In rushing the ball Maine gained about once and a quarter as much ground as the White. Neither side used the forward pass to a great extent, and Bowdoin employed the on-side kick only once successfully.

On the offense our backfield was unable to gain consistently. “Farmer” Kern was injured at the first of the game, and, although he fought like a tiger through the remaining four periods of the contest, he was unable to gain much on offense. Weatherill, Faulkner, and Dole made occasional gains, but there was no offense possible to cope with the strong up-State aggregation. On defense the work of Faulkner was brilliant. A great many of Maine’s line plays reached the secondary defense, but here they stopped with a thud, usually as a result of the clean tackles of Faulkner and Bob Weatherill. Capt. Jack Hurley, playing his last game at the end of so many seasons of brilliant work, did all that was in his power to stave off defeat for the White, and Hinch on the other end played the best game he has played this season. The other men all worked their hardest, dug their cleats viciously in the sod and clenched their teeth on every scrimmage, and fought from whistle to whistle in their last game for the State Championship.

Bowdoin was not “easy” as some of the Maine papers said after the game. Maine had to play every minute to keep the lead, and now and then during every period Bowdoin supporters were given flashes of hope by spurts on the offense made by our speedy backs. But Maine was playing a masterly game and playing with a team that was not to be denied the victory.

Referee Hapgood said after the game that it was the best example of interference on offense he had ever seen in this State, and also remarked at the wonderful work of Shepard in the kicking and Parker’s ability to sift through our line for substantial gains.

It was fully two hours before the game that the crowd began to line up at the gates of Whittier Field, in order that they might get favorable seats to witness the big battle. Excursions from Boston, Portland, Bangor, and Orono all contributed to add to the throng of excited spectators and the loyal citizens of our own town of Brunswick turned out en masse with a band at their head. An unfortunate arrangement of seats impaired the rooting of the Bowdoin contingent, but White was everywhere visible in the stands and around the ropes and when a Bowdoin man made a star play a cheer arose that betrayed by its volume where the sympathies of most of the onlookers were. The large crowd was handled in the best possible manner and no difficulties were encountered in keeping the side lines and field free from spectators. The official report of the paid admissions showed that it was larger than any crowd which had ever witnessed a Maine State game. The number was 3800.

Two features of the game which made it high class from the spectator’s point of view were the unusually clean manner in which the ball was handled, there only being one fumble during the whole game, and the excellent condition which the winning team was in. Not a man of their team was removed from the game on account of injuries. The work of the officials was entirely satisfactory. The summary:

Bowdoin Loses to Vermont in Cross Country Race

Although it fought to the finish, the Bowdoin Cross Country Team was defeated last Friday by the narrow margin of 24 to 21. The team had had no experience in races before, and considering that this was its first contest, made a very creditable showing. The best individual race was between Jones of Vermont and Captain Hall of Bowdoin for first place, the Vermont captain passing Hall in the last 300 yards and finishing a few feet ahead of him. Tarbox and Hayden of Vermont also fought it out at the tape in an exciting sprint.

The order in which the men came across the finish line was as follows:

Jones, Vermont
Hall, Bowdoin
Aldrich, Vermont
Tarbox, Bowdoin
Hayden, Vermont
Timberlake, Bowdoin
Minor, Vermont
Haskell, Bowdoin
Auten, Bowdoin
Abbott, Vermont

First place counted 9 points, second, 8, and so on down.

The officials were as follows: Starter, B. C. Morrill; timers, B. C. Morrill, Dr. F. N. Whittier; judges at the finish, Dr. N. E. Loomis, E. G. Fife, S. A. Phelps, Dr. Manton Copeland, M. W. Greene, R. B. Kennedy, F. S. Wiggan, R. L. Morss, F. E. Harrington, and W. P. Skillin.

The race started at 4.03 and was run in 29 minutes, 11 seconds, the course being 4.92 miles long.

MASS-MEETING FOR MAINE GAME

The whole college turned out for the mass-meeting, Friday night, and it was in every way the best which has been held this fall. "Artie" Welch presided in the absence of Captain Hurley and introduced the various speakers.

Doctor Copeland was the first speaker, saying that the "Maine" idea was to win the game, but that the Bowdoin idea was that Maine should not. He went on to say that there was no need of urging the men to cheer, or the players to play a straight game, as we are sure of those things. Although Maine has a heavier team, brain work and knowledge of football is what wins the game.

Professor Lunt spoke about former Maine games, among them a 35 to 0 victory for the White. He then spoke about the team, saying that a team made up of stars does not win, because each star tries to do only grandstand play, and a team made up of one star and his backers also loses from the same reason. The team that wins is one in which every man works with every other man like a cog of a machine, and our team is such a one.

He also said that cheering does not depend on the volume of noise or kind of cheer, but in the spirit behind the cheers. The Bowdoin undergraduates should show the "grads" who will be back to-morrow that the spirit is better now than in their time.

After a selection by the band, Mr. Hawes compared our present team with former ones, saying that although the old men have gone we have good ones in their places. He remarked that this was the last game of the season and we were up against a good team, but good teams had gone back to Orono surprised and defeated by our teams and the Bowdoin spirit. Mr. Hawes said that sometimes teams have to play better than their best, but, however the game came out, there would be no need of an apology for Bowdoin playing.

Mr. Alvord prophesied that the weather would be favorable and that the chances were against rain. He said that every man is going into the game with the intention of doing his best, and concluded by saying that we are sure of victory.

Professor Files put emphasis on the fact that the college as a body has to stand behind the team. He urged the students to be sportsmanlike and to cheer fairly. He said that Maine, Bates, and Colby were all afraid of Bowdoin spirit. Professor Files also praised the sportsmanship of the cheering at Bates.

"Artie" Welch advised the students to remember the motto, "Fair Play and May the Best Man Win."

Douglas spoke of the importance of this game and reported that all the players were ready for the fight.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Hon. Carl E. Milliken, prominent in the business world for his extensive lumbering operations in this state and in politics as a leader in the Maine Senate, will speak before the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, Nov. 23, on "Christian Principles in Business." We are very fortunate in having such a prominent man to present this second talk in the general series of the year on the Practical Applications of Christianity.

On Wednesday before Thanksgiving, the Social Service Committee will take a collection to give a Thanksgiving dinner to some of the poor families of Brunswick. Come to chapel on Wednesday morning with some change in your pocket.

The Season

Once more does the old adage, "There is no use crying over spilled milk," come to our ears after the defeat of last week. But such a half-hearted approval of the work which the Bowdoin team has done this fall is not sufficient. From a squad of men which most football dopes claimed would be good only for last place in the State championship, a team was built up which won its way into the final round through clean, hard football. In the contest for highest honors Bowdoin met a team which was her superior in many departments of the game. Yet with some of her men badly crippled she held her heavier opponent on the three-yard line during the last four minutes of play. The same spirit which has characterized Bowdoin's play during her uphill fight for the championship was manifested in the very last scrimmage of the season.

Although as a whole, the season has not been successful we have held our own in the Maine games. Outside of the State we met only teams which were far beyond our standard. Against these teams Bowdoin was unable to score, but her team learned how to fight against great odds. That this lesson was well learned can be seen in the record made by the White in her State matches.

And with the close of the football season of 1911 all Bowdoin men should have only the word of praise for the coach who developed the team which fought for the championship; for the captain and men who worked faithfully for the college; for the second team which made the first team possible; and for the management which handled the largest crowd ever seen on Whittier Field.

The Financial Situation

Although the active part of the season has closed, a mighty important phase is yet unfinished. Through no direct fault of the management the game which would put the financial situation on a sound footing, has been cancelled. This loss of the annual game in Portland leaves finances in a very poor condition. The way in which such a condition can be remedied is through the student body. It is reported that a small percentage of the men in college have made any subscription to the support of the team. Others have made few subscriptions thinking perhaps that football can support itself by gate receipts. Then, too, many men are evidently dissatisfied with the system of raising money for the support of teams. Such an expense, however valid it might sound, will not pull the football association "out of the hole" this season. Since we haven't got the "blanket-tax" this fall, are we justified in letting our present system fail to fill its place? If we wish to bring about a change, let us try to close the old method with a clean sheet. It is the personal duty of every man in college to "square" himself at once with the football association.

THE OCTOBER QUILL

The discriminating studies of character in Marmiton in the current Quill, and the prevailing simplicity of incident and restraint of style, at once commend the story. On the other hand, the writer's evident effort to suggest rather than to express often demands too much of his readers. Examples of this are to be seen in the frequent and abrupt shifting of the point of view—notably in the first paragraph of Section III.—and in the disproportionate and hence misleading emphasis at the end of the story upon what Marmiton sees from the window. How far the author and how far the proof-reader should be blamed for the many errors in punctuation and for the use of expressions like “bullion” (for bonillon), “alright,” “onto,” and “puffy” (meaning “rapidly breathing?”), a reviewer cannot say without having access to the manuscript of the story. Certainly, however, offences against good use in these matters are far too frequent in the never-to-be corrected pages of this, the college, literary magazine.

The briefer contributions include The Dreame,
The Hills, the Plain, and the Sea and Silhouettes.
Of each of the first two, both efforts in verse, it is no mean praise to say that, although the expression is defective, the mood is distinct and worthy. As for Silhouettes, why does the writer, in repeating the admonitions composed by his predecessors, conclude with the quotation which of them all is the least striking?

The suitableness of title to subject-matter in Quebec-August, 1911 may well be questioned, for under that head the writer treats specifically of Quebec not at all (also of August, 1911, not at all), and, throughout fully half of the article, of a scene which, as he repeatedly says, is distant from the city. In this description, moreover, the vividness of “Tanned engineers [who] pore over blue prints” makes a reader hunger for more of such detail in place of “dreams” and “romance.”

Granting that the point of One Summer’s Day forms an adequate basis for a story, one may say that the writer has made the point effectively. The most notable achievement of this story, however, is the crisp and spirited dialogue with which it abounds.

I cannot conclude this brief comment upon the successive contributions without emphasizing what to me is the chief characteristic of the issue as a whole. There is to nearly every page an unreality, a remoteness, a dreaminess which is surely unnatural among active young men in a flourishing college in our day. Does the Quill fail to reflect the true quality of Bowdoin life, or is that life really lacking in virility? Unquestionably dreaminess and dellettantism and refinement of sorrow have their place in literature; but a college magazine which presents little but these sentiments is not truly representative of the sort of young manhood we need to cultivate. Even the contribution which seems to me strongest in tone would please me tremendously more if it began:

“There is too much peace in the hills,
There is too much rest in the plain;
And I long in the night for the wet sea-light
And the drive of the off-shore rain.”

DRAMATIC RECITAL

On Monday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall,
Leland Powers will give, by special permission, “Lord Chumley” by Belasco and DeMille, under the auspices of the Saturday Club and the College. It is several years since Leland Powers has appeared in Brunswick but his impersonation of “Micawber” in David Copperfield, his “Cyrano,” and the diverse characters taken in his “Pair of Spectacles,” made him a great favorite with students and townspeople.
He is a master in making an entire cast of play or novel live and act before his audience and this he does by voice and movement, quite without stage effects.

Long before the establishment of his well-known school of dramatic interpretation in Boston, he was recognized as a master of character-depicting on the platform. He has appeared twenty times before the Brooklyn Institute, seventeen times before the University of Michigan, twelve times before Williams College students, and in his long list of engagements
he has appeared again and again at Yale, Oberlin, Wellesley, the Hill School, Lawrenceville, St. Paul’s and Hotchkiss. The recital is free to all students of the College and Medical School. The following members of “Masque and Gown” will usher: N.
D. Welch, ’12, C. R. Crowell, ’13, L. E. Jones, ’13, and W. F. Twombly, ’13. The program, showing the variety of characters, is as follows:

LORD CHUMLEY

Adam Butterworth: A retired produce merchant
Lieut. Hugh Butterworth: His son
Eleanor Butterworth: His daughter
Jessie: Eleanor’s friend
Lady Adcline: The aunt—a maiden lady, fair, fat, and forty Monsieur Le Sage: A French adventurer
Blink Bunk: A convict lately released from the galleys
Winterbottom: The butler
Meg: Maid of all work in a lodging house Lord George Chumley: A friend of Hugh Butterworth—not such a fool as he looks

Act 1—At Adam Butterworth’s country house.
Act 2—Lord Chumley’s lodgings.
Act 3—At Adam Butterworth’s country house.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

In the Y. M. C. A. Room last Thursday night
Professor Chapman lectured on the King James Bible. He briefly described the preceding translation and then told of the real work of translation.
Fifty-four divines were appointed for the work and divided into groups of nine men each. Each one of these groups worked independently and then compared their work. They were expected to keep as close to the former Bishop’s Translation as possible and to give the common meaning to words of several meanings. Various other interesting instructions were given.

Dr. Faber said of the King James Bible, “It is part of the national mind, and the anchor of national seriousness. It is the representation of a man’s best moments, and all that there has been about him of rapt and gentle, and pure and peni tent and good, speak to him forever out of his Protestant Bible.” It is the greatest piece of English literature in the world.
PSI UPSILON DANCE

An informal dance was held Friday evening at the Psi Upsilon chapter house. About fifteen couples were present and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Members of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and Theta Delta Chi fraternities were also present. Music was furnished by the Arlington Club of Portland. At intermission refreshments of salad, ice cream, and cake were served at the house. Mrs. H. B. Peters of Woodfords acted as chaperon. Among those present were: Misses Helen Sherman, Dorothy Sherman, Bar Harbor; Janet Peters, Margaret Starbird, Woodfords; Rose Tyler, Evelyn Edwards, Portland; Ethel Haskell, Beatrice Mudgett, Bangor; Frances Crossman, Portland; Ruth Palmer, Bath; Louise Allen, Gardiner. The committee in charge included Loring Pratt, ’12, of Elmina, N. Y., chairman; Robert P. King, ’12, of Ellsworth; Robert D. Cole, ’12, of Arlington, Mass., from Delta Kappa Epsilon; George F. Cressey, ’12, of Portland, from Theta Delta Chi.

BETA THETA PI DANCE

An informal dance was enjoyed at the Beta Theta Pi house after the Maine game, starting at 5.30. Music was furnished by the College Orchestra. The chaperons were Mrs. Paul Nixon and Mrs. Frederick W. Brown. The committee in charge: Lowell S. Foote, ’12, of Somersworth, N. H.; Jesse H. McKenney, ’12, of Brunswick; and Francis X. Callahan, ’14, of Portland.

Among the guests present were the Misses Frances Little, Sarah Baxter, Ellen Baxter, Mary Elliot, and Belle Cornish of Brunswick; Miss Lula Barber of Yarmouth; the Misses Annie Brown, Katherine Johnson, and Katherine Jenkins of Portland; Miss Margaretie Hemsey of Bath; Miss Molly Hutchins of Fryeburg; Miss Inez Giles of Edgewood, R. I.; Miss Dorothy Bird of Rockland; Misses Marion Lowell and Iva Record of Auburn; Miss Blanche Webster of Augusta; Miss Caroline Wells of Bath; Professor Nixon and Professor Brown.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON DANCE

Theta Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon entertained at its chapter house Saturday evening after the Maine football game. About fifteen couples were present and dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Music was furnished by Hobbs’ Orchestra of four pieces from Lewiston. After the dancing refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The committee in charge included Robert D. Cole, ’12, of Portland, Mass., chairman; Benjamin D. Holt, ’13, of Portland; William B. Williamson, ’15, of Augusta. Among those present were: Misses Beatrice Mudgett, Ethel Haskell, Leola Coombs, Mollie Woodcock, Hazel Savage, of Bangor; Helen Sherman, Dorothy Sherman, Bar Harbor; Elizabeth Fuller, Rockland; Annie Percy, Bath; Imogene Bennett, Geneva Hinch, of Danforth; Janet Peters, Margaret Starbird, Woodfords; Evelyn Edwards, Portland; Gail Woodcock, Bangor; Eleanor Wescott, Portland.

College Notes

“Jack” Hurley entertained his brother over the week-end.

Ernest Pottle, ’09, has been on the campus for a few days this week.

Austin, ’15, entertained his brother for a few days the first of the week.

Harold P. Marston, ’11, is principal of the High School at Vinalhaven, Me.

Governor Plaisted and Senator Johnson were present at the Maine game.

A crew of men is removing the brown tail moth nests from the trees on the campus.

McMillan, ’88, who was the star halfback in 1893, was among the many alumni back to the Maine game.

Fifty-seven of the Freshman class received warnings, forty-two receiving minor warnings and fifteen major warnings.

After the Maine game, the squad held an informal dinner at “Pan” Pennell’s. After the dinner, each man spoke a few words on the past season.

The Zeta Psi House was placed at the disposal of the football team, Friday night. Douglas, who spoke at the rally, was the only man to leave the house.

About 25 men have reported for practice for the Sophomore football team and about 20 for the Freshman team. The Sophomore squad is in charge of Capt. L. Brown, while “King” Pratt is coaching the Freshman squad.

R. J. Campbell, the great pulpit orator of The People’s Temple, London, spoke Tuesday in the church of Rev. Raymond Calkins of Portland, a familiar figure in college Y. M. C. A. meetings, on “Christianity and the Modern Social Problems.”

The last week special meetings have been held in the Y. M. C. A. room from 1 to 1:30 p.m. The speakers were President Hyde, Monday; Professor Johnson, Tuesday; Mr. E. G. Fifield, Wednesday; Rev. L. A. Parsons, Thursday; Professor Chapman, Friday.
C. D. Jameson, '76, who was sent last summer to China to study the food conditions, in an effort to effect a remedy, is working to relieve the famine situation.

The discussion of the All Maine football team has been opened in many of the Maine papers. Among the Bowdoin men mentioned are Capt. "Jack" Hurley, "Farmer" Kern and "Duff" Wood.

An unusually large number of alumi were back on the campus for the Maine game last Saturday. C. T. Hawes was the sole representative of the class of '77. The class of '88 was represented by I. H. Hodedon and T. S. Kimball. The only 1900 man back was W. V. Phillips. 1901 contributed H. D. Evans, G. C. Wheeler, G. L. Pratt, and E. T. Fenley, while Geo. Fogg was the only '02 on hand. 1903 was represented by F. G. Marshall, H. L. Webber, F. J. Welch, R. C. Bisbee, E. F. Abbott, and C. P. Connors. The 1904 men were W. F. Coan, Emery Beane, W. T. Rowe, and G. C. Furington. Among the '06 men were D. B. Andrews and W. T. Johnson, R. A. Cony, '07, and W. S. Weston. "Cash" Abbott, ex-'08, Ray Merrill, and E. T. Sanborn, all of '08, were on hand for the game. The '09 men were J. M. Sturtevant, B. F. Briggs, W. T. Phillips, and E. H. Pottle. 1910 was well represented by G. C. Weston, W. E. Atwood, "Al" Wandtke, "Bobby" Morss, "Bill" Nutly, "Puss" Newman, Leon Smith, and "Jim" Hamburger. There were a number of 1911 men, among them being "Benny" Partridge, "Olly" Sanborn, M. G. L. Bailey and G. H. Macomber. Among others were "Jack" Minor, '06, "Don" MacMillan, '08, "Me!" Gould, ex-'11, Leon Conway, ex-'11, V. A. Hughes, ex-'11, "Steve" Perry, ex-'12, G. C. Duffy, Jr., ex-'13, and H. D. Archer, ex-'13.

BOWDOIN MEN ENGAGED IN TEACHING

It is very interesting to note the comparatively small number of Bowdoin men engaged in teaching. Out of approximately twenty-eight hundred living graduates, only between two and three hundred are engaged in teaching. The number of those who teach permanently is even smaller. The reason may be found in the fact that many men, after graduation, go into teaching as the quickest and surest way of earning money to send them through law or medical school. The following statistics, compiled at the college office, give the number of Bowdoin men at present actively engaged in teaching.

Fifty-seven graduates of Bowdoin are teaching in the various colleges of the country. The list includes one president, thirty-five professors, six assistant professors, twelve instructors, and three deans. One hundred and ninety-four men are engaged in teaching in schools, academies, and normal schools. Among these are twenty-four superintendents, sixty-six principals, sixteen sub-masters, seventy-five teachers, and eighteen in grammar and other grades.

Maine leads in the number of men employed, with seventy-six, while Massachusetts is a close second with sixty-one. New York has eighty, New Hampshire seventeen, Pennsylvania eleven, Connecticut ten, and California six. Vermont, Wisconsin, Ohio, and New Jersey can each boast of four Bowdoin men among their teachers. Our graduates have even reached Porto Rico, there being three of them in the teaching profession on the island. Oregon, Montana, Utah, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Illinois, Iowa and even Alaska have two Bowdoin educators each within their boundaries, while Virginia, Kentucky, Georgia, Canada, Washington, Tennessee, and Maryland have one each.

TENTATIVE BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Manager "Fred" Wiggin of the baseball team is rapidly arranging his schedule for next spring. As matters stand at present, there will be nineteen or twenty games on the list. The season will begin with the usual New York trip, on which at least five, and possibly six games, will be played. It is Manager Wiggin's intention to extend this trip more than is the usual custom, and to play Princeton, Seton Hall, Columbia University, Rutgers, West Point and Trinity. He plans to arrange games with Harvard, Brown, Rhode Island State College, Dartmouth, University of Vermont, and Tufts, besides the championship games with the Maine colleges. If negotiations are successful, an innovation will be introduced commencement week by ending the season with a game with some strong Massachusetts team, such as Amherst.

AT THE LIBRARY

By the kindness of Dr. William C. Mason of Bangor, the library has recently received two last cent books from the private library of Dr. Rufus King Cushing, of the Class of 1821. One is the well-known copy of Walker's Dictionary which he bought in his Sophomore year and which told him to use the final k in music, fabric, etc. The second volume contains the records of The Social Fraternity established at Bowdoin College, April 21, 1876. Most of its members belonged to the Class of 1821, and the records of meetings subsequent to the latter date were of the nature of class reunions. In undergraduate days, the society discussed such questions as: Does Climate Influence Genius? The latter was decided in the affirmative.

Intercollegiate Notes

The most popular man in Minnesota will soon be decided by the votes of the "co-eds." Columbia outdistanced the previous records of all American universities this year by an enrollment of over eight thousand students.

The course of lectures on Rugby Football being given this year at Leland Stanford University will count as one unit of credit toward an A.B. degree.

In a report on scholarship at Leland Stanford it is interesting to note that the fraternity members had the less number of "warnings." Of the total 87 men warned, 40 per cent. were fraternity men, and 60 per cent. non-fraternity men.

'83.—John E. Dinsmore, A.M., of the American Colony at Jerusalem, has contributed to the Zeitschrift des Deutschen Palästina-Vereins a valuable monograph on the Plants of Palestine. This has also been issued in separate form, making an octavo pamphlet of 122 pages.

'97.—The current volume of the Transactions of the American Philological Association contains an article by Professor J. W. Hewitt on the “Necessity of Ritual Purification after Justifiable Homicide,” a study in Greek archaeology.

'97.—A. S. Harriman, superintendent and principal of the Middlebury, Vt., schools, was elected president of the Vermont State Teachers’ Association, Oct. 20, at Montpelier.

'01.—On Oct. 27, Edward S. Anthoine was unanimously elected Chairman of the Republican City Committee of Portland, Me. Mr. Anthoine is a young attorney, a brilliant speaker, and is regarded very highly by those who know him. He has been two years on the city council. Mr. Anthoine, while in college, stood high in his studies, and his friends confidently expect him to show the same energy and optimism in his new position as he displayed in his course here at Bowdoin.

'05.—Frank E. Seavey, instructor in English at Tufts, in collaboration with Earle and Savage, two other members of the English Department, has recently compiled a revised and enlarged edition of his book, “Sentences and Their Elements.” This book is published by the MacMillan Company, and is designed for the use of Freshman classes in college.

'08.—Roy L. Kinney is now located in San Diego, Cal., with the Squires Employment Agency, having recently moved to San Diego from Imperial Valley, Cal.

'08.—Philip H. Timberlake is now in the United States Bureau of Entomology, and is located at Whittier, California, where he is doing special research work concerning pests peculiar to the fruit orchards of the West. Upon being graduated from Bowdoin, Mr. Timberlake entered Harvard. While there, he worked under the Massachusetts Bureau of Entomology upon the gypsy moth. The State Bureau was taken over by the government in 1910, and Mr. Timberlake was promoted to the government bureau. He was transferred to Michigan that year for a few months and then in September, 1910, was promoted to his present work in California. Mr. Timberlake is one of the most valuable young men in the bureau and is advancing rapidly in his work.

The following Bowdoin men are in Yale: Thomas Otis, '10, in the Law School; Eaton, '10, in the Forestry School; and C. L. Deming, '10, in the Medical School.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

The entire Senior Class of the Engineering School of Purdue has signed an agreement to raise moustaches.

There are four "co-eds" in the Law Department of Wisconsin University, and one in the Engineering Department.

Wisconsin is trying the system of upperclass advisers for Freshmen. One hundred and thirty men have each agreed to call on at least five or six Freshmen and try to act as elder brothers.

A course in logging is one of the innovations this year at the University of Washington. This course is designed for young men wishing to take up lumbering as a profession, and teaches that knowledge of mechanical engineering required in laying out logging roads and installing logging outfits generally.

Hereafter any upperclassman at Johns Hopkins who indulges in even the mildest form of hazing is to be expelled.

Captains of five other sports are on Yale's football squad, the crew captain being the only captain not out for the eleven.

At the University of Kansas, those trying out for football must take a written quiz on the first ten rules of the game.

Forty foreign students representing twelve countries, are registered at Syracuse. Eleven come from China, six from Porto Rico, three each from Cuba and Russia, and one from Palestine.

Cornell is to be the model for a large new university in Perth, the capital of Western Australia.

The trustees of Dartmouth College have decided that no steps shall be taken to limit the growth of the college, and that instead increase in the enrollment should be encouraged.

Lecture courses in Rugby Football, the collegiate game at Leland Stanford University, have been instituted by the faculty.

The "co-eds" of the University of Wisconsin have just formed a student council.

BOWDOIN DEFEATS BATES IN CROSS COUNTRY RACE

On Tuesday afternoon was held the Bowdoin-Bates cross-country race which had been postponed from last Saturday. It was a decisive victory for the Bowdoin team. The start was made at the Beta Theta Pi House as Bates desired a 44 mile course, and the finish was at Whittier Field with one lap around the track. The start was at 3:38 and the time of the race was 24 minutes and 56 seconds. The Bowdoin team was composed of Capt. Harry H. Hall, '13, Timberlake, '12, Auten, '12, Haskell, '13, and Tarbox, '14.

The men entered the field and finished the race in the same order: Hall of Bowdoin, Deering of Bates, Tarbox of Bowdoin, Parker of Bates, Haskell of Bowdoin, Auten of Bowdoin, Sawyer of Bates, Timberlake of Bowdoin, Houston of Bates, and Ellis of Bates.

Hall led by a big margin and the rest were well bunched as far as the standpipe, except Sawyer, who had to walk up Standpipe Hill. Timberlake got winded going up the Hill, and from there to the golf club-house lost two places. The men went past the half way mark in the following order: Hall, Tarbox, Deering, Haskell, Parker, Timberlake, Auten, Houston, Ellis, and Sawyer. On the way back, a freight train blocked the path of the runners. Timberlake, Houston, Sawyer, and Ellis were forced to wait till the track was clear but the others climbed the train. Hall finished about 30 yards ahead of the field and had finished when the sixth man entered the field. In the last hundred yards there was a pretty race between Sawyer and Timberlake, who, by a spring made up the ten-yard lead possessed by Sawyer and passed him, but Sawyer finished by a strong sprint beating Timberlake by a few feet. This was the only individual race of the meet. One of the most promising points of the meet from the Bowdoin viewpoint was the work of Tarbox, '14, who finished third.

The starter was Burton C. Morrill. The judges at finish were Dr. Manton Copeland, A. C. Adams of Bates, E. G. Fifield, Robert D. Cole, '12, Wm. A. MacCormick, '12. The timers were Dr. F. W. Whittier and L. G. Lathrop of Bates.

SUMMARY OF THE FOOTBALL SEASON

At the beginning of the season Bowdoin had an outlook which was anything but cheerful; many of the stars of the previous year had graduated, or for various reasons had not returned to college. The result of the early season games, all of which were unsuccessful, hardly served to raise the hopes of the supporters of the “White,” and up to the day of the Colby game nobody really knew what kind of team Bowdoin was represented by. But the large band of Bowdoin rooters and “grads,” came away from that hard-fought drawn battle in Waterville, with the confidence that again we were represented by a hard-playing, snappy team, which could well uphold the name of old Bowdoin in the remaining games of the State series.

Then followed the game with Bates, with its spectacular scoring, and the final game with Maine before the immense crowd on Whittier Field, where we went down fighting hard before Maine’s well planned attack. Championships are good things, nice things to cherish in one’s memory, but the sons of Bowdoin have learned that the only real thing that counts, is to have a hard-fighting, clean-playing team, and so we do honor to the gridiron heroes of the season of 1911, with the same enthusiasm, and spirit, as if they had again brought home to the “Pines” the State championship.

On paper Bowdoin started the Maine series with the weakest team of the four, but thus heralded as the prime contender for the cellar championship, with a list of defeats in the early season contests, with a new backfield and inexperienced quarterbacks, this same team at the end of the season was playing with the University of Maine for the State championship with no odds on Maine.

Owing to unfortunate circumstances, two out-of-State games were cancelled, and the big game in Portland could not be played. The games with Brown and Dartmouth were held too early in the season to give Bowdoin time to develop an offense and the heavier opponents piled up rather large scores.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Sept. 30—Bowdoin, 14; Ft. McKinley, 0.
Oct. 4—Bowdoin, 0; Dartmouth, 23.
Oct. 14—Bowdoin, 0; Brown, 33.
Oct. 28—Bowdoin, 0; Colby, 0.
Nov. 4—Bowdoin, 11; Bates, 0.
Nov. 11—Bowdoin, 0; Maine, 15.

The three games of the Maine series, in which Bowdoin contested, were all of a high class to witness. The final game with Maine was a great exhibition of hard playing and sportsmanship. The captain of the Maine team said after the game "It was the cleanest game I ever saw between Maine and Bowdoin. I have the greatest respect for the members of the Bowdoin team. Never in my football experience have I played against a cleaner lot of gentlemen."

The line-up of the team was changed from week to week during the season on account of injuries, but during the Maine game the best line-up was presented.

Capt. "Jack" Hurley, three years owner of the position of Bowdoin's right end, was back in his old place this Fall. "Jack" made an ideal leader for the team. He graduates this year and it is a great loss to the team as well as the college that he has donned the moleskins for the last time. Two years a member of the All Maine team, his reputation as a football hero will live in Bowdoin for many a day.

The position of right tackle was an uncertain one all year. Lewis, '15, was seen in the position at the end of the season and by his strong defensive work and ability as a punter, gave promise that he will develop into a star lineman with another year's experience. Henry Hall, '14, played a part of the season and showed up as a shifty tackle with plenty of speed. Weeks also played this position during parts of the games. This last named man is to graduate this June, and is one of the gridiron heroes that has not received the official recognition of the college by being awarded his letter, but is known by the members of the squad for his faithfulness, and willingness to work at any position. Such men as this make the coach's work easier and help to make championship teams. It was unfortunate that Weeks was out of the game with an injury for a large part of the season.

"Brose" Burns filled the position of right guard and played the same strong, aggressive game that he has been noted for in the past two years in which he has represented the White in this capacity.

At centre Douglas, a second team man for two years, took care of the passes. There was never a harder and fiercer player given a Bowdoin uniform than this lanky, shock-haired youth. With more weight Douglas would be an invincible lineman, and it is his lack of beef that keeps him on the injured list so much. As an understudy chunky Bill McMahon ended a number of games in the place of the peppery regular centre, and whether passes were behind his own goal line or not he was as steady as a clock and always in the game.

At left guard Leo Pratt was seen after a year's absence and finished the centre trio which presented a stonewall defense to the opponents in all except the last game. Simpson was also seen in this position and played the best game of his life in the final game with Maine. Simpson also graduates this year and will be a distinct loss. With another year's experience he would have developed into a powerful guard with his 220 pounds and speed.

"Duff" Wood, a Junior and tackle for two years, played the next position in the line. This man was one of Bowdoin's best ground gainers during the season and on defense was in every play. He has earned for himself the honor of an undisputed berth on the all-Maine team at tackle.

"Stan" Hinch, the speedy Junior, played left end and improved steadily during the season, being one of the strongest men on the team during the Maine game. Page also held down the left wing and played a steady game.

"Stan" Dole and "Chuck" Crosby alternated at quarter during the whole season and, although neither had had any previous experience in that position, they worked hard and showed an excellent fighting spirit. Both are Juniors and will come back next year with added experience, and guarantee good material for the pivotal position.

The halfback positions were well cared for by three men this Fall. Faulkner, "the Freshman find" was the fastest man on the team on offense, and on defense put up a wonderful exhibition in the Maine State games. He did the large share of the punting for the team and should be ranked second to none in the State in this department.

Bob Weatherill, '14, who made his reputation last year as a speedy back, was better than ever this Fall. Time and again, in every game he played he brought the stands to their feet by his hard, driving, reckless tackles.

LaCasce, also '14, alternated at halfback and end. "Casey" was a valuable man for the team on account of his versatility and on defense played a fine game throughout the season. With more experience he will develop into a great "back."

Last, but by no means least, was "Farmer" Kern at fullback. The idol of the football fans of Maine, the pride of Portland, and Bowdoin's sensational ground gainer, what more needs be said, when we state that he was better than ever this year. "Farmer" is a Senior but may return to the Medical school next fall. We only hope we have the pleasure of seeing him again in uniform, dodging through a broken field, or stopping the whole attack of an opposing team.

A number of others there are, who played in some of the earlier games and deserve credit for their loyalty and hard work, which space does not permit us to bestow individually.

Frank Bergin as coach was entirely successful and has the College behind him. It is to be hoped he can be secured for another year. Trainer Nickerson worked long and late over the black and blue spots and, incidentally, imbued a little of the old Bowdoin fighting spirit into his charges.

The managing end of the season was well taken care of by Robert P. King, '12. The dissatisfaction expressed by some at the canceling of two important games and the lack of reserved seats for the Maine game, was unjustly laid at the feet of Manager King, but he was entirely blameless in these circumstances. Financially, he has made an enviable record, and leaves things in good shape for Lawrence W. Smith, '13, who was assistant manager this Fall and takes up the position of managership next year.

The captain for the team for 1912 has not been elected yet, but there have been one or two good men suggested, either one of whom would make an excellent leader.

AN OPEN LETTER

To the Undergraduates, Alumni, and Faculty of Bowdoin College

I am sorry to find in the Orient of recent date an editorial upon the unsatisfactory financial condition of the Quill. This appears to be a more or less chronic condition, for which a permanent remedy should be sought.

As a remedy I suggest the elimination of the present competition between the Orient and the Quill, which, though probably unconscious, is none the less real. This competition is of two sorts; first, for suitable editors (I understand that no one can hold positions on the boards of both papers); second, for advertising, without which no periodical, however large its subscription list, can be really profitable.

Is it not unreasonable to keep the membership of the two boards distinct? What would be said if a man were kept off the baseball team because he was already on the football team? And though to some it may appear strange, there are men who enjoy undergraduate journalism enough to work on two papers. At least, this used to be true, for classmates of mine, until forbidden by rule, were on both the Orient and the Quill.

As to advertising: Of course, there always will be difficulty in getting merchants to pay for space in each of two papers when the circulation of one duplicates to an extent the circulation of the other. And, at present, the merchant's choice of the two is likely to be the Orient—this being the better established paper, larger in size, more frequently published, and more widely circulated.

Now the mistake in the present business arrangement of Bowdoin's papers is that each manager is allowed to regard his paper as his personal property; that is, he is allowed to pocket the profits. But, in fairness to his successors, why should he? The prestige of the paper is not his. It is the prestige of the college. The man may hustle for advertising, but how much would his hustling get him if the college were not back of his paper? And why should the manager of the college paper pocket his profits any more than the manager of the football team?

As a more business-like and permanent arrangement, I suggest the establishment of a Bowdoin Publishing Association, whose directors shall be elected from undergraduates,

That the system of athletic government at Bowdoin needs revision or regulation, is not questioned in the slightest degree by the student body. The rules which govern eligibility to class teams are decidedly vague and fickle. During this fall men who have represented their classes in baseball and track have been declared ineligible for the annual football game. The reasons which now declare such men ineligible existed before and allowed men to participate in baseball and track. Why is it that football should come in for this special attention? As far as we can discover there are no permanent rules to provide for eligibility in class games. Last spring at the eleventh hour it was necessary to make temporary rules governing competition, before the Indoor Meet could be held. In some events men actually competed without knowing which class they represented. Under the present lack of system a man can represent one class in baseball and another in football or else he can't represent any at all. Such vagueness and uncertainty connected with the way in which class matches are held, does little to stimulate interest in the contests. Primarily, these interclass games of every description are carried on for the purpose of bringing out new material for the various college teams. If, then, the games are to amount to anything and if they mean anything to the general welfare of athletics here in Bowdoin, why not have them run in a definite and fair way?

A Good Season

That the loss of a cross country race last fall did not kill the sport here, has been demonstrated in the good work done this season. From a squad of men who lacked experience in this work, a team was picked which brought credit to the college. With one more race than usual to run this year the team did faithful and consistent work. The race with the University of Vermont which was a close victory for that institution, brought out the fighting powers of the team. In the next race of the season with Bates this fighting power became a winning factor and the White was victorious by a comfortable margin. Throughout the whole season each man trained faithfully and hard to give his best to the college. The results show the effect of the hard practice which the men have been through. Much credit is due them for the way in which they worked for the college and much is also due the undergraduates who backed them so well in both races.

The "Open Letter"

Special attention should be given by the undergraduate body to the "open letter" which is printed in another column. The letter brings out many points for discussion, and, as on all subjects which vitally interest the students, the ORIENT will be glad to publish any communications it receives. Although we do not at this time express our opinion of the proposed system, it is well for those interested to consider it. We are glad to recognize the interest which the alumni body takes in undergraduate problems and it challenges us as active members of the college to do our share in solving such problems.

alumni, and faculty. I wish that all who are interested would consider this plan. I leave the details to be worked out after discussion. Three points, however, seem essential: (1) Allow the same undergraduates to serve on both papers if they can qualify; (2) make one man (with assistants as necessary) the business manager of both; (3) all money collected for subscriptions and for advertising should be turned into the treasury for the payment of the joint publication expenses of the two papers; balances should be handed on to the next manager.

I hope no one will read out of this letter criticism of the Quill's business management, either past or present. Nothing of the sort is intended, for I think the Quill has always been handled as well as the circumstances of publication would allow. What should be improved are the circumstances. The best expression of alumni interest will be help in inaugurating this improvement.

Yours very truly,

HANSON H. WEBSTER, '90.

MASQUE AND GOWN ORGANIZES

The first meeting of the Masque and Gown was held Monday night. Arthur Welch, '12, was re-elected president and John E. Dunphy, '13, was elected manager. Jack Hurley, '12, was elected to the executive committee to serve with the president and manager. The position of assistant manager is to be competed for. Welch briefly outlined the history of the club and told of the great interest evinced in the club by the faculty. The men out for positions then registered and the meeting adjourned.

DRAMATIC RECITAL

A large audience of townspeople and students attended the recital of "Lord Chumley" by Mr. Leland Powers under the auspices of the Saturday Club. The piece was highly dramatic and the speaker took the different parts in a very excellent manner. His impersonation was without costume of any sort and was the more remarkable for that fact. President Hyde introduced the reader. The outline of the piece was as follows:

The scene opens at Adam Butterworth's country home in England on the eve of his son's departure to the Boer War. Lord Chumley declares his love for Eleanor, Adam's daughter, but is turned down. Lord Chumley then invokes the aid of Lieut. Hugh Butterworth, Eleanor's brother and a close friend of Chumley's. Monsieur Le Sage appears and has entangled Hugh in a blackmailing scheme. Hugh had been entrusted with a thousand pounds raised by his fellow officers for the widow of a soldier. Le Sage had gotten Hugh intoxicated and had stolen £800. He has possession of the widow's receipt for the other £200 and threatens to betray Hugh unless he will influence his sister to marry him, Le Sage. Hugh confides in Chumley. Chumley stints himself for six months while Hugh is in Africa to save up £800. On the day of Hugh's return Chumley pays the widow the £800 and gets a receipt for it. Meanwhile Le Sage has forced Eleanor to agree to marry him to save the family honor. At the celebration following Hugh's homecoming Lord Chumley proves Le Sage's villainy to Eleanor and clears Hugh. Le Sage is allowed to escape. Eleanor admits that she loves Chumley and so the tale ended.

1911-1912 CATALOGUE ISSUED

The latest number of the college catalogue, the first copies of which were received at the office this week, is larger and better in every way than any of the preceding issues. It is more explicit in every department, and careful attention is given to every detail. The section devoted to the Medical School has been revised and enlarged and also made more definite. The courses are described much more fully. The current number shows the total number of students in the academical department to be three hundred and thirty-three, five less than last year, while in the medical department there are eighty-six, a gain of sixteen over last year's registration. In all there are eleven more students this year in the institution than last. It is a rather unusual fact that the present Senior class is the largest class in college, numbering eighty-six. The Freshmen are next in order of size with eighty-one members, the Juniors next, seventy-seven in all, the Sophomores being the smallest class, numbering only seventy. It is significant, and speaks well for the standard of the college, that only sixteen men of the upper classes have Freshman standing, as compared with thirty-five of last year.

The scholarships and prizes are dated for the first time. By the recent bequest of Joseph Edward Merrill, of the Class of 1854, $1,000 annually has been added to the amount distributed to students in the form of scholarships. At present the total amount devoted to scholarships and prizes in aid of meritorious students of slender means is over $12,000 annually. It is noteworthy that the David Sewall Premium was established in 1795, before the college was opened to students.

A new fund of $5,000 has been added, the William A. Packard Library Fund. The income is to be used "preferably for the purchase of such books as illustrate the Greek and Latin languages and literatures." The library now has 101,000 volumes, besides several thousand unbound pamphlets.

The new issue is the first to officially recognize the Student Council. Herefore only the Athletic Council has been in the catalogue. Another innovation is a section devoted to the Requirements for Degrees and Degrees with Distinction. In this number is printed, also, a schedule of "exams" and an exhaustive schedule of courses. The examinations are simplified by having only one set of papers in each subject, instead of two, as there have been in some subjects formerly.

The most interesting thing, however, is the new system of entrance examinations. This is treated very carefully, and explained very fully, in this issue. It goes into effect next June. Contrary to the general impression, the new system does not do away with entering on certificate. The Carnegie system of counting is employed—two points make a unit. Instead of 29 points, as formerly, 14 1-2 units are required. The following extract will explain the new system.

"Under this plan of admission candidates will be required to present a record of their school work showing the subjects studied, the time devoted to them, and the quality of work done. Such a report, to be approved, must show that the work in secondary schools has covered four years, that it has been mainly devoted to languages, mathematics, science and history, and that two of the subjects offered have been pursued beyond their elements. This record must be sent to the Dean of the College, before June 1. If it is approved by the College, candidates will then be given, in each of four (4) subjects, an examination adapted to show the range and quality of their attainment in the whole subject.

"For the degree of A.B. the examinations shall be: English; Latin; and two of the following six: (except that Science may not be offered unless Mathematics is offered with it) French, German, Greek, History, Mathematics, Science (Physics and Chemistry).

"For the degree of B.S. the examinations shall be: English; Mathematics; and two of the following six: French, German, Greek, History, Latin, Science (Physics and Chemistry).

"Both the school records and the results of the examinations will determine the acceptance or rejection of the candidates. Those who are admitted will be received free from conditions, and those who are rejected will receive no credit for such examinations as they may have passed under this plan of admission."

In harmony with the other improvements is the addition of an index. The catalogue, which is admirably done, was printed at the Record Press of this town.

BOSTON ALUMNI GATHERINGS

Every Saturday evening there is an informal Bowdoin gathering in some well-known Boston restaurant. There are a large number of the graduates of the past few classes located in Boston this winter who make it a point to meet at least once a week. The fellows meet at the Adams House about six o'clock and from there go to dinner.

These weekly gatherings are looked forward to with much pleasure, for they afford an excellent opportunity not only to maintain college friendships and college ties, but also to keep in touch with Bowdoin life and the activities at the college. Every Bowdoin man is cordially invited to join these gatherings, especially any undergraduate who may be in the city.

Last Saturday evening Manager Smith of the 1912 football team was present and told the fellows something of next year's football prospects. Last Saturday night the gathering included Hughes, '09; Crosby, '10; Williams, '10; Woodward, '10; Morse, '10; Tuttle, '10; Hamburger, '10; and Townsend, '10.

The Boston alumni want every undergraduate who attends the Harvard-Yale game to-morrow to be sure to attend the Saturday night Bowdoin dinner, and a hearty welcome is assured.

I have examined the books and accounts of the Baseball Manager, and find the foregoing a correct summary therefrom, except that disbursements are not in all cases sufficiently vouched, and except that subscriptions, which a Manager cannot collect at the close of his season, ought not to be carried as an asset.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At Sunday Chapel President Hyde talked of what Christianity brought into the world.
Ward Fowler says that such prayer as is found in the Christian religion was strange to the ancients with their ceremonial religions. The prayer of the Hebrews, Greeks and Romans was very different from prayer in the Christian religion. The Hebrews prayed in a sort of bargaining way, a give and take; the Romans prayed for the legal propriety of their acts; the Greeks offered a prayer with the aesthetic sense of proportion; while the Christians pray with a full-surrendering faith in the divine will of God—it is a talk with God. Jesus taught a prayer to his disciples which is entirely different from that of the Hebrews, the Romans, and the Greeks. When the Lord's Prayer is contrasted with these, it is seen that a new force for love and good citizenship throughout the world came with Christianity.

College Notes

Lowell Foote, '12, was in New York last week.
Thirty men turned out for the "Masque and Gown" Monday night.

Prof. Johnson's last talk on the Art Building and its contents was given yesterday.

Eddie Files, '08, finishes his work with the Portland High football squad to-morrow.

Prof. Sills was out of town over Saturday and Sunday. The Latin classes took adjourns, Saturday.

President MacCormick of the Y. M. C. A. was in Boothbay Harbor over Sunday on Y.M. C. A. business.

The number of members on the faculty is 73, the academic faculty numbering 25 and the medical faculty 53.

Many of the students have wondered what the flags were in the Library tower. Prof. Alvord has established a surveying station there.

On Saturday letters were sent out to all the alumni of the Medical School for subscriptions for the new dispensary to the built in Portland, Matthews, '12, and Burns, '13, made a tour of the campus, Monday evening, presenting their comedy, "The Queen of the Barnyard."

Cary, Bowdoin, '10, was the eighth man to finish in the recent Brown-Tech cross-country race, which Tech won. He was the fourth Tech man to finish.

In the final round of the golf tournament for the cup offered by Professor Sills, Curtis Tuttle, '13, of Brunswick, defeated Louis Donahue, '14, of Portland, 2 up.

MacCormick, '12, represented the Bowdoin Chapter of Delta Upsilon Fraternity at the initiation banquet of the Colby Chapter, held at the Augusta House last Friday evening.

Phillips, '09, together with F. P. Paulsen, a graduate of Wesleyan, has started an evening school for foreigners in Westbrook. Already nearly thirty-five men have enrolled in the classes.

The Bowdoin Chapter of Kappa Sigma was represented at the annual initiation of the Kappa Sigma Chapter of the University of Maine by Weston, '12, Leigh, '12, Riggs, '12, Hoit, '12, and Abbott, '13.

The Sophomores and Freshmen have had two teams out for practice all this week in preparation for their game, Saturday. The Sophomores are weakened by the loss of "Lew" Brown, who is ineligible.

All applications for Scholarships must be returned to the Treasurer's office on or before December first, and applications for Fellowships must be made to President Hyde in writing on or before the same date.

A meeting of the Bowdoin Masque and Gown was held Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. rooms for the purpose of electing officers and getting the signatures of those who are out for this year's cast. Arthur Welch was unanimously elected president, and John Dunphy manager.

Dean Sills represented the college last Saturday at Augusta at the meeting of the Advisory Committee on Relations between the Colleges and Public Schools of Maine. The meeting was held in the office of Payson Smith, State Superintendent of Schools, and was attended by a representative of each of the four Maine colleges. President Hyde was elected chairman of the college section of the Maine Teachers' Association which meets in Portland next fall.

A recent article published by President Hyde and reprinted in a number of college and University papers throughout the country, entitled "The College and the Student," in the form of a catechism, is of especial interest to Bowdoin students in its many allusions to our College and its policy with respect to new students and its organization. The interest shown in the article by the readers of the University of Washington Daily has caused their editors to publish a series of extracts from President Hyde's writings on College life.

No official all-Maine team is ever chosen, but the Lewiston Journal, considered to have the most impartial and up-to-date sporting department in the State, publishes a team selected from the choices of the captains and coaches of the four State colleges. We copy herewith this tentative aggregation with a few slight changes. These changes are the addition of alternate players for a few positions which the frequency of their appearance in other all-Maine teams for the year warranted.

Alumni Department

'98.—William W. Lawrence, Professor of English at Columbia, has just published through the Columbia University Press the lectures which he delivered last year at Cooper Union. The title of the collection is "Social Ideas in Mediaeval Story."

'06.—Rev. Oscar W. Peterson has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Bristol, Vt.

'07.—On Tuesday evening, October 31, Miss Helen Lancaster Eaton and Felix Arnold Burton were married at the home of the bride's parents on Federal Street. Harold Hitz Burton, '09, brother of the groom, was best man. While in college Mr. Burton was prominent in Christian Association work, was artist of the class Bugle and a member of the D. K. E. fraternity. The couple will reside in Helena, where Mr. Burton is employed in his professional capacity of architect.

'09.—In the recent list of Bowdoin men at Yale the name of Robert G. Stubbs of the Forestry Department, was inadvertently omitted.

'09.—Rev. Charles L. Stevens has received a call to be pastor of the First Congregational Church at Chicopee, Mass.

1915 WINS FOOTBALL GAME

In the closest and most interesting class football game seen at Bowdoin for several years, the Freshmen defeated the Sophomores Saturday afternoon, November 25th, by the score of 3-0. The Sophomores outweighed their opponents but were defeated by the punting of Floyd, the Freshman left tackle, and by the Freshmen’s following of the ball. The Sophomores outstruthed the Freshmen steadily during the first period, but in the second period the Freshmen came back strong. Securing the ball on their opponents’ 25-yard line, they tried a goal from the field. This failed but the Freshmen recovered the ball. Then Mannix, the Freshman quarterback, made a beautiful drop-kick which went squarely between the goal posts, and the score was 3-0 in favor of 1915.

During the next two periods, the Sophomores fought gamely to overcome this lead. In the last quarter, they rushed the ball down to their opponents’ 12-yard line. This was their opportunity to make a touchdown, but Merrill, the Sophomore quarterback, thinking there was only one minute more to play, tried a drop-kick, which failed. The game ended with the ball in Freshman territory. The game was witnessed by a large crowd of students and townpeople. It was played under almost ideal conditions, the Delta being free from snow for the first time during the class games of recent years.

Arthur Merrill captained the Sophomore team and Harry Cross the Freshmen. Both captains played a strong game. Merrill running back punts well and Cross being one of the strongest of his team on both offense and defense. Cooley, the Sophomore left half, gained more ground than any man on either team. Floyd, who never played football until he entered college this fall, showed great ability as a punter, repeatedly outpunting his rival, Merrill.

The line-up was as follows:

FRESHMEN

Smith, 1.e...........................1.e., Russell
Floyd, 1.t..........................1.t., O. P. Badgey Moulton, Badger, 1.g..........................1.g., E. S. Thompson

GYMNASIUM WORK BEGINS

Gymnasium, track, baseball, and fencing commenced last Monday for the winter.

For track work 49 men reported, and for the present, at least, will be under the supervision of Captain Robert D. Cole, ’12, of Arlington Heights, Mass. This is a much larger number than usual. Of the men, 12 were Seniors, 17 Juniors, 9 Sophomores, and 12 Freshmen.

For baseball there are 32 candidates, who will practice in the cage in charge of Captain Leland G. Means, ’12, of Orleans, Nebraska. Ten of the men are Freshmen.

Edward L. Morss, ’12, of Boston, Mass., will have charge of the Freshmen who are taking the regular gymnasium course. The Sophomore squad will be looked after by Seward J. Marsh, ’12, of Farmington, Me.; Carle O. Warren, ’12, of Gorham, Me.; Edward W. Torrey of Peabody, Mass., will supervise Junior drill, and Allan Woodcock of Bangor, will take charge of the Seniors.

FENCING SQUAD STARTS PRACTICE

The fencing squad started practice this week with 13 men out. The outlook for a team is good since several of the men have had a year’s experience. They are by no means experts at the game and will require a lot of practice before they meet out of state teams. The men out are S. T. Pike, ’13, manager; W. J. Greenleaf, ’12; H. A. Briggs, ’12; H. M. Shea, ’14; F. W. McCargo, ’14; W. S.
The members of the musical clubs are to be chosen this week. The glee club will be picked from the following men:

The glee club lost but four men by graduation. The club holds rehearsals twice a week, with Professor E. H. Wass of Augusta, as coach.

Manager Ashely has arranged the following provisional schedule. Not all the dates have been definitely settled, but will probably be as follows:

Week of February 26, Maine trip, Bangor, Oldtown, Bar Harbor, Camden, Rockland.

Week of March 25, Massachusetts trip, Saco, Exeter, Reading, Wellesley, Boston (Steinert Hall).

George F. Cressey, 1912, Leader of Mandolin Club

Beside these, there will be also concerts in Portland, Bath, and Richmond, and a joint concert with Bates at Lewiston.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING

At a recent meeting of the Student Council in the Deutscher Verein room it was voted that Manager Ashely be allowed to circulate a paper for the benefit of the musical clubs.

A discussion was held concerning the holding of a college smoker. No definite date was set, but the affair will probably be held in January.

According to the rules laid down by the Council, Freshman caps shall be worn from the time college opens until the Thanksgiving recess, and again from the Easter vacation until college closes in June.

The form of "blanket-tax" which the Council presented in rough draft was opposed by the faculty. A new form is now under consideration and will be presented at an early date to the student body.

1913 ELECTS OFFICERS

The Junior Class held their elections Thursday, November 23rd, and elected the following officers:

President, Laurence A. Crosby of Bangor.
Vice-President, Paul Howard Douglas of Newport.
Secretary, John E. Dunphy of Portland.
Treasurer, John A. Slocum of Albany, N. Y.

Orator, Merton W. Greene of Madison.
Marshal, Lawrence W. Smith of Portland.
Chaplain, Cedric R. Crowell of Richmond Hill, N. Y.

The Ivy Committee consists of:
Leon E. Jones of Winthrop, Mass., Chairman.
Clifton O. Page of Bath.
Paul C. Savage of Bangor.

Robert W. Belknap of Damariscotta.
Stanley F. Dole of Portland.

The Junior Assembly Committee consists of:
William F. Twombly of Reading, Mass., Chairman.

Kendrick Burns of Saco.
George L. Skofield, Jr., of Brunswick.
Frederick S. Wiggins of Saco.

Theodore E. Emery of Randolph.

PRESS CLUB ORGANIZES

At a meeting of the Press Club Monday evening, William R. Spinney, '12, Wilmot C. Lippincott, '13, and Douglas H. McMurtrie, '13, were elected to membership. The officers for the year are Fred D. Wish, Jr., '13, President; James A. Norton, '13, Vice-President; Laurence A. Crosby, '13, Secretary and Treasurer. The other members of the club are: T. H. Riley, Jr., '03; Allan Woodcock, '12; Edwin C. Burleigh, '13; Dana K. Merrill, '14; Stewart P. Morrill, '15. The newspapers represented are the Bangor Daily News, Bangor Daily Commercial, Portland Eastern Argus, Portland Express-Advertiser, Portland Sunday Telegram, Kennebec Journal, New York Post, New York Sun, Springfield Republican, Intercollegiate, and the Orient.

THE IBIS

The first business meeting of the Ibis was held at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house, November 2d. Charles F. Adams, '12, was initiated into the club.

During the coming year the Ibis plans to hold closed meetings every month and to have one or two open meetings at which the members of the college will have opportunity to hear talks by some of the leading men of the country.

The club continues its previous offer of twenty dollars as a prize for the best college song written by an undergraduate. The song may have original music or be written to some known air. The competition is open to all members of the student body. Any one submitting a song may leave it with Bradford, '12, at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house or with any other member of the Ibis.

ZETA PSI DANCE

A formal dance was held at the house of Lambda Chapter of Zeta Psi on College Street, Tuesday evening, Nov. 28th. The College Orchestra played for the party, which enjoyed an order of twenty dances. The rooms were beautifully adorned with pillows and banners. The patronesses were Mrs. William E. Lunt, Mrs. Chas. W. Hayes, of Foxcroft, Mrs. Chas. C. Bickford, of Portland; and Miss Hannah R. Page, of Skowhegan. The committee in charge consisted of Richard E. Simpson, '14, Reginald A. Monroe, '14, and Omar P. Badger, '14.

Among the guests were Misses Marguerite Burr, Gladys Burr, Helen Thompson, Ada Sawyer, Florence Horne, of Portland; Misses Harriette Henderson, Katherine Leydon, of Bath; Miss Mary Holton, of Boothbay Harbor; Misses Gertrude Emery, Mary Emery, Charlotte Colby, of Skowhegan; Misses Helen Fiske, Alfrutta Graves, of Brunswick; Miss Mary Wright, of Wiscasset; Miss Ethel Libby, of Augusta; Miss Edith Klein, of Buckfield; Miss Christine Whittemore, of Livermore Falls, and Dr. Copeland.
A few weeks ago we went as far as to say what the chance visitor might think of the morning chapel services at Bowdoin. Since then we have discovered that the probable has become the actual. In a recent issue of the New York Evening Post in which a Dean of one of our leading universities writes on "Manners in College," appeared the following statement: "I was at still another New England college, not long ago, and in company with the representatives of a dozen other colleges, I went to the chapel service. One would think that the students would have realized that they were, so to speak, on exhibition; but not they. They shuffled and yawned and talked. Really the best-behaved of the lot seemed to be the ones engaged in preparing their lessons for the coming hour." Although no name is mentioned good authority has it that "the coat fits" Bowdoin men. Such a presentation of facts coming directly home to us ought at least to make us realize our responsibility as college men. We spend much time in advocating and encouraging "fair play" and "squareness" in all athletic activities. Why shouldn't this same spirit of gentlemanness be carried into the class-room and all college exercises where it is supposed to exist? Evidently we are failing to put into practice in all our relations here what we would have our representatives do on the foot-ball, baseball or track field. No college man can fail to realize his responsibility to himself and to those around him in his daily dealings. Only when this sense of responsibility is developed, however, can we realize the definite educational value of good manners in our college life.

A Song

Now that the football season with all its demands is a thing of the past we hear the call, "In times of peace, prepare for war." One of the most crying needs at the present time is an addition to our list of college songs. During the past football season the lack of songs was a very conspicuous feature. All efforts, however, to remove this undesirable feature in the past years have been in vain. Speakers, alumni, editors, and friends have urged men to show their devotion to the college by writing a song to her name. These entreaties have produced only a few feeble efforts and we are still without any new songs. To present the problem more forcibly to the student body the members of the Ibis, over a year ago, offered a prize of twenty dollars for the best college song which should be handed in to its committee. As yet that prize has not been won and more important still, Bowdoin has not got a new college song. To keep the songs which we now have "alive" it is essential that we have others to support them. The competition which the Ibis encourages through its prize is open to all undergraduates and we sincerely hope that no undergraduate has so little loyalty in him that he can't at least try to honor Bowdoin with a new song.

LECTURE BY EDITOR OF THE BOSTON HERALD

In another week, on Saturday, Dec. 16th, there will speak before the college and the Saturday Club, in Memorial Hall, an editor who is both a thorough-going "newspaper man" and a student of modern political life. Mr.
Robert Lincoln O'Brien, the editor of the Boston Herald since its re-organization a year ago, had assumed the editorship of the Boston Transcript five years previously with a record of ten years as special correspondent of that paper in Washington. The articles signed "Lincoln" are thought by many to represent the highest type of constructive journalism, the type where the reporter of proceedings becomes the intelligent judge of affairs and offers a positive contribution to his readers' political knowledge. Before his correspondent days, Mr. O'Brien was private secretary to Mr. Cleveland, from the later's nomination in '92 to '95 and it is upon Washington, on which he is a recognized authority, that he will speak next Saturday. This is not one of the two regular entertainments arranged in co-operation by the club and the college, but an extra evening which the club is able to offer by the special courtesy of Editor O'Brien, whose interest in college men is very marked. The well-known Bromley Lectures at Yale, a course in the various aspects of journalism, were given last year by Mr. O'Brien. It is hoped that the college will give him the best Bowdoin greeting,—a large and appreciative audience.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Thanksgiving collection amounted to $28.12. Fourteen dinners were purchased and distributed by the committee consisting of W. R. Spinney and G. H. Nichols. These gifts were much appreciated by the people and helped to make Thanksgiving a brighter day for many.

A company of Boy Scouts is to be started this week at Pejepscot under the leadership of C. A. Brown, '14.

The speaker for Dec. 14 will be C. C. Dwyer of Conway, N. H., Y. M. C. A. Secretary for Carroll County. Mr. Dwyer is a Colby graduate in the Class of 1908. He was one of the best baseball players that Colby has produced in recent years, having the enviable record of playing in every game but one while he was in college and being captain of the team in his Senior year. After graduation he was Physical Director at Hebron Academy for two years where he was very popular. Last year he left this position to take up a work which has great responsibilities, the Y. M. C. A. work for the boys in the country towns.

Mr. Dwyer is an earnest speaker and will have something worth while to say.

The cabinet meeting was held at the Kappa Sigma House on Thursday evening, Dec. 7. Some of the questions discussed were deputation work, a meeting to give information about Hiwale's work, disposition of the old clothes collected, and a Christmas tree at Pejepscot.

The collection of old clothes, books and magazines is now going on. A considerable quantity has already been received which will be sent to some worthy organization.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

In his chapel talk the Sunday preceding the Thanksgiving recess, President Hyde compared the college year to a football game, of which the first period was nearly finished. He said in part:

"The ending of this first period comes at the Thanksgiving season. On looking back over it, we do not say that it has been perfect. There are many things with which we may well be dissatisfied. Yet we have a great many things to be thankful for; the football team and its splendid career; the Freshman-Sophomore football game, with its fine display of good sportsmanship and its lack of ill-will, which was a fitting conclusion to the work of the first period. We should be thankful for the means we now have with which to work; the endowments amounting to two millions, the faculty with their splendid cooperation, and the great interest of the alumni in us. These good things which we enjoy and are to enjoy do not come to us by mere chance. Over all is the power of the Father. Let us, therefore, have gratitude and thankfulness to God, and as we have freely received, so let us freely give of our gifts."

Faculty Notes

At a meeting of the faculty on Wednesday, November twenty-ninth, the question of class eligibility was discussed and the following vote was taken:

"That in order to take part in class contests, students must have class promotion and be approved as physically qualified by the department of physical training."

According to this, no student may represent any class except the one in which he is listed in the catalogue. Every man may compete, but he must represent the class in which he has standing.
Dean Sills was in Montreal during the Thanksgiving recess.
Mr. Alvord spent Thanksgiving at his home in Weymouth, Mass.
Professor Burnett spent a few days at Holyoke last week.

College Notes

Bordeaux, ’14, has left college.
The new catalogues have been sent out to the alumni.
Harold Marston, ’11, was on the campus last Sunday.
The number of applications for scholarships this fall is unusually large.
Since November sixth, 228 new volumes have been added at the library.
Thomas J. Welch and Dr. Francis J. Welch, ’03, were on the campus last week.
An unusually large number of warnings were issued just before the Thanksgiving recess.
Vernon P. Woodbury, ’15, spent the Thanksgiving recess with George Bacon, ’15, at Fryeburg, Me.
The electric light in the loggia of the Art Building has been raised so that it is no longer visible from the walk in front of the building. Although it is a minor detail, it adds to the attractiveness of the building.

Prof. Mitchell spoke at Second Parish Church at Portland, December 3.
New electric light fixtures are being installed in the rooms throughout the dormitories.
The monthly cabinet meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last night at the Kappa Sigma house.
Robert D. Cole, ’12, is a delegate to the Delta Kappa Epsilon National Convention at Chicago. This weekend
Curtis Tuttle, ’13, spent the Thanksgiving recess with Gibson, ’11, who is attending the Harvard Medical School.
A party of twenty Bowdoin students went to Keith’s Theatre in Portland, Friday afternoon, Dec. 1.
Stanley Dole, ’13, and Ralph Buell, ’14, were among those who witnessed the Yale-Harvard football game.
Fiske, ex-’09, was home from West Paris, Me., for Thanksgiving. He has a position in the High School there.
During the Thanksgiving recess “Jim” McBain and his crew of janitors gave all the college rooms a good cleaning.
“Jack” Hurley, ’12, is principal of the night school which is run down town in connection with the Cabot cotton mills.
Many Bowdoin students were present at the Alumni Dance and Entertainment at the Portland High School, Friday evening, Dec. 1st.
Thorton Academy defeated Biddeford High in the annual game on Thanksgiving Day by the score of 9 to 5. Hurley, ’12, has been coaching Biddeford High this fall since the college season closed.
Dr. E. F. Pratt, ’97, “Medic” ’00, has moved into a house on School street of this town, and has an office over the Pastime Theatre. Dr. Pratt was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity while in college.
The rush after the annual Freshman-Sophomore football game was held on the campus instead of on the chapel steps. It was started by the blowing of a whistle and was regulated by the Student Council.
The question for debate in English 6 last Tuesday night considered the wisdom of President Taft in vetoing the Arizona Statehood Bill. Rodick, ’12, and Douglas, ’13, supported the negative, while Russell, ’12, and Gage, ’14, upheld the affirmative.
Have you noticed Harry Faulkner crossing the campus with something black in his arms, showing up against his white sweater? If you have, you’ve probably wondered what it was. It’s a cat. It wandered into the “end” some time ago and Harry promptly adopted it.
Five Bowdoin men took part in the entertainment given at the Masonic Installation in Augusta, Monday evening, Nov. 27. A quartette consisting of Arthur Welch, ’12, first tenor; Harold Ashby, ’12, second tenor; Russell Cressy, ’12, first bass; and George Eaton, ’14, second bass, accompanied on the piano by Charles F. Adams, ’12, gave several selections which were greatly enjoyed. Arthur Welch also read several selections.
A Bowdoin dance is to be held at the Chateau du Parc, Vanderbilt Avenue and Park Place, Brooklyn, Tuesday evening, December eleventh. Committee: Mr. George R. Walker, 1902, Mr. John W. Frost, 1904; Mr. James G. Finn, 1905; Mr. Robert J. Hodgson, Jr., 1906; Mr. Benjamin F. Briggs, 1907, Mr. Philip R. Shorey, 1908; Mr. Arthur L. Robinson, 1908; Mr. Harrison Atwood, 1909; Mr. Harold W. Slocum, 1910.

The college was well represented, in roles of every character, in the society vaudeville given Tuesday evening, November 28, under the auspices of the Saturday Club. Those taking part were Professor Files, Mr. Alvord, Professor Davis, Mr. Furbush, Welch '12, Foote '12, Loring Pratt '13, W. Greene, '13, Mathews, '12, Alan Cole, '14, L. Brown '14, Callahan '14, Tibbetts '12, Weintz '15, McKenney '15, Marsh '12, P. P. Cole '12, Ashley '12, and Churchill '12.

D. B. MacMillan, '98, visited college on Monday, November 27, to obtain slides of a party of Bowdoin men in Labrador shown in connection with a lecture on "Labrador" which was given before the Bowdoin Club of Boston at the University Club rooms, Friday evening, December 1.

He related at the Club his intensely interesting experiences before an appreciative gathering of more than a hundred of his fellow graduates of Bowdoin College. His work last summer was under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural Sciences. Alone in an 18-foot canoe he travelled up the Labrador coast for over 500 miles to study the native tribes in their primitive villages and at their summer hunting camps in the bays and on the outer islands. Among these Labrador Eskimo, much farther north than Dr. Grenfell goes, the Moravian missionaries have maintained stations for 140 years, and Prof. MacMillan finds no praise too strong for the devoted men who bury themselves in the frozen wilderness, and whose noble work is practically unheard of in the outside world.

The Michigan Musical Clubs will make an 18-day trip to Los Angeles and back during the Christmas holidays.

James Thorpe will captain the Carlisle Indian School team next year. He has played halfback on the eleven this year and is considered America's greatest all-around college athlete.

Booker T. Washington lectured on "Negro Progress" at Harvard, Nov. 27.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF LAMBDA OF ZETA PSI

The Lambda chapter of Zeta Psi has lost a most highly esteemed elder member by the death of Col. Frank W. Hawthorne, '74, at his home in Montclair, N. J., on Saturday, November 25th.

The classmates and college friends of Col. Hawthorne remember him for his pleasing ways and his literary ability. His friends and associates in his work as an editor remember him for his energy and diligence in attaining success. The chapter remembers and cherishes him for his devotion and fidelity to the fraternity.

(Signed),

Harold P. Vannah,
Harold W. Miller,
Elwyn C. Gage,

For the Chapter.

HALL OF LAMBDA OF ZETA PSI

On December 1st, the Zeta Psi fraternity, and the Lambda chapter especially, was stricken by the death of Dr. Albion S. Whitmore, '75, in Boston.

His skill will be greatly missed by his co-workers in the treatment and care of crippled and aged persons. His geniality and presence at class reunions will be missed by all. As a loyal graduate, the college will especially miss him. The fraternity, however, will miss him as a most devoted alumnus, one who was always attentive to the development of the chapter and who contributed both time and money to its progress.

(Signed),

Harold P. Vannah,
Harold W. Miller,
Elwyn C. Gage,

For the Chapter.

'74.—Col. Frank W. Hawthorne, a native of Bath, but for several years past a resident of Montclair, N. J., died at his home in New Jersey, Saturday. The funeral was held from the residence of Mrs. E. H. Turner in Bath. Col. Hawthorne leaves a widow, who was Miss Ella Turner of Bath, and one son, Hayden. Mr. Hawthorne was educated at the Bath public schools and was valedictorian of the Class of 1869. During his college course, he excelled in literary work and was a leader in the college and society life. On completing his college course in 1874, he came home and for years, while in business with his father, was a leader in the social life of Bath. He wrote a poem for the Bath Centennial, which he read at the exercises in Wesley Church. In politics, a Democrat, he accepted a position on the staff of Governor Harris M. Plaisted.

Col. Hawthorne has enjoyed marked success in editorial work. His first work was done in Florida, where he was connected with a leading newspaper in Jacksonville. While here, he won great public approval for his heroism in staying through the yellow fever epidemic, rallying aid through the press to stricken Florida. It amounted to the actual jeopardy of his life every hour of his stay, while others were fleeing.

Soon after, he left Florida for the North and entering New York newspaper work, won his way by his merit. He was witty, facile, and gracious. A fine example of his cleverness is seen in his story in the "Tales of Bowdoin." For many years, Col. Hawthorne has been an editor on the New York Commercial. That his ability as an editor was appreciated by this paper is shown by their retention of him for such a long period of years.

'75.—Dr. Albion Stinson Whitmore died last week at the Deaconess Hospital in Brookline. He was born in Bowdoinville, Me., and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1875 and from the Columbian College of Surgeons and Physicians of New York in 1878.

Dr. Whitmore was consulting physician of the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children and for the Home for Aged Couples. He was a member of the American Medical Association, Massachusetts Medical Association, Boston Medical Library Association, University Club, Bowdoin Club, and of the Masons. He lived at 18 Union Park and is survived by a widow.

'75.—Friends have received from Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis of New York, invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Very Curtis and Edwy Lycurgus Taylor at Saint Bartholomew's Church, Saturday afternoon, Dec. 9. A large reception will follow at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, 986 Fifth Avenue, New York, at half-past four.

'77.—In a brief newspaper interview, William T. Cobb has shown that he is considering the matter of going before the primaries as a candidate for United States Senator, and that he is positively not in the field for the representative nomination in the second district.

'94.—Rev. Alfred V. Bliss has accepted a call to the Winslow Congregational Church at Taunton, Mass., and has entered upon his pastoral duties.

'95.—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peterson of Santa Ana, Cal., announce the marriage of their daughter, Emeline Marguerite, to Philip Douglas Morton Lord of San Francisco, on November 14 at the home of the bride. Mr. Lord is a son of the late Dr. John and Helen Dimock Lord. His father was a practicing physician, and was prominently connected with Biddeford's affairs for a number of years. Mrs. Helen Lord was a prominent club woman and passed her last years with her sons in California. Mr. Philip Lord was graduated from Biddeford High School and from Bowdoin. After graduation, he was a member of the Biddeford Journal force and later went to California. Mr. and Mrs. Lord are to take up their residence in San Francisco, and are to be at home after January first.

'97.—An article on the Basis of Liability Insurance by J. E. Rhodes, 2d, appears in Volume 4 of the Insurance Institute of Hartford, Conn.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

ADDISON S. THAYER, DEAN

10 Deering Street, Portland, Maine
MAINE INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETIC BOARD MEETS

The representatives of the four Maine colleges, at the request of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Board, met in Portland last Saturday, and considerable business pertaining to football, not only for next year, but for the ensuing years, was transacted.

The principal subject of discussion was the football schedule. For a number of years now Bowdoin and Maine have played the last game of the season. The other colleges have been grumbling a little at this arrangement, and so a rotating schedule was proposed. If this schedule were agreed upon for a period of 6 years, for example, each college would have played three of the games in the Maine series on their home grounds. As Bowdoin is not a member of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Board, she cannot vote but can simply express her opinion in the meetings. Whatever decision the board makes, must be ratified by Bowdoin, however, before it goes into effect.

The following recommendations were adopted:

That a rotating football schedule be adopted by the four Maine colleges to cover a period of six years and to begin in 1912.

That each college shall accredit a faculty member to assist its football manager in arranging a rotating schedule.

That Bowdoin be requested to accredit a faculty member in a like manner.

That all games between Maine colleges be played on a schedule represented by the last Saturday in October and the first two Saturdays in November.

That the schedule offered to the conference of the four Maine colleges by Professor Pomroy of Bates, be the basis for the rotating schedule, subject to amendment, such a schedule to lend itself to adjustment by the shifting of its starting point.

The arrangement for the last games in 1912 was Bates vs. Bowdoin—at Brunswick, Maine vs. Colby at Waterville.

The Bowdoin representatives were Professor Manton Copeland, Lawrence Willey Smith, '13, of Portland, and Captain-elect "Duff" Wood of Bar Harbor.

PHILIP S. WOOD, '13, CHOSEN AS FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Philip Shaw Wood, '13, of Bar Harbor, better known to undergraduates and alumni as "Duff," was elected captain of the 1912 football team last Saturday afternoon. He has played for two years on the team at left tackle, and was chosen by practically every one for the All-Maine team.

HARRY H. HALL, 1913, RE-ELECTED CROSS COUNTRY TEAM CAPTAIN

The cross-country team had its pictures taken at Webber's last Tuesday, and re-elected Harry H. Hall, '13, of Medfield, Mass., as captain. He has been on the team for three years now, and is generally the one to show the way home. In the recent Vermont-Bowdoin race he came in second by a scant three yards, while in the Bates-Bowdoin contest he won by half a lap.

TENTATIVE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

The tentative schedule of the football team for next year has been approved by the athletic committees. Since the manager for next year has not been elected, the schedule is technically not official, but the athletic authorities say that it is a mere formality and the schedule will become effective as it stands when the manager is chosen. The games were arranged by L. W. Smith, '13, the assistant manager, and are as follows:

Sept. 28—Fort McKinley at Brunswick.
Oct. 5—Wesleyan at Middletown, Ct.
Oct. 12—Trinity at Hartford.
Oct. 19—Tufts at Medford.
Oct. 26—Colby at Brunswick.
Nov. 2—Bates at Brunswick.
Nov. 9—University of Maine at Orono.
Nov. 16—Open.
TRACK LETTERS AWARDED TO CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

The Athletic Council met Thursday evening, and considerable business was transacted. Letters were awarded to three men of the cross-country team which made such an excellent showing this fall by defeating Bates and being barely defeated by Vermont. The men to secure the coveted "B" were Capt. Henry H. Hall, '13, of Medfield, Mass., James O. Tarbox, '14, of Topsham, and Charles B. Haskell, Jr., '13, of Pittsfield.

Manager Frederick S. Wiggin, '13, of Thomaston, outlined a brief schedule for the coming season. It showed the usual New York trip in the early spring, with games with Princeton, Brown, and Seaton Hall, the Dartmouth trip and the usual championship games with the Maine colleges.

Professor Manton Copeland, Lawrence W. Smith, '13, of Portland, and Philip S. Wood of Bar Harbor, were delegated to attend the meeting of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association to be held at Portland, Saturday morning.

Manager Smith, assistant manager of the football team, outlined, subject to change, a schedule for next fall.

DEUTSCHER VEREIN ORGANIZES

A meeting of the Deutscher Verein will be held with Prof. George T. Files, this evening, to organize for the year. The following men are eligible for membership: From 1912, Allen, Bragdon, Bryant, Foss, Marsh, Mifflin, Mitchell, Pratt, Skillin, Torrey, Weeks, and R. F. White; from 1913, Eberhardt, Gardner, McMurtrie, and Miller.

CLASSICAL CLUB

Thursday, Dec. 7, the Classical Club met for the first time this year at Prof. Nixon's house. The following executive committee was elected: Prof. Nixon, chairman; Willis E. Dodge, '13, secretary; Ralph L. Buell, '14, third member. Prof. Woodruff read a paper on "Recent Excavations in Crete." The following were elected to membership:

Dana K. Merrill, '14; Paul L. Wing, '14; Kenneth A. Robinson, '14; Robert E. Bodurtha, '14; Earl F. Maloney, '12; Paul L. White, '14; Frank R. Loeffler, '14; Philip H. Pope, '14; and Ralph L. Buell, '14.

DEBATING COUNCIL MEETING

At the recent meeting of the Debating Council, the council voted, in co-operation with the college, to continue the Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League. The following committee was appointed by President Burleigh C. Rodick, '12, to have charge of the league: Prof. Wm. Hawley Davis, C. F. Adams, '12, and E. F. Maloney, '12.

WORD FROM A BOWDOIN MAN

Bowdoin is always interested in the success of her sons, but she has an especial interest in the work of Anand Sidoba Hiwale, '09, who is working among his own people of India as the Bowdoin Missionary.

It will be a cause for gratification to hear the recent reports of his work from Dr. Hume, who has charge of the Marathi Mission, in which Hiwale is working. Mr. Hume writes, "It gives me pleasure to write that the missionary representative of Bowdoin is doing excellent work and is commending himself in every way. He is earnest, devoted, humble, tactful, hopeful, courageous, successful. He commend himself to the Missionaries, to Indian Christians, and to Non-Christians."

Many men in college knew Hiwale personally and remember his cheerful disposition, his kind word of greeting for all, his loyalty to the college, and the enthusiasm with which he talked of representing Bowdoin in India. They who knew him were confident of his success and rejoice in it. The Bowdoin men who have not had the pleasure of being with him in college should feel a no less interest in his work, because he is working for the college. He is our representative in one of the great movements of the present day in which such colleges as Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and the University of Pennsylvania are taking an active part by supporting missionaries and schools in different countries.

Mr. Hiwale and his wife, who is a great help in his work, are at present situated at Rabinatpur, about 150 miles from Bombay in the southern part of India, under the American Marathi Mission. He superintends the work of the Satara district and has several workers under him. He himself spends the greater part of his time in preaching in the surrounding villages.
That the students may have a better chance to become acquainted with the work that Hiwale is doing as the Bowdoin Missionary, the Y. M. C. A. has arranged an illustrated lecture on his work by the Rev. Brewer Eddy of Boston, Secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, in Memorial Hall on Thursday, January 4.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

"Whosoever shall confess me before men, he shall I confess before God." "Christianity is a social thing," said the President, "either a man must confess Christianity before men or he has not Christianity. The Christian Association is our representative of Christ in Bowdoin. We must measure our loyalty to Christ by our loyalty to that. By belonging to that the members show their desire to serve Christ. In confessing Christ we try to be his disciples. It is the basic principle of Christianity to confess Christ. Fifty-seven per cent. of the students belong to the Y. M. C. A. Of the forty-three per cent. left, ten per cent. would have to make a radical change in their life to become disciples of Christ. The other thirty-three per cent. are drifting along about on the line. It is this number that need to be careful. If we do not care to identify ourselves with Christ it will be impossible for Him to confess us before God." The exercises closed with a solo by Mrs. Davis.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Gymnasium Class for Grammar School boys will be started this Saturday under the direction of E. O. LaCasce, '14, and Omar P. Badger, '14. A large number have enrolled. The class will meet every Saturday morning from 10:30 to 11:30.

The Christmas tree of the Pelegscot Sunday School will be held on this Friday evening, Dec. 15. A short entertainment will be provided and presents given to the children who attend the school. It is under the direction of L. A. Crosby, '13, and A. E. Gray, '14.

A new form of work is to be started this week in the form of a Deputation to Boothbay Harbor on Sunday, Dec. 17. This is something which has been done by other colleges, notably Dartmouth and New Hampshire State, with marked success. The object is by meetings held in conjunction with the churches to make the people acquainted with the Christian work that is being carried on in the colleges and to arouse a greater interest in church work in the community, especially among the young people. The following men will compose the Deputation, E. G. Fifield, General Secretary, W. A. MacCormick, '12, Kenneth Churchill, '12, P. H. Douglas, '13, and J. F. Weintz, '15.

The speaker at the regular Thursday evening meeting on Dec. 21 will be Dr. Charles A. Moore of Bangor, Pastor of the Central Congregational Church there since 1905. He is a graduate of Yale in the Class of 1886, and of Andover Theological Seminary. The subject of his talk will be "The Question of Command."

So much real need was found in the distribution of the Thanksgiving Dinners that it has been decided to take up another collection at Christmas time to give the students a chance to relieve a great deal of suffering at but very little sacrifice to themselves. Attention is called to the letter by the Chairman of the Social Service Committee in this issue.

V. M. C. A. MEETING

The Rev. Mr. Gilman of Boston, gave a talk on World Peace. An unusually large audience attended. Mr. Gilman said in part: "Whatever has been done in the past the world has now reached a point where we must put away the sword and gun. A world tribunal is needed. The findings of a commission are only compromises but a fixed tribunal would correct this. Interest in the arbitration movement has advanced more in the last ten years than ever before. The average man will say, 'We have always had war, and it is human nature to fight. We will always have war.' But we have found other things which were considered impossible to have been accomplished. Illustrations of this are manifold. Billions of dollars have been paid out in war. Future generations will wonder why we were so foolish. The average man will not believe any unheard of idea or fact. But Carnegie gave three million dollars toward arbitration, he must have believed. A year or so ago the Kaiser explained to the world why he had acted in a certain way. Twenty years ago he would not have done this but taken up arms. Carlyle then describes war: 'Here are 100 red men, here are 100 green men.—signal, red men fire, green men fire,—fifty red men fall, 25 green men fall,—and nothing results.' You will say the French Revolution did a world of good. It did. But to-day it would not have been necessary. The whole thing rests upon the people. If they want war they will have it, if they do not want it they will not have it. It is up to every one of us to do our share in preventing future wars."

"LET THE GOOD WORK GO ON," SAY THE PAPERS

To the Editor of the Orient:

The newspapers say all sorts of things about us fellows here at Bowdoin, but it is seldom that any paper can make a comment which should so fire us with enthusiasm for work which is good in itself as the simple, inartistic and yet touching word of approval reported to the writer the other day from a little country paper in New Hampshire.

Just before the Thanksgiving recess a collection was taken at Chapel for the purpose of giving food

You Are Eligible  In regard to the matter of class eligibility which was mentioned a few weeks ago in this column, the faculty took the following action: "That in order to take part in class contests, students must have class promotion and be approved as physically qualified by the department of physical training." This regulation simply means that a man can represent only the class with which he is listed in the catalogue. Perhaps more than a mere explanation is necessary. In the past, class spirit has been so keen that some men rather than compete with a class other than the one with which they entered college, have refused to compete at all. This exhibition of loyalty to the class, however, kills the larger and broader spirit of loyalty to the college. Aiming to help college athletics as a whole, we should try to make our class games and meets more valuable under this direct and definite regulation—than they have been in the past.

More Carelessness  With fires raging about us at the rate of two a week it seems as though we should earnestly seek to locate the causes and remedy them as speedily as possible. The majority of the fires which have been started in college during the past few years, have been due to carelessness in smoking. It is by no means an uncommon occurrence to read at the present day that many colleges are putting restrictions upon smoking, and some are even abolishing the habit entirely. Although we don't propose any such drastic measures as those to be taken here we can appeal for individual reformation. It is a common practice for a fellow to use his waste basket as a receptacle for lighted cigarette butts or half-burnt matches. Such carelessness often brings about more serious results than the thoughtless smoker cares to anticipate. Not only is he exposing his own room and contents to the danger of being ruined, but he is exposing the property of all men in the building to the same danger. In extreme cases the lives of the men even, might be in question. Of course these things do not enter into a fellow's mind when he carelessly empties his pipe or throws a lighted match in a pile of dry papers. But in our dormitory and fraternity life here in Bowdoin some consideration for those around us is necessary. If the carelessness of one individual involves danger to the whole, it is quite essential that some care and forethought be exercised by that individual.

Captain Wood  The whole student body unites with the Orient in extending congratulations to "Duff" Wood, '13, as Captain-elect of the football team for 1912. Through hard, consistent work for two years on the team, Wood this year won the honor of holding a position on the All-Maine eleven. The undergraduates feel that in him they have a leader who will maintain the standard set by former Bowdoin elevens. It is not only a great honor to be the captain of a Bowdoin team, but it is even a greater honor to be a leader of the true Bowdoin spirit and sportsmanship which the White always exemplifies. As guardians of this spirit we all wish Captain Wood and his team great success on the gridiron next year.
to a few destitute families about Brunswick. The collection amounted to $28.12—a commendable sum to be given, but small indeed for the purpose for which it must serve. And yet if the men of Bowdoin could have seen the good that so small an amount did; could have seen the delivery team piled full of meats and vegetables and groceries; could have seen the evidences of actual hunger amounting in several cases almost to starvation, relieved by this small distribution, they would have appreciated more fully what the giving of a few cents by each man had done.

The committee found a widow with seven children cooped in a dark attic with no food in the place except a loaf of dry bread and a dish of hashed-up vegetables. Across the street was another family, man and wife both sick, several children about, and all literally starving to death because they were too proud to call upon the town for assistance and their neighbors were too proud to give them much help. It was for the alleviation of such cases as these that the Bowdoin contribution was used.

In some way the Boston papers got hold of the story of the work and it seems that papers everywhere copied. A student who spent the vacation way up in the north of the state of New Hampshire, brought the report of a country newspaper's comment upon it. It recited the story as printed in a Boston paper and in closing an editorial comment made the almost humorous and yet pleasing statement: "Bowdoin men are O. K. Let the good work go on. Bowdoin Beata!"

The good work is going on. With the loyal support always given by students at large and by the faculty, the Christian Association will make a similar collection the morning before college closes for Christmas vacation. It is sure to be a large collection. Already, unsolicited, a prominent out-of-town man has started the thing going with a small contribution. An extra half a dollar, more or less, means nothing to us fellows. Every half dollar's worth of food comes like a Godsend to the poor families of Brunswick.

WILLIAM R. SPINNEY, Chairman,
Social Service Committee,
Christian Association.

The accident is to be deplored, but it may be atoned for in the December number.

The article which deals with The Influence of the Classics on the Poems of Thomas Gray, is an interesting and conscientious piece of work, a trifle overloaded, in parts, by minitue which serve to justify its title, but do not specially appeal to the general reader. It somehow gives one the impression of a paper written on a prescribed theme as a class exercise, and admirably adapted to that purpose. It seems almost invidious to say so much stress upon the influence of the classics in poetry which owes as much, if not more, to the influence of English, French, Italian and even Norse writers. It is, however, a thoughtful and well-written article; and one cannot but regret that the limits necessarily imposed did not allow the writer to expand some of the topics but briefly touched upon.

In the story entitled A Piece of Justice, the author, with sympathetic imagination and in effective style, supplies what is lacking to an incomplete entry in Winthrop's Journal of 1643. It is a story, of course, of stern Puritan days, and it preserves vividly the atmosphere of the time. The characters of the magistrate, Mr. Malbon, his daughter, Eleanor, the tithingman, Hopkins, and the minister, are all well drawn; and the pathetic recital of Eleanor's humiliating punishment, and its effect upon her, and upon her father as well, is full of interest and power. It is as convincing as if it had been told by Winthrop himself, and is certainly, as he himself wrote, "not unworthy to be recorded."

The story entitled Sally, unlike that which records the troubles of Eleanor, the Puritan maiden, is conspicuously modern. Its heroine, Sally, is a member of the company presenting the musical comedy, "The Golden Butterfly," in New York, and its hero is a young lawyer who has but recently completed his legal studies. He is sent by the firm of lawyers in whose office he is employed, to have a professional interview with Sally. He is deeply impressed by the charm of her simple, true, ingenious nature, and naturally and properly seeks and gains her love. The story is well told, and suggests some interesting lessons.

It is pleasant to see, from some extracts given by Ye Postman, that the Quill is esteemed by other college magazines, as it deserves to be.

THE NOVEMBER QUILL

In making up the "forms" of the Quill for November, the printer carelessly overlooked the poem, or poems, that should have appeared in it, and sent it forth to its readers without any other concession to the Muses than the time-honored silhouette of Longfellow on its cover, and an article on the influence of the classics on the poetry of Gray, and some verses copied from the Amherst Monthly, which were intended for their inspiration to a source quite different from the classics. Such an absence of poetry is, undoubtedly, the result of accidental oversight on the part of the printer. He would not, of course, have left it out with malice prepense; nor would the Editorial Board deliberately have omitted from the Table of Contents a suitable installment of verse.

SATURDAY CLUB LECTURE BY EDITOR O'BRIEN

To-morrow night, Dec. 16, comes the lecture by the editor of the Boston Herald, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, in Memorial Hall at 8 P.M. Mr. O'Brien, for years the leading political correspondent at Washington, will speak on his experiences at the capital and his talk ought to be an interesting revelation of the newspaper man's point of view. All students in college and medical school are invited to attend.

The following men from the Press Club will usher: Fred Dixon Wish, Jr., '13; Laurence Alden Crosby, '13; William Riley Spinney, '13, and James Augustus Norton, '13.
ART BUILDING NOTES

One of the recent acquisitions of the Art Building is an Intaglio Ring given by Mrs. Ellen S. Roche of Bath. The ring belonged to Governor William King, the first governor of Maine, and for whom King Chapel was named. The ring is on exhibition in the Boyd Gallery.

Mr. J. P. Baxter, of Portland, one of the overseers of the college who is on the committee of art interests, visited the art building last Tuesday.

The two paintings which were loaned to the Metropolitan Museum, have both been reproduced in its special catalogue of Colonial portraits.

Faculty Notes

President William DeWitt Hyde was the speaker at the meeting of the Men's Club of the State Street Church, Portland, on Thursday, Dec. 7.

Professor Hormell will give an address at the eighth annual meeting of the American Political Science Association which will be held at Buffalo and Toronto, from Wednesday, December 27, to Saturday, December 30, 1911. Professor Hormell will speak on "City and County in New England." Professor C. H. Macllwain of Harvard, who was formerly a member of the Bowdoin Faculty, is on the executive council.

Professor Cathl may attend the meeting of the American Economic Association of which he is a member, at Washington, D. C., from Dec. 27 to Dec. 30. Prof. Henry C. Emery, '92, chairman of the Tariff Commission, will read a paper, and also Prof. Fairchild of Yale, formerly of Bowdoin.

College Notes

The relay team will turn out for practice the first of next month.
Harry P. Bridge, '15, has been initiated into Zeta Psi Fraternity.
"Eddie" Files, '08, and Mark Burlingame, ex-'12, were on the campus, Saturday.
There were adjourns in "gym" in the 3.30 division Monday, on account of the blaze in "Mike's" room.
Lowell Foote, '12, attended the initiation of the Dartmouth Chapter of Beta Theta Pi last Saturday.
J. Leslie Brummett, '11, was on the campus a few days this week.
Charles C. Dwyer spoke before the Y. M. C. A. last night on "Leans and Lifters."
McAllister, '12, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational Church at Fryeburg Sunday, Dec. 3.
Many alumni were back to the meeting held with the faculty, last Saturday.
Daniel F. Koughan, '09, was on the campus, Monday.
Philip Cole, '12, spent last Sunday with his parents in Bath.
The football team had its picture taken last Thursday at Webber's.
Robert G. Severance, '14, has left college. He has accepted a fine position with the Northern Massachusetts Railway Co.
Mr. White of Augusta, came down to coach the fencing squad, Saturday. About fifteen candidates are out now.
Some time in the near future Professor Sills will take his classes to the Art Building, and give them a lecture on Roman Statuary.

Pictures of the cross-country team were taken last Tuesday. The members of the team are Hall, Timberlake, Tarbox, Auten, and Haskell.

President Hyde has announced that the donor of the Gen. Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building has given an additional $10,000. The total amount now available is about $115,000.

Prof. Chapman attended the centennial anniversary exercises of the First Congregational Church of Bangor on Sunday, Nov. 26, and was the speaker at the Vesper Services of Bangor Theological Semiary on the following day.

An All-Star team will be picked by Stan Dole and John Bull to play Lew Brown’s Sophomore team tomorrow afternoon on the Delta. Capt. Brown will play with his team and a coring game may be expected.

It is proposed to remove the trees from the gymnasium and athletic building site soon. As a part of the regular forestry work on the campus the pines, back of South Appleton, which are in poor condition, are being removed.

On Monday, Dean Sillis gave notice that any Senior, Junior or Sophomore who has maintained a rank of 85 or more during his college course will be allowed an extension of the Christmas vacation by applying to the Dean. The list consists of nineteen Seniors, twelve Juniors, and twelve Sophomores.

President Hyde has rewritten in part his “From Epicurus to Christ!” which appeared in 1904, and has passed through several editions. This new volume bears the title of “The Five Great Philosophies of Life” and was recently published by the MacMillan Company.

There was a fire one day last week in Herbert Ashby’s room, No. 8 South Appleton. It was started by pipe ashes. A mattress and couch cover were destroyed before the fire was extinguished by Ashby, who used one of the chemical extinguishers installed in the building.

A fire occurred in “Mike’s” room, number 19, North Maine, last Monday, at about four o’clock p.m. The damage done to the room is estimated at $25.00, besides the personal property destroyed. The fire was discovered at 3:55 p.m. and the alarm was pulled in by Maurice Hamblen while some one was sent to ring the chapel bell. Before Fire Chief Colby had arrived the flames had been extinguished by Jesse McKenney, ’12, and Warren Eddy, ’14, who used the chemical extinguishers installed in the ends. It is supposed that the fire was caused by a cigar or cigarette stub thrown in the wastebasket. When once started the flames rapidly spread to “Mike’s” roll-top desk. The inside of the desk was badly burned and most of its contents were destroyed, including some cloth goods and samples. It is believed that there was some slight insurance on these latter. The paper in the room was destroyed by fire and water, and the woodwork was badly blistered. It is estimated that it will cost the college about $25.00 to repair the damage done to the room.

This makes the second since Thanksgiving caused by smoking.

The Friars had their pictures taken at Webber’s Studio, Tuesday.

Soul, ’15, has been at his home in Augusta. He is suffering from a sprained leg.

The new College Calendar is now on sale at the Bookstore. The Calendars this year are better than ever. Grant, ’12, and Gardner, ’13, are the publishers.

Americo Bernardino, alias “Spaghetti,” the vendor of plaster ornaments, has been on the campus for a few days after a tour of all the larger New England colleges and schools.

Bishop Codman will speak at the Saint Paul’s Episcopal Church next Sunday evening at 7:30. All Episcopal men in college are invited to meet him in the Rectory after the service.

Dean Sills was the guest of Delta Upsilon Fraternity, Monday evening, and gave a short talk on ways of getting good men to come to Bowdoin. He expects to speak to each of the fraternities on this subject before the Christmas vacation.

The following letter is being circulated about the college: “The undersigned, undergraduates of Bowdoin College, desire to express their approval of President Taft’s projected treaties with Great Britain and France.”

Professor William Hawley Davis will give a series of readings from Dickens’ works, in Hubbard Hall at 7:30 next Monday. They will consist of selections from Sketches by Boz, parts of the Christmas Carol, and other writings appropriate to this season of the year.

The Christmas fraternity dances will be held this year on the following dates: Beta Theta Pi, on Wednesday evening, December 20; Zeta Psi, Theta Delta Chi, Alpha Delta Phi, and Delta Kappa Epsilon, on Thursday evening, December 21; and Delta Upsilon and Kappa Sigma on Friday evening, December 22.

The corrected list of papers represented by the Press Club is as follows:

“Bowdoin Night” marked the monthly meeting of the Winthrop Improvement and Historical Association of Winthrop, Mass. last week, in the Deane Winthrop House. The placing of portraits of Governor James Bowdoin and Madame Bowdoin, and addresses by Bowdoin graduates, resulted in one of the most notable meetings of the society. Ervine D. Osborne, principal of the Winthrop High School, read a paper sketching the career of James Bowdoin, the formation of the college and its growth to the present time. Edgar O. Achorn of Boston, Simon W. Hathaway, and Preston Churchill of Winthrop, gave reminiscences of college life and spoke words of praise for their Alma Mater. College songs were sung, and the rooms of the old house which Governor Bowdoin owned for about forty years were decorated with the college colors.
Among Bowdoin men who have recently been in the public eye is Dr. Edville Gerhardt Abbott. Dr. Abbott was graduated from the Medical School of Maine in '03 and later from Bowdoin in '06. For a long time he taught surgery in the Medical School. At present he is head surgeon in the Children's Hospital of Portland. It is in this capacity that he has become famous. Spinal curvature has never been successfully treated in former years, but Dr. Abbott has recently invented a method which is successful — so successful, in fact, that men have been coming to Portland from all over the United States to study it. It is extremely simple, as compared to former methods of treatment, and does away with all straps and braces. Briefly, his method consists of bending the body in the opposite direction in which it is bent. That is, if the spine curves to the right and backward, it is bent in a corresponding position to the left and backward. The body is then placed in a plaster cast and left for three weeks, after which the patient is freed.

One of Commander Peary's sledges which he used in his recent Arctic exploration was received Tuesday at the Library from the Museum of Natural History in New York City. It is the identical sledge with which Commander Peary reached the North Pole. It has been a custom with Commander Peary to give his sledges a name, and this one was formerly named "General Hubbard," after one of Bowdoin's most illustrious alumni, a member of the Class of 1857, and at the time of the discovery of the Pole, president of the Peary Arctic Club.

The sledge shows the effects of the hard knocks it received on the perilous trip to the "top of the world." Its sides are split and scarred by bumps from ice-hummocks and ridges. It was designed by Commander Peary himself, and is the result of 23 years of experience in the land of the midnight sun. It is longer than the Eskimo type, being 12 feet in length, while the sledge used by the natives is but 9 feet long. In width it is the same, 2 feet. It is made principally of oak, and is bound together with sealskin thongs. The sides are about two inches thick. The runners are curved upward in front, while on the rear of the sledge are lashed handles for use in guiding. The body is about 7 inches from the ground.

The sledge is at present in the hall on the second floor of the Library. It has attracted considerable attention, and makes all who have seen it feel proud to think that it is a relic of the greatest exploring feat of modern times, and that it was the work of a Bowdoin man.

Alumni Department

'96.—Dr. John H. Bates, democrat, was elected mayor of Rochester, N. H., Tuesday, Dec. 5. Dr. Bates polled 908 votes to 646 for his opponent.

'96.—At the recent municipal elections in Rochester, N. H., Dr. John H. Bates was elected mayor of the city. Dr. Bates is the first Democratic mayor of Rochester in ten years.

'97.—Dr. E. F. Pratt, Bowdoin, '97, Medical School, '00, has moved to Brunswick and has opened an office over the Pastime Theatre. His residence is on School Street.

'97.—Edwin S. Pratt, Medice, '00, has just moved into the house at 27 School Street, and has temporarily opened offices at the Pastime Building. Before coming to Brunswick this fall, Dr. Pratt has practiced at New Portland. Last year, Dr. Pratt did graduate work at the Harvard Medical School, Massachusetts General Hospital, and the Children's Hospital, where he specialized in surgery.

'08.—Guy H. Sturgis was elected Alderman from Ward 9 at the Portland municipal election on Dec. 4th.

'03.—A. P. Havey of Sullivan, has recently been appointed Insurance Commissioner of Maine.

Intercollegiate Notes

A series of interclass basketball games will be held this year at Maine. This plan was tried last year, and was very successful.

The Freshman class at Yale is composed of bigger men, physically, than any of the previous classes. There is an unusual number of men exceeding 6 feet in height, and the height ranges from 5 feet to 6 feet 5.1-10 inches; the weight from 96 pounds to 204. The average age is 19 years. There are five between the ages of 16 and 17, all of the five coming from high schools. The present Freshman class has the same average age as the class of 1914, but the 1915 men are three-tenths of an inch taller and average four pounds heavier. The Sophomores are stronger, however, with a total strength of 963.2, as compared with 968 for the Freshmen.

The Syracuse football men elected their captain while they were in a street car on their way back to their hotel, after their Thanksgiving Day game in St. Louis.

Exeter will have a new board running track ready for use after the Christmas holidays. The old one has been used 14 years.

NEW GYMNASIUM CONTRACT

At a meeting of the Committee on the new Gymnasium held in the Faculty Room, Massachusetts Hall, Dec. 21, it was voted to award the general contract for the gymnasium building and the Thomas W. Hyde Athletic Building to the Tyson Construction Co., of Boston. The contract for the heating of both buildings was awarded to Albert B. Franklin of Boston; the contract for wiring was awarded to the Cleveland Co., of Portland; the contract for plumbing to the F. & C. B. Nash Co. of Portland. The total cost of both buildings, not including the equipment, will be about $100,000.

It has been finally decided to locate the buildings between the Sargent Gymnasium and the observatory, and fronting the quadrangle between King Chapel and Maine Hall. Both buildings will be of brick with cement foundation. It is understood that the work of construction may be begun at once.

The members of the committee present at the meeting were President William DeWitt Hyde, Chairman; Dr. F. N. Whittier, Secretary; Hon. Franklin Conant Payson, Portland; Mr. Charles T. Hawes, Bangor; and Professor George T. Files. Ex-Governor William T. Cobb of Rockland, and Ex-Mayor Edwin U. Curtis of Boston, Mass., were unable to be present.

QUILL BOARD ELECTION

At a meeting of the Quill Board Dec. 19, Edward Oliver Baker, '13, of North Adams, Mass., was elected chairman of the Board for the coming year. The other members of the Board of Editors, elected at that time, are Walter Faber Eberhardt, '13, of New York City, and Kenneth Allan Robinson, '14, of Biddeford. Laurence Alden Crosby, '13, of Bangor, was elected manager, and Alfred Everett Gray, '14, of Portsmouth, N. H., assistant manager.

SENIOR CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS

On December 18, the Class of 1912 chose the following officers for the year:
President, John L. Hurley of Malden, Mass.
Vice-President, George F. Wilson of Albion.
Secretary-Treasurer, William A. MacCormick of South Framingham, Mass.
Poet, Eugene F. Bradford of Bangor.
Orator, Charles F. Adams of Auburn.
Historian, Arthur D. Welch of Portland.
Chaplain, Clyde R. Chapman of Fairfield.
Opening Address, Burleigh C. Rodick of Freeport.
Closing Address, Frank A. Smith of Calais.

DEBATING LEAGUE TO BE FORMED

It has been practically decided that Bowdoin will enter a three-cornered debating league of which the other members will be Wesleyan and New York University this year. This means that two teams will be put in the field and one of them will probably debate Wesleyan at Brunswick, while the other on the same night will debate New York University on the other side of the same question at New York.

The Debating Council, at a meeting held December 19, adopted a set of regulations for this league and these will be submitted to the other members immediately for their approval.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL MEETING

At a meeting held December 21 the Athletic Council discussed the matter of the rotating schedule recently proposed by the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association at its meeting in Portland and the following decision was adopted: “The Bowdoin Athletic Council after full consideration of the proposed rotating schedule for six years, is unwilling to be bound by any schedule for so long a time, but will in the future, as heretofore, be glad to take up annually with the other Maine colleges in a fair spirit, the football schedule for the year."

This would seem to make such a schedule impossible but will mean that the schedules will be considered from year to year as formerly.

BOWDOIN MEN IN POLITICS

Among the prominent men of the State it is interesting to note the number of young Bowdoin graduates. Within the past few months the rapid rise of young Bowdoin alumni in politics has been exceptional.

A. P. Havey, '03, of Sullivan, has recently been appointed Insurance Commissioner of the State by Governor Plaisted. Mr. Havey is better known to the majority of Bowdoin men as "Andy" Havey, 'varsity pitcher.

In Portland politics, two recent graduates of the college are very prominent. Guy H. Sturgis, '03, was elected alderman from Ward 9 at the recent municipal election on December 4.

The other Portland representative is Edward S. Anthoine of the Class of 1902. Mr. Anthoine was recently honored by being elected chairman of the Republican city committee. He has also been a member of the city council for two years.

Still another is Emery O. Beane of Hallowell, a member of the Class of 1904. He is mayor of his home city, and enjoys the unique distinction of being the youngest Democratic Mayor in the State. Mr. Beane will long be remembered for the speedy, slashing game he played as end on the football team.

Although Dr. John H. Bates, '96, lives in the State of New Hampshire, it would be well to mention him, also. On Tuesday, December 15, at Rochester, New Hampshire, he was elected Mayor. He is the first Democratic Mayor in ten years.

PHI CHI INITIATION

Gamma Gamma Chapter of Phi Chi Fraternity (Medical) held its initiation Saturday afternoon, December 16, in Redmen's Hall, Portland. The men initiated are: Francis Aborn Perkins, M.D., of Madbury, N. H.; Wm. DeSue Anderson of Portland; Ralph Lester Barrett of East Sumner; Sidney Cullingwood Dalrymple of Medford, Mass.; Harold Linwood Doten of Lewiston; Herbert Francis Hale, A.B., of New Sharon; George Cragin Kern of Portland; Philip Albert Kimball of Tamworth, N. H.; Charles Wesley Kinghorn of Yarmouthville; Herbert Luther Lombard of Bridgton; Lawrence McFarland, A.B., of Portland; William Berchman MeLaugh of Portland; William John O'Connor of Augusta; Arthur Hale Parcher of Ellsworth; Robert Cole Pletts of Brunswick; Wendell Otis Philbrook of Greene; George Alton Tibbetts of Brunswick; and Gard Wilson Twaddle of Bethel. Of these first year medical students, Parcher, Lombard, Kern and Tibbetts are seniors in the academical department.

In the evening the members of the active chapter and the alumni enjoyed a banquet at the Congress Square Hotel. The speaker of the evening was Dr. John B. Blake of Boston, who spoke upon Surgical Treatment of Fractures of the Extremities, Particularly Those Involving Joints.

In the forenoon the members of the fraternity sat for a chapter picture at Hanson's. The first and second year students were the guests of the third and fourth year students at dinner.

FRIAR INITIATION

The Friars held their annual fall initiation and banquet at Riverton on Friday evening, December 15. The following members of the Class of 1913 were initiated: Paul Chapman Savage of Bangor, John Edward Duynphy of Portland, Cedric Russell Crowell of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and Edward Oliver Baker of North Adams, Mass. Besides the men initiated last night the active membership includes Lawrence A. Crosby, '13, of Bangor, and Philip S. Wood, '13, of Bar Harbor.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At Sunday chapel service of Dec. 17, President Hyde spoke of a few current colloquialisms and of their real meanings. We find in the Bible that the prophet told Hezekiah that all of his property and his descendants were to be taken to Babylon in captivity. But as this would not affect the course of events in his life, he seemingly did not care. What is thought of a man with such heedlessness? There was the current expression, “C is a gentleman’s rank;” but it is being put down now. What would be thought of a man who desired C and worked for it as his ideal in rank? Another of these current phrases among college men is, “Get by.” One’s whole philosophy of life is revealed in the expression. A business man, after asking a young man in law school what he expected to do in his examinations, received the reply that he hoped to “get by.” Upon this reply the business man asked the young man if he could even expect to receive a large and important case from him with the only assurance that he hoped to get it by.

Such wretched phrases as these are getting current. They simply mean that one does not mean to take a course for the good which he will receive from it, but that he will try to get around it on the other side. Let us bury these worthless phrases. No such ideal is for any man having a serious responsibility of life.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The practical side of Christianity is being emphasized this year in the Y. M. C. A. meetings and next Thursday, January 11, the subject will be along this line. The subject is “Christianity and the Criminal Class” and no better man could be found in the state to present this phase than Mr. E. P. Wentworth of Portland. For 35 years Mr. Wentworth has been connected with the State School for Boys and has been Superintendent since 1897. He is also President of the Maine Prison Association and ex-President of the National Conference on Backward, Truant and Delinquent Children. His wide experience will make his remarks especially valuable.

The Christmas collection amounted to $30.77 and was the means of providing 16 families with a good dinner.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF HIWALE’S WORK

Since the college has undertaken the partial support of A. S. Hiwale in his work in India as the Bowdoin Missionary a statement of his financial condition will be interesting.

Hiwale has an allowance of $660 a year, $500 as a personal allowance, $40 for rent and $120 for conveyance. The mission does not pay a cent towards these items of his support. In addition, Hiwale is spending about $800 a year to carry on the work in his district and is receiving but $360 from the American Board which cannot be increased as the money would have to be taken from other stations which are themselves in great need. $1,100 must then be raised from Hiwale’s friends to carry on his work. A large part of this has come from Rev. T. S. Lee, the missionary under whom Hiwale has been working, but Mr. Lee died this summer and that support has been cut off. “In consequence,” Mr. Hume, the missionary in charge of the district, writes, “1912 is likely to be the hardest year in Anandrao’s (Hiwale’s) life, and a very critical one for Mission work in the Satara district.”

The second problem is that of a house for Hiwale. He is at present living in a very poor house which is neither healthy nor safe. $400 have been collected from friends for a new house, but this is totally inadequate and he must continue in poor accommodations for the present.

Every dollar will count this year more than ever. Let us make an effort to help Hiwale out in this crisis.

THE CHRISTMAS DANCES

Alpha Delta Phi

The annual house party and Christmas dance of the Bowdoin Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity was held Dec. 21, the committee in charge of the event consisting of Edward Longworth Mores, ’12, of Boston, Alton Levicount Grant, Jr., ’12, of Lewiston, Curtis Tuttle, ’13, of Colusa, Cal., Arthur Llewellyn Pratt, ’14, of Bath, and George Arthur MacWilliams, ’15, of Bangor.

The first feature of the event was a dinner party served at the chapter house at six o’clock. At nine o’clock dancing began at Pythian Hall and continued Continued on page 171, column 1.

Why Not?

That the college man of to-day is tolerably ignorant in regard to political conditions in the world, is a fact which seems to be almost beyond question. The life of a college is often, if not usually in one sense, narrow and centered in collegiate affairs. We are constantly wrapped up in our athletic contests, in our problems of self-government and in our own intellectual development. We are preparing ourselves to do something when we get out in the world. We try to best fit ourselves to give something to the world beyond the college. But does this justify us in appearing disinterested in the history which is being made daily? We perhaps, take a few minutes each noon to look at the papers in the reading-room but athletic topics usually claim our interest. Politics seems to be too large a topic for the college man to handle while he is preparing himself for active life later on. In the daily routine of the college there are too many important things without looking outside for more subjects to discuss.

Conditions at Bowdoin in regard to politics and world-wide questions have been sadly neglected in the past two or three years. A single instance would not be out of place. A few weeks ago a speaker visited the college to speak to the undergraduates on the question of International Peace. The Peace Movement offers one of the largest issues of the day for widespread interest. And yet out of a body of over three hundred men only about thirty were interested enough to attend the lecture. To whatever source the lack of interest in this question and others equally as important may be attributed, the fact remains that the undergraduate body can better conditions through its own efforts. Only a few years ago—in fact, during the course of the present Seniors—at least one political club existed in Bowdoin. It was a means by which the men connected with it became acquainted with questions before the country. It kept alive discussions on topics which should be of vital interest to the college man. Throughout the whole country to-day colleges are taking up political matters through clubs organized for this purpose. What, then, would be more beneficial to men here in Bowdoin than the establishment of at least one or two such undergraduate clubs?

Junior Assembly

Before the holidays the social life of the college was made bright by the informal dances held in the several fraternity homes. One week from to-night the college will be thrown open to receive friends and visitors at the first Junior Assembly of the year. It is perhaps often felt by many in college that such an affair is carried on simply for the class under whose auspices it is held. This view is, of course, rather small in comparison to what the event should mean. At various times during the year we receive the public to our athletic contests, to our prize-speaking contests and debates and all these functions play their part in making up what we call "college life." The development of the college community, however, would not be complete if the social features were neglected. So to avoid any possibility for negligence the Junior Assemblies are held at the most suitable time of the year. The Assemblies are not class affairs but distinctly collegiate in every way. They, therefore, in the purpose for which they are maintained can be most successful if supported by undergraduate interest.

A Son of Bowdoin
Bowdoin has many representatives in lands outside our own but of none other should she be more proud than of A. S. Hiwale in India. When Hiwale graduated from college in 1909 and sailed for his own country to do mission service, Bowdoin claimed him as her first missionary. Since that time he has carried on his work among his own people with the Bowdoin spirit which he received while here in college. During this week we have been brought into very close relations with him and the work he is doing. We have also been made aware of the fact that the undergraduates should be proud to lend support to him. We do not intend to sermonize on the value of the missionary work which is being carried on to-day. The average college man must admit that it is one of the big movements of the time. But the undergraduate in Bowdoin should feel a special and definite interest in the work which a Bowdoin man is doing in India. This interest can find expression in various ways but a careful scrutiny of the financial conditions under which Hiwale is working, readily shows that a loyal subscription would be most highly appreciated by him.

until three o'clock in the morning, an orchestra led by Miss Aimee Stetson playing for the order of twenty-four dances. The hall was prettily decorated with the fraternity colors, green and white, college and fraternity banners and Christmas decorations. At one end of the hall was a large star and crescent of electric lights. When the time came for the last dance all other lights in the hall were turned off and these alone shone. The programs for the dance had leather covers on which were the fraternity initials in Greek, while on the first page inside was the fraternity crest.

Grant of Lewiston, was the caterer for the refreshments served at intermission.

Mrs. E. L. Philoon of Auburn, Mrs. Charles C. Hutchins, Mrs. William A. Moody and Mrs. Gardner Cram were the patrons.

Among the guests were Miss Elizabeth Curtis of Portland, Miss Virginia Woodbury of Brunswick, Miss Hazel Bonney of Auburn, Miss Elsie Emery of Saco, Miss Methyl Decker of Mechanic Falls, Miss Marion White of Bangor, Miss Hazel Munro of North Jay, Miss Marion Sanborn of Auburn, Miss Frances Skolfield of Brunswick, Miss Alberta Robinson of Portland, Miss Ruth Goodwin of Saco, Miss Ruth Whitman of Bangor, Miss Margaret Torrey of Bath, Miss Lida Baker of Boston, Miss Ruth Woodman of Saco, Miss Mabel Davis of Brunswick, Miss Gale Littlefield of Bangor, Miss Ruth Thompson of Bath, Miss Dorothy Laughlin of Portland, Miss Dorrice Robinson of Bangor, Miss Ruth Young of Saco, Miss Caroline Rullmann of Bath, Miss Katherine Hall of Portland, Miss Margaret Sewall of Bath, Miss Ellen Baxter of Brunswick, Miss Olive Nutter of Brunswick, Miss Carrie Jenkins of Portland, Miss Evelyn Edwards of Portland, Miss Lydia Cook of Portland.

The delegates from the other fraternities were Robert Parsons King, '12, of Ellsworth, from Psi Upsilon, Benjamin Dyer Holt, '13, of Portland, from Delta Kappa Epsilon, John Edward Dunphy, '13, of Portland, from Theta Delta Chi, John Lawrence Hurley, '12, of Medford, Mass., from Zeta Psi, Harold Davis Gilbert, '13, of Farmington, from Delta Upsilon, Edmund Sylvester, '14, of Freeport, from Kappa Sigma, and Lowell Sanborn Foote, '12, of Dover, N. H., from Beta Theta Pi.

Other guests were Paul L. White, '14, of Indiananolis, Ind., J. Harold Machette, Edward H. Weatherill, '11, Philip Weatherill of Brunswick, and Harrison L. Robinson, '11, of Bangor.

Beta Theta Pi
The Christmas Dance of Beta Theta Pi was held Dec. 20. Music was furnished for an order of twenty dances by the College Orchestra and at intermission refreshments were served. The house was tastefully decorated in a seasonable manner. The patronesses were: Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, Mrs. William E. Lunt.

Among the guests were: Misses Katherine Jenkins, Ruth Jenkins, Eulaia Duddy, Lydia Skolfield, Olive Barnes, Katherine Johnson, Marguerite Burr of Portland; Misses Lynnette Philbrick, Margaret Wood of Bangor; Misses Beatrice Hacker and Grace Lunt of Brunswick; Miss Iva Record and Miss Genevieve Dwinal of Auburn; Miss Phyllis Waterman of Cambridge, Mass.

The committee in charge were: Francis X. Callahan, '14, of Portland; Clarence A. Brown, '14, of Portland, and D. Earl Gardner, '13, of Calais.

Theta Delta Chi
The members of Eta Charge of Theta Delta Chi held their annual Christmas dance at the charge house on Main Street, Thursday evening, Dec. 21. The chaperons were Mrs. H. W. Cobb of Bath, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff and Mrs. Wilmot B. Mitchell of Brunswick. The committee in charge of the dance consisted of Philip P. Cole, '12, of Bath; Neil A. Fogg, '13, of Freeport; and Louis A. Donahue, '14, of Portland. Lovell's Orchestra played for an order of 20 dances, and the house was handsomely decorated in harmony with the holiday spirit.

The guests were: Dean Sills of the faculty, Leon S. Lippincott, '10; and Miss Gladys Richardson of Arlington, Mass.; Miss Laurel Wyman of Lawrence, Zeta Psi

Lambda Chapter of Zeta Psi held its Christmas dance on the evening of December 21. The College Orchestra played for twenty enjoyable dances; the patronesses were Mrs. Hartley C. Baxter, Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Charles Bickford, and Miss William E. Lunt; the committee in charge, Harold W. Miller, Paul C. Lunt, and Robert W. Bellknap, 1919.

Among the guests present were the Misses Margaret Burr, Gladys Burr, Doris Powers, Frances Darker, and Edith Sawyer of Portland; Miss Edith Klein of Mt. Vernon; Miss Helen Merriman of Brunswick; Miss Gladys Umberhind of Topsham; Miss Morrison of Bar Harbor; and the Misses Lilian Johnson and Carolyn Sparks of Augusta.

Delta Upsilon

The Bowdoin Chapter of Delta Upsilon celebrated the closing of the fall term by a dance, Dec. 22, at their home on Main Street. The hall was decorated with Christmas colors and college and fraternity banners. The College Orchestra played for an order of eighteen dances. The patronesses were: Mrs. Frederick W. Brown and Mrs. William Hawley Davis of Brunswick, and Mrs. Jennie Bird of Rockland.

Among those present were: Miss Mildred Conant, Hazel Lothrop, Maryella Randall, Virginia Dunn, Mina Everett, and May Dinsmore of Auburn; Miss Dorothy Bird, Madeline Bird, Katherine Spear, and Blanche Hanscom of Rockland; Miss Elva Niles, of East Saugus, Mass.; Miss Marion Smart of Portland; Miss Edna Dyer of Manchester; Miss Mamie O'Brien of Lubec; Miss Gertrude Sadler of Brunswick; and Miss Vivienne Lamont of Bath.

The committee in charge of the dance were: Carl D. Skillin, '12, of Hallowell, chairman; H. Burton Walker, '13, of Biddeford, and Samuel W. Chase, '14, of Lowell, Mass.

Harold M. Smith, '09, and Mrs. Smith were among the guests.

Kappa Sigma

Alpha Rho Chapter of Kappa Sigma held a very pleasing Christmas dance, Dec. 22, at their home on Harpswell Street. The house was very prettily decorated with seasonable colors. Stetson's Orchestra of Brunswick furnished the music and the order consisted of twenty-two dances. A pleasing feature of the affair was the introduction of a Christmas tree presided over by a Santa Claus, and from this favor accompanied by an appropriate verse were given.

The patronesses were: Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, Mrs. Wilmot B. Mitchell of Brunswick, and Mrs. Willis B. Moulton of Portland.

Among those present were: Misses Rita Mitchell, Florence Carll, Dorothy Gould, Olive Gould, Annie Hodgkins of Portland; Misses Lorraine Eaton, Margaret Hutchins, and Margaret Day of Brunswick; Miss Ida Beane of Winthrop; Miss Kathleen Duffy of Gardiner; Miss Jessie Merrill of Freeport. Mr. Ensign Otis, '09, and Mrs. Otis of Rockland, were also present.

The committee in charge of the affair: Walter J. Greenleaf, '12, of Portland, chairman; Robert D. Leiph, '14, of Seattle; and Chester G. Abbott, '13, of Lynn, Mass.

Faculty Notes

Professor Kenneth C. M. Sills has just published a small volume of poems entitled "The First American." The title poem is the one read by him at the Lincoln Centennial celebration. The rest of the poems include original verse and sonnets and translations from Dante and Horace. The book is printed by the Brunswick Publishing Co. and it is very nicely printed and bound. Only a few copies were issued for Prof. Sills's friends, and a few are on sale at Chandler's.

This makes the fourth volume of verse published by members of the faculty during the year. The others are "The Seer" by Prof. Henry Johnson; "A Roman Wit," translations from Martial, by Prof. Paul Nixon; and "The Pond" by Dr. WM. A. Houghton.

Prof. Cram attended the meeting of the American Chemical Society in Washington during the holidays. Dr. Loomis also attended the meetings of the society.

Prof. Catlin attended the meeting of the American Economic Association in Washington during the recess.

Professor Orren C. Hormell spoke on "City and County in New England" at the eighth annual meeting of the American Political Science Association, which was held at Buffalo and Toronto from Wednesday, Dec. 27, to Saturday, Dec. 30.

Professor Warren B. Catlin attended the annual meeting of the American Economic Association at Washington, D. C., Dec. 27 to 30. At that meeting papers were read by Professor Henry C. Emery, Bowdoin, '92, chairman of the Tariff Commission, and also by Professor Fairchild of Yale, formerly a member of the Bowdoin Faculty.

Professor Hormell read a paper at the meeting of the American Political Science Association at Buffalo, N. Y., during the Christmas vacation. The Boston Sunday Herald of December 31 says editorially: "The conditions which exist in the 14 counties of Massachusetts were described with fairness and accuracy in a carefully prepared paper read by Prof. O. C. Hornell, of Bowdoin College. His survey of the situation brought out the fact that many, if not most, of the abuses which we have succeeded in eliminating from city administration during the last half-dozen years are permitted to continue without molestation in our counties. These various opportunities for improvement in county administration with others which are set forth in Professor Hornell's report, might well have the attention of Massachusetts legislators."

College Notes

Walter Emerson, '11, was on the campus, Monday.
'Varsity relay practice is being held every day at 4:15.
Harry P. Bridge, '15, was recently initiated into the Zeta Psi Fraternity.
Harry Faulkner spent the Christmas holidays with S. J. Hinch in Danforth.
There are about forty Bowdoin men taking graduate work at Harvard this year.
Professor Sills spent the holiday recess at the home of his parents at Geneva, N. Y.
E. Baldwin Smith, '11, has been added to the faculty of Reed College, Portland, Ore.
The Massachusetts Club will hold a meeting Saturday night, Jan. 6, at the Delta Upsilon House.
A large number of fellows went to the Jefferson Theater and Keith's in Portland, Monday night.
Harry Peter Faulkner, '15, of Boston, Mass., was initiated into the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity Dec. 20.
Among the visitors on the campus, Tuesday, were Purington, '11, Merrill, '11, Meserve, '11, and Levature, '99.
The sled which Peary used in his trip to the North Pole, has been removed from the rotunda of the library.
A squad of about 15 men reported for relay practice Tuesday, in preparation for the B. A. A. meet in Boston, Feb. 16, when Bowdoin meets Tufts.
In view of the small-pox recently discovered in Brunswick the faculty advises those who have not been vaccinated within five or six years, to be treated immediately.
Warren D. Eddy, '14, was taken Monday to his home in Portland, where he will be operated on for appendicitis. He has been confined to his room for several weeks with diphtheria.
Dean Sills began a series of short talks on objects of classical interest in the Art Building, Tuesday afternoon. He plans to take small parties of those taking Latin I. to the Art Building for these talks in the next few weeks.

In connection with the presentation of the medal which the Sportsmen's Club of France has just voted to Rear Admiral Peary, appeared an article in the issue of the New York Times for Dec. 25, entitled "Peary, Sportsman."

Charles A. Flagg, Bowdoin, '94, who is connected with the Library of Congress in Washington, has been chosen to perform the difficult task of a revision and extension of the classification of American histories.

Students will be interested to know that a new theatre is soon to be built down-town. A corporation, known as the Cumberland Theatre Co., has been organized with a capital of $10,000. The building will be located on Cumberland Street, just back of the former location of the Pastime.

Hon. Sumner K. Kimball, Bowdoin, '55, who has been for many years Superintendent of the Life Saving Service, was injured in Washington one day last week by being run down by an automobile. Mr. Kimball is more than 80 years old, and it is feared that his injury may be dangerous.

The second regular meeting of the Classical Club was held Tuesday evening at the Delta Upsilon House. The program consisted of readings from the "Captives" of Plautus by members of the club. This was followed by a general discussion and social hour. Light refreshments were served.

There will be an illustrated lecture in Memorial Hall, Thursday evening, January 4, at 8 P.M., Rev. D. Brewer Eddy of Boston, secretary of the American Missionary Board will speak on the work of Anand Sidoba Hiwale, '09, Bowdoin's missionary in India. There will be music by the College Orchestra. The public is invited.

The dates have been announced for the Junior Assemblies as Jan. 12 and Feb. 23. The committee in charge consists of Twombly, Wiggin, Emery, Skolfield, and Burns. Tickets may be obtained of any member of the committee before the dates on which the assemblies are to be held, or at the door on the night of the assembly.

At the annual performance of the Musical Club of Harvard on December 18, Frank Kendrie, Bowdoin, '10, who is in the second year graduate department, played a number of selections on the violin. A Boston Transcript critic speaking of him says, "Mr. Kendrie, a thorough and serious violinist, should be praised as being excellent both individually and in ensemble."

Maine will soon have a Peace Society in active operation, a branch of the historic American Peace Society. A meeting will be held in Portland in January to elect officers and complete the organization temporarily made on Nov. 28th. The Organization Committee, of which Pres. William DeWitt Hyde is a member, has George E. Fogg, '02, as its chairman.

Shipley Ricker, Bowdoin, '08, who has been for some time connected with the Library of Congress in Washington, has left there to take charge of the periodical department of the New York Public Library. Bowdoin representation in the Congressional Library has been kept at four, however, by the employment there of Joseph C. White, Bowdoin, '11, of Bangor.
Professor William Hawley Davis, Monday evening in the Debating Room in Hubbard Hall favored many of the students who had assembled, with readings from Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and selections from the "Sketches by Boz." His audience thoroughly enjoyed Professor Davis' reading, and at the close he received prolonged applause.

A Christmas tree was given at the Pejepscot Sunday School December 15, under the direction of Clarence A. Brown, '14, of Portland, and Alfred E. Gray, '14, of Portsmouth, N. H. The Pejepscot Sunday School and Boys' Club are run under the auspices of the Bowdoin Y.M.C.A. About 60 were present at the Christmas tree, and it was a very pleasant event, especially for the youngsters.

An article by Theodore Roosevelt entitled "The Search for Truth in a Reverent Spirit" in the Outlook for Dec. 2, contains the following paragraph: "It is striking to see how these two gifted Frenchmen (M. Boutroux and M. Bergson), by their own road reach substantially the same conclusion, which, by a wholly different method, and, indeed, in treating religion from a wholly different standpoint, is also reached by the President of Bowdoin College. Mr. Hyde's short volume combines in a high degree a lofty nobility of ethical concept with the most practical and straightforward commonsense treatment of the ways in which this concept should be realized in practice. Each of us must prescribe for himself in these matters, and one man's need will not be wholly met by what does meet another's; personally, this book of President Hyde's gives me something that no other book does, and means to me very, very much."

Alumni Department

'57.—The death of Rev. David Sullivan Hibbard occurred in Gorham, Sunday, Dec. 17. Altho Mr. Hibbard had made his home in Gorham only since 1896 he had so identified himself with its interests and that of the First Parish Church that on his going out, he will be greatly missed.

Mr. Hibbard was born on April 27, 1831, in Lebanon, N. H. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 1857 and from the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1860. Mr. Hibbard held pastorates in Eliot and East Sumner, Me., and in Wentworth, N. H. Two years were also spent in Kansas, from which state he and his family came when they settled in Gorham in 1896. Mr. Hibbard is survived by three daughters: Mrs. H. N. Robinson of Kansas, Mrs. Jennie S. Paul, and Miss Nellie W. Hibbard.

"Mr. Hibbard was a man of marked individuality. He was an accurate student, with special gifts as a linguist. There was nothing superficial in his mental life, for he was ever wanting to find the roots of things. Connected with this accuracy was a severe logical turn of mind. No one saw through an assumption on a superficial argument sooner than he. He desired to know what a man's premises were and then demanded consistent reasoning. Added to this was a Puritan conscience. He had no use for mere show, or pretence, or affection or shams, but in his private life he was the incarnation of realness and sincerity. Those who differed from him felt that, however much they disagreed, they were dealing with an honest man, in every word, act, and emotion."

'61.—In the death of Dr. John Warren Thorp at his residence in Oxford, N. Y., Friday, Dec. 15, Oxford loses one of its foremost citizens and an able physician. The doctor had been ill with pneumonia only five days before his death.

Dr. Thorp was born at East Boothbay, Maine, April 30, 1839. Being graduated from Bowdoin in 1861, he came to Oxford, N. Y., in the same year as an assistant in the Oxford Academy. Later he became principal of the school, a position which he held several years. When the school became the Oxford Academy and Union Free School, Dr. Thorp became a member of the Board of Education, of which he was president for several years. He had been a trustee of the Oxford Memorial Library since its foundation.

After about six years of teaching, he studied medicine with the late Dr. S. F. McFarland, completed courses in the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City and the Medical School of Maine. He began the practice of medicine in Oxford in 1865.

He had been a deacon of the Congregational Church and its clerk for many years. He married, May 9, 1865, Charlotte M. Brown. The deceased is survived by two sons: Rev. Willard B. Thorp of San Diego, Calif., and Rev. Charles N. Thorp of Chelsea, Mass.

WORK ON NEW GYMNASIUM BEGINS

Superintendent Fred W. H. Kalor, the representative of the Tyson Co., who is to be in charge of the work on the new Gymnasium, has arrived and is now hard at work completing the plans for the erection of the building. On the arrival of the lumber, Mr. Kalor's office will be erected between the present Gymnasium and the proposed site of the new building. The contract for clearing excavation has been awarded to Strout and Pennell of Brunswick, and the work of clearing has been under way already for several days. Trenching will be begun immediately and carried on with all haste. It is probable that the building will be completed before it was expected.

MEETING OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

At the Athletic Association meeting, Jan. 8, in Memorial Hall, Lawrence W. Smith, '13, of Portland, was elected football manager for next season and Robert D. Leigh, '14, of Seattle, Wash., was elected assistant manager. Paul E. Donahue, '14, of Portland, was elected assistant tennis manager.

President Hurley, '12, spoke of the Student Council, outlined two plans for the so-called "blanket-tax," which will be discussed at the college smoker which is to be held in about two weeks, probably on January 19.

FIRST COLLEGE TEA AND JUNIOR ASSEMBLY

This afternoon the first College Tea of the year was given by the faculty ladies in the Alumni Room of Hubbard Hall from 3:30 to 5:30. This was called the "Brunswick Tea" and was held especially for Brunswick people. The hall was beautifully decorated with red roses. In the receiving line were Mrs. F. W. Brown, Mrs. Paul Nixon, Mrs. W. B. Mitchell, Mrs. C. C. Hutchins, and Miss Helen Chapman.

Dainty refreshments of fancy crackers, coffee, tea, and punch were served. At the tea table Mrs. W. A. Moody presided, assisted by Miss Little and Miss Sarah Baxter. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Manton Copeland and Mrs. R. J. Ham, assisted by Miss Helen Snow, Miss Grace Tibbetts, and Miss Edith Woodruff. Punch was dipped by Mrs. G. T. Little assisted by Miss Ellen Baxter and Miss Frances Little, and by Mrs. G. G. Wilder, assisted by Miss Virginia Woodbury and Miss Mabel Davis.

The ushers, representing the various fraternities were: Albert P. Cushman, '13, of Bangor, from Psi Upsilon; Lawrence A. Crosby, '13, of Bangor, from Delta Kappa Epsilon; Arthur D. Welch, '12, of Portland, from Theta Delta Chi; Harold W. Miller, '13, of Lynn, Mass., from Zeta Psi; John H. Millin, '12, of Exeter, N. H., from Delta Upsilon; Burleigh C. Rodick, '12, of Freeport, from Kappa Sigma; and Kenneth Churchill, '12, of Newtonville, Mass., from Beta Theta Pi. This affair was enjoyed by a large number of people, over two hundred invitations having been issued. The next College Tea will be given February 23.

This evening is being held the first Junior Assembly in Memorial Hall.

TAFT AND WILSON ARE THE FAVORITES

There is one point that transcends all these compiled statistics in interest, and that is the non-interest of college men in anything beyond their narrow circle. If this canvass has aroused any interest, the compiler can bear with martyr-like happiness, the charges of fraud which he has encountered in his philanthropic task.

THE "BLANKET TAX"

The Student Council, having carefully considered the question of the so-called "Blanket-tax," has decided to submit two plans to the student body for general discussion. It proposes to hold a smoker in the near future, at which a formal discussion will take place, and, to arrive, if possible at a unanimous agreement in favor of either one plan or the other, with or without amendments.

The Council feels that there is a practically unanimous sentiment in favor of some plan similar, at least, to the two which it proposes. If there is such unanimity of opinion, it believes that there is no good, strong, adequate reason why the Athletic Association should not amend its constitution so as to incorporate the popular plan.

If the Council is wrong in its judgment of undergraduate opinion, and there is a fairly strong minority opposing the submitted plans, it desires that such a minority will show its full strength at the formal discussion. In such a situation, of course, some other scheme will have to be evolved.

The Council fervently hopes that every man in college will consider the plans carefully and enthusiastically so that a long step forward towards the systematizing of athletics may be made.

The plans:

PLAN A: A board of managers consisting of the managers of all the college athletic teams and the managers of other specified organizations, shall be formed for the purpose of collecting from each man in college, a sum not less than fifteen dollars, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of these organizations. This board shall estimate proportionately the percentage of this sum which shall be given to each manager.

The board shall divide the work of collecting the money among themselves in a systematic manner, and the money shall be collected at three stated periods in the college year, e.g., five dollars the first term, five the second and five the third, the dates specified by the board.

The Orient and Quill are to be controlled by one business manager who shall receive a certain percentage of the profits. (Plan of combination to be determined later).

Any man who does not pay the stated fee is to be deprived of the right to vote as a member of the Athletic Association.

PLAN B: Plan B is essentially the same as Plan A, but it includes among the list of organizations to be supported only athletic teams, namely,—football, track, baseball, tennis, fencing and the band.

The fee to be charged, $12.00.

All who pay fee will be entitled to entrance to home games with certain exceptions such as Ivy Day.

The organizations included under this plan are: Football, baseball, track, tennis, the band, Y. M. C. A., debating society, the Quill and the Orient.

Note.—Anyone wishing to speak at the formal discussion will please hand his name to the president of the Council some time previous to the meeting.

NEW COURSE OF LECTURES

A friend has established a fund in memory of Benjamin Fuller to be used for an annual lecture before the student body in Sex Hygiene. The first lecture in the course was given by Dr. Frederic H. Gerrish, '66, a member of the medical faculty and of the board of overseers, on Tuesday evening in Memorial Hall.

CHEMICAL CLUB MEETING

At the recent annual meeting of the Chemical Club the following officers were elected: Douglas Howard McMurtrie, '13, of Wood fords, president; William Fletcher Twombly, '13, of Reading, Mass., vice-president; Harold Percy Vannah, '12, of Winslow Mills, secretary and treasurer.

The Club met Tuesday evening at the Beta House to discuss plans for the year, and enjoyed a talk given by Dr. Loomis on his trip to the meeting of the American Chemical Society during the holidays.

The executive committee chosen consists of the officers and Harry McLean Keating, '12, of Rockland. Dr. Loomis was elected an honorary member of the club.

LINCOLN COUNTY CLUB
At the annual meeting of the Lincoln County Club which was held a short time ago, the following officers were elected: Harold Perry Vannah, '12, of Winslow Mills, president; Raymond Davenport Kennedy, '13, of Jefferson, vice-president; Leon Dodge, '13, of Newcastle, secretary and treasurer; Herbert Lorenzo Bryant, '12, of Round Pond, Edward Weston Kent, '12, of Bremen, Robert Willis Belknap, '13, of Damariscotta, executive committee.

GIBBONS CLUB ORGANIZES
Another organization has recently been added to the various clubs already existing in Bowdoin College. The new arrival is the Gibbons Club, which has been formed by the Catholic students. The club has about twenty members. The first list of officers is as follows: John Lawrence Hurley, '12, of Malden, Mass., president, and Lawrence Alden Crosby, '13, of Bangor, secretary and treasurer.

MASSACHUSETTS CLUB
A meeting of the Massachusetts Club was held at the D. U. House on Saturday, Jan. 6, 1912. Prof. Sills gave a history of Bowdoin and of the Massachusetts men in college at various times. The number has varied from 6 per cent. to 16 per cent. of the entire body. After this talk a social evening was spent.

COLLEGE PREACHER
On next Sunday, January 14, the third in the series of college preachers, Rev. Charles Reynolds Brown, D.D., of New Haven, Conn., will preach in the Congregational Church in the forenoon and conduct chapel service in the afternoon. Dr. Brown was born at Bethany, West Virginia, in 1862. He received the degree of A.B. from the University of Iowa in 1883, and of S.T.B. from Boston University in 1889. In 1897 Dr. Brown made a trip through Egypt and Palestine for professional study.

In 1899 he was appointed Special Lecturer on Ethics at Leland Stanford, Jr., University; was Lyman Beecher Lecturer at Yale 1905-1906; and Special Lecturer at Cornell University in 1909. From 1896 to 1910 Dr. Brown was pastor of the First Congregational Church of Oakland, California. Last year he occupied the pulpit of the Old South Church, Boston, during Dr. Gordon's absence in Europe; and last fall became Dean of Yale Divinity School. Dr. Brown is the author of several books, among which are "The Social Message of the Modern Pulpit," "The Strange Ways of God," and "The Young Man's Affairs." He is one of the ablest preachers of the Congregational Church.

REV. D. BREWER EDDY TALKS ON HIWALE'S WORK
An appreciative audience assembled in Memorial Hall, Thursday evening, Jan. 4, to hear Rev. D. Brewer Eddy of Boston, lecture on the work of Anand Sidoba Hiwale, '09, Bowdoin's representative in the mission field in India. Rev. Mr. Eddy, besides being secretary of the American Board, has been in the field in India and has personal, first-hand knowledge of the trials and disappointments of the work. His lecture was illustrated by a fine set of stereopticon views of life in India. He told a number of interesting little incidents and customs of everyday occurrence which were doubly interesting because they were before the eyes of the audience. He briefly outlined the religious and social situation in India on which he brought out the chief characteristics of the Hindu people.

It is among these people, poor and superstitious, yet full of remarkable possibilities, that the missionaries work. Anand Sidoba Hiwale, by his zeal and faithful service, has earned the name of the most devoted native missionary in Northern India, and has been put in charge of a station, a most remarkable honor for a native. Until recently he has had the support of Dr. Lee. The latter, however, has recently died, and Hiwale faces a financial crisis.

Mr. Eddy made a most eloquent plea that we should not desert Hiwale in this time of need. At the close of his talk, cards were passed through the audience, to give each person an opportunity to help on the great work which Hiwale is doing. In the interim the college orchestra, which gave several pleasing selections during the evening, played. After the lecture Mr. Eddy met the members of the Hiwale committee and outlined their subscription campaign.
This present system of ours, if not fully understood in its actual operation, appears to be a very elastic and just method, that of each organization in college supporting itself separately by individual voluntary subscriptions, collected by the managing staff and paid in amounts according to the ability and interest of the students. But in its actual working out, if we are to take the word of those whose actual experience should give their opinion authority, its mode of action is not so beneficent.

At the beginning of a season the manager sends out his assistants with subscription books and the instructions to get every cent he can from every man in college. With this advice the successful candidate soon learns the tricks of the trade. He learns to place the large subscriptions in the front of his book, and to conceal the smaller ones in the back part of it; he soon learns that with this array of big subscribers, nearly every poor man of pride and every Freshman, rich or poor, is good for a similar amount; he learns to his surprise that, actually, and in nine cases out of ten the largest and most generous subscriptions come not from the well-to-do, but from those “who are too proud to pay less than the most of the fellows” and who consequently over-tax themselves. He appeals to college loyalty; the doors are locked at his approach. He wheedles, dodges, sneers; some pay, some sign in and pay, and some sign in and never pay.

The manager, meanwhile, has troubles of his own. He is obliged to start the season and never has a cent to his credit, and usually with a debt from the year before. For his first expenses, and the equipment of his teams he must either borrow money on his own security or take his capital from his own pocket. He worries through the season, with his bank account always in doubt, never to be depended upon, and ends with a stack of unpaid bills and uncollected subscriptions.

But not alone does the manager suffer from this system. The entering student, planning his college expenses before entering, reads in the catalogue:

“No attempt is made to estimate such expenses, as furniture, traveling expenses, class dues, fraternity fees, etc.” And he hardly, with this information, plans on meeting two or three collectors on his first week in college, who waylay him and tell him he is supposed to subscribe this and that amount to various college organizations. As a result his financial calculations are upset and with it his peace of mind.

How would it be to read in next year's catalogue some such statement as this:

"The student activities are controlled by a general association of the undergraduates and representatives from the faculty, with managers and other officers from each branch of activity. Membership in this association is $12.00 per year, payable $6.00 at the beginning of each semester to the association treasurer and his assistants. Membership is voluntary, and includes free subscription to both college magazines and the privileges of voting and holding offices under the jurisdiction of the association."

Which of the two systems seems to contain the most unjust discrimination between rich and poor? Under the proposed plan each man is given an accurate account of student expenses before entering college, and if he decides to take an active part in the student organizations he may plan to do so financially. For more than a college generation it has seemed a very desirable improvement, and many and various have been the articles in the college magazines and efforts by other bodies to see it adopted.

The 1911 Student Council, after collecting data from various colleges throughout the country, and after much consideration, proposed the blanket-tax as the most feasible to inaugurate at Bowdoin and included the collection of the tax through the college treasurer's office.

The Faculty vetoed this plan with the very logical objection that such a system would be the shifting of an onerous task from student to faculty agencies.

Our present Council took the matter philosophically, eliminated the objectionable feature to the plan, and very wisely proposed that the students proceed to the collection of the fee, but that it should be a voluntary assessment rather than a compulsory tax.

This plan, also, was promptly vetoed by the Faculty, the objection being that "the system discriminates between the rich and the poor student."

The Council received this news, perhaps with a sigh, but are again at work to try and patch up the old blanket-scheme so as to make it acceptable to the Faculty.

But a casual viewer of the situation would say that the superiority of the new system lies in the very features they are now trying to eliminate. We agree with the Quill that there is another policy that the Council might adopt. We quote: "The plan may have met with opposition. But the retiring editor's last words to the Student Council are, Push still harder. And to the Student Body he would say, Stand behind the Student Council; through them demand what you want and work for it with all your might."

Of course, the student body may be wrong and the Faculty may be right, as is so often the case, but the purpose of this editorial is to ascertain for the students at large, the real, underlying fault which condemns as unfeasible, this system which seems to them so much superior to the one we now have.

It is a significant fact that the cry for the blanket-assessment comes from the managers and ex-managers of our student organizations, the very men who are most familiar with conditions as they exist; and it is a significant fact that its warmest supporters are not the "idle rich" among us, but the students who are earning all or part of their way through college. The average student does not discern any danger of money discrimination in the new system, he knows that the present system is one of brow-beating, begging, conflicting student interests, and believes he sees an improvement in a uniform, business-like assessment under the blanket system.

1912 Student Council, it is up to you. Thus far you have shown a courageous and progressive attitude in the matters you have undertaken. The student body, your constituency, want this much-needed change, and a large majority of them will be satisfied with nothing else. We second the motion of the Quill: "Now work for it with all your might."

We have only to read the

The Track Situation college papers circulating about the country to realize that the track season is even now well under way. But we are especially interested and anxious to know where Bowdoin is going to place in the contests in which she will be represented. It is a question which calls for a solution in action rather than in speculation. Every man in college realizes where Bowdoin ranked in last year's meets. But because her showing was not what it had been in past years does not justify us in thinking we will do no better this year. Such will, undoubtedly, be the case if we do not wake up to the situation at once and realize that we have to produce a team which will keep defeat from Whittier Field. It is not a bit too early to begin work for making that team. The fact that Bowdoin took last place in the State Meet last spring comes as a challenge to every man in college to put her up higher this spring. It is not necessary for a man to wait until spring practice begins, to go out for the team. On the other hand it is quite essential as well as beneficial that winter work be carried on in the gymnasium. We must begin now to develop a team which we all want to see put Bowdoin at the top in track athletics. We all have a part to play in this development. If a man has discovered that he is not an athlete himself he can at least influence the "next man" to go out and try for the team.

Quite necessary to a successful team is the system of coaching and this spring Bowdoin is to make a change in her system. It is the desire of the management to secure the coach about three weeks before the Indoor Meet. To make this possible loyal support along financial lines is absolutely necessary. If we believe in the team we must stand behind it in every way. We must support it by our subscriptions, we must show our loyalty by trying for the team and urging the "next man" to try, and we must all pull together to put Bowdoin in her proper place.

THE CHRISTMAS QUILL

Bowdoin men who had the pleasure of listening to the Commencement speakers last June need not be informed of the excellence of the essay which has first place in the Christmas Quill. The writer of The Nineteenth Century and the Short Story does not say undisputed things in a solemn way, nor does he deal with indifferent things in a trivial way. But he has escaped platitudes and trivialities only to be the victim of a modern heresy. "Suggestion-ism" is not entirely new; and, after all, it is not more than one of the many swallows necessary to our humanistic summer. Catholicity of taste cannot confine itself to the mood and temper of one century, or of two; the essayist's generalizations concerning the fiction, the drama, the painting, and the sculpture of the past are too broad in their sweep and too narrow in their implied discontent. His main thesis the essayist handles well; his trenchant expressions, his quotations, his animation call for unalloyed praise. "A rangy, sprawling fiction form" is one of several characterizations which command attention.

The reviewer has read Beatrice three times, partly because he enjoyed it, partly because he was trying to disentangle the heroine's character from her plot. He is not certain of his success. He does not know whether the Beatrice who "swings her foot with nonchalant abandon," "ogle" her father, "smiles obtrusively," and is so vain, showy, and graceless is the real Beatrice, or Beatrice in her role of gay deceiver. He feels that this much, at least, should be made known, even though he never told what the old gentleman was to do at Kennebunk, or why he speaks so irreverently of his own nose. Beatrice, the girl, is very individual; Beatrice, the story, is not at all commonplace. But are not plot and character incompatible even when they are happily disentangled? Why should a girl who ventures to hear her own sire, coolly telling him her intentions, and coolly carrying them out, descend to pretty wiles in order to gain his superfluous acquiescence? Beatrice is too unlovely and masterful to devise and play so dainty and feminine a part. The phrase, "sat tight," is rather discordant, and, in his desire to escape the banal, the writer occasionally uses words which are so striking as to divert attention from story to style. Yet Beatrice is eminently worth while; it contains a number of descriptive touches that are most felicitous, together with passages that go with professional "snap.

The climax of An American Invasion is unexpected and entertaining, so entertaining that the writer might well have led up to it more directly, and might well have sacrificed chivalry and truth and extraneous detail to humorous effect by making his Americans more loud, voluble, and uncultivated. We would enjoy hearing more of "those remarks which were not always apropos" and occasioned that "kind of uneasiness which showed itself at times" on the face of the English boy.

One may feel that the "mem'ries dear" of autumn, in That September Day, are partly due to the "year" of the previous line, and that the "summer's hope" has too exclusive a connection with the "mountain slope," but the last six lines of this sonnet are very effective. The music of fresh, living words, slow and soft, ends at "the parting of the forked ways," and in the last, sudden, broken line sound and sense are in admirable accord.

Rejoice, the other verse contribution to the Christmas Quill, conveys a pleasant Christmas thought which is hardly the pleasantest for being trite. The absence of punctuation in the first line is rather misleading, while the first line of the fourth stanza could well spare its initial "So," and might end with a weightier word than "things."

Readers of the December Quill can have no reason to consider the November Postman assertive or premature in telling how the Bowdoin periodical is regarded by its esteemed contemporaries. A session with Dickens, to induce that feeling "sort of good all over," is no necessary prelude to enjoyment of the Christmas number of the Quill, and we heartily agree with the writer of Silhouettes that it would be unpardonable to allow the magazine to die.

SATURDAY CLUB LECTURE BY ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTE

On Thursday, January 18, at 2 p.m., in Town Hall, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst will speak on "Woman Suffrage" under the auspices of the Saturday Club. Miss Pankhurst is the younger daughter of Mrs.
Emmeline Pankhurst, whose recent speech in Cambridge was the occasion of much comment because of the attitude of the Harvard Trustees towards her coming to Sanders Theatre. Miss Sylvia Pankhurst is described as a girl of twenty-one with a great charm of manner and the simple, direct power of speech which goes with profound conviction. She has been very successful in securing the interest of even hostile audiences by her presentation of facts little known in America—the conditions, social and economic, in England which have made women of all classes seek the vote as a means primarily for safe-guarding and improving their homes—she is an artist of note, was arrested early in her work with her mother for ‘militant tactics,’ and has since her imprisonment worked to reform the inhumanity of English prison methods.

She is to be in the States but two months and this is one of her few engagements in the East.

Reserved seats will go on sale Monday, Jan. 15, at 9 A.M., at Miss Shorey’s store, Maine Street.

A LETTER FROM THE FAR EAST

ST. JOHN’S COLLEGE, Shanghai, China, November 19, 1911.

My dear Orient:

A Bowdoin dinner in the Far East is of sufficient rarity to make it worth recording.

So far as I know Eastern Asia, exclusive of Japan, can boast but six of us: Jameson, ’76, civil engineer, architect and all-round man; Fessenden, ’06, lawyer and man of affairs; Brigham and Shorey, ’04, and Brett, ’05, International Banking Corporation magnates, and the writer, who is only a missionary physician and teacher. None of the banking experts are now living in Shanghai, but Fessenden and I claim residence here, and the exigencies of the Anhwei Famine, and the American Red Cross Society brought Mr. Jameson in here to report on his preliminary survey of the Huai River district. Pardon these introductory details.

Kind Fate, who never does anything by halves, decreed that A. J. Boardman, ’73, with some of his family, should happen in here at this time and the Revolution, which was so suddenly foisted upon us all, kept them in our midst for two weeks so we had a good visit from them.

The evening of the 9th was a red letter day, when Mr. Boardman invited Jameson, Fessenden and me to a Bowdoin dinner at the Astor House, Shanghai’s hotel de luxe. Two other men were hidden because they were lucky enough to come from Maine, Consul General Wilder, who graduated from a well-known country college in New Haven; and Mr. Hall of the American Bank Note Co. of New York, a citizen of the world, whose home is in Orono.

It was altogether a delightful family dinner, and we had sufficient comity of interests to invite wholesome discussion on all sorts of subjects from the present revolution in China to politics in Maine: the Bowdoin contingent having occasionally to call the Consul General to order on account of temporary exacerbations of obtruding Yale into the conversation.

Mr. Boardman and party left for Manila on the 10th and will return home by way of the Hawaiian Islands.

Shanghai is such an important center and so accessible to travelers in the East that most people coming to Asia this way for business or pleasure get here sooner or later. To us who live out here, a visitor from the old sod, and especially one who has been through the old college among the pines, is ever welcome. Don’t forget us if you come through Shanghai. Fessenden and I are both in the “Hong List,” that means city directory, and if you have not time to come out to the college to see me, (and the college is well worth seeing), ring up 203 and tell me where you are staying, and I will find you if it is possible to do so in the given time.

As ever faithfully yours,

C. S. F. LINCOLN, ’01.

College Notes

Leon Lippincott, ’10, was on the campus Saturday and Sunday.

H. L. Grimmell, ’02, of Derry, N. H., visited the college, Tuesday.

The Freshmen had adjourns in gym Monday, because of the cold.

G. Tappan Little, ex-’15, is attending a technical school near Boston.

The picture of the Musical Clubs was taken at Webber’s studio on Thursday.

Lawrence Davis, ’11, and “Nate” Weston, ’08, were on the campus, Saturday.

The democratic students at Dartmouth have organized a Woodrow Wilson Club.

An unusual number of Freshmen is taking the course in comic sections under Professor Alvord.

Manager William Bird of the Exeter Baseball Team was the guest of Harry Faulkner, Tuesday.
It was reported on the authority of "Bill" that the thermometer went down to thirty-five below zero on Monday morning.

Governor Plaisted has reappointed Prof. Cram as a member of the State Board of Health for a term of six years.

Professor Davis entertained the coaches of the Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League at dinner last Friday evening.

Horace Barton, '14, who, on account of illness, has been forced to extend his Christmas vacation, returned to college, Monday.

Henry J. Colbath, '10, of Dexter, Maine, was on the campus, Saturday. He is now teaching at the Hill School of Pottstown, Penn.

Jack Curtis, '11, was on the campus this week. He will soon go to London in connection with the International Banking Company's work.

Many of the Bowdoin students proved of great assistance at the fire on Maine Street, Saturday, by helping to remove the furniture from the house.

James Plaisted Webber, Bowdoin '00, Professor of English at Exeter, has published a book of verse entitled "The Turnpike Tavern, and other verse."

Eddy, '14, is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis at his home in Portland. Word was received from him that he is recovering nicely.

Donald Sewall, ex-'13, of Bath, was on the campus Saturday. He is now on his way to Zanzibar, South Africa, where he will take a position in a transport company.

The lecture on Sexual Hygiene given in Memorial Hall on Monday evening, by Dr. Frederic H. Gerrish of Portland, was attended by a large number from the student body.

The student body was shocked Sunday to hear that the youngest daughter of Dr. F. N. Whittier had been accidentally burned to death Sunday morning. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon.

In addition to the list in last week's Orient of books by members of the Bowdoin faculty, a book of verse entitled "Poems Sacred and Profane," by Professor Henry Johnson, has recently been published.

The halls and basements of the dormitories are in the future to be lighted with tungsten lamps in place of the old style carbon filament ones. The new lights are to be covered by wire cages to prevent loss.

A trio of students is now playing at the Eagle Hotel every evening from 5:30 to 7:30. They are Joseph H. Newell, '12, of Richmond, cornetist; Geo. F. Cressy, '12, of Portland, violinist; and Charles F. Adams, '13, of Auburn, pianist.

A Progressive Republican Club has been formed, the members of which pledge themselves to support Senator La Follette of Wisconsin in the Presidential campaign of 1912. Plans are being made to try to have Senator La Follette speak here while he is in Maine this spring.

Gymnasium makeup work was interrupted by the fire on Maine Street, Saturday. Hurley had to barricade the doors for a while to keep the students in.

There will be a meeting of the Bowdoin Interscholastic Baseball League Saturday, at 2 p.m., at the Beta Theta Pi house, to arrange the schedule for the coming years and to consider other matters of importance. The members of the League last year were Brunswick, Lewiston, Edward Little High of Auburn, Cony High of Augusta, and Morse High of Bath. Brunswick High, which also won the State championship, was champion of the league with a record of 7 games won, 1 lost. F. X. Callahan, '14, of Portland, is president of the league.

In an address at Hobart College last June, on the "Life of Benjamin Hale," who was one of the early presidents of Hobart, and a graduate of Bowdoin in the Class of 1818, Hon. Andrew D. White brought forth the interesting fact that while tutor at Bowdoin in the early twenties, Dr. Hale instituted the first vocational courses ever given in a school in this country. They were given at the so-called Lyceum at Gardiner, Maine, where under his direction courses of a practical nature were offered for the express purpose of furthering education along technical and mechanical lines.

'94.—Rev. Alfred Veazie Bliss has received a unanimous call to the Winslow Congregational Church, and has accepted it. Since the resignation of Rev. Archibald McConcree some months ago, the church has been without a regular pastor. For the past three months, Mr. Bliss has been filling the pulpit, and so favorable has been the impression which he has created that the church voted to ask him to become its permanent pastor.

'00.—Albro E. Burnell, who has been a guest of his parents at Coyle St., Woodfords, Me., for several days, is now in Washington on official business. Mr. Burnell is in the consular service, and for the last four years has been the United State consul at Barranquilla, Republic of Colombia. Previous to entering the consular service, Mr. Burnell was a teacher and superintendent of schools in a district in the Philippine Islands.

COMPLETE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Manager Lawrence W. Smith of the Football Team has announced that arrangements have been made for a game with University of Vermont at Portland, November 16. This will be the first football game between Bowdoin and University of Vermont. The game was made possible only through the courtesy of Brown, which gave Vermont November 2 instead of November 16, thus leaving the latter date open to Bowdoin.

The complete schedule for 1912 is as follows:

Sept. 28—Fort McKinley at Brunswick.
Oct. 5—Wesleyan at Middletown, Conn.
Oct. 12—Trinity at Hartford, Conn.
Oct. 26—Colby at Brunswick.
Nov. 2—Bates at Brunswick.
Nov. 9—University of Maine at Orono.
Nov. 16—University of Vermont at Portland.

During the past few years, athletic relations have been growing stronger between Vermont and Bowdoin, and now regular relations have been assumed during the baseball season.

POLITICAL CLUBS

Republicans to Organize

At a meeting of delegates from the undergraduate body and from the faculty held in the debating room, Monday evening, definite steps were taken for the formation of a Republican Club. The club will be founded upon the broadest possible general lines so that it may include all who care to ally themselves with Republican principles. A committee of three consisting of Simpson, ’12, Paul White, ’14, and Spinney, ’13, was elected to draw up a tentative constitution and make arrangements for holding a mass-meeting of the Republicans in college. At the mass-meeting, held in Memorial Hall to-night, the club will definitely organize and elect officers for the year. The membership will include both faculty and undergraduates. Professor Files will be the speaker of the evening.

Democrats Next

We recently spoke editorially of the desirability of the formation of one or more political clubs among the undergraduates. A quick response to our suggestion came this week in the form of the first steps toward the launching of a Republican Club conceived with the no less ambitious purpose, among other things, than that of securing a lecture from Senator La Follette and one from ex-Speaker Cannon when those two men come East this spring. So far as this undertaking goes it is very good, but Bowdoin is by no means unanimously Republican in its politics. The Orient believes that it should be possible and desirable for some other party to arrange a program of speakers for this spring and thus give the college and the town an opportunity to hear another side of the question.

JUNIOR ASSEMBLY

The first Junior Assembly of the year was held Friday evening, Jan. 12, in Memorial Hall. Although not very largely attended, it proved to be a delightful affair. The committee, composed of W. Fletcher Twombly of Reading, Mass., Frederick S. Wiggins of Thomaston; George L. Skofield, Jr., of Brunswick; Theodore E. Emery, of Randolph; and Kendrick Burns of Saco, are to be congratulated on the success of their first assembly.

The hall was tastefully decorated with college and fraternity banners, and refreshments of salad, ice cream, and coffee were served by Caterer Morton of Brunswick. Lovell’s Orchestra of six pieces played for an order of eighteen dances.

The patronesses of the evening were: Mrs. W. H. Davis, Mrs. Paul Nixon, Mrs. W. B. Mitchell, and Mrs. W. E. Lunt, all of Brunswick. Among those present at the dance were: Miss Evelyn Edwards and Miss Frances Crossman of Portland; Mrs. G. Clark Brooks, Misses Harriet Estes, Marguerite Hutchins, Gertrude Sadler, Alice McKinley and Virginia Woodbury of Brunswick; Miss Anne Dudley and Miss Marjorie Scribner of Bridgton, Miss Beatrice Joy of Boston, Miss Gladys Umberhind of Topsham; Miss Carolina Rullman of Bath; Miss Dorothy Bird of Rockland; Miss Marion Kendall of Biddeford; Miss Iva Record of Auburn; and Miss Olive Holway of Augusta.

SMOKER COMING

At the regular meeting of the Student Council held Monday night in Hubbard Hall, it was decided to hold the first smoker of the year, Friday evening, January 26, in Memorial Hall. The committees in charge of the affair reported that plans were being completed to make the affair a grand success. Music will be furnished by the band and the college orchestra, and refreshments of the kind that soothe will be freely distributed. The small price of twenty cents will be charged for admission and to each man will be given a college souvenir. Tickets may be obtained now from any member of the Council or may be bought at the door on Friday evening.

A business session will be held during the evening at which time the "blanket-taxes," as proposed by the Council, will be discussed. Further discussion will be held in regard to the question of uniting the Quill and Orient under one business management. Any plans or suggestions on this point should be handed to the Council before the meeting.

Festivities will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. and come prepared to have one grand, good time before the mid-year confinement. Get your tickets now and don’t forget the date,—one week from to-night!

DEUTSCHER VEREIN ORGANIZES

Tuesday evening, the Deutscher Verein held its first meeting with Professor Files. The officers elected for the year are Herbert L. Bryant, 1912, Vorsitzender; Douglas H. McMuntrie, 1913, Schriftwart; Seward J. Marsh, 1912, Kassanwart.

IBIS MEETING

The next meeting of the Ibis will be held, Saturday evening, Jan. 20, in the Deutscher Verein room in Hubbard Hall. Hon. Herbert M. Heath of Augusta, will give an address. The lecture at the opening meeting in Memorial Hall, which will be held some time in March, will be given by Professor William W. Lawrence, who is at present Associate Professor of English at Columbia University. Professor Lawrence is a graduate of Bowdoin, a member of the Class of ’98.

FROM A YOUNG ALUMNUS

Editor of the Bowdoin Orient:

Dear Sir—In May comes the State Track Meet, and it comes on Whittier Field. This week I have run into matters connected with our track prospects, and as a very interested young alumnus, I make bold, while there is yet time, to add a word to those of the track captain that we may start now to fight to win that Meet. It may sound familiar but it is as true as it is familiar: To-day, to-morrow, and next day, these and the days closely following them are the ones, which, according as the undergraduates use them, will make up or shamefully fail to make up for Bowdoin the inch that in the Spring will mean to us very vital points. The Meet is but four months off. To-day and no later is the right time for every man who would like to compete next Spring, to report to Coach Morrill for Spring practice. This is the time for every candidate to start something,—"Bert" will tell him what—to start something, start something, and keep it going, going, going, every day till June.

Up on your feet now! We never have lost a track meet on our own field, and this year is a bad time to begin. One could say much about the facts that a track meet with its variety of events, and its large number of competitors (especially on a home team), is more widely representative of a college’s strength, skill and pluck than any other of our big contests; that in track work there is open to every man in college the opportunity to catch the Bowdoin spirit and devotion which comes so readily from working even in the smallest way with a college athletic squad; that in track work more than in any other sport there is opportunity for continual practice, for equal opportunity to practice, for watching one’s self gain, for being judged as a candidate on exactly one’s merits; and so on and on. But I trust the undergraduates realize all that, and I am writing not for fun but to help the crowd actually start the things now due.
A college man's character roughly is as broad as his ideals. To-day is the time for the undergraduates, each and every one, to set his ideals no narrower than the interests of the whole college, and in that spirit now is the best chance to concentrate on our track prospects. The Meet is to be more than a test of bull strength, though that will help; it is to be more than a test of the rough-and-ready spirit to fight to the finish, though that will help; this Meet is to be a test of individual, earnest, active, cheerful Bowdoin devotion, thru the winter.

Bowdoin can make the story of this Winter and Spring live long, as a supreme expression of the united active loyalty of each and every student. This is the time to build for the future the stories of the present Bowdoin spirit. Just as a suggestion, I urge as a good way of starting things, that in addition to the immediate reporting for practice by urged and unurged candidates, that the next student-council meeting, the next college mass-meeting or smoker, the next Rally, the next fraternity meetings, each and every one adopt an emphatic resolution that every member use the best there is in him to pull Bowdoin out of her conceivably hopeless track situation; and then let everybody join to show to the colleges, to the alumni, and to the old pines themselves that Bowdoin now has the spirit to come thru and win!

Trust that no one will resent my interference, and wishing to all the very best success,

I am sincerely,

Harold H. Burton, '09.

IS THE CHOIR QUARTETTE "GETTING BY"?

For four years, Mr. Editor, we Seniors have heard chapel services desecrated by that inhuman maltreatment of beautiful hymns and no written protest has appeared. A remarkable record of forbearance! But if it keeps on, the fact that the college quartette is,—to use common parlance,—"rotten" will become one of our traditions and future generations will be compelled to suffer, even as we have suffered.

Isn't it time the college protested?

Truly, it is to be regretted that when we bring our friends to chapel we must be prepared to apologize in case the quartette should rise to do violence to a sacred song.

We have exhibited commendable fortitude; and since "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," we have waited for improvement. In vain! Sunday after Sunday have we submitted while torturing noises assailed our ears, and the fervent prayer arose from our hearts, "Oh! God, we have had charity, now give us peace."

Respectfully yours,

A SENIOR.

INTERSchOLASTIC DEBATING LEAGUE

Prof. Davis announced on Saturday, Jan. 13, the question for the annual Bowdoin College Interscholastic Debating League as follows: Resolved, That a protective tariff is better for this country than a tariff for revenue only.

The schools entered in the league are: Portland High School, Lewiston High School, Cony High School, and Wilton Academy. The subject for the debate was chosen by Portland and Lewiston High Schools and the privilege now lies with Cony High and Wilton Academy to choose the side of the question on which they prefer to debate.

The preliminary debate will take place March 1, Cony High contesting with Portland High at Portland, and Lewiston High debating with Wilton Academy at Lewiston. The date for the final debate between the two winners in the preliminaries has not yet been decided upon.

The coaches appointed for the debating teams are as follows:

For Portland High School, John E. Dunphy, '13, of Portland.
For Cony High School, Herbert E. Locke, '12, of Augusta.
For Lewiston High School, James A. Norton, '13, of Phillips.
For Wilton Academy, Verd R. Leavitt, '13, of Wilton.

REV. CHARLES R. BROWN, D.D., SPEAKS AT SUNDAY CHAPEL

Charles Reynolds Brown, D.D., Dean of the Yale Divinity School, the college preacher for January 14, spoke at Sunday chapel. After reading the first chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Romans, he spoke, in brief, as follows:

"As Paul looked on Rome at the beginning of his ministry there, he realized what a stupendous opportunity was at hand. Here was Rome, the leader of the world. All roads led to Rome, and all
The Smoker  We gladly welcome the approach of the first college smoker of the year and we hope that it will go down in history as one in which the management of athletics at Bowdoin receives a new basis. For the past few years agitation has been made to put athletics here on a good financial basis as well as to do away with the subscriptions for other activities. The undergraduates have wished a change and have urged their own governing council to propose some method. Out of this have come the plans for a "blanket-tax" which are already known to us. Whether or not such a method as proposed shall be put into practice here in future years depends upon the attitude the undergraduate takes in viewing it. We do not necessarily mean that a fellow who doesn't believe in either proposal must support it with his views. But in the discussion to be held it is up to every man to defend it or oppose it as he likes or dislikes the "tax." A decided individual opinion either way will mean much in coming to a definite conclusion by the whole student body.

Abuse of Magazines When we stop to consider that some of the subjects treated editorially from time to time are trite and worn out, we might well believe that they are not written in the spirit of mere "knocking." It is one of the duties of the college paper to set before the student body the conditions of things as they exist, be they pleasant or unpleasant. Among these subjects written annually for the Orient is one which deals with the clipping of articles from the papers and magazines in the library. Once more it comes to the lot of the Orient to make known the fact that some person or persons are grossly abusing the privileges granted them in the use of these periodicals. The occasional clipping of articles might be overlooked, but when some malicious person deliberately removes magazines from their bindings and appropriates them for his own personal satisfaction, it is time for facts to be known. It would seem that no fellow in college could believe that magazines are bought solely for the individual, and yet such actions which have been brought to light serve only to furnish ground for this belief. It might well be suggested, then, that in any community whether it is collegiate or civil, the rights of the individual are small in comparison to those of society at large.

Rev. Charles R. Brown, D.D., Speaks at Sunday Chapel Continued from page 185 roads led from Rome. Rome's influence spread over all the known world and Paul looked at it as a vast moral field. He realized what would be the result if the influence of God's religion should be spread over Rome.

But Nero was emperor of Rome, a wild, dishonorable tyrannical monarch. Under his rule the Romans had become sensual and coarse. Religion was a name to be scoffed at, a word to be spoken with a sneer. Nevertheless, Paul was ready for his task. The significant thing about him was his attitude of will. Rome stood for opportunity, Paul for ability. He accepted his responsibility with no fears as to his ability to attend to it. Paul's case was like that of each one of you college men. Before you lies an opportunity. It may be great as the seven hills of Rome, or it may be small, but it will surely come, and your success will depend entirely on your will and preparation.

So you, young men, must prepare yourselves for the opportunity which is coming to you. Some day, it may be five or it may be ten years hence, you must accept a responsibility. Let it find you with untainted vitality, a clear head, a sound character, and a heart filled with the love of God. Then, when your opportunity comes, you can answer, "Ready."

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Douglas, '73, presided and in a brief introduction in which he defined Christianity with its particular bearing upon society, introduced Mr. E. P. Wentworth of Portland. Mr. Wentworth has been for 35 years connected with the State School for Boys and has been superintendent since 1897. He is also President of the Maine Prison Association.

He said in part, "We are living in a most interesting time. Changes have taken place in all branches of learning, particularly in Science and in Theology. Those in Science are in particular notice with regard to medicine; those in Theology have not been much more than the restating in a clearer way the old Truths.

For the past 140 years great changes have taken place in Criminalology. They have been particularly marked in the last 40 years, but the greatest interest in the criminal class has been shown in the past ten years.

The old Criminalology was taken from what is known as the vindictive theory of the Old Testament. If a crime was committed, the criminal owed a debt to the community which had to be paid by suffering.

The New Criminalology holds this theory to be very wrong, and instead of inflicting most cruel punishment upon those who are guilty of crime, instead of studying the crime, the criminal himself is studied and criminals have been accordingly classified quite similarly to the way Shakespeare classified men of greatness.

"Some men are born great,
Some achieve greatness,
Some have greatness thrust upon them."

Some persons are born criminals,
Some persons acquire criminality,
Some persons have crime thrust upon them.

"The best place to study criminals is in such a place as the State Juvenile Reformatory. Here the criminal is found in embryo. There is a class of boys and girls mentally weak and they will commit crime unless they are kept from it—kept away from society. There is a class mentally sane—these are habitual criminals and may be sub-classed as follows: Vagrants, perverts, sexual perverts, professional criminals. A third class are those who have crime thrust upon them and who do not intend to repeat it—these criminals should be dealt with most cautiously lest they be transferred to the class of habitual criminals.

The most effectual way to deal with these classes is not to send them to jail but to build homes for them where they may be confined, studied and educated. The beginning of this Reformatory Movement took place in 1824 when a Juvenile Reformatory was established.

Mr. Wentworth read several letters from men who have been reformed since he has been connected with the State Reformatory and also told several stories of boys who being mentally defective could not be reformed.

There was a fair-sized gathering of the students and all were interested and very grateful to Mr. Wentworth for his instructive lecture.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

We are to have the privilege of hearing the Hon. C. E. Milliken of Island Falls on Thursday, January 25 at 7 o'clock. Mr. Milliken is one of the most prominent men in the political and business life of the state. For several sessions he has been a member of the state senate and is recognized as one of the leaders in that body. He is also connected with extensive lumbering operations in Aroostook County and is in every way fitted to speak on the subject “The Applications of Christianity to Business.”

The dates for the State Conference of Colleges and Preparatory Schools to be held with the University of Maine at Orono have been announced for Feb. 16, 17, and 18. A complete program will be announced later. It is enough to say now that among the speakers will be David R. Porter, ’06, Harrison Elliott, Bible Study Secretary of the International Committee, and James L. McConaughy. A remarkably cheap rate on the railroad has been secured of one-half the regular fare, which ought to make it possible for everyone to go who desires to do so. Entertainment will be provided by the University of Maine. Remember the dates and try to be there.

A CORRECTION

Under plan A of the “Blanket-tax” proposed in last week’s Orient, it should have been stated that admission to all home games—with one or two exceptions—would be given to those paying the fee. This provision makes the two plans alike in regard to conditions governing admission to the games.

Faculty Notes

Last Saturday evening in the Court Room in the town building, the Brunswick Dramatic Club was organized with a membership of about 150. The aim of the society is to encourage amateur performances, the production of good plays, and the study of the drama. Several persons, closely connected with the college, are interested in the club. Professor George T. Files is president; Professor Mitchell and Mrs. Hutchins are members of the executive committee; Professor Hutchins is chairman of the music committee; Professor Brown is chairman of the committee on selection of plays and casts of which Professors Burnett, Davis, and Sills are members, and Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Davis are members of the stage committee. The club plans to present one big entertainment a year for the benefit of some local charity and to give two or three entertainments to which only members will be admitted.

Professor William Hawley Davis will give an address at the third meeting of the Literature Department of the W. L. U., which will meet in Pythian Temple, Portland, on the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 20, to study modern literature. Professor Davis will illustrate his talk by the reading of selecctions from Short Stories.

President Hyde will have leading articles in the February and April numbers of American Youth, the first number of which will appear in February. It is a magazine for “adult workers with adolescent youth.” President Hyde’s articles are “A Prayer for All Boys,” and “A Boy’s Prayer.”

The Harvard Club of Buffalo has recently printed, in attractive poster form, the closing paragraph of a paper which President Hyde read before the International Congress of Arts and Sciences, at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, Missouri, September 16-24, 1904. The selection, which is headed “The Offer of the College” is as follovs:

“To be at home in all lands and all ages; to count Nature a familiar acquaintance, and art an intimate friend; to gain a standard for the appreciation of other men’s work and the criticism of your own; to carry the keys of the world’s library in your pocket, and feel its resources behind you in whatever task you undertake; to make hosts of friends among the men of your own age who are to be leaders in all walks of life; to lose yourself in generous enthusiasm and co-operate with others for common ends; to learn manners from students who are gentlemen, and form character under professors who are Christians—this is the offer of the college to you.”

The Committee on Relations with Preparatory Schools is preparing to publish again President Hyde’s article, “Salient Questions Which the Student and the College Should Ask Each Other.” It is in the form of a catechism. It appeared in the New York Times last summer and attracted much attention. It contains a set of questions which are designed to be helpful to a student in choosing a college.

Professor Henry Johnson read a paper on Dante before the Faculty Club of the University of Maine, last Saturday.

An unusual number of inquiries and requests for catalogues have been received at the college office recently. They are from all parts of the country, notably California, New Mexico, and other distant localities.

College Notes

The Deutscher Verein picture was taken Wednesday noon.

Several of the student body attended the Chapman concert in Bath, a week ago Tuesday.

Professor Cram and Professor Whittier were both on the stand as expert witnesses for the State in the recent Keefe murder trial in Bath.
Among recent visitors on the campus were Heath, ’09, and Johnson, ’09.

Warren Eddy, ’14, is critically ill at his home in Portland with pleurisy of the heart.

There was an unusually large number of visitors at Sunday chapel to hear the college preacher.

H. H. Hall, ’13, is back in town again. He has been confined at home on account of diphtheria.

Atwood, ’10, was on the campus, Friday. He is engaged in the shirt-manufacturing business in Portland.

Nickerson, ex-’12, has been elected Manager of the Tennis team of Stetson University, De Land, Florida.

Farrar, ’14, has been teaching Latin at Morse High School for a week during the sickness of the regular instructor.

Cowan, ’13, has returned to college after his long illness with diphtheria. He was taken sick before the Thanksgiving vacation.

Entrance examinations in Algebra and Plane Geometry will be given on Saturday, Jan. 20, at 1:30 P.M. in the Math. Room.

Weymouth, ’14, has left college on account of illness. He has been ordered by the doctors to seek rest for a year, but expects to enter the Medical School next year.

Cuts of the new gymnasium, together with extended accounts of the building, have appeared in recent issues of the Boston Globe, Portland Express, and the Boston Transcript.

The third meeting of the Classical Club was held in the classical room in Memorial Hall, Thursday evening at 8 o’clock. After the meeting the club adjourned to Professor Woodruff's.

The Freshman Religious Committee of the Y. M. C. A. is to “make the rounds” of the campus monthly, collecting old magazines to be sent to lumber camps for the benefit of the woodsmen.

The teachers convention, in which some of the faculty are interested, will be held in Portland, instead of Brunswick as originally planned. The small-pox epidemic made the change advisable.

Charles Reynolds Brown, D.D., the college preacher, held an informal reception at the Theta Delta Chi House, Sunday evening, at 7:30, when he gave a short talk on “Choosing a Life-Work.”

Lincoln Academy plays Morse High School at basketball to-night at Bath, at Y. M. C. A. building at 7:30. All the Lincoln Academy and Morse High School men will go down, besides many other fellows.

Leo Pratt had a narrow escape from an accident when his sleigh tipped over on the car track near the Church on the Hill Sunday evening. The sleigh spun around a couple of times and Pratt crawled out uninjured.

Prof. Davis’ course in argumentation and debating has more students enrolled this semester than are enrolled in a similar course in any New England college or university, and is probably larger than any class in argumentation and debating east of the Mississippi River. The number of students in the course is thirty-two.

The Maine Peace Society has transmitted petitions to Senators Johnson and Gardner, requesting the ratification of the arbitration treaties. One of these petitions bears the signatures of President Hyde and more than sixty undergraduates at Bowdoin.

A Roman copper coin, As, of the date 325 B.C., has been presented to the Art Collection by Prof. George D. Chase, Ph.D., of the University of Maine. This is one of the Romans’ earliest attempts at coinage. In 1909 Prof. Chase gave an exchange course in the Art Building on Roman coins.

According to the papers of the State, Prof. Henry L. Chapman is a possible candidate for the governorship of Maine. At a recent meeting of leading Republicans, his name was suggested and met the enthusiastic approval of all those who were present. Prof. Chapman has made no statement of his position.

The Bowdoin College Alumni Association of New York City and vicinity will hold the fortysecond annual meeting and banquet at the Hotel Martinique in New York City, on Friday evening, Jan. 26, 1912, at 6:30 o’clock. Among those present will be General Thomas H. Hubbard, ’57, and Admiral Peary, ’77.

The Bowdoin Alumni Association of Washington, D. C., numbering about forty, will enjoy a banquet at the Willard or Raleigh the last of this month. Three distinguished Maine men who have served as president of the Association, Chief Justice Fuller, Senator Frye, and Speaker Reed, have passed away. There is a very creditable showing of Bowdoin men in Washington, although but two of the Maine members are graduates of Bowdoin.

Professor Wilmot B. Mitchell attended the Conference of New England Colleges on Entrance Requirements in English, held at Simmons College in Boston on the morning of Jan. 13. The Conference considered changes in the entrance requirements for 1916-18. The following colleges were represented: Wesleyan, Williams, Amherst, Yale, Trinity, Brown, Simmons, Harvard, University of Maine, Dartmouth, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and Bowdoin.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, who spoke in Memorial Hall last evening, is the daughter of Mrs. Ema line Pankhurst, the noted militant suffragette, and Dr. Pankhurst, a leading English barrister. She gave up her study of Art to take up the work of the Women’s Social and Political Union, when it was interrupted by the arrest of her mother and sister, Christobel. Her zeal and fearlessness in this work led to her own arrest and imprisonment. Miss Pankhurst is only twenty years old and speaks with a directness and simplicity which captivates her hearers. She is the author of “The Suffragette: A History of the Miltant Equal Suffrage Movement.” A delegation from the Equal Suffrage Club of Portland, heard her speak last evening.

'64.—Joseph N. Whitney, former chief clerk of the bureau of statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, died Jan. 9 at his home, 1415 Chapin Street. He was stricken by paralysis November 24 last, and was confined to his home since then.

Funeral services were held Jan. 12 in Rock Creek chapel. Delegations from the Loyal Legions and G. A. R. attended the funeral, and the honorary pall-bearers were chosen from Mr. Whitney's associates in these organizations.

Mr. Whitney lived in Washington ever since the close of the Civil War. He was born at Raymond, Me., in 1836, and was graduated from college just before the outbreak of the war. He was among the first to enlist, and served for three years as a private, sergeant, and first lieutenant in the 7th Rhode Island Cavalry. He was taken a prisoner of war and for nineteen months was confined in Libby and other Confederate prisons. He was released from Wilmington, N. C., after Lee surrendered.

At the close of the war, he received an appointment in the office of the Treasury Department, where he served until the bureau of statistics was organized, in 1867. Then it was that he was transferred to that bureau. He was promoted to be chief clerk in 1878, a position he held for many years, until he resigned in March, 1910, on account of failing health.

In 1867, Mr. Whitney graduated from the Columbia Law College and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia. He was a member of Burnside Post, No. 8, Department of the Potomac, G. A. R.; of the Loyal Legion, and of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

'07.—Rev. Frederick K. Ellsworth has accepted a call to the Congregational Church at Sangerties, N. Y., and is now working in that parish.

'07.—Joseph Blake Drummond of Portland and Miss Katherine Murray Randall of Augusta were married in Augusta, Dec. 14, 1911, by the Rev. Clayton P. Boothby. Mr. Drummond was graduated from Bowdoin in the Class of 1907, and from the Medical School of Maine in the Class of 1910.

'08.—Frank P. Wight has again returned to the Holly Inn, Pinehurst, N. C., for the winter after a most successful summer season at The Inn, Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, Michigan.

Ex-'10.—Daniel J. Ready is a lieutenant in the constabulary service in the Philippines.

'10.—Charles A. Smith is pursuing courses in mining engineering in Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

'11.—D. Scribner Hyler, who was with Mr. Wight at Charlevoix-the-Beautiful last summer goes with him to Pinehurst this winter.

INTERSCHOLASTIC BASEBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

At the meeting of the Bowdoin Interscholastic Baseball League a schedule of games for the season of 1912 was arranged. Francis X. Callahan, '14, of Portland, assistant manager of the baseball team and president of the league, presided. The following schools were represented: Deering High, Morse High of Bath, Lewiston High, Edward Little High of Auburn, and Cony High of Augusta.

There was some discussion on the details of the management of the league and it was decided that if the managers of two teams scheduled to play fail to select an umpire five days before the game, the president of the league shall have the power to appoint an umpire. It was decided that the number of players to be taken on the league trips should be limited to twelve.

At the meeting Edward O. Leigh, '12, of Seattle, Wash., manager of the 1911 Bowdoin baseball team, in behalf of the Bowdoin Athletic Association, presented to the representative of Lewiston High School the league pennant for 1909 and 1910, which the association offered for the two years mentioned.

Intercollegiate Notes

A New Haven minister predicted to Yale students that in ten years betting will overthrow football as a national sport.

In a straw ballot recently conducted at Oberlin, Woodrow Wilson won a complete victory for the Presidency. La Follette was second and Taft third.

COACH BERGIN TO RETURN

The students will be glad to know that Coach Bergin has signed a contract with Manager Lawrence Smith, '13, to coach the football team next year. Coach Bergin has coached two years at Bowdoin with great success. He is very popular among the fellows and is one of the best coaches in New England. He was quarterback of Princeton's 1910 team. Ted Coy said of Bergin, "He is the fastest man that ever handled a signal." Bergin is attending a law school in New York this winter.

MONDAY NIGHT CLUB

The first meeting of the Monday Night Club was held at the Theta Delta Chi house, Monday evening at 7 o'clock. Captain Wood presided. The following men were elected to membership: Frederick Benjamin Simpson, '12, of Bangor; Laurence Alden Crosby, '13, of Bangor; Paul Howard Douglas, '13, of Newport; Stanley Fuller Dole, '13, of Portland; Herbert Alton Lewis, '15, of North Haven, and Harry Peter Faulkner, '15, of Boston, Mass. Douglas was elected secretary. After the business session light refreshments were served.

REPUBLICAN CLUB MASS-MEETING

Friday evening, Jan. 9, a mass-meeting was held in Memorial Hall for the formation of a Republican Club and the election of officers. W. R. Spinney, chairman pro tem., read sections of the constitution concerning the purpose of the club, election of officers and membership requirements.

W. R. Spinney, '13, was elected president, F. B. Simpson, '12, vice-president, Laurence Crosby, '13, secretary and treasurer, and Professors Files and Moody, faculty members. After the election Prof. Files gave an informal talk on the Republican party. He began by saying that he always had been a Republican and would be as long as the party kept to the right principles and put up the right man. There is a great opportunity for college men in politics now. Politics need the academic freedom which college men possess. In American politics there is a great deal of corruption and manipulation which deters honest men from entering. This Prof. Files illustrated from his own experience while running for the legislature. The country needs interest from college men and this club helps to fill this need.

The Republican party, although rather low at present, has some very good men. La Follette, who may soon speak here, is a promising candidate, while Taft or even Roosevelt have a good chance, provided that the party incorporates in its platform the insurgent principles.

After Prof. Files' talk, those present were given an opportunity of enrolling as members of the club.
STUDENT COUNCIL MEETING

Monday evening the Student Council held a meeting and a plan was submitted for putting the Orient and Quill under one financial management, but this plan was not considered advisable because it placed too much power in the hands of the Managers and the Student Council. The final arrangements were made for the Smoker this evening.

GOOD GOVERNMENT CLUB TO REORGANIZE

Professor Lunt in the course in government announced last Monday that the Good Government Club would be reorganized next Saturday evening. The club will be open to all members of the course. He also added that the idea was not an honor club, but one which would investigate the political conditions of the country and the state.

LECTURE BY MISS PANKHURST

A large number of students and townspeople availed themselves of the unusual opportunity of hearing Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, the "militant suffragette," speak in Memorial Hall Thursday evening, January 18. A large number was present from surrounding communities, chief among which was a delegation from the Portland Equal Suffrage Club. This was the last lecture which Miss Pankhurst delivered in New England.

President Hyde made a short introductory speech in which he referred to Miss Pankhurst as possessing the qualities of perseverance, self-sacrifice, and devotion to the cause of woman suffrage.

In beginning Miss Pankhurst gave first the reasons why woman suffrage in England is necessary to-day. "A married woman has no legal existence in England," she said. She asserted that a married woman, under the present laws was not entitled to any of her earnings, and that she could not hold property.

She spoke at length concerning the economic conditions in England to-day. The average wage of working men in England to-day is 25s. a week, whereas that of women is but 7s. When the suffrage movement was first started, the working men opposed it, for they reasoned that if women got more wages, men would receive less. Miss Pankhurst asserted that they were beginning to perceive that they were in the wrong. She also attacked the insurance laws, declaring that they discriminated unfairly between men and women.

In the final part of her speech, Miss Pankhurst gave the history of the suffrage movement from its inception in 1870 until the present day. She told of the difficulties they have experienced in presenting the bill to Parliament, and cited instances of shocking ill-treatment by the authorities.

She was very optimistic, however, and said that she felt no doubt of ultimate success. She said that the movement had already reached Australia, and would soon reach America, although the time is not yet ripe.

In closing, she said: "Its benefits will be gradual, yet sure. It's bound to come. To attempt to hold it back is like holding the waves of the ocean."

CLASSICAL CLUB

A meeting of the Classical Club was held in the Classical Room of Memorial Hall Tuesday evening. Prof. Nixon gave an illustrated lecture on "Pompeii, Past and Present." The club then adjourned to Professor Woodruff's house and a business meeting was held. A committee consisting of Professor Sills, Buell, '14, Maloney, '12, was elected to consider giving a Latin play in translation. A social evening followed. The next meeting will be Feb. 15.

FROM THE MUSIC COMMITTEE

Brunswick, Me., Jan. 22, 1912.

To the Editor of the Bowdoin Orient:

Dear Sir: "Senior's" communication in your last issue on the "rotten" college quartette, may relieve a mind "for four years" tortured, but as criticism it is of less value, because it is without discrimination. Bowdoin in music has not the resources of a big university, and it is as idle to expect our college choir to reach a high standard as to demand a Bowdoin football team that will win a November game from Harvard. The good results obtained in athletics—and the results are good in spite of occasional severe strictures from undergraduates—are largely due to expert coaching, a means of improvement that has never been provided for the college choir.
Although we depend on student leaders, and the voices available are comparatively untrained, the average results for six times "four years" have, in my judgment, been as good as under such conditions we could reasonably expect. Not that any one with a sensitive ear ought to be satisfied and forbear criticism. The music committee are not satisfied, and I feel sure that our choir leaders are sometimes disappointed and even chagrined, for voices are not always in prime condition, untrained singers are uncertain, and students here, as in athletics, in Y. M. C. A. work, and in the class rooms, make preparation which cannot always be described as adequate.

But there have been many Sundays even in the last "four years" when the Chapel music has been creditable, and no apologies to friends have been necessary. What the college needs is a music department, with a thoroughly trained musician at its head, who, besides offering courses in music, will superintend and coach the musical clubs and the Chapel choir; and if "Senior's" onslaught helps to bring that need home, and hastens by ever so little the day of expert guidance for Bowdoin's musical interests, it ought, in spite of its undiscriminating severity, to be welcomed.

With the hope that the improvement we all desire may soon be made possible, I am

Respectfully yours,
FRANK E. WOODRUFF.

MASSACHUSETTS MEN IN COLLEGE

At the first meeting of the Massachusetts Club which was held recently, Dean Sills presented a table of statistics showing the number of students from Massachusetts, and their proportion to the whole student body in each year since 1900, and each decade since 1880. The table shows that the smallest number of Massachusetts men in college in any one year has been ten, and the smallest percentage of the student body has been four. On the other hand, both the absolute and relative number of students from Massachusetts has shown a decided increase since 1905, the number having reached 53 in 1900-1910, and the men numbering 15 per cent. of the entire student body from 1900 to 1911. This year there are only 40 men in college registering from Massachusetts, but this is explained in part by the fact that several men who originally came from Massachusetts have changed their residence to Maine.

The table, showing the total number in college, the number from Massachusetts and the percentage is as follows:

ZETA PSI CONVENTION

The sixty-fifth annual convention of the Grand Chapter of the Zeta Psi Fraternity was held at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, New Jersey, on January 4th, 5th, and 6th. The convention proper was preceded by an informal meeting of delegates at the Chapter House at Columbia University on the 4th. The convention was held under the auspices of the Chapter at Rutgers College and there were delegates present from all the chapters of the Fraternity, besides a great number of other active members and elders. The Lambda Chapter of Bowdoin was represented by Merton W. Greene, 1913.

MEETING OF THE DEBATING COUNCIL

An important meeting of the Bowdoin Debating Council was held Jan. 16, when the question was announced which will be debated in the Triangular League, of which Wesleyan, New York University, and Bowdoin, are members. This question is: Resolved, That the United States should adopt a uniform, compulsory workingmen's compensation act applicable to industrial employments. Such an act
1. Should extend to railroads and other public service corporations.
2. Should be adopted by both federal and other governments for such employments as may be within their respective jurisdictions.
3. Should make the employer absolutely liable for injury or death to the employee unless he establish the employer's contributory negligence.

JOURNAL PRINTSHOP, LEWISTON

Vol. XLI. JANUARY 26, 1912 No. 24

There appeared in last week's Orient an undergraduate communication entering rather a strenuous complaint against the Chapel quartette. If it was couched in a too emphatic style that is a matter which concerns the author alone. As a student publication receiving undergraduate expressions of opinion this paper assumes no authority to bar any letter written to it except for indecent language and the expression of dangerous and unreasonable ideas. The communication above referred to was wholly within the law but the Orient regrets to have discovered that it was seized upon and made the subject of undesirable newspaper publicity for the college.

There appeared in a recent issue of a nearby evening paper a two-column story "scare headed," "Inhuman Maltreatment of Beautiful Hymns—Bowdoin College Quartet Scored as 'Rotten' by Senior Critic." Had this story been taken direct from the Orient by the paper in question we could have no complaint. But it was not. The report was dated from Brunswick, marked "special" and gave a wealth of details including names of students and members of the faculty which betrays familiarity of the writer with the subject. But most painful reflection of all is, that since Bowdoin news is written by Bowdoin men only and goes through the channels of the Bowdoin Press Club, an organization so honored by the college that membership in it is recorded as an attainment to personal distinction, the article in question must have been written by a Bowdoin man.

The Orient feels that college "stories" of a highly colored nature, with no real news value have no place in the public press and that the publication of the story in question was an unfortunate occurrence, a repetition of which should be regarded with stern disfavor by Bowdoin men. If Bowdoin is dissatisfied with her quartette or with any other college affair that is a matter for discussion upon the campus and has no place in the supplements of a newspaper where it can serve only as a morbid incentive to the unappreciated ridicule of its readers.

Good Government One need not be a very close follower of campus activities at Bowdoin to observe that a progressive spirit is abroad and is causing the re-organization and modernization of many of our student activities. Latest among the organizations to fall in line with the new movement is the Good Government Club.

For the past few years this club has been a close corporation of a dozen seniors with high ranks in Government. Its activities have been confined to the holding of meetings for discussion and the occasional address by some outside speaker. Further than that it has caused no ripples on the placid stream of college life.

But comes now into the midst of those who are organizing the club this year, some progressive spirits imbued with the idea of making the Good Government Club more than a "Bugle honor," and means of spending a profitable evening now and then. "Away with the scholarship requirements for admission," they say. "Let anyone be admitted to membership who is really interested in the problems of City and State, and is willing to prove his interest by practical investigating and research work, whether he be Senior or Freshman. Eliminate the honor society idea and make it a real vital organization for the practical study of political science at first hand."

These progressive spirits have met with favor in their new ideas. The Club is to be re-organized in the way they have outlined and there is even talk of uniting with the Intercollegiate Civic Association, composed of similar organizations in other colleges which do practical work and hold meetings yearly in New York and Washington.

The ORIENT congratulates the Club on the occasion of its "renaissance" and wishes it all success in its venture into new fields of activity.

Meeting of the Debating Council

4. Should contain reasonable rates of compensation which might vary in different locations.

A committee composed of President Rodick of the Debating Council and Merton W. Greene, '13, was chosen to confer with Prof. Davis, in order to plan the system of trials for the Bradburv Prize Debate, which will decide the speakers on the teams against other colleges, and which will be held February 15.

Each college will have a team for the negative and one for the affirmative. Debates will be held simultaneously at New York, Middletown, and Brunswick.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

A box of clothing has been sent to Rev. H. Roswell Bates of New York, for the use of his East Side Mission.

Dr. Estes Nichols of Hebron, will speak on Christianity and Public Health on Feb. 15.

Don't forget that the dates of the Maine Student Conference at Orono are Feb. 16, 17, and 18, and plan to go.

About $250 has now been pledged for the support of Hiwale. This is not up to the record of past years and it is hoped that those who have not already contributed will do so soon and help this loyal Bowdoin man in his good work in India.

Mission Study for 1912

We are in the midst of a vast forward movement of civilization world-wide in its scope. The East is awakening from its long period of seclusion and ignorance. China is in the throes of a political revolution which will bring liberty and enlightenment to her people; Turkey has secured a constitutional government; education is spreading in India and with it a national spirit with which England will soon have to reckon; Japan less than fifty years ago was a semi-barbaric nation, to-day she is one of the leading powers of the globe.

The college man cannot be blind to this movement, the forces behind it, and its influence on the western world. For these reasons he cannot afford to ignore the study of the work of Christian Missionaries in these lands. They have been and are one of the great determining forces in the development. The natives themselves recognize this fact. Viceroy Tuan Pong of China, Special Commissioner to the U. S., says, "The awakening of China which is now at hand, can be traced in no small measure to the hands of the missionaries."

Mr. Ito, Premier of Japan: "Japan's progress and development are largely due to the influence of missionaries." This reason alone is enough to demand consideration from every broad-minded man. But another important question forces itself on those whose interest is not narrowed by the limits of their own country but is world wide. Is this civilization to develop without those moral qualities which underlie our civilization and which alone can make it lasting? This question, too, the missionaries are answering.

In our own country also modern civilization is producing great changes in our political, social, and industrial life. One of the greatest is the movement toward the city. In 1850 only 6 per cent. of the population of the United States were living in cities of over 100,000 population. In 1900 18 per cent. were living in such cities. The new and complex problems involved press urgently for solution on the present generation.

An opportunity to learn something about these world-wide problems and the efforts to meet them will be given by the Y. M. C. A. in a course of five lessons, beginning the first of next semester.

Three courses will be given:

1. India Awakening by Sherwood Eddy. A study of conditions in a typical eastern country showing what Christian missions are doing for that land. Normal class leader, Prof. Mitchell.

2. The Apologetics of Foreign Missions by J. Lovell Murray. Designed especially for men who are opposed to missions. A study of the reasons for and against. Normal Class leader, Mr. Fifield.

These courses will be worth while. Enroll in some group.

College Notes

Don't Forget the Smoker in Memorial Hall, Tonight. Everyone be sure and bring Steins.

Two original drawings have been loaned to the Art Collection by the artist, Miss Mary N. Richardson. One is a striking drawing of an old man who is seated. The other is a charming drawing of a young girl. They are hanging in the Boyd Gallery.

A book of poems, entitled Poems of Action, has very recently been published which was compiled by David R. Porter, M.A. (Oxon), a Rhodes Scholarship man from the Class of 1906 and secretary for High and Preparatory Schools of the Boys' Work department of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. The compiler states in his preface, "My first purpose in making this collection has been to bring together in a convenient volume from all poets using the English language the verse which mature boys enjoy reading."

It is a book of poems most carefully chosen and having a large variety of poems and authors, there being about ninety different authors represented,—among whom are those who are best known to the average person today.

Philip Towle, '14, left college last week.
Bisbee, '03, was on the campus, Saturday.
Herbert Davis, ex-'12, was on the campus last week.
Warren Eddy, '12, who has been seriously ill at his home, is better.
Allan Woodcock, '12, was at his home last week on account of illness.
The first concert of the musical clubs will be given at Bath, Monday evening, Feb. 12.

"Lee" Means of the baseball team, was in Boston, recently, to see about securing a coach.

The iris picture was taken at Webber's Thursday noon.
G. Tannan Little, ex-'12, has been at home for a few days.
The Delta Kappa Epsilon House Party and dance comes Feb 16.
"Bill" Sparks, '09, is athletic director at Hobart College, New York.
Pictures of the Student Council were taken at Webber's, Thursday noon.
The picture of the Classical Club was taken, Wednesday, at one o'clock.
Several students have been skiing during the last week at Standpipe Hill.
An unusually large number of Bowdoin students spent the week end in Portland.
The Chemical Club had its picture taken at Webber's studio, Monday afternoon.
The picture of the Classical Club was taken at Webber's studio last Wednesday.
Bowdoin students are now daily enjoying the skating on the Androscoggin River.
Earl Tuttle, '13, and Neal Tuttle, '14, are both ill at their home in Cumberland Mills.
Several of the fellows attended "Hervey of Graustark" in Portland, last Saturday.
Several Bowdoin students were present at the leap year dance given at Bath last week.
Several college men attended the play "Lucia's Lover," given by the Misses' Club last club.
The Bowdoin College Glee Club will start on its annual trip through New England on Feb. 26.
Winthrop S. Greene, '13, passed the week end in Bridgton with his uncle, who is a Bowdoin graduate.
There will be a meeting of Exeter and Andover men in the Deutscher Verein room, Monday evening.
A small boy appeared in the dormitories the other evening trying to sell chances on a live raccoon.
Several Bowdoin students were seen at Keith's Theatre and the Jefferson Theatre in Portland, Saturday.
"Bill" Merrill, janitor of Appleton Hall, has been away from his work for a few days on account of illness.
Next semester Professor Ham will include in his German 2 course a series of 10 lectures on German subjects.
The first lecture in the Annie Talbot Cole series will be given by Dr. Bliss Perry on Feb. 19, in Memorial Hall.
Rabbi Fleischer, who was the college preacher at Bowdoin one Sunday last fall, has founded a church in Boston.
A large number of students attended the performance of "Lucia" at Keith's Theatre, Portland, Thursday evening.
Douglas Urquhart, ex-'14, is reported by one of the Boston papers as having "an understanding" with the Boston Rex Sox. During the past summer he has pitched for the Woodstock team of the Maine league, with which he made a fine record.
Appleton Hall is the only dormitory which has not yet been equipped with the new chandeliers. Why this partiality?

Prof. Chapman has announced that he has no intention of running for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Dean Porter of Clark College and Prof. Gould, of the Department of History at Bates, were visitors here last week.

Walter Brown, '14, was referee at the basketball game between Portland High School and Bath High School played at Portland last Saturday.

The College Smoker which was to have taken place January 19, has been postponed till to-night, because time is needed to procure the souvenirs.

Stewart Morrill, '15, came near being seriously hurt in the gymnasium, Monday. While running he fell against the wall, and had to be revived.

Among those who have been confined to their rooms as a result of vaccination are: MacCormick, '12; Craig, '13; Shea, '14.

Rev. Charles R. Brown gave a talk before about thirty students at the Theta Delta Chi House last Sunday evening. His subject was "Choosing a Life Work."

Professor Sills has begun his series of lectures on Roman art and statuary which he is giving in the Art building for the benefit of his students in Latin 1.

An interesting list was posted on the bulletin board, Tuesday. It contained the names of men now in college, who are grandsons, sons, or brothers of graduates of Bowdoin.

Frank Smith, '12, and Bob Weatherill, '14, skated to Gardiner Saturday. They started at about 3.30 in the afternoon and arrived at Gardiner at about 6 o'clock after quite an exciting trip.

The charge for rent on the semester bills of Feb. 10, 1912, will be made to those students whose names appear on the Room Contract Book, Jan. 31. Later changes will not affect the February bill.

Last Saturday, the faculty again announced the advisability for the students to be vaccinated. There are at present about fourteen cases of small pox in Brunswick. Although these are all at the lower end of the town, it will still be best to take precaution against such a serious disease.

In Prof. Davis' talk on "The Short Story" before the Women's Literary Union of Portland on last Saturday, he devoted the greater portion of the time in reading short stories. He read from "The Retreat" by Elzie Langmaister, "The Burglar," by Kenneth Graham in his book "The Golden Age," and his last selection was from "The Man on the Hilltop," by Irving Bacheller.

Philip Porritt, "Urish" Hall, and Charlie Haskell, had an exciting experience last Sunday afternoon. They started to skate down river to Bath, but made a wrong turn in Merymeeting Bay and got on the Kennebec. After skating until after dark, over ice that was thin and full of holes, they went ashore. They walked from there to Bowdoinham, a distance of about 5 miles, and arrived in Brunswick on the midnight train.

Intercollegiate Notes

The Board of Control of the University of Washington, has prohibited the distribution of campaign literature by candidates for student offices. Between $600 and $700 was spent for that purpose at last year's election.

The University of Washington has been presented with a set of chimes valued at $10,000, Alden J. Blethen, an honorary graduate of Bowdoin, and editor of the "Seattle Times," is the donor.

Carlisle has a remarkable all-round athlete in James Thorpe, of Oklahoma. He is a fine basketball player, a baseball pitcher of talent, and covers any of the bases or outfields with as much credit as a professional. He can put the sixteen-pound shot forty-three feet, broad jump 22 feet 10 inches, run 100 yards in 10 seconds, and clear six feet in the high jump. The high hurdles are easy for him in 15 4-5 seconds, while the 220-yard hurdles he negotiates in 26 seconds. He also excels at cross-country, plays lacrosse, tennis, indoor baseball, handball, and hockey with equal skill, and can fill almost any position on a football team. At halfback he is probably seen at his best. In one track meet last Spring he won five places and one second.

At Colby, the Faculty have recently voted to apply for membership in the New England Certificate Board, and after 1912 to receive no student to regular Freshman standing except by examination, or on certificate of schools approved by the Board. This rank, of course, does not apply to prospective students from outside New England. This new plan will bring Colby into conformity with the great majority of New England colleges in reference to admission requirements.

Through the efforts of the present membership campaign, the Michigan Y. M. C. A. now has 1,200 members enrolled.

Although J. P. Morgan has given $1,185,000 to Harvard, he was refused two tickets to the Harvard-Yale game because he said in his letter that he probably would not use the tickets personally, and as every applicant is required to promise that he will use one ticket personally, his money was sent back.

On November 18, the girls of Smith and Vassar played a game of football at Northampton, Mass. This is the first game of its kind in this country.

At a recent meeting of the Senior class of the University of Chicago, it was announced that the moustaches of the Senior men should be shaved off at once, and that any one who is caught with that "hirsute adornment" should be cast into the swimming tank.

All liquor advertisements have been ruled out of Cornell College papers by President Scharman. This is one of the results of agitation stirred up by the recent charges of a Western millionaire as to drinking among college students.

'44.—Major John Wallingford Goodwin, for many years a successful civil engineer and one of the most prominent residents of Lynchburg, Virginia, died at his home on December 1st. Major Goodwin was born at South Benwick, Maine, on April 17th, 1825.

After his graduation from college, Major Goodwin was first employed on the Green Mountain survey. He then went South and made the preliminary surveys of what is now the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. After completing these surveys, he continued with the road until the Civil War. At the outbreak of the hostilities, he was a member of the Mobile Rifles, a local company, which was afterward made a part of the Twenty-third Alabama regiment.

Having known him in Mobile, Mr. Campbell, secretary of war, C. S. A., had him transferred to Norfolk to construct fortifications there. Early in 1863, he was appointed engineer on the staff of General Bragg, and took active part in the battles of Corinth and Chattanooga.

On June 17th, 1863, he was united in marriage to Miss Georgie Smith, daughter of Sidney Smith, of Mobile, president of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. In the fall of 1863, he was transferred to Virginia and made military superintendent of the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad, and after the war was made general superintendent of the same under Col. Robert L. Owens, and continued with the road until 1872, when he moved to Texas. Later he returned to Tennessee to accept the position of division superintendent of the East Tennessee and Virginia and Georgia Railroad.

In 1887 he rejoined the Norfolk and Western and continued with it until the Durham road was begun, when he was elected chief engineer of that road. After its absorption by the Norfolk and Western, he resumed work with that road and continued with it actively until August, 1903, when an accident he met with, caused his retirement from outdoor work, but his official connection with the road continued until his death.

Major Goodwin was a man of brain and executive ability; a friend who never failed; courteous and polite in the social walks of life and in his home; a gentle and tender father. He is survived by four children.

'00.—Clarence C. Robinson is now actively engaged as a specialist in the Men and Religion Forward Movement Campaign in Boston. Mr. Robinson is carrying into his work the same zeal and energy he displayed while in college as an athlete and as a student.

Following his graduation from college, Mr. Robinson was boys' department secretary of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Philadelphia, Trenton, and Salem, N. J. In these places, he was successful in his work, and so quite naturally, was chosen boys' work leader by the officers of the Maine state Y. M. C. A. He served two years, from 1907 to 1909, and in the latter year was chosen for his present position with the international committee. Mr. Robinson is enjoying marked success in his work among boys and well deserves the rapid promotion he is receiving.

'00.—Albro L. Burnell of Portland, who for a number of years has been consul for the United States at Barranquilla, Republic of Colombia, has been appointed vice-consul of the United States at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. This appointment carries with it far more responsibility and importance than the one formerly held by him.

'03.—Walter A. Powers was appointed, on Jan. 18, fourth assistant attorney general of Massachusetts, following the resignation of Assistant Attorney General F. P. Field.

Smoking has been tabooed from the campus of Columbia.

The University of Paris is the largest college in the world, having a total enrollment of 17,512 students.

Out of seventy-five presidents of the great railroads of this country, more than forty per cent are college graduates.

The list of fatalities and injuries in college football games this year is considerably less than in previous years. Of the 13 persons killed, only two were college men. This year, 13 were killed and 47 severely injured. Michigan has suffered the heaviest among the colleges in injuries, with three broken legs and 10 or more minor injuries.

"BLANKET-TAX" ADOPTED

The 1912 Student Council made their debut as purveyors of joy and good-fellowship on the occasion of the first College Smoker, Jan. 26. Neat souvenirs in the form of Bowdoin paper cutters were presented on entering the Hall and before the evening was over they were needed to pierce the atmosphere caused by the free "smokes."

The first part of the evening was spent in the consideration of the "blanket tax" schemes. After a general discussion in which the two plans were outlined in some detail and their merits and defects emphasized, a vote was taken. To the surprise of even its most sanguine supporters, plan A was adopted by a unanimous vote of the student body. This means that the students authorized the Student Council to proceed to arrange for the adoption of an assessment of fifteen dollars, to replace the present subscriptions for football, baseball, track, tennis, fencing, debating, Orient, Quill, Y. M. C. A., and Band. The arrangement for division of this sum and the collection of the same shall be in the hands of the Board of Managers composed of the managers of the various component organizations.

Those who took part in the discussion were: Spinney, '13; Cole, '12; White, '14; Bradford, '12; Harrington, '12; Douglass, '13; King, '12; Leigh, '12; Wiggin, '13; MacCormick, '12; Cowan, '13; Cummings, '13; Leigh, '14; and Newcombe, '14.

After this matter was settled a short rally was held for Track. Those who spoke were: Capt. Cole, '12; Wood, '13; Crowell, '13; MacCormick, '12; Means, '12; and Pres. Hurley, '12.

After the more serious work of the evening was concluded, the Council proceeded to moisten the parched throats of the evening's orators and others with cider. Meanwhile, those two requisites of a successful smoker, "Artie" Welch and the College Band, did their part toward the evening's entertainment. When the apples, cider, and pretzels were all consumed, when "Artie's" fund of laugh-producers was exhausted and when the Band was ausgespielt, the orchestra stole onto the stage, unnoticed in the ever-increasing blue haze and struck up the "Chicken Reel." The temptation was not to be resisted, and in a short time the hall was the scene of Terpsichorean revelry, which lasted until "Sammy" Seels had to close up for the night.

THE FIRST COLE LECTURE BY DR. BLISS PERRY

The Annie Talbot Cole Lecture given in Memorial Hall, Tuesday evening, Feb. 14, by Dr. Bliss Perry, Professor of English Literature in Harvard University, was attended by a large number from the student body. Dr. Perry has taken as his general subject, "American Traits in American Literature." The subject of his lecture on last Tuesday evening was "The American Mind;" the subject of his lecture on the evening of Feb. 20 will be "Romance and Reaction," and that of Feb. 27, "Humor and Satire."

The origin of the phrase "The American Mind" is political. The phrase indicates that from the 18th century there has been a mode of thinking and feeling which is distinctly characteristic of the inhabitants of the United States. There is no question that there are prevalent atmospheric conditions in this country which produce in settlers of English stock marked changes in physique. A change takes place similar to the change in appearance of John Bull and of Uncle Sam. Mental differentiation is no less pronounced. The American mind has been accused of ignorance, superficiality, levity, and comformity, but never of dulness; it does not lack alertness of wit or emotion. Americans back individual guesswork and pay cheerfully when they lose; they would rather speculate than know.

From the very beginning our people have been characterized by idealism. Optimism is an unfailing trait of our national mind. The American loves to win as much as the Jew and hates to lose as much as the Englishman, but, losing or winning, he carries into his business activity the mood of the idealist.
BOWDOIN WINS RELAY

The following, relative to Bowdoin's share in the B. A. A. Meet, was taken from the Boston Post: "Cosgrove, Harris, Marble, and Mansfield, who were the quartet that Tufts selected to meet Bowdoin, drew the pole, and Cole, for the Maine University, beat Cosgrove to it for possession of the first corner. He also beat him for his entire relay, turning over a lead of twenty yards to Haskell, the second Bowdoin runner. From start to finish the race was all Bowdoin. A distance nearly as great as that from Brunswick, Me., to Medford, separated them at the finish." The time made by the team was three minutes, thirteen and two-fifths seconds. The men who made the trip were Coach Morrill, Manager Cedric R. Crowell, '13; Capt. Robert D. Cole, '12; Charles B. Haskell, Jr., '13; George L. Skolfield, Jr., '13; Curtis Tuttle, '13; Edmund Wilson, '12, alternate; and Carl B. Timberlake, '12, who ran in the handicap mile. The team stopped at the Hotel Brunswick and several of the graduates were there to speak to the boys.

A NEW COURSE IN ENGLISH

In response to a petition from the students, a new course in Advanced English Composition has been established. It will be conducted by six professors, each taking charge for a period of work in one form of literature.

Each professor will hold several exercises with the class in his special subject and at the end of the work the entire group of professors will meet the class to criticize the work done by it in that subject. The class is limited to men who have already shown some ability in writing. The applicants for admission to the course were required to present something which they had written as evidence of their fitness to take the course.

From the seventeen competitors who sought for admission to the course, the following six were chosen: Charles P. Adams, '12, Auburn; Eugene F. Bradford, '12, of Bangor; Philip P. Cole, '12, of Bath; Arthur D. Welch, '12, of Portland; Edward O. Baker, '13, of North Adams, Mass., and Alfred H. Sweet, '13, Portland. Prof. Johnson will have charge of the course for the first two weeks, his subject being Translation. Then, in turn, come Prof. Mitchell—Oration; Prof. Davis—Short Story; Prof. Files—Drama; Prof. Chapman—Essay; and Prof. Sills—Verse. Probably this is the largest staff of teachers ever engaged in giving a single college course.

NEW TRACK COACH

Captain Robert D. Cole, '12, announced Monday afternoon, that he had secured William F. ("Fish") Marsh, the well-known Boston track athlete, to coach the track team this spring. Negotiations have been carried on for some time with Mr. Marsh, but it was not until last Saturday, while Captain Cole was in Boston with the relay team, that he was able to secure his signature to the contract.

Mr. Marsh has a wide reputation as a track athlete and all-around star. Among his other records is one of six feet in the high jump. He has had considerable experience in the coaching line, having spent a year as coach at Iowa State University, besides several years which he has spent training preparatory school teams. Some years ago he had charge of the Kent's Hill track team. He comes to Bowdoin highly recommended by Coach Kanaly of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology track team, and by John Ryder of the Boston Athletic Association.

According to his contract, Mr. Marsh will arrive in Brunswick on or about March 1, and will begin upon his duties at once. The first event of the track season this year will be the annual indoor meet, which will come on Mar. 22. The first work of the new coach will be to train the men for this contest. Bowdoin is facing a difficult proposition this year in track and is exceedingly fortunate in securing a man of the caliber of "Fish" Marsh to look after her track team.

RESULT OF PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST

In the '68 Prize Speaking, which was held Thursday evening, January 25, in Memorial Hall, the prize was awarded to Arthur Deehan Welch, who spoke on "The Irish Drama." Eugene Francis Bradford received honorable mention. Music was furnished by Lovell's Orchestra.
HILAND LOCKWOOD FAIRBANKS PRIZE AWARDED

At a meeting of the debating council, held last Tuesday evening, Burleigh Cushing Rodick, '12, of Freeport, was announced the winner of the Hiland Lockwood Fairbanks prize for excellence in debating. The prize was to be awarded to the member of the advanced course in debating who should be elected best speaker the greatest number of times at the several debates during the course. The winner received five such votes in the course of the year, as against three and one-half for his nearest competitor.

MUSICAL CLUBS READY

The Musical Clubs have been rounded into form and will be ready for the opening concert on February 20th, at Freeport. Prof. E. W. Wass of Augusta, who has been coaching the Glee Club, says that in his opinion both clubs are better than any of recent years. The opening song for all the concerts is Dean Sills' "Rise, Sons of Bowdoin." Prof. Burnett has recently written new music for the song and the club will use it as a feature.

The following men have been picked as the final members of the clubs:

Glee Club

George A. Tibbetts, '12, Leader

Mandolin Club

George F. Cressey, '12, Leader
First Mandolin—G. F. Cressey, '12; P. C. Savage, '13; B. D. Holt, '13; R. O. Conant, '13; E. S. Thompson, '14; H. A. Barton, '14.

Reader—A. D. Welch, '12.

Manager Ashey, '12, has arranged the following schedule, which opens at Freeport next Tuesday evening. The annual Maine trip begins on the 20th of this month and the trip to Massachusetts will begin just before the opening of the Easter vacation. The complete schedule is as follows:

Feb. 20—Freeport.
Feb. 21—Bath.
Feb. 26—Bangor.
Feb. 27—Oldtown.
Feb. 28—Fairfield.
Feb. 29—Skowhegan.
Mar. 1—Hallowell.
Mar. 5—Richmond.
Mar. 8—Lewiston (joint concert with Bates.)
Mar. 12—Portland.
Mar. 23—Brunswick.
Mar. 27—Saco.
Mar. 28—Pending.
Mar. 29—Reading.
Mar. 30—Boston.

STATE CONFERENCE AT ORONO

The Annual Conference of Colleges and Preparatory Schools in the State of Maine is held this week, Feb. 16, 17, 18, at Orono with the University of Maine.

Nearly 300 delegates are expected to attend and an excellent program has been prepared which will be printed in detail next week. Among the speakers are David R. Porter, '06, Harrison S. Elliott, of the International Committee, James L. McConaughy, and A. G. Cushman, General Secretary at Bates. The Conference opens with a banquet Friday night at Oldtown, given by the businessmen of that place. The other sessions are to be held at the University and include conferences on Bible Study, Mission Study, and Social Service and addresses by the different leaders.

Bowdoin will be represented by about 30 men.

The Right Combination

Although the college smoker is a thing of the past, it is worthy of a resurrection and passing notice. The whole affair, which was in the hands of the Student Council, brought out many interesting points in regard to the way in which undergraduate affairs are managed in Bowdoin. In the first place, the smoker showed that as an undergraduate governing body, the Council is alive to the issues of interest to the whole student body. Through organizations similar to the present Student Council the "blanket-tax" idea was conceived and partially worked out. It was the fortune of the Council now in power to be able to present the plan which seemed best suited to meet Bowdoin's present conditions.

In the second place, the spirit of co-operation which was manifested between the Student Council and the student body in bringing the matter to a decision, deserves commendation. This attitude on the part of the undergraduates expresses not only their appreciation of the Council's efforts, but also the value of such a Council as an undergraduate governing body. The unanimous adoption of the "tax" proved beyond a doubt that the plan is one which seems to bring a solution of the poor financial system controlling collegiate organizations which exists at the present time. We do not mean to say that the mere adoption of the "blanket-tax" will materially improve conditions. It does, however, give a basis for the Student Council to work on and with the support of the student body a clear and concise plan should be put into operation next fall.

For a combination of business and pleasure, in both of which the real Bowdoin spirit was evident, the first smoker of the year was a grand success. The Council deserves congratulations for its efforts in making the celebration a memorable one, and the student body deserves praise for the spirit of appreciation and co-operation which it displayed in its unanimous action.

A Good Start

Congratulations, to the coach, captain and members of the relay team! Not only did the team easily defeat its opponent and gain a victory for the White, but it showed its worth by making excellent time in the race. With such a beginning the track situation should take on a brighter aspect. This team furnishes a nucleus for a whole track team to be built around. As was brought out in the discussion which took place at the smoker, it is essential that we begin at once to make a team. In less than two weeks the new coach will be here to take full charge of all track men. But it is not necessary to wait that long before trying out for the work. Every day of practice which can be spent now will count for much more when the time for actual trial comes. Now is the right time to report for preliminary training and Bowdoin should have a large squad out working for her track team. With a number of men backing up the work done by the relay team, Bowdoin will get a good start in the spring fight coming to Whittier Field.
SUNDAY CHAPEL

In the last Sunday chapel exercise of last semester, President Hyde spoke of his recent visits to the Bowdoin Alumni Associations in various cities. He said that these associations had been growing rapidly in late years and that they were holding regular meetings, sometimes as often as once a week. President Hyde spoke of the interest which these associations are taking in college affairs, and the pleasure it gave him to be able to tell them what an earnest, hard-working, interested lot of young men there is in college at the present time.

NATURE LECTURE IN MEMORIAL HALL

Professor Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University has secured distinction in two lines of work,—as a writer of nature essays with a charm of style, marked humor, and philosophic turn, and as a teacher of English Composition who is able not only to criticize uncompromisingly the work, but also to inspire the enthusiasm of his students. In his advanced course in English he has already had contributions from his pupils accepted by the Atlantic Monthly. He was himself "launched" by the Atlantic under the editorship of Bliss Perry and has become one of its popular contributors. His published volumes are Wild Life Near Home, "Roof and Meadow," "The Lay of the Land," and "The Face of the Field." From the latter he will read selected parts of essays before the Saturday Club, in co-operation with the college to-night, Feb. 16, in Memorial Hall. The reading is free to students. As a naturalist, John Burroughs has placed Mr. Sharp at the head of the many recent nature writers, and as a master of the essay form he has an especial appeal to lovers of literary charm. Three essays which appeared originally in the Atlantic and attracted much attention, are "The Scarcity of Skunks," "Turtle Eggs for Agassiz" and "The Dustless Duster." He has been compared with Thoreau, with Hazlitt, even with Charles Lamb because of that remarkable power of drawing the reader into sympathy with his mood of rambling or reflective discourse.

Mr. Sharp is a graduate of Brown and a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

ALUMNI MEET IN NEW YORK AND BOSTON

The Bowdoin College Alumni Association of New York City and vicinity held its forty-second annual meeting and banquet at the Hotel Martinique, New York City, Friday evening, Jan. 20th. W. C. Metfryman, '82, was elected President of the Association; Joseph B. Roberts, '95, Secretary, and Harrison Atwood, '09, Treasurer, for the coming year. Among the speakers were President William DeWitt Hyde and Prof. James L. McConaughy. Most of the speakers congratulated the Class of '57 for their achievements and for their coming fifty-fifth anniversary. There are eleven survivors of this class. A poem, "Vivat Bowdoin," written especially for this dinner by Isaac Bassett Choate, '02, was read.

—(O)—

One hundred and seventy-five loyal graduates of Bowdoin gathered at the American House on Tuesday evening, Feb. 6, for the 44th annual reunion of the Boston Alumni Association. Representatives of classes ranging from 1838 to 1912 were present. D. O. S. Lowell, the retiring president of the association, was toastmaster, and Jotham B. Sewall, '48, the oldest living graduate present, was the first speaker. The other speakers were Pres. Hyde, Prof. Mitchell, Donald B. McMillan, '98, describing his plans for Polar exploration during the next two years, "Jack" Hurley, '12, bringing the greetings of the undergraduate body, Dr. Samuel F. Cole, '74, Edward Stanwood, '61, and Prof. Lunt, '04.

Among the others at the head of the table were Thomas F. Moses, '57, John F. Eliot, '73, James A. Howe, '59, S. B. Carter, '66, and Dr. Myles Standish, '75, the president-elect of the association. Other officers for the coming year are John F. Eliot, '73, and Edwin U. Curtis, '82, vice-presidents; Alfred B.
White, '98, secretary; Thomas L. Pierce, '98, assistant secretary; William D. Stockbridge, '99, treasurer; Dwight R. Pennell, '98, chorister; William I. Cole, Edward E. Goding, J. Everett Hicks, John C. Minot, Ellis Spear, Jr., George C. Purinton, Jr., and George F. Hyde, executive committee.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

A Cabinet meeting was held on Thursday night at the Beta Theta Pi House. Mr. Harrison S. Elliott, Secretary of the International Committee, was present. The usual reports of committees were given and plans made for the delegation at the Conference.

The final Bible Study report for this year has been made up. There were 17 classes, 7 in the Life of Christ, 6 in the Social Significance of Jesus' Teachings, and 4 in Men of the Old Testament. The total enrollment was 141 with an average attendance of 86.

Those who have books out from the loan library will please return them to the Secretary's office. The list of books available is posted in the reading-room of the library and those desiring books for this semester should apply at once.

It is requested that all subscriptions be paid at once as it is desirable to have the bills paid before the end of the year in March.

Prof. Chapman, who fractured his arm by slipping upon the ice, is getting along well and expects to be able to take his classes in a few days.

The New York Sunday Times has added a new feature in the form of a section which is given up to college news. W. A. MacCormick, '12, is the correspondent from Bowdoin.

A portrait of Prof. Hutchins by Miss Mary N. Richardson has been loaned to the college and hangs in the Boyd Gallery of the Art Building. The painting is a most excellent likeness of Prof. Hutchins.

A week from to-night, Feb. 23, at eight o'clock, the Second Junior Assembly will be held in Memorial Hall. Tickets may be obtained from the committee at $1.25 a couple. It is hoped that a large number will be present.

President Hyde had an article in the New York Sunday Times Feb. 4, on the "Making of a College" in which several interesting statements about Bowdoin were made. In the article were included pictures of the Art Building and Hubbard Hall.

The annual joint banquet of the Colby and Bowdoin Chapters of Zeta Psi Fraternity will be held at the Augusta House on Tuesday evening, Feb. 20. It is expected that a large number of alumni will be present.

The second College Tea given by the ladies of the faculty will be held on next Friday afternoon, Feb. 23. Students wishing invitations sent to friends will please leave their cards with Miss Boardman at the Library.

The New England Student Members of the Episcopal Church are holding their Tenth Annual Conference at Harvard this week. To-morrow morning Lowell S. Foote, '12, will be one of the speakers. Dean Sills is a member of the committee in charge of the Convention.

Saturday evening, Feb. 3, Professor W. B. Mitchell spoke in the Unitarian Church before the Saturday Club and the public on "Wordsworth's Country" and illustrated his talk with pictures obtained last summer in England. The pictures were put upon the screen by Professor Hutchins.

Professor Allen Johnson, of Yale, and formerly of Bowdoin, read a highly instructive and interesting paper on "The Winning of the National Domain" in New Haven on the evening of Feb. 2, before the General David Humphreys Branch, No. 1, Connecticut Society, Sons of the American Revolution.

According to the Portland Express, Gordon P. Floyd '15, holds the joint world's record with an Iowa City high school lad for the school-boy match target shooting. The record was made last April when Floyd representing Deering High School shot 69 off hand and 96 prone in a match against the Harry Hillman Academy of Wilkesbarre, Pa. In a previous match against Ogden High Floyd shot 193. Bowdoin's Freshman world's record holder was not aware of his honor until so informed by the paper notice. "Floyd is a Portland boy," the Express adds.

By the will of Almira K. Hasty, late of Portland, who died Jan. 17, $1,000 is left the trustees of Bowdoin College to establish a scholarship to be known as the "Hasty Scholarship Fund." The will asks that in the awarding of this scholarship, students who are residents of Portland or Cape Elizabeth, are to be preferred.

After the personal legacies have been paid the residue of the estate to be created into a trust fund from which the public bequests are taken and the balance made into what is to be called the "Elfin Hasty Fund" for the use of the Medical School of Maine. One-third of the income from this fund is for the immediate use of the Medical School and the income of the remaining two-thirds shall be allowed to accumulate until it has reached $50,000, when the entire income is to be expended for the purposes of the Medical School.

Willis E. Roberts, '07, has been authorized by Gov. Plaisted to organize a military company in Brunswick to take the place of the 10th Company, C.A.C. which was disbanded early in the winter. A petition signed by nearly 100 men and indorsed by another, headed by President Hyde and signed by 64 business men and property owners, was presented.

The Philompanic Club has been recently re-organized, consisting of the men who have come to Bowdoin from Andover and Exeter. There are about fifteen members among whom is President Hyde. The following officers were elected: John L. Hurley, '12, of Malden, Mass., president; Harry P. Faulknor, '15, of Boston, Mass., vice-president; William B. Williamson, '15, of Augusta, secretary; and John Heywood, '14, of Gardiner, Mass., treasurer.

The annual dinner of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Maine took place in Portland on Saturday, Feb. 3d. An important feature was the address given by Donald B. MacMillan, '98, who spoke relative to the trips which have been made toward, and the one to the North Pole during the past 400 years. He also spoke of the preparations which are being made for a trip north which is to start next July and will probably take three years to complete. President William DeWitt Hyde was the first speaker of the evening, and his topic was "College Life and Work." Other speakers were Hon. William L. Putnam, '55, Hon. Clarence Hale, '69, and George C. Wheeler, '01.

Dr. Bliss Perry, the Annie Talbot Cole Lecturer for this year, was born in Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 25, 1860. He received the degree of A.B. in 1881 and A.M. in 1883 from Williams College; studied at Berlin and Strasburg Universities; received the degree of L.H.D. from Princeton in 1900 and Williams in 1902; Litt.D. from Bowdoin in 1904; and L.L.D. from Wake Forest in 1906. Dr. Perry was Professor of English at Williams from 1886 to 1897; at Princeton from 1893 to 1900 and is now Professor of English Literature at Harvard, and a trustee of Williams College. Among the books edited by him are "Selections from Burke," Scott's "Woodstock" and "Ivanhoe," "Little Masterpieces" "Cambridge Editions of the Poets." He is also the author of many widely known books, among which are "The Broughton House," "Salem Kiteredge and Other Stories," "The Plated City," "The Powers at Play," "A Study of Prose Fiction," "The Amateur Spirit," "Walt Whitman" and "Whittier."
The coming together of Bowdoin and Trinity in athletic relations next fall was made the text for a very gracious tribute to Bowdoin at the annual dinner of the Trinity alumni in Boston February 1. At the request of the Trinity men a representative of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Boston attended the dinner as their guest, and John Clair Minot, '96, was chosen for this honor. He was the only outsider present and was one of the three speakers after the banquet. There were hearty cheers for Bowdoin, led by President Luther of Trinity, who recalled that one of his predecessors in the presidency of Trinity, Daniel Raynes Goodwin, was a Bowdoin graduate of the Class of 1832. About 50 Trinity men attended the dinner, and a good share of them pledged themselves to visit Bowdoin when Trinity plays on the former's home grounds.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF THETA, DELTA KAPPA EPSILON,
January 31, 1912.

The recent death of Joseph Newell Whitney, of the Class of 1864, has removed from Theta's roll the name of another of its honored alumni, and has deprived our nation of a most faithful servant. Entering Bowdoin in 1859, Brother Whitney had scarcely half completed his course at the outbreak of the Civil War. With three other members of his delegation, he enlisted at once in the Union army and served his country for four years,—nearly half of which time was spent in Confederate prisons. He was discharged from the military service in 1865 with the rank of first lieutenant, and immediately entered the employ of the Treasury Department at Washington. On the establishment of the Bureau of Statistics Brother Whitney was given a position in that branch of the work and after ten years became chief clerk of the department. For thirty-two years he faithfully performed the duties of his office, resigning finally only because of ill health.

Brother Whitney's entire life was spent in the loyal service of the country. His death is a loss both to the nation he honored and to the fraternity he loved. In behalf of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Theta we extend our sincere sympathy to his family and express to the public our deep appreciation of the life and work of a true Deke.

'41.—Former Governor Frederick Robie died at his home in Gorham, Maine, on the morning of Feb. 2. He was in his ninetieth year and had been in failing health for some time. He was prominent in business affairs in Portland, and only a few weeks ago retired from the presidency of the First National Bank in that city.

Georgia and Florida for a short time. Later he took up the study of medicine and was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. He began practice in Biddeford in 1844 and remained until 1855, when he went to Waldoboro, remaining there three years. In 1858, he returned to his home town, Gorham, where he has lived ever since.

He served as paymaster in the army from 1861 to 1865, and was brevetted lieutenant colonel. He was a member of the state legislature for ten years and was speaker of the House during the sessions of 1872 and 1876; he was a state senator in 1866-7; he was governor from 1883 to 1887. Mr. Robie was prominent in the Grange, being State Master eight years.

In spite of his advanced age, Mr. Robie had continued his business activities up to a few weeks ago. He was President of the First National Bank of Portland, director of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, and President of the Dirigo Fire Insurance Company of Maine; in 1890, he served as commander of the Department of Maine, Grand Army of the Republic, and was President of the Board of Trustees of the Insane Hospital of Maine for eighteen years.

In every branch of work which Mr. Robie entered, he did his best and was rewarded with the success which followed. In politics, Mr. Robie enjoyed particular success, serving the state in various positions and through a long period of years. Mr. Robie was a forceful speaker and had a way of going straight at the heart of the discussion.

As a doctor and as a business man, Mr. Robie was characterized by the same earnestness and zeal. He was always attentive to his work and perfectly thorough in the performance of his duties. He kept himself up with the times and still maintained his deep interest in the politics of the state.

As the last of a generation of great political leaders, Mr. Robie was truly the “Grand Old Man of Maine.”

PROVISIONAL COMMENCEMENT APPOINTMENTS

The list of provisional appointments for commencement parts has been announced. From this number, six men will be chosen by competition to deliver their parts at Commencement, and to one of these the Goodwin Prize will be awarded. The list is as follows:

GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

Monday it was announced that the Charles Carroll Everett Scholarship, which is awarded to the member of the graduating class whom the President and Trustees shall deem the best qualified to take a post-graduate course in either this or some other country, has been awarded to Elliston Smullen Purington of Mechanic Falls. He expects to study Physics, either at Columbia or Harvard.

It was also announced that the Henry W. Longfellow Graduate Scholarship has been awarded to Eugene Francis Bradford of Bangor. He will probably pursue his graduate work at Harvard.

BRADBURY DEBATE TRIALS

The first step in the trials for the two teams which will represent Bowdoin in the Triangular Debating League was taken Thursday afternoon, Feb. 15.

Two teams were chosen, one of which will debate on Feb. 28 and the other on March 1st. From these teams will be chosen six men, who will debate in the intercollegiate debates. The judges were Professor W. B. Catlin, Principal H. E. Cole of Morse High School, and Mr. Samuel L. Forsaith. The following men were picked to debate Feb. 28: Affirmative, Greene, '13; Rodick, '12; Simpson, '14; Andrews, '12, alternate. Negative, Eberhardt, '13; Gage, '14; Spinney, '12; Mathews, '12, alternate.

The following men will debate March 1st: Affirmative, Douglas, '13; Locke, '12; Wish, '13; Timberlake, '12, alternate. Negative, Emery, '13; Maloney, '12; Norton, '13; Hughes, '12, alternate. The question which was debated and which will be debated in the Triangular League, is as follows:

Resolved, That the United States should adopt a uniform, compulsory workingmen's compensation act applicable to industrial employments.

TRACK SCHEDULE

Cedric R. Crowell, '13, of Richmond Hill, N. Y., manager of the track team, has announced the following schedule of track events.

March 22—Indoor Meet at Brunswick.
May 11—Maine Intercollegiate Track Meet at Brunswick.
May 24 and 25—Eastern Intercollegiate Track Meet at place to be determined later.
May 25—Bowdoin Invitation Interscholastic Meet at Brunswick.

CLASSICAL CLUB MEETING

An unusually large number attended the last meeting of the Classical Club, which was held Thursday evening, Feb. 15, at the Psi Upsilon House. Prof. Chase of Maine spoke to the club on "A Comparison of the Roman Republic and Our Own," describing the causes of the downfall of the Roman Republic and tendencies which might lead to the same result in our own Republic. He took, however, a very optimistic view with regard to these tendencies. A general discussion of the subject followed Prof. Chase’s talk and refreshments were served. The next meeting of the club will be held March 5 at the Theta Delta Chi House.

THE SECOND COLE LECTURE

As the subject of the second Annie Talbot Cole lecture, Tuesday evening, Dr. Bliss Perry took “Romance and Reaction.” He spoke in part as follows with regard to the vitality of American Romance:

“American history has been marked by certain great romantic passions that seem endowed with indestructible vitality. The romance of discovery, the fascination of the forest and sea, the sense of danger and mystery once aroused by the very word ‘redskin’ have all moulded the national imagination. There is no diminution of interest in the romance of adventure, in the stories of hunter and trapper, in the journals of Lewis and Clark, in the narratives of Boone and Crockett. In writing his superb romances of the northern lakes, the prairie and the sea, Fenimore Cooper had merely to bring to an artistic focus, sentiments that lay deep in the souls of the great mass of his American readers. ‘Playing Indian’ has been immensely significant, not merely in stimulating the outdoor activity of generations of American boys, but in teaching them the importance of the pioneer qualities of observation, resourcefulness, courage and endurance. Even when the Indian has been succeeded by the cowboy the spirit of romance still lingers, as any collection of cowboy ballads will abundantly prove. And when the cowboys pass and the real estate dealers take possession of the field, one is tempted to say that romance flourishes more than ever.

The West means simply the retreating horizon, the beckoning finger of opportunity. Like Boston, it is not so much a place as a state of mind. Some Eldorado has always been beckoning to the more adventurous spirits on American soil. The passion of the forty-niner neither began nor ended with the discovery of gold in California. It is within us. It transmutes the harsh or drab-colored everyday routine into tissue of fairyland. It makes our ‘winning of the West’ a magnificent national epic. It changes to-day the black belt of Texas, or the wheat fields of Dakota, into pots of gold that lie at the end of rainbows, only that the pot of gold is actually there. The human hunger of it all, the gorgeous dream-like quality of it all, the boundlessness of the vast American spaces, the sense of forest and prairie and sky, are all inexplicably blended with the notion of the ideal American. Henry James once tried to explain the difference between Turgenief and a typical French novelist by saying that the back door of the Russian’s imagination was always open upon the endless Russian Steppes. No one can understand the spirit of American romance if he is not conscious of this ever-present ‘hinterland’ in which our spirits have, from the beginning taken refuge and found solace.”

Tuesday evening, Feb. 27, Dr. Perry will give the third and last of his lectures. His subject will be “Humor and Satire.”

ANNUAL RECEPTION AND DANCE OF DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

Friday afternoon and evening, Feb. 16, the Bowdoin chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon held its annual reception and dance at their house on Maine Street. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with evergreen and cut flowers. About 300 guests were present at the reception, which was held from 3:30 to 5:30 P.M. In the receiving line were Mrs. William E. Twombly of Reading, Mass., Mrs. George L. Skolfield, and Mrs. George T. Little of Brunswick. Refreshments, consisting of sherbet, punch, fancy crackers, and cake, were served by Mrs. Hartley C. Baxter, Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, and Mrs. George C. Brooks. Kendrie’s Orchestra of Brunswick, played throughout the afternoon and for an order of twenty-four dances in the evening. Dancing began at 8:30 and continued until long after midnight. About sixty couples were present at the dance, of which Mrs. Twombly and Mrs. Skolfield were the patronesses. At intermission refreshments of salad, rolls, ice-cream, cake and coffee were served by Pooler of Portland.

Among the guests were Misses Elizabeth Sullivan, Pauline Savage, Marion White, Hazel Savage, Beatrice Mudgett, Leola Coombs, and Rebecca Harding of Bangor; Marion Keith of Oldtown; Geneva Hinich of Danforth; Nell Davis of Guilford; Jennie Means, Margaret Starbird, Frances Crossman, Anna Milliken, Rachel Marble, Ada Sawyer, Eleanor Wescott, and Evelyn Edwards of Portland; Ellen Baxter and Gertrude Sadler of Brunswick; Gladys Umberhine of Topsham; Helen Coombs of Minneapolis, Minn.; Sally Edmunds of Lynchburg, Va.; Katharine Torrey of Bath; Sarah Snow of Skowhegan; Edith Flynn and Josephine Flynn of Lawrence, Mass.; Sarah Cole of South Portland; Lora Standish and Barbara Standish of Boston; Mrs. Tessa Gibson of Houlton; Mrs. George C. Brooks of Brunswick. The delegates from other fraternities were: H. C. L. Ashby, '12, from Alpha Delta Phi; Loring Pratt, '12, from Psi Upsilon; C. R. Chapman, '12, from Zeta Psi; A. D. Welch, '12, from Theta Delta Chi; E. F. Bragdon, '12, from Delta Upsilon; L. E. Jones, '13, from Kappa Sigma; J. H. Newell, '12, from Beta Theta Pi; R. A. Harlow, Colby, '12, from the Colby Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon. The committee in charge consisted of Gray, '12, Simpson, '12, and Twombly, '13.

NEW COLLEGE SONGS

The following is an extract from a letter written by David W. Snow, '73, of Portland, and published in the Orient of April 29, 1910. Mr. Snow writes: "I wish Bowdoin would introduce the custom which exists in some other colleges, of musical contests. Bowdoin needs new college songs, needs them badly, and a custom of this kind would serve to bring out whatever musical ability there is in the college or in its alumni. In a college which I have in mind each class produces two songs and at a fixed date each year the classes meet and there is a friendly contest, each class singing its song. The songs are not class songs, but are college songs. At this contest a musical committee decides which class has the best song and a cup is given to the class, with a small financial prize to the writer of the successful song. I wish very much that this custom could be introduced at Bowdoin and would be glad to set up a cup to be given to the winning class, with a financial prize of say ten dollars to the writer of the successful song, the cup to be contested each year for five years and at the end of the fifth year to be deposited by the class then holding it among the college trophies."

SUNDAY CHAPEL

In his chapel talk, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 18, President Hyde drew a lesson from David's magnanimous treatment of Saul as described in 1. Samuel, 26.

He said in part: This story of David, who lived thirty centuries ago, can be matched by a story of a man prominent in public life, which was told 8 years ago in this chapel by Jacob Riis. When Roosevelt was Police Commissioner of New York City, he was thwarted in all his purposes by another member of the board of commissioners, who was in league with the worst element in the city. One night a police captain gave Mr. Roosevelt the opportunity to remove the commissioner from office if he would adopt underhand means. "No," said Mr. Roosevelt, "we do not hit below the belt." This is the same spirit that made David unwilling to take an evil advantage of a man, even if he represented the forces of evil. If a man wishes to apply a severe test to himself, to test his spiritual power, and his fellowship with God, let him take some one who has wronged him or, worse yet, those dear to him. Let him try to keep out personal animosity and desire on personal grounds that harm may come to that person. We should always fight hard and never yield on the main issue, but we should fight with no personal hatred against a man. This same spirit was shown in Jesus' prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," and in Paul's words, "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." Let us try to put this in practice the next time someone plays a trick on us or betrays an interest that we hold dear.

AT THE LIBRARY

The largest single gift of books ever presented to the Library has been given by the Class of 1875. It is composed of the Roll series of publications of the national records of England and the works of the Historical Manuscripts Commission. The Roll series is in two parts, the first consisting of 350 volumes, and the second of 250 volumes. It is valued at $1700. The works of the Historical Manuscripts Commission consist of collections of other national documents from private sources in England. They are composed of 160 parts and are valued at $100. The Library already has the books of the Recording Commission, published by the English Government in the last part of the 18th century. Bowdoin now has practically a complete set of old English documents, and is one of the best equipped libraries in the country for the study of English History.
Time to Act

We wish to call especial attention to the letter published in another column which deals with college songs. We appreciate the fact as well as our readers that this question of college songs is as old as any ever considered by the Orient. It is so old, in fact, that we as undergraduates absolutely refuse to pay any attention to it. At least, if any attention is given to editorials on the subject, the Board never hears from it. Once more we are glad to print the fact that alumni, undergraduate clubs, faculty members, and editors have begged for new songs. It is time for some action to be taken and the Orient suggests that the Student Council take up the matter at once. It would seem by the manner in which the offer of the Ibis has been responded to that the undergraduates want individual invitations to write a song and receive the prize. But it is safe to say that the Ibis has no such desire to curb the famous Bowdoin spirit by pushing the individual into prominence. The Ibis and Mr. Snow are simply voicing the sentiments of every Bowdoin man in urging the production of new college songs. Like every other college Bowdoin must meet her problems and there is no reason why Bowdoin cannot solve such problems as well as other colleges do. Surely the matter of college songs has by this time become vital enough to cause some consideration of it by the student body. Let the undergraduates and the Student Council show more of that spirit of co-operation and bring this question to a head.

A Leap Forward

It is seldom that the four colleges and the many "prep" schools of Maine are ever represented in such a large and united gathering as was held at the University of Maine last week. This gathering was known by those who attended and throughout the state at large as the "Students' Fourth Annual Y. M. C. A. Conference." Over three hundred delegates from the various educational institutions in the state met to consider plans for Association work. It is of particular interest to Bowdoin men to know that the first of these conferences was held on the Bowdoin campus. "Prep" school men were not present at that conference and only about 40 delegates from the four colleges met together. But at the conference which closed last Sunday over 300 delegates were registered from the colleges and secondary schools of the state. Such a rapid growth shows to some extent the value of the Christian Association in the college and school life of our country. As represented at the conference meetings, it shows also that this Association stands for a broadening along physical, social, and religious lines in the daily life of every college man.

Although it may be looking a long way ahead we must begin to think about next year's meeting. It is going to be held again at Bowdoin and considering the growth already indicated, the college under the pines will be visited by hundreds of men. It will be Bowdoin's first opportunity to entertain such a body and it will be up to Bowdoin to show the hospitality which can equal that shown by the other three colleges in the State. While the taste of the recent Conference re-
In the death of Colonel Henry A. Wing which occurred a short time ago, Bowdoin loses one of her alumni most prominent in undergraduate affairs. Colonel Wing was especially interested in all athletic contests in which Bowdoin played a part. He was always on hand as an official at a football game or track meet and for years he served as a member of Bowdoin's Athletic Council. In all his relations with managers and captains to whom he was a faithful adviser, he always received the deepest respect. As a visitor to the college rallies and undergraduate functions he was always hailed with rousing cheers of student appreciation. But not only as a friend to undergraduates will Bowdoin miss her son. As a servant both of the college and of the state at large, the loss of Colonel Wing will be greatly felt by all who knew him.

Y. M. C. A. STUDENT CONVENTION

The fourth annual Maine Y. M. C. A. Student Convention was held at the University of Maine, Feb. 16, 17, and 18. The convention was attended by over 300 delegates from the colleges and preparatory schools of the state. The colleges and schools represented were: U. of M., Bates, Colby, Bowdoin, Bangor Theological Seminary, Northeast Harbor, Portland, York, Buxton, Foxcroft, Lincoln, Hebron, Ricker, Presque Isle, Fort Fairfield, Oldtown, Lee Normal, Pittsfield, Orono, Bristol, Good Will, Old Orchard, Houlton, Lewiston, Kent's Hill, Livermore Falls, Bucksport Seminary, Sangerville, Fryeburg, Oak Grove Seminary, Coburn, Belfast, Clinton, Rockport, Higgins and Dresden.

On Friday night, Feb. 16, the delegates were the guests of the business and professional men of Oldtown at a banquet which was served in the City Hall. There were five long tables extending the full length of the hall which had been fittingly decorated with college and school banners, of the institutions represented at the convention. During the evening excellent music was furnished by the student orchestra from the University of Maine. At the head of the middle table sat Jefferson C. Smith, State Secretary of Y. M. C. A. work, who took charge of the exercises. He introduced Dr. Leon S. Merrill, Dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Maine, as toastmaster, who accepted the honor in a few words. He introduced President Robert Aley of the university, who extended a welcome to the delegates in behalf of the university, and also from the people of Oldtown, who had provided the banquet and opened their homes to them during their stay in the city. Hon. Charles W. Stevens, mayor of the city, was the next speaker and in a few words welcomed the boys. A. G. Averill, chairman of the general committee, spoke briefly for the committee to welcome the hundreds of students and invited them to meet in Oldtown at any other time. The next speaker was Ernest G. Fife, '11, who responded for the students, thanking President Aley, Mayor Stevens, and the business men of Oldtown for their welcome, also for the banquet served them.

A. G. Cushman of the Bates Y. M. C. A. then spoke upon the purpose and aims of the 1912 conference and was followed by James L. McConaughy of New York. In closing the entire body united in singing "America," after which President David N. Beach, of Bangor Theological Seminary, offered the closing prayer and benediction.

On Saturday morning the program opened by a meeting led by Thornton B. Penfield of New York, in the U. of M. chapel at 8.30. This was a devotional service and opened with prayer and song. At 9 o'clock the union session of preparatory schools and colleges was called, and at this time James L. McConaughy put before the conference this question: "What Right Has Your Association to Exist in Your Institution?" A representative from each delegation was called upon to respond to this question and many good and interesting points were brought out in this connection.

After a short intermission the meeting was resumed and David R. Porter, '06, gave a talk upon "The Principles of True Leadership." At 11.45 the conference picture was taken.

At 1.30, quiet hour service was held by Thornton B. Penfield, of New York, and at 2 o'clock was held the preparatory school session with the program arranged by David R. Porter, following which was a college session, with an address by Harrison S. Elliott on "Bible Study and Its Relation to Social Service."

At 3 o'clock came the recreation hour when the following basketball games were played in the university gymnasium: Kent's Hill vs. M. C. I.; Oldtown vs. Orono; E. M. C. S. vs. Higgins.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock was held a mass-meeting for men addressed by David R. Porter. In the evening at 7 o'clock a public service was held with fifteen minute talks by Thornton B. Penfield, Harrison E. Elliott, and David R. Porter. The farewell meeting, led by Mr. McConaughy, immediately followed and at this meeting there were present the delegates and the faculty of the U. of M. The convention was then declared closed by its president, Russell Lord, '12, of Colby.
Y. M. C. A. MEETING

The speaker at the Y. M. C. A. meeting, Feb. 15, was Dr. Estes Nichols of Hebron. Dr. Nichols took for his subject, "Public Health" and spoke in part as follows:

"To most people the words 'Public Health' suggest the red quarantine card or the vaccine point, the warfare against uncleanness, or the campaign against back alleys. It should suggest other things as well; the fight against tuberculosis, the campaign against child-labor, and such things. Public health is conservation of resources to bring about not only physical health, but also mental and moral health. In the conservation of forests, great precaution is taken against fire, the underbrush is cleared away and all lose material. We need the same precautions with regard to our bodies. Two things should be done away with, which feed the fires which are burning the souls of our young men and women, namely, alcoholism and the social diseases. In our colleges is the worst possible place for these fires to burn, for there is our best timber. Colleges are by no means the dens of drunkenness and immorality that they are made out to be. Every year they are turning out men and women of the highest ideals. But it is the exceptions to the rule that are noticed. With their training, the college men and women are most admirably fitted for the uplift of humanity and they must realize their duty."

Dr. Nichols went on to speak of alcoholism and the terrible suffering and misery that attends it, and of the social diseases, the false prudery that has kept such subjects covered with a veil of obscenity, and the need of a million or more boys and girls now in high schools and the third of a million in higher institutions. They are to be the fathers and mothers of future years and now is the time to instruct them.

CONCERT: THE "RUBAIYAT" TO BE SUNG BY BOSTON QUARTETTE

A concert of unusual interest to all music-lovers will be given before the Saturday Club and the public on Thursday, February 29, at 8 p.m., when the Commonwealth Avenue Church Quartet of Boston, will sing "In a Persian Garden," Liza Lehmann's musical setting for the "Rubaiyat" of Omar Khayyam, the old philosopher-poet of Persia, whose verse Edward Fitzgerald translated into an English classic. The great beauty of the poem with its penetrating questionings of Whence? and Whither? and the lingering melody of its lighter quatrains make it especially adaptable for vocal rendering; and this quartette has a high reputation for ensemble work with this and other productions. As a finale for the evening they will give those matchless "Nonsense Songs" from "Alice in Wonderland," the "songs that came out wrong" and that all love for their very perversity. As the Orient goes to press, it is not decided whether the concert can be held in Town Hall as scheduled, but posters announcing the place will be out by Saturday.

John E. Chapman, Esq., of Boston, is visiting his brother, Prof. Henry L. Chapman, this week.
James L. McConaughy, Yale, '09, who was General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. last year, conducted chapel, Tuesday morning.
Darwin Tuttle of Exeter Academy was visiting his brother, Curtis Tuttle, '13, over Saturday. He left Sunday for his home in Cohusa, Cal.
"Puss" Newman, '09, was interlocutor at the minstrel show given in Bar Harbor recently, and "Quid" Whitmore, ex-'11, was end man in the same show.
There will be a meeting of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association at the Penobscot Exchange in Bangor, Saturday. Manager Crowell, '13, of the Track Team and ex-Manager MacCormick, '12, will attend the meeting.
Leon Lippincott, '10, was on the campus last week.

Maurice Hamblen, '14, has just returned to college after a short illness.

Eastman, '10, and Redfern, '11, have been on the campus for a few days.

The Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity is holding its annual convention at Springfield, Mass., this week.

Ernest Bisbee, '15, and George Bacon, '15, are spending two weeks at Intervale, New Hampshire.

Prof. George T. Files had an article in the Portland Sunday Telegram of Feb. 18, on the "Problem of Road Maintenance."

Mr. A. E. Moore, of Portland, has commenced his winter's work of repairing and retouching the paintings in the Art Building.

The Lewiston High School Debating team has been on the campus for a few days. Norton, '13, is coaching them for the interscholastic debates.

Several Bowdoin students witnessed the basketball game between Portland High School and Morse High School played at Bath last Friday evening.

Walter Brown, '14, was referee at the basketball game between Portland High School and Morse High School, played at Bath last Friday evening.

Dean Sills left for Washington, Sunday, where he will represent Bowdoin at the annual banquet of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Washington, D. C.

At the first annual meeting of the Maine Society of Civil Engineers in Lewiston on Feb. 7, Prof. Alvord was appointed chairman of the good roads committee.

A traffic census was taken on Feb. 10 by three of the students on lower Maine Street under the direction of Prof. Alvord. The town may soon re-surface this street and it was found desirable to know the relative amount of light and heavy traffic thereon.

Several men of the class of 1912 have completed the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Arts and have left college. They will return at Commencement and receive their degrees. Among them are Earl F. Maloney, Parker Rowell, Ernest E. Weeks, H. Ashmead White, and Richard F. White.

The registration of students for the second semester was completed recently and the following figures were given out by Dean Sills:

- Seniors ........................................... 87
- Juniors ............................................. 79
- Sophomores ....................................... 73
- Freshmen ......................................... 76
- Specials .......................................... 4

Total .............................................. 319

The registration for the first semester was 333, so there is a falling off of 13.

The following is found in the February Review of Reviews: "The Five Great Philosophies of Life," by William DeWitt Hyde, president of Bowdoin College, is an exposition of the philosophical principles produced in the five centuries from the birth of Socrates to the death of Jesus—namely, the Epicurean pursuit of pleasure, the Stoic law of self-repression and control, the sublime idealism of Platonism, the Aristotelian scheme of proportion, and the Christian doctrine of perfect love. It is a book of practical philosophy, alive to the everyday needs of life, that endeavors to reconcile the good within all philosophies to a common meeting point in the doctrine of Jesus' spirit of love. Mr. Hyde has the gift of lucid, virile utterance and an understanding of the scientific spirit that dominates the world today."

Though the official baseball schedule has not yet been announced, the following are among the games which Bowdoin will play during the coming season:

April 10—Brown at Providence.
April 24-25—Dartmouth at Hanover.
May 10—Maine at Brunswick.
May 15—Maine at Orono.

Among the games which the other Maine colleges will play during the coming season are:

April 24—Bates vs. Brown, at Providence.
May 1—Colby vs. Maine at Orono.
May 8—Bates vs. Maine at Orono.
May 18—Bates vs. Maine at Lewiston.
May 25—Colby vs. Maine at Waterville.

The following items appeared among the editorials of Harper's Weekly for Feb. 3:

"One College That is Complete"

"Bowdoin is unique among the colleges. Its Alumni Association had its annual dinner here last week, and the papers said that President Hyde aroused great enthusiasm among the alumni by stating that on this occasion he need ask them for nothing, since Bowdoin had now a perfect plant."

We wouldn't have believed, except on the authority of a responsible newspaper, that an American college could be complete—equal to its work both in plant and equipment. That is the case with Bowdoin, Dr. Hyde says. It is encouraging to hear it.

There may come a day when others of our older colleges will have enough. That seems to have happened in Europe, where, centuries ago, kings, princes, rich merchants, and other opulent persons used to endow institutions of learning somewhat as our millionaires do now."

In compiling a new address book of the graduates of Bowdoin College, a table has been prepared showing the geographical location of the 1881 alumni of the academic department of the college. Of the total number 1759 are located in the continental United States and 14 in the possessions of the United States. The location of 34 alumni is unknown.

Of the United States Maine leads with 715, while Massachusetts comes second with 421 and New York with 170. Of the western states California is the home of the most Bowdoin men, 56, leading even the central states of Illinois with 36 and Minnesota with 24. There are no Bowdoin men living in Delaware, that being the only state in which Bowdoin is not represented.

The location of Bowdoin alumni by states and countries is as follows:

- Maine, 715; New Hampshire, 61; Vermont, 9; Massachusetts, 421; Rhode Island, 14; Connecticut, 27; New York States, 170 (New York City 125); New Jersey, 41; Pennsylvania, 33; Maryland, 5; D. C., 40; Virginia, 2; West Virginia, 1; North Caro-
Alumni Department

'80.—Col. Henry Asa Wing of Lewiston, one of the best-known newspaper men in the State, died, early Saturday morning, after a year's sickness, which was thought to have worn him out until he did not have the strength to combat the illness any longer.

Colonel Wing was a newspaper man of no small renown and he was very popular in his profession. His title of colonel he derived from the fact that, among many other public favors, he had served on the staff of the late Governor Llewellyn Powers. Colonel Wing was a native of Waterville, where he was born 58 years ago and was a graduate of Houlton Academy and later of Bowdoin. He fitted for the bar but never practiced law as he shortly entered the newspaper profession.

Colonel Wing has been connected with the Bangor Commercial, Portland Daily Express, the Pittsburg Dispatch and later on the Bangor News, where he remained until 1882. He then, in association with the late Charles L. Fox, started the Lewiston Sun. Later Mr. Fox died and Colonel Wing, deciding it was too big a proposition to handle alone, sold out but remained on the staff. In 1896 he resigned and became the central Maine correspondent for the Boston Herald and continued so until 1910. He then became connected as a correspondent of the Portland Express-Advertiser and other papers until ill health compelled him to give up newspaper work of any kind.

During his career Colonel Wing has been honored with many positions of trust and honor by both political parties as he was independent in faith. His last appointment was that of private secretary to Congressman McGillicuddy, but ill health compelled him to relinquish this position. He was a member of the Lewiston Lodge of Elks. Colonel Wing was an earnest devotee of athletics and was prominent in all the branches of sport at Bowdoin, having been a member of the athletic council for a number of years. In horsedom the colonel was a master hand and owned many fast thoroughbreds which he had entered at various meets.

March 28, 1893, Colonel Wing married Miss Grace A. Gilbert, and they had one son, Carleton, 12 years old. Besides these a brother, Fred A. Wing of Bangor, and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Stratton of Laconia, N. H., and Miss Alice Wing of Roslindale, Mass., survive.

'89.—William M. Emery, the active newspaper editor of Fall River, Mass., finds time for much careful and thorough genealogical research. For several months he has been engaged in his leisure hours as an assistant in the preparation of an elaborate history of the Crapo family.

'96.—George T. Ordway, formerly Vice-President and General Manager of the Engineering Securities Corporation, has become associated with Tucker, Anthony & Co., bankers, in their New York office.

FRONTIER CUP STANDING ANNOUNCED

Dean Sills has announced the standing of the several fraternities for the first semester, in the competition for the Friar Scholarship Cup. Delta Upsilon was the winner for the third consecutive time. The average scholarship is reckoned on a basis of points, each A counting 4 points; B, 3 points; C, 2 points; D, 1 point; and E, minus 2 points. The total of the points made by each fraternity is divided by the number of men in the fraternity thus giving the average scholarship of each fraternity.

The standing of the several fraternities for the first semester is as follows:

<table>

THE SECOND COLLEGE TEA

On last Friday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock the second of the College Teas was held at the Alumni Room in Hubbard Hall, and was largely attended, especially by friends of the college from Lewiston and Auburn.

The guests were received by Mrs. Manton Copeland, Mrs. William DeWitt Hyde, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, Mrs. George T. Little, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, and Mrs. Gerald G. Wilder. The members of the introduction committee, who saw that none of the guests lacked introductions to the members of the faculty and the students present, were: Mrs. William Hawley Davis, Mrs. William E. Lunt, Mrs. Ira P. Booker, and Mrs. John A. Cone.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. William A. Moody, assisted by Miss Sue Winchell, Miss Margaret Wilson, and Miss Marion Drew. Mrs. Geo. T. Files presided at the tea table and she was assisted by Miss Lida Baker, of Boston, Miss Isabel Forsaith and Miss Ruth Nearing of Brunswick. Punch was dipped by Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. William E. Lunt, and Mrs. Orren C. Hornell, assisted by Miss Anna Snow, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Evelyn Swett and Miss Olive Utter.

The ushers were: Frederick S. Wiggins, '13, of Thomaston, from Alpha Delta Phi; Ray E. Palmer, '13, of Bath, from Psi Upsilon; Benjamin D. Holt, '13, of Portland, from Delta Kappa Epsilon; Albert E. Parkhurst, '12, of Presque Isle, from Theta Delta Chi; Robert W. Belknap, '13, of Damariscotta, from Zeta Psi; William A. MacCormick, '12, of So. Framingham, Mass., from Delta Upsilon; Elden G. Barnard, '12, of Yarmouth, from Kappa Sigma; Francis X. Callahan, '14, of Portland, from Beta Theta Pi; and Everett P. Walton, '13, of Vinalhaven, from the non-fraternity men.

SECOND JUNIOR ASSEMBLY

The second and last of the Junior Assemblies to be held under the auspices of the class of 1913 was held in Memorial Hall last Friday evening and was attended by about 50 couples.

The patronesses were Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. George T. Little, Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, and Mrs. Frederick W. Brown. Lovell's Orchestra played for an order of 20 dances. At intermission refreshments of salads, ice cream, cake, and punch were served by Morton.

The assembly was in charge of the following committee: William Fletcher Twombly of Reading, Mass., Frederick Shaw Wiggins of Thomaston, George Lincoln Skolfield, Jr., of Brunswick, Theodore Evans Emery, of Randolph, and Kendrick Burns, of Saco.

Among the guests present were: Miss Katherine Jenkins, Miss Marion Smart, Miss Jessie Ridge, Miss Lydia Skolfield, Miss Marion Proctor, Miss Olivia Bagley, Miss Katherine Johnson, Miss Marie Hieber, Miss Dorothy Laughlin, Miss Gladys Burr, Miss Margaret Burr, Miss Hilda Laughlin, Miss Frances Darker, Miss Marion Fernald, Miss Alberta Robinson, Miss Evelyn Edwards, Miss Pauline Hight of Portland, Miss Mina Everett, Miss Iva Record of Auburn, Miss Belle Cornish, Miss Mabel Davis, Miss Marguerite Hutchins, Miss Grace Lunt, Miss Gertrude Sadler, Miss Virginia Woodbury, Mrs. Algernon G. Chandler of Brunswick, Miss Olive Holway, Miss Bessie Locke, of Augusta, Miss Elizabeth Woodward of Colorado Springs, Col., Miss Martha Fifield of North Conway, N. H., Miss Louise Haggitt, Miss Harriett Henderson, Miss Alice Pushard, of Bath, Miss Belle Tilton, of South Portland, Miss Blanche Hancom, Miss Dorothy Bird, of Rockland; Miss Gladys Umberhind of Topsham; Miss Mary Emery, of Skowhegan; Miss Edna Dennison, of Freeport; Miss Lida Baker, of Boston; Miss Marion Hunt of Wellesley, Mass.; Miss Margaret Burns of Saco; Miss Flossie Kember, of Biddeford; Miss Haskell of Pittsfield; Miss Florence Carll, of Waterville; Miss Helen Shaw, of Buckfield; Miss Rose Davis, of Rockland; Miss Irene Kennedy, of Haverhill, Mass.

THE THIRD COLE LECTURE BY DR. PERRY

Tuesday evening, Feb. 27, Dr. Bliss Perry delivered the last of the Annie Talbot Cole lectures. His subject was "American Humor and Satire" and he spoke in part as follows:

"The conception of humor as incongruity is particularly applicable to a new country. On the new soil and under the new skies, a new social grouping, all the fundamental contrasts and absurdities of our human society assume a new value. We see them under a fresh light. They are differently focused. The broad humor of the camp, its swift and picturesque play of light and shade, its farce and caricature no less than its atmosphere of comradeship, of sentiment and daring, are all transferred to the humor of the newly settled country. If it is true that the new country offers endless opportunities for the humor which turns upon incongruity, it is also true that the new country offers countless occasions for humor which turns upon sudden glory of superiority. The backwoodsman is amusing to the men of the settlements, and the backwoodsman, in turn, gets his full share of amusement out of watching the "tenderfoot" in the woods. It is simply the case of the old resident versus the new comer. The superiority need be in no sense a cruel or taunting superiority, although it often happens to be so. The humor of the pioneers is not so very delicately polished. The joke of the frontier tavern or grocery store is not always adapted to a drawing room audience, but it turns in a surprisingly large number of instances upon exactly the same intellectual or social superiority which gives point to the bon mots of the most cultivated and artificial society in the world.

There is another sort of American humor which has been of a marked historical importance and which has never been more active than it is to-day; the humor, namely, of local, provincial, and sectional types. Much of this humor falls under Bergson's conception of humor as social censure. It rebukes the extravagance, the rigidity, the unawareness of the individual who fails to adapt himself to his social environment. It takes the place, in our categories of humor, of those types of class humor and satire in which European literature is so rich. The mobility of our population, the constant shifting and callings, has prevented our developing fixed class types of humor. We have not even the lieutenant, or the policeman or permanent members of our humorous stock company. The policeman of to-day may be mayor or governor to-morrow. The lieutenant may go back to his grocery wagon or on to his department store. But whenever and wherever such an individual fails to adapt himself to his new companions, fails to take on, as it were, the colors of his new environment, to speak in the new social accents, to follow the recognized pattern of behavior, then the kindly whip of the humorist is already cracking around his ears.

A similar social function is performed by that well-known mold of American humor which ridicules the inhabitants of certain states. Why should New Jersey, for example, be more ridiculous than Delaware? In the eyes of the newspaper paragrapher it unquestionably is, just as Missouri has more humorous connotations than Kentucky. We may think we understand why we smile when a man says that he comes from Kalamazoo or Oshkosh, but the smile when he says, "Philadelphia," or "Boston," or "Brooklyn" is only a trifle more subtle. It is none the less real. So it is with the larger divisions of our national life. Yankee, Southerner, Westerner, Californian, Texan,—each type provokes certain connotations of humor when viewed by any of the other types. Each type in turn has its note of provinciality when compared with the general notion of the general American. It is quite possible to maintain that our literature, like our social life, has suffered by this ever-present American sense of the ridiculous. Our social consciousness might be far more various and richly colored, there might be more true provincial independence of speech and custom and imagination if we had not to reckon with this ever present censure of laughter, this fear of finding ourselves, our city, our section, out of touch with the prevailent tone and temper of the country as a whole. It is one of the forfeits we are bound to pay when we play the great absorbing game of democracy.”

M. I. A. A. MEETING

A meeting of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association was held Saturday, Feb. 24, at the Penobscot Exchange Hotel of Bangor. Each college was represented by last year's and this year's manager. Dinner was followed by a two hours' business session, when last year's accounts were audited and approved by the executive committee. Amendments to the constitution were considered but none were passed. The following officers were elected for this year: Mgr. Adams of Bates, President; Mgr. Wells of Colby, Vice-President; Mgr. Seekins of University of Maine, Secretary; Mgr. Crowell of Bowdoin, Treasurer.

ANNUAL DANCE OF THE PHI CHI FRATERNITY

Gamma Gamma Chapter of Phi Chi fraternity of the Medical School held its annual dance at Pythian Hall last Friday evening. A feature of the decorations was a handsome emblem of the fraternity made out of colored electric lights.

The patronesses were Mrs. William DeWitt Hyde, Mrs. Gilbert M. Elliott and Mrs. Edwin F. Pratt, of Brunswick, Mrs. Walter E. Tobie and Mrs. Wallace W. Dyson of Portland, and Mrs. Jennie W. Bird, of Rockland.

The committee of arrangements consisted of John Everett Cartland, '14, of Lisbon Falls; Harold Vincent Bickmore, '14, of Augusta; Waldo Thompson Skillin, '14, of Hallowell; William DeLue Anderson, '15, of Portland; and Lawrence McFarland, '15, of Woodfords. Music was furnished by Pettengill's Orchestra of Lewiston.

Delegates from other fraternities were Carl G. Dennett, '15, Saco, from Alpha Kappa Kappa; James B. Allen, '12, of Mt. Desert, from Delta Upsilon; Dr. Carl H. Stevens, '14, of Northport, from Delta Kappa Epsilon; and

New Coach Here

Now for those who have been waiting for the track coach to arrive! He is here and ready to meet all men at once who have aspirations for track work. Although we have been urging ever since last fall that work begin at once we must continue to urge until the season gets under way. In three weeks the first big track event of the year will be held and then followers of the Bowdoin team can get some idea of the prospects for the spring meets. The Indoor Meet should do more than settle class superiority. It should serve as a stepping stone to the larger and more important events to come. According to the ruling of the Athletic Council all men who intend to participate in this first meet must go into training now. This is, then, the starting point of the thorough preparation for the State Meet not many weeks away.

The Freshmen may well be pointed out as showing the kind of spirit which makes college athletics what they ought to be. For the past two or three weeks a large squad of first year men have been training daily on the outdoor track. A good many upper classmen who are evidently much concerned about this spring's track team, might take notice of this fact. It is encouraging, at least, to know that men will get out and work without being driven. Evidently the Freshmen deem it of great importance to start now if they want to become valuable assets to the college track team. That is the sentiment which ought to run through every class in college. The coach has arrived and we all wish him great success. But it is up to those men who have been waiting, to report, and see what he has for them to do. Success will come to us this spring, just as soon as we begin to go after it.

Bowdoin Beata

Last week we wrote complainingly about college songs. This week we have a much more serious complaint to render against certain undergraduates and their disrespect for what songs we have. It has been noticed many times that fellows either through indifference or total irreverence fail to stand up when Bowdoin Beata is being played or sung. This was brought home most forcibly at a Glee Club concert recently given in a city not far from Brunswick. In the audience were a number of Bowdoin undergraduates who showed their "devotion" to the college by keeping their seats while the clubs sang Bowdoin Beata. Perhaps it would have been embarrassing for those men to stand up if they were two or three in number and the only Bowdoin men in the hall. But to refuse to stand with thirty or forty more loyal Bowdoin men makes embarrassment seem a little bit feminine. We all regret that we haven't more college songs, but it does not matter how many more we do have, Bowdoin Beata will remain the one to which all hats shall be doffed. We hope that in the future whenever this song is sung loyalty will vanquish embarrassment and that all Bowdoin men will show their colors by responding to the song in the right way.

Annual Dance of the Phi Chi Fraternity

Edward H. Snow, '14, of Brunswick, from Kappa Sigma.

The guests present were Mrs. W. T. Hammond of Portland; Miss Maude Coombs of Vinalhaven; Miss Madeline Bird, of Rockland; Miss Mildred F. Lombard of Bridgton; Miss Marion T. Swift, of Gardiner; Mrs. Ira R. Smith, of Brunswick; Miss Inez Webster, of Lewiston; Miss Ruth Dearborn, of Dover, N. H.; Miss Florence Hastings, of Auburn; Miss Mildred Colbath, of Dover, N. H.; Miss Genevieve Dwinal, of Auburn; Miss Helen O’Neil, of Portland; Miss Ernestine Thompson, of Springfield; Miss Minnie K. Murphy, of Berlin, N. H.; Miss Catherine Johnson, of Portland; Miss Elizabeth O’Connor, of Augusta; Miss Mollie Giveen, of Topsham; Miss Mabel Laws of Brunswick; Miss Ethel Reed, of Auburn; Miss Eleanor Wescott, of Portland; Miss Rene Buck of Harrison; Miss Mary Mattocks, of Portland; Miss Abba Harris, of Portland; Miss Lilly Prett, of Brunswick; Miss Hazel Lord, of Portland; Miss Grace Harris of Portland; Miss Alice Blake, of Richmond; and Miss Anna Snow, of Brunswick.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

At Sunday chapel of Feb. 25, Rev. G. C. DeMott, pastor of the Congregational Church of Bath, preached and a quartette from the same church rendered two selections. Rev. Mr. DeMott said in part, that among all the fine things in this world nothing fills the recesses of a man’s soul with such satisfaction as the moral struggle to be a good man. When we die, shall we die as moral traitors? Great wars are over but moral wars will never cease. If a man loves his emperor, then all his efforts will be devoted to the emperor’s cause. This is well illustrated in the instance of the siege of Port Arthur; the Japanese were successful only after a long struggle against the obstacles of modern warfare. Their love for their emperor was such that they expected and desired to die for him. So our love for our Lord should be such that we shall be devoted to His cause.

WASHINGTON ALUMNI DINNER

The thirtieth annual dinner of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Washington, was held in that city on the evening of Tuesday, February twentieth, at the Hotel Raleigh. At the dinner about thirty-five were present. Congressman Frederick C. Stevens, of Minneapolis, presided. The first speaker was Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, a very warm personal friend of the late Senator Frye, who gave a most interesting address on the work and character of his distinguished colleague. Senator Nelson brought out the fact that Senator Frye was not only an unusually able speaker; but that of all the men whom he had known in a long public career, the Senator from Maine was the best legislator; that is, he could put legislation through the Senate. Congressman McGillicuddy, of the second district of Maine, spoke next, and brought out the fact that in all his long career Senator Frye had never had to go into a contest for a nomination. Mr. McGillicuddy spoke of the respect and regard in which Senator Frye was held by members of the opposite party. Senator Johnson, of Maine, the newly-elected President of the Association, spoke of the work of Bowdoin men in Washington, and of the fact that the Bowdoin spirit was manifested in the lives of men of public service like Thomas B. Reed and William P. Frye, as well as in the athletic victories of undergraduates. He stated that he believed very firmly in the small college and in liberal education; and said that no matter what a man’s future career was to be, he believed it should be founded on a basis of classical training. General Spear, Richard F. Dole, of the Class of 1902, and Joseph C. White, of the Class of 1911, spoke briefly. The College was represented by Dean Sills.

The newly elected officers of the Association are as follows: President, Senator Charles F. Johnson, ’79; Vice-Presidents, Hon. Frederick C. Stevens, ’82, and Hon. Daniel J. McGillicuddy, ’81; Treasurer, General Ellis Spear, ’58; Recording Secretary, Rev. Frank Sewall, ’58; Corresponding Secretary, Chas. H. Hastings, ’91.

JOINT BANQUET OF COLBY AND BOWDOIN

CHAPTERS OF ZETA PSI

The third annual joint banquet of Chi Chapter of Colby and Lambda Chapter of Bowdoin of Zeta Psi, was held Tuesday evening, Feb. 20, at the Augusta House, in Augusta. There were about ninety present, besides a large number of alumni from both chapters the active members were present en masse. The occasion was enlivened by the singing of college and fraternity songs. Instrumental music was furnished by Dennis’ Orchestra.

The post-prandial exercises were brilliant and sparkling, the speakers all being thoroughly alive to the occasion and helping to make the banquet the most successful of the joint banquets held by the fraternity. The toastmaster was Lyman A. Cousens, of Portland, Bowdoin, ’02; and the speakers were: Frank G. Farrington, Esq., Augusta, Bowdoin, ’94; Clyde R. Chapman, Fairfield, Bowdoin, ’12; Hon. Payson Smith, Augusta, Tafts, ’97; Walter J. Rideout, Dover, Colby, ’12; Prof. William E. Lunt, Brunswick, Bowdoin, ’04; Harry Kidder, Waterville, Colby, ’11; Herbert M. Waldron, New Brunswick, N. J., Rutgers, ’93; Harry L. Bagley, Boston, Bowdoin, ’91; and Fred H. Nymeyer, New York City, University of Illinois, ’11, who is the traveling secretary of the fraternity.

The banquet committee was: From the Colby Chapter, W. B. Carroll, ’13, chairman, John A. Bag- nall, ’12, and from the Bowdoin Chapter, Richard E. Foss, ’12, chairman. Carl B. Timmleke, ’12, and Robert W. Belknap, ’13.
A COMMUNICATION

Editor of the Orient:

Dear Sir: Many of our undergraduate institutions at Bowdoin have lately received criticism. Much of this criticism has been favorable; much has been adverse. However, this attitude of the student body and alumni, is, it seems, most commendable. It is one of the best signs of progress. We can never hope to be perfect in any way, nor do we care to be. That which is perfect is in a sad state, indeed. Yet we can strive for perfection; we can "hitch our wagon to a star" and live on, attaining those ends for which Bowdoin is famous.

That phase of our undergraduate life which, judging from the past, we might believe to be well cared for, but which at present is in a truly sad condition, is our social life. By this I do not mean the part the fraternities play in this regard; rather the social life of the brotherhood as a whole, that of Bowdoin.

Under this category come the College Tea and the Junior Assembly. First let us consider the Tea. Time after time you will meet an undergraduate who has spent from two to four years ‘within the pale’ of the pines, who will smilingly inform you that he has “never yet attended one of those ‘pamphandle’ functions.” Very often, too, this naïve confession comes from a man who is a leader in college activities. O nobilis adolescentis, how brave is thy stand! Our Alma Mater is striving to send out men fit to move in any circle. At her winter receptions there is a delightfully wholesome atmosphere that can be had nowhere else. Are we justified in slighting this, the most gracious and refined privilege she offers?

As for the Junior Assembly, happy as these occasions are, I believe there is much room for improvement. Perhaps the greatest need here is for better decorating. Gaudy dress is never desirable; but at the last assembly there were far too few banners, pennants, streamers and pillows in evidence. The gay college atmosphere was lessened on this account. I would also suggest that instead of the present vogue whereby fifty or sixty fellows must swarm about the caterer’s table at intermission if they are to get refreshments for their guests and themselves, there be at least two people engaged to serve. Much unnecessary confusion would be avoided in this way. Lastly, in the gallery there is room for criticism; also room for the orchestra. Here it has been the custom for those who were not dancing to sit lazily about, stare at the dancers, pass comment, etc. It seems to me that this is an awkward sight at such an affair. There is ample opportunity for every fellow in college to attend at least one of these dances during his college course. For the sake of propriety, I think the “gallery gods” might well make way for the orchestra, which would leave a place for the patronesses on the platform below.

These remarks, Mr. Editor, are given in a way of friendly suggestion, and I trust will be so received. Soon we will have a new hall in the building now under construction. The better we are prepared to enter the new auditorium, the more enjoyment we shall receive from it. Our best is the least we can show for Bowdoin.

ANOTHER SENIOR.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On Thursday evening March 7, Mr. William I. Cole, ’81, will speak on “Christianity and Poverty.” Mr. Cole has been Secretary of the famous South End House in Boston since 1894 which gives him the power to speak from practical experience on this vital topic.

Two boxes of magazines have been collected by the Freshman Religious Committee and sent to the Sailors’ Haven in Charlestown where they are distributed to vessels starting on long cruises.

SPECIAL LENTEN MEETINGS

During Lent short meetings will be held in the Y.M.C.A. room. These meetings will be held from one to half-past six o’clock, led by the following men: March 1st President Hyde. March 15th Dean Sills. March 20th Rev. J. H. Quint. March 27th Prof. Mitchell.

CALENDAR

FRIDAY, MARCH 1
8.00 Musical Clubs’ Concert at Hallowell.
8.00 Second Bradbury Debate in Memorial Hall.

5.00 Sunday Chapel, conducted by President Hyde.

TUESDAY, MARCH 5
8.00 Musical Clubs’ Concert at Richmond.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7

College Notes

Leon Lippincott, ’10, was on the campus last Sunday.

A meeting of the Gibbons’ Club was held last Monday evening.

On account of illness Prof. Nixon was unable to meet his classes the first of the week.

Prof. Alvord had an article in the Brunswick Record of Feb. 23, on Good Roads in Maine.

Prof. Nixon will read a paper before the New England Classical Association at its meeting at Yale University in April.

The second monthly meeting of the Ibis was held Friday evening, Feb. 23, at the home of Prof. W. E. Lunt on Page Street. The speaker of the evening was “Ike” Martin, ’03 of Harvard University, who spoke on South America and particularly of his travels there. His talk was followed by a general discussion and refreshments were served.
Invitations have been extended to the track managers of the preparatory schools of Maine to send teams to the Bowdoin Invitation Meet to be held in the spring.

A preliminary meeting for the purpose of forming a Democratic Club in Bowdoin College was held in the Deutscher Verein room in Hubbard Hall, Monday evening.

The trials for the fencing team are now being run off. About 15 men are now out, from whom the team will be picked. The first bout will be with Harvard, March 2.

Alan Cole, '14, assistant track manager, will be present at a meeting of the executive committee of the New England Athletic Association to be held in Springfield, Mass., on March 6.

The board track events of the Indoor Meet will be as follows: 300-yard run, 726-yard run and mile-run. There will be no low hurdles. Men out must have trained during this week.

A concert, under the auspices of the Saturday Club, was given in the Town Hall, Thursday evening, by the Commonwealth Avenue Church Quartet of Boston. Among the selections rendered were: "In a Persian Garden" and Nonsense Songs.

The second monthly meeting of the Deutscher Verein was held at the Eagle Hotel last Saturday evening. Professor Files gave an informal talk on European travel illustrated by some wonderfully clear stereopticon views from snapshots he made.

Andrews, '12, awoke at 5 o'clock, Monday morning, to find the entire couch in his living room on fire. He quickly carried the whole thing into the hall and dropped it out the window, so no further damage was done to the room. The board coverings of the steps to the "End," however, were slightly burned.

The Pastime opened last Friday afternoon after having been closed since the first of January on account of the epidemic of small-pox in town. The danger of the disease spreading is now thought to be over, only one new case having developed in more than two weeks and the ban on public entertainments has accordingly been lifted.

Four Bowdoin graduates, Daniel L. Gould, '03, James N. Emery, '05, Stuart O. Symonds, '05, and Paul H. Powers, '08, were among the ten successful candidates who passed the examinations for admission to the Maine bar, held at Bangor the second week of February, and will be admitted to practice at the next term of court for their respective counties.

The Western Association of Bowdoin Alumni has been organized in Denver, Col., largely through the influence of Dr. George F. Libbey, '91, and Paul A. Buttrick, '97. The following officers have been elected: President, Hon. R. H. Gilmore, '83; vice-president, Dr. George F. Libbey, '91; secretary and treasurer, Paul A. Buttrick, '97. On Saturday, Mar. 2, will be held a dinner of the new Association, at which plans for the future will be made.

President Hyde spoke at the annual meeting of the New England Watch and Ward Society, held in Old South Church in Boston, Sunday evening. His topic was The Social Evil, and he described six methods of treating it: The educational, the social in the narrow sense, the sociological, the economic, the moral, and the protective. President Hyde gave an important place to the educational method, which consists of educating the child in matters of sex sometime between the ages of 8 and 12.

RESOLUTIONS

HALL OF THETA DELTA CHI.

On Saturday, February tenth, the ETA Charge of Theta Delta Chi lost from its rolls Brother Henry Asa Wing of the delegation of 1880.

Brother Wing was born in Waterville, and was fifty-eight years of age last September. In college he was prominent in literary and athletic affairs, taking part in the '88 Prize Speaking and being one of the six commencement speakers of his class.

On leaving college Brother Wing studied for the bar, but though fitted, never applied for admission. His work was journalistic and in that he had a long and successful career, having editorial positions on the Lewiston Journal, the Bangor Commercial, the Portland Daily Press, the Pittsburg Dispatch, the Bangor Daily News, and the Lewiston Daily Sun. He was also correspondent for the Boston Herald, and the Portland Express-Advertiser.

At various times in his career, Brother Wing held public positions. He was appointed city marshal of Lewiston in 1883, in 1892, and in 1904. He was on the staff of Governor Powers with the rank of colonel, and was appointed private secretary to Brother Daniel J. McGillicuddy, though ill health prevented his entrance into the duties of this position.

For many years Brother Wing has been a familiar figure on the Athletic Field, and he has served as an Alumnus Member of the Athletic Council.

To Mrs. Wing, as well as to the son, brother, and two sisters of Brother Wing, the Charge extends its sympathy. To us he was a loved and honored Brother and we mourn his loss with them.

PHILIP P. COLE,
PHILIP S. WOOD,
MAURICE W. HAMBLEN,
For the Charge.

Brunswick, Maine.
February twenty-eighth, nineteen twelve.

The recent death of Col. Henry A. Wing of the Class of 1880 has removed from the membership of the Bowdoin Athletic Council one of its most highly esteemed and valued members. While an undergraduate Col. Wing took an active interest in athletics and has for years been connected with the Athletic Executive of the College.

Being one of Maine's best known newspaper men he was intimately acquainted with the athletics of the State, in which he took the greatest interest.

In his death Bowdoin loses a highly honored and loyal Alumnus, and the Council a worker whose advice and presence will be greatly missed. In behalf of the Council we extend our sincere sympathy to his family and express our deepest appreciation for his work.

T. E. EMERY,
PHILIP S. WOOD,
For the Council.

Alumni Department

'89.—Emerson L. Adams, since 1905 the efficient and successful superintendent of schools at Lincoln, R. I., has been elected to a similar position at Central Falls, R. I., a much larger and a more important field. Mr.
Adams is spoken of by the Pawtucket Times as “one of the most noted schoolmen in Northern Rhode Island.”

'91.—Lewis A. Burleigh has entered the firm of Burleigh and Flynt, publishers of the Kennebec Journal, Augusta, Maine, he having purchased a quarter interest in the business.
Mr. Burleigh was admitted to the bar in 1894, and at once entered into a partnership with Joseph Williamson. In severing his connection with the law firm of Williamson, Burleigh and McLean, and relinquishing the active practice of law, Mr. Burleigh is entering a field with which he is not unfamiliar, his father and brother having been members of the firm for many years.

'95.—H. E. Holmes, Esq., has been appointed state librarian of Maine.

'96.—John Clair Minot, an editor of the Youth’s Companion, and Miss Marion Bowman of Augusta, Me., were married Wednesday evening, Feb. 21, in the presence of about 50 guests at the home of the bride’s uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Akeroyd, 1010
Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Reverend
John C. Hall of the Medfield Congregational Church, officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle. Her matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Harold B. Warde of Medfield. The best man was Harlan M. Bisbee of Exeter, N. H.
After the reception, the couple left for a trip
South. They will reside at 83 Pickney St., Boston.

Mr. Minot has been with the Youth’s Companion since 1909, he having been with the Kennebec Journal previous to 1909.

'01.—Judge Clarence Hale of the United States District Court, has appointed George C. Wheeler, a Portland Attorney-at-law, as referee in bankruptcy for Cumberland and York counties. Mr. Wheeler was admitted to the bar in September, 1904, in Franklin county and for one year practiced law in the office of Hon. Joseph C. Holman of Farmington, but for the past year has been located in Portland, having for a time been in the office of Albert
S. Woodman and subsequently by himself. In politics, Mr. Wheeler is a republican and for the past year he has been a member of the common council from ward 6 and at the recent election was re-elected for another term.

'02.—Mr. Harvey Dow Gibson of New York, has recently been elected assistant to the president of the Liberty National Bank in New York city. Before entering upon his new duties, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson will spend a month in Europe.

'10.—William E. Atwood has purchased an interest in the A. H. Scott corporation, custom shirt manufacturers at 273 Middle St., Portland. Before entering this field, Mr. Atwood was engaged in the manufacture of paper boxes at Auburn, Me., where he held the position of sales manager for H. Wesley Hutchins Company.

THE BRADBURY DEBATES

The Bradbury Debating contest closed with the debate Friday evening, Feb. 28, when the affirmative team, composed of Burleigh C. Rodick, '12, Richard E. Simpson, '14, and Morton W. Greene, '13, was given the decision over the negative team, composed of Elwyn C. Gage, '14, Walter F. Eberhardt, '13, and William R. Spinney, '12. The first prize was also awarded to the affirmative team, while the second prize was awarded to the winners of Wednesday night's debate, Fred D. Wish, Jr., '13, Herbert E. Locke, '12, and Paul H. Douglas, '13, who supported the affirmative against James A. Norton, '13, Paul H. Emery, '13, and Earl F. Maloney, '12. From the four teams which debated six men and two alternates were chosen to represent Bowdoin in the Triangular Debating League. These men are: P. H. Douglas, '13; E. C. Gage, '14; M. W. Greene, '13; E. F. Maloney, '12; B. C. Rodick, '12; F. D. Wish, Jr., '13; with J. A. Norton, '13, and W. R. Spinney, '12, as alternates.

Prof. Wm. Hawley Davis presided over the debates and the judges were President Wm. DeWitt Hyde, Prof. Warren B. Catlin, Principal Herbert E. Cole of Morse High School, Lieut. Marston Niles of Topsham, and Samuel L. Forsaith of Brunswick.

Two-thirds of the prize, which amounts to sixty dollars, will be awarded as the first prize, and the remaining one-third as the second prize.

One team will debate against New York University at New York and support the negative of the proposition; the other team will support the affirmative against Wesleyan at Brunswick, March 28.

CLASSICAL CLUB MEETING

The Classical Club held a meeting, Tuesday evening, March 5, at the Theta Delta Chi House. Dean Sills and Robert D. Cole, '12, spoke on "Latin Lyrics of the Middle Ages," and a general discussion of the subject by the members of the club followed. Refreshments of ice-cream, cake, and coffee were served.

MASS MEETING

Thursday, March 14, at 7 o'clock there will be a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. room to discuss questions of interest to the whole student body. What can be done to improve our undergraduate life? The following speakers will have something to say about it which will be worth hearing: L. G. Means, '12, W. A. McCormick, '12, C. R. Crowell, '13, and P. H. Douglas, '13.

MUSICAL CLUB TRIP

The musical clubs returned Friday night from one of the most successful Maine trips that Bowdoin clubs have ever taken. Five concerts were given altogether, at Bangor, Oldtown, Fairfield, Skowhegan, and Hallowell. Everywhere the crowds were large and very appreciative, the largest being at Bangor, where about six hundred people attended the concert. The work of both clubs was excellent. The work of the soloists, Newell, '12, Tibbetts, '12, and Mason, '14, was warmly received everywhere. "Artie" Welch became just as popular with the audiences encountered on the trip as he is with Bowdoin audiences, and that is saying a good deal. The "Pall Mall Quartette," which sang a little verse about the home industry of each town, took the crowds by storm everywhere. "Hod" Barton's clog dance in one of the mandolin club selections was one of the features of the program. Both of the clubs, and the soloists as well, were obliged to respond to encores at every concert.

ALPHA DELTA PHI CONVENTION

The national convention of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity was held in Springfield, Mass., on Feb. 21, 22, and 23, with headquarters at Hotel Kimball. The occasion was opened on Wednesday night, Feb. 21, by a smoker and reception. A dinner was given on the following night at the Springfield Country Club to the delegates and visitors, after which they attended the theatre(5,4),(992,996) lies of 1911.” On Friday morning the delegates went to Amherst where a buffet lunch was served then at the Amherst chapter house and in the evening the annual banquet was held at Hotel Kimball. The Bowdoin chapter was represented by C. O. Bailey, Jr., ’12, and E. L. Morriss, ’12, as delegates and also by H. C. L. Ashby, ’12, C. R. Bull, ’13, and Curtis Tuttle, ’13.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

By the annual award of scholarships, one hundred and twenty-two of the undergraduates received scholarships, aggregating $9,398.17 and varying in size from $45 to $200. Fourteen scholarships were reserved to be assigned later to applicants whose rank in the second semester may be sufficient to warrant it. The number and size of the several scholarships awarded is as follows: One, $200; five, $112.50; one, $106.67; one, $105; seventeen, $100; fourteen, $90; forty-seven, $75; one, $70; one, $67.50; one, $62.50; two, $60; twelve, $50; and nineteen, $45.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB MEETING

The Democratic Club of Bowdoin College held a meeting in the debating room in Hubbard Hall on Monday evening. Alfred H. Sweet, ’13, presided. A constitution was read and adopted. Dean Sills then gave a brief talk on the presidential situation this year. Officers were elected as follows: President, Frederick S. Wiggin, ’13, of Thomaston; Secretary, Alfred H. Sweet, ’13, of Portland; Treasurer, Fred D. Wish, ’13, of Portland. The above, together with Chester G. Abbott, ’13, and Francis X. Callahan, ’14, are to serve as an executive committee.

1914 ELECTION

A meeting of the Sophomore Class was held Wednesday noon, for the election of squad leader and pianist. The men eligible for squad leader were: Francis T. Garland of Bangor, Frank R. Loeffler of Lisbon Falls, and Arthur L. Pratt of Bath.

1915 CLASS MEETING

The class of 1915 held a meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 28, and elected Gordon P. Floyd of Deering, leader of the Indian Club squad, and George A. McWilliams of Bangor, class pianist.

PRESIDENT HYDE ON THE COLLEGE

The following article concerning colleges in general and Bowdoin in particular was written by President Hyde for the New York Sunday Times of Feb. 4, 1912. It is full of interesting facts for every Bowdoin man and is printed here as it was first published.

Colleges don’t grow of themselves; they are made; or rather they are always in the making; for nothing deteriorates so fast as a college that is left to stand still.

For illustration of how a college is made I shall take the one I know best; not that it is better than others which are being made on similar lines; but because to name others might seem invidious to those not named; and also because some of these better colleges are located near great centres of population, and if it were known how good they are they might become overcrowded and spoiled. For the difficulty of making a first-rate college as distinct from a university, increases as the square of the number of students after that number passes four hundred. Bowdoin, however, is still a little inside the danger line, and its location in a corner of the country is sufficient protection against sudden invasion, even if the secrets of its making are disclosed.

Many persons think that money is the making of a college, and that money raising is the President’s chief problem. Far from it. Money is not the essential thing; and raising money for an honest college is nowadays the easiest thing in the world. Bowdoin College, for instance, has received a million and a half dollars in the past twenty years, yet it has very few wealthy alumni; and no one has spent in its behalf as many as twenty days in all these twenty years, on the road in solicitation. This average of seventy-five thousand dollars a year has come from interested alumni and friends, and from public benefactors like Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Fayerweather, Mr. Carnegie, and Mr. Rockefeller’s General Education Board, who looked into its educational and financial management and found it sound.

Neither do buildings make a college. Bowdoin College in this same period has received buildings costing half a million, and has another hundred-thousand-dollar building in process of erection. But all of these, except the last, came without solicitation.

Neither do numbers make a college. They, too, are easily secured by lowered standards of admission and retention, and by scholarships promised in advance of evidence of the scholarly achievement they profess to represent. That policy will make a college faster than any other; and every boy who wants an education, as distinct from merely going to college, will steer clear of an institution which by easy admission and retention, or any special inducement, confesses that numbers rather than education is its end and aim.

If neither money nor buildings or number of students make a college, what does? Great teachers are at the same time great men. To find them is not easy. When President Tucker was making Dartmouth, I happened to say to him that I was looking for a professor. He replied: "Out of fifty men you hear of, there will not be more than two whom you would take on any terms." After one has weeded out the legion of mere research men who are utterly useless in a college—the men who are not teachers and the teachers who are not men—he is lucky to find even 4 per cent, remaining. It is usually a matter of three months' search to pick out a single good instructor—much harder work than to pick up the endowment for his salary. When one who is making a college finds a man who knows both his subject and his students' minds, and has a passion for bringing the two together, he will, if wise, offer him considerably more than the average institution is paying for that grade of instructor. For instance, last year Bowdoin College paid $2,000 for a man with only two years' experience in teaching, and $1,800 for another with only one year's experience and no degree beyond that of A.M. Both men were wanted by both Faculty and students in the institutions where they had achieved marked success, but real or supposed justice to other men of the same grade made it impossible for these institutions to promote them as rapidly as they really deserved, and substantial increase of salary, with the title of Professor in one case and Assistant Professor in the other, secured them. Of course, we could have filled these places with instructors of equal or nearly equal training and teaching experience for ten or twelve hundred dollars apiece. But the difference between a first-rate and a fourth-rate teacher, between a man whose success is certain and one whose success is doubtful, is so great immediately, and so enormous if extended throughout a period of years, that it does not much matter whether you pay a young man in his first few years one thousand or two thousand dollars, if you get a man who is a real teacher. The rule is to consider no man whose intellectual and personal success is not absolutely sure—and then to pay the right man whatever is necessary to secure him.

A BOWDOIN BUREAU

On February 24th Edward O. Achorn, Esq., '81, gave an informal dinner to a small group of Bowdoin men at his home in Jamaica Plain. The discussion of the evening centered around the question "What can Bowdoin men of Boston do to further their own interests, one with another, and the interests of the College?"

As a result of the discussion it was decided to start a Bowdoin Bureau which, for the present, will be located a 120 Boylston St., with Geo. C. Purington, '04, as manager.

The purpose of the Bureau may be summed up in its motto. "We work for Bowdoin and for Bowdoin men." While the details have not been worked out, it may be said that the Bureau will have a permanent address list of the graduates around Boston, which will always be at the disposal of any of the alumni who may wish to look up a man. It will endeavor to keep those men who are unable to attend Bowdoin gatherings informed of the proceedings; it will also send around reminders when any Bowdoin teams or the musical clubs are coming to Boston, and in general will keep the alumni informed of all things of interest.

Another function of the Bureau will be to look after newly graduated alumni and endeavor to see as many of them as possible placed in good positions in Boston. Finally, a systematic and thorough campaign will be inaugurated to send some of the best material in Massachusetts to Bowdoin College. Further details of the work will be published from time to time in the Orient.

The Bureau is most eager to receive suggestions and information from any and every source. Any such should be addressed to Bowdoin Bureau, Room 518, 120 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

THE JANUARY Q UI LL

The grace and merit of the opening number of this Quill, the Sonnet "To H. L. C.," get their surest approbation from the reader's instantly aroused sympathy with the writer's mood and his answering admiration for the writer's subject. There is an intrinsic beauty in such a tribute from pupil to teacher that puts it far above the touch of commentary. So far as form is concerned, the first half of the sonnet is, as it is naturally suited by the deep-felt and spontaneous praise. There is, however, a certain unsatisfactoriness about the vague line "And on that soul how glows the word complete!" and the line "enshrined within the secret place of tears," both in meaning and in relation to the rest.

The essay on Byron's dramatic work is a very able and suggestive excursion (albeit somewhat diffuse) into a neglected field of literature, the "closet" drama, which includes so much good poetry and so many poor plays. This essay is a good example of what might be called the higher criticism in literary analysis. For with no more rehearsing of the contents of the plays considered, it shows the critic's reaction upon them; it creates in turn an atmosphere which splendidly reflects Byron's own. The language of our essayist in describing scenes and character is indicative of an absorption of that Byronic spirit which was at once wild, sweeping, masterful, gloomy, melodious. The writer meets with two of his standards for judging Byron's drama; he is rather casual and a bit arbitrary—in settling the third, the "final merit of his literary legacy." Byron's true status, not yet determined, is probably somewhere in the realm of appreciation between our essayist's "dethroned monarch, a man of diminished fame," and the adulation of William Watson for "that fiery soul" whose going "left the air reverberating to this day its loud despair."

Some obvious misprints occur, a particularly impish one being "a profane and detestable work." Quotation marks cannot justify the needless incongruity of "sloppiness" in second paragraph. The comparison of Byron to the Elizabethans which seems unaccountable to the writer may be due in part

Now for the Campaign

The Democrats in college have organized a club. The ORIENT extends them greetings and wishes them all success. With two political clubs arranging for speakers we ought to be able to have some good meetings and hear some good expositions of both sides of the political questions of the day. All students, whatever may be their faith, should not fail to attend all of the lectures which are forthcoming.

Unsupported Activities

There are certain college activities which none of us would care to see done away with or even neglected to such an extent as to have them fall below the Bowdoin standard, and yet they are of such a nature that such support as they get must be given them rather consciously and with a somewhat religious cultivation.

During the past week two Bradbury debates were held in Memorial Hall. These were preliminaries to the intercollegiate contests with Wesleyan and New York Universities. There is no doubt that all Bowdoin men would be deeply concerned if they thought that the college was not making a consistent fight for victories in these debates and yet the men who tried out for the 'varsity teams last week spoke to a handful of loyal souls strewed over benches enough to hold a multitude. The result was inevitable. The speakers, lacking what could be called an audience, found it impossible to put into their speeches the best that was in them and the debates were disquietingly "slow" considering the formidable work before the teams in the coming contests.

Undergraduate debates are not renowned as producers of excitement, but so long as the college puts out teams to represent it in this field it should do so with a characteristic spirit of support in order that the teams may have every advantage in preparing for their work. We believe that every student owes it to his college to attend such events as the Bradbury debates.

The Newspaper Room

So well managed a department as the College library offers but little room for criticism. We believe, however, that improvements could be made in the newspaper room. The room is now furnished with a representative list of local papers, as well as three Boston and two New York papers. The students thus get only an Eastern interpretation of political, industrial and other news. New England sentiment upon news of a national character is quite often at variance with public sentiment in other parts of the country. The present attitude of the New England press toward certain political complications is a striking example of this. Why, then, would it not be well to substitute for some two papers, two other papers of different political faith, one chosen perhaps from Chicago, and the other from the Far West or South?

The January Quill

What seems even upon first glance a strikingly good translation from Boileau, is seen at closer examination to have greater merit because of its careful reproduction of the original in thought, form, correspondence of metre and end-rhymes. The virtue of literalness in this form is that it keeps the restraint of the original and avoids the peculiar tendency to flippancy in "free" renderings. One line, "greeted me, etc.," is too much of a paraphrase to conform to the rest.

The breezy style of "A Tale of True Love," and its freedom from the over-seriousness and trite details of much college fiction, make it a refreshing contribution. It is a clever story, but that is a dangerous word and represents a dangerous tendency to-day. The writer has great grasp of the dramatic, much imagination and command of materials; it is to be hoped that he will not allow himself to get inspiration and themes too constantly from the lights of Broadway as reflected in the popular magazines. He seems able to write plays with real plots or at least telling one-act situations. That the Quill needs more such good stories the editor's plea makes clear but he should not "anticipate" anything about them.

That the Quill Board is prepared to appreciate the right sort is shown by the Postman's discriminating review of college fiction; and this department is unusually free from the perfunctory formulas of exchange editors. Such echoes, however, of smart-set style as "shriekingly improbable" and "sadly incoherent" can become troublesome mannerisms.

The "Gray Goose Tracks" of this Quill are really interesting and amusing even to the initiated,—which is praise very rarely deserved by their meaningless ramblings in past years. (The retention of this department has always seemed ill-advised unless it can be enlivened with real wit and serviceable "thrusts."

Much might be said in praise of the dignity of the present Quill and the evidences of good editorial judgment; but its mission as printed is "to express the literary life of the students." Does it do this when no new names appear from month to month, when only three or four men out of three hundred contribute? Is literary effort so little encouraged that it seems a futile thing? Is there danger of overconscientious editing, or any fear of editorial strictness? Here are subjects for a series of letters to the Orient where some forceful ones have appeared on other topics.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

Sunday afternoon, March 3, Bishop Codman spoke at the chapel exercises in part as follows:

"We are living in an age of great religious reaction. In past ages there has been too many creeds. Now the pendulum has swung to the other extreme. I wish to speak on a matter of vital importance, the dependence of character on creeds. The things that affect character are ideals. These are what we believe and so are creeds. Among the various kinds of ideals are the ideals of relation to one another, as in the business world, or in the political world. As the college man with splendid ideals comes in contact with the tactics of the business or political world, his ideals perhaps become lower. These lower ideals then make his political or business character. We must have high ideals and creeds, not only in our relation to others, but also in our relation to God. The ideal in this case becomes personal, just as in the case of the small boy who takes a larger boy for his ideal. Our ideal is the Saviour himself. When we come to know him and that he has a great interest in us, it affects our characters. It is what we believe that molds our characters, not what we do not believe. Your denials do not affect your character or others' characters. You are going out into the world to meet temptations that will overwhelm you, if you do not have something to hold to. A creed is what a man needs, a creed that does not lower him, but raises him up. The best possible thing is a creed on which you can depend, and depending on which, you can meet the temptations of life."

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

In the Y. M. C. A. meeting, Friday evening, March 1, representatives from Andover and Hartford Theological Seminaries, were the speakers. First, Mr. Patten of Andover, spoke on the ministry in part as follows: "There are three distinct types of man that the ministry needs to-day. First, there is the man who has made good in college, in athletics and other activities, the man with lots of "pep" and red blood. Next, there is the man who has a great deal of ambition, the man who, if he entered politics, would clean up rotten city governments, and institute sweeping reforms. Third, there is the man who is more or less of a hayseed when he enters college, but who develops into a man of solid character, who may not be known very well, but who is always at hand when he is wanted for some good work. The popular conception of a minister's life is that he has to do a lot of talking Sunday and can loaf the other six days in the week. This is far from true. The outside work that the minister and his church do is vitally important. He fights side by side with the man who is down and out, losing himself in the other man's fight, and pulling him up by his interest in the fight. If you want to be a man, the ministry is the place for you. It is a man's size job.

Mr. Holmes of Hartford Theological Seminary, then spoke, outlining the program of the Triangular Conference to be held at Hartford March 22 to 24, under the auspices of the Andover, Union, and Hartford Seminaries. The program is one of unusual promise, the speakers being men of national reputation. A cordial invitation was extended to all college men to attend this convention.

A LETTER FROM BOWDOIN, 1928

The Orient has received a letter from the six-year-old son of Henry Hill Pierce, of the Class of 1896. The son of the composer of "Bowdoin Beata" has already become a boomer for the college, as is seen from the following:

DEAR BOWDOIN—MR. PIERCE DID GO TO BOWDOIN AND HE HAS 2 BOYS AND I IS GOING AND I YOU CAN'T TELL ABOUT THAT BOY, I THINK IS GOING 2 BOWDOIN.

WILLIAM CURTIS PIERCE.

Omar P. Badger, '14, is ill at his home in Skowhegan.

Professor Nixon, who has been ill for several days, has resumed his classes.

Freshman squad practice began last Monday night. The hour for practice is, temporarily, 8 p.m.

William T. Livingston, '15, has been forced to go to his home in Bridgton because of an attack of the grippe.

The Bowdoin Glee Club is to give a concert at the new Masonic Temple in Portland on Monday, March 11.

Paul Donahue, '14, was compelled to spend several days at home last week because of an attack of the grippe.

A large track squad is practicing daily under Coach Marsh. Between 40 and 50 men are out for the various events.

The New England banquet of Zeta Psi Fraternity will be held at the American House, Boston, on Saturday, March 9.

Pictures of the managers and captains of the Bowdoin athletic teams appeared in the Portland Sunday Telegram last week.

Prof. Files spoke upon Good Roads at the second of a series of business dinners of the Portland Board of Trade on Wednesday evening, Feb. 28.

Prof. Files gave a lecture illustrated with views of Switzerland, at the Pine Street Congregational Church in Lewiston on Thursday evening, Feb. 29.

The Brunswick High School relay team is practicing daily under Coach Marsh for their race against Edward Little High School at the Indoor Meet.

Warren Eddy, '14, who has been out of college since Christmas on account of illness, was on the campus last Thursday. He expects to come back to college in two weeks.

On March 13 and 14 the New England Intercollegiate Association will meet in Boston. Alan Cole, '14, who is vice-president of the association, will represent Bowdoin.

D. Earl Gardner, '13, of Calais, represented the Bowdoin Chapter of Beta Theta Pi, at the New England Convention, held at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, on March 1.

At the annual meeting of the Maine Interdenominational Commission, held in Waterville on Tuesday, Feb. 27, President Hyde was elected president of the organization.

The Bowdoin and University of Maine Chapters of Beta Theta Pi fraternity will hold their second annual joint banquet at the Augusta House, Augusta, to-morrow evening, March 9.

Henry Adie Briggs, '12, of Gorham, has been elected captain of the fencing team. On Wednesday the first bout was held with the Pinelli Club of Augusta, and on Saturday, March 9, the first big bout is held with Harvard.

The first accident in the work of the construction of the new gymnasium was suffered by Harvey Jordan, who, while working in one of the trenches recently, had the misfortune to break his leg by being caught in a pile of earth.
Prof. Lunt served as one of the judges of the debate on Friday evening, March 1, between Portland High School and Cony High School of Augusta, which was held under the direction of the Bowdoin Debating League.

On Thursday evening, March 7, the Brunswick Dramatic Club presented as its first play, "The Amazons," by Arthur W. Pinero. The play, which was given in the town hall, was given as a closed performance, admission being limited to members of the club.

President MacCormick, '12, and General Secretary Fifield of the Y. M. C. A., have been away for a few days this week. Last Sunday President MacCormick spoke in the Congregational Church at Conway, N. H., and Monday he and Mr. Fifield organized a Y. M. C. A. at Fryeburg Academy.

The third College Tea given by the ladies of the Faculty will be held in Alumni Room, Hubbard Hall, on Friday, March 15, from 3:30 to 5:30 P.M. Students desiring to have invitations sent to their friends will leave names, together with their visiting cards, with Miss Boardman at the Cataloguing Room in the Library.

At the meeting of the Student Council on Monday evening, March 4, details of the Blanket Tax were discussed and the probable dates for the annual College Rally and for a Smoker, were chosen. The date of the Rally is April 16. The Smoker comes March 26. College matters will be discussed and it is considered best not to invite sub-freshmen.

A new feature and also one which "took well" in the concerts of the Glee Club was introduced by the "Pall Mall Quartet," composed of "Artie" Welch, "Doc" Smith, Seward Marsh, and "Tug" Eaton. The selections rendered paid tribute to Colgate's Shaving Soap, Bangor's Pine Tree Taffy, Old-town's Birchbark Canoes, Skowhegan's Sharp Edge Tools, Fairfield's Fibre Pie-plates, and Hallowell's Ladies' Shoes.

On Friday evening, March 1, in the series of debates under the direction of the Bowdoin Debating League, Cony High School of Augusta, defeated Portland High School, and Lewiston High School defeated Wilton Academy; the final debate will be between Cony High and Lewiston High. The question was: "Resolved, That a tariff for revenue only would be better for the United States than a protective tariff."

Electric lights have been installed around the board track at Cornell so that runners may practice at night.

Judge Lindsey of the Denver Juvenile Court says college men are the biggest crooks, but he qualifies this statement by saying that some of the best men he has found have been college men.

In the recent straw-ballot at Yale, Taft received 470 votes, while Wilson was second with 211 votes.

As a result of the organization of a swimming team at Annapolis, there are less than one hundred midshipmen who do not take part in some kind of organized sport.

It is said that President Hibben of Princeton is strongly opposed to compulsory chapel.

The oldest student at West Virginia University is a farmer of 59.

In the Harvard Graduate Schools Bowdoin is particularly well represented. In the graduate school of Arts and Sciences only one college save Harvard herself, has more men than Bowdoin, that being Yale. In the Applied Science department Bowdoin is represented and but four other colleges have any more. Bowdoin is also well represented in the Law School, ranking next to Williams among the smaller institutions. In the Medical School we have six men, and only six other colleges have larger representations. There are in all about thirty-five Bowdoin men in the Harvard Graduate Schools.

Bowdoin students will be glad to know that the work on the new theatre which Brunswick is to have will begin immediately. It is to be situated on the corner of Maine and Cumberland streets.

The first chess match between the faculty and the undergraduate chess team at Yale took place recently. There were nine matches, two of which were drawn. The faculty finally won by a single point, after a match of 4 1-2 hours. President Hadley was defeated by his opponent, E. E. Stearns, '12, of Cleveland.

Of the forty-nine men who are entitled to wear the University "P" at Princeton, ten came from St. Paul's School, Concord. Hill School and Exeter tie for second place with six men each.

During the coming year, teams representing 22 colleges belonging to the National Rifle Association, will hold matches to shoot for the Inter-collegiate championship of the country.
A club has been formed among the athletes at Iowa for the purpose of keeping the members in good standing in their studies. Those in danger of flunking will be tutored by the "sharks."

According to statistics taken by the Yale News, there are 461 student publications being issued at the colleges and universities of the country. The great majority of these are monthlies, there being 286 of these issued; 85 colleges publish weeklies; 40 colleges publish bi-weeklies, and only 19 publish a daily paper.

"Mike" Murphy, the famous athletic trainer of the University of Pennsylvania, has announced his intention to resign at the end of the present college year.

A new rule has gone into effect at Columbia, which forbids smoking in any form.

Purdue has decided to give a gold medal to all students who represent the college for two or more years in athletics.

'40.—Rev. Dr. Edward Robie, the venerable pastor of the Congregational Church of Greenland, N. H., celebrated the 60th anniversary of his pastorate on Feb. 24. The church over which Dr. Robie presides was organized in 1707. Dr. Robie is the seventh pastor of the church and he enjoys the distinction of having filled only one pastorate since being ordained to the ministry.

Rev. Dr. Robie was born in Gorham, Me., April 5, 1821, being the son of Thomas S. and Clarissa Robie. In 1851, he was ordained to the ministry in Greenland, and immediately became pastor of the Congregational Church over which he now presides and where he preaches regularly every Sunday. The following year, he married Miss Susan P. Jameson. In January, 1878, her death occurred. In 1876, the degree of D. D. was conferred upon Dr. Robie by Dartmouth College.

'74.—From the estate of Ira S. Locke, the sum of $5000 has just been given to the Children’s Hospital of Portland, Maine. This sum was given by Mr. Locke in his will to the Maine General Hospital for the orthopedic out-patient department then maintained by it; but at the time of Mr. Locke’s decease the Maine General Hospital had ceased to maintain such a department. Mrs. Locke, as executrix of her husband’s will, wishing to carry out as nearly as possible his benevolent design, has therefore given the money to the Children’s Hospital.

'05.—Mr. Stuart O. Symonds of Portland was admitted to the bar February 28 before Judge Bird. Mr. Symonds studied law in the offices of Snow, Cook and Hutchinson. He was examined before the board of legal examiners at the last meeting in Bangor, at which time he passed his examinations. His formal permission to practice came Wednesday. Mr. Symonds is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Announcement has been received of the formation of a partnership by Charles H. Gilman, ’82, and Henry Lewis, ’05, under the firm name of Charles H. Gilman & Company for the transaction of a general business in investment securities.

'11.—The engagement of W. C. Allen of Boston to Miss Marguerite Fitzgerald of Maysville, Kentucky, has been announced.

INDOOR MEET

On next Friday, March 22, the spring athletic activities of the college are begun by the annual Indoor Meet. Trials will be held in the gymnasium on Saturday, March 16, at 3:30 p.m. in the following events: High jump, pole vault, and shot-put. From the men competing the five best men in each event will be chosen to compete in the meet. All entries must be made by Saturday, March 16; ten men may be entered for each class relay race, eight of whom will run, and in all other events six men from each class may be entered, four of whom are to compete.

The Indoor Meet will open Friday afternoon at 3:30 with three out of door events on the board track: the 300 yard run, 780 yard run, and mile run. The rest of the meet will be held in Town Hall in the evening and will begin promptly at 7:30. Following is the program of events:

- Fencing Drill. Class of 1912.
- Class Relay Race. 1912 vs. 1914.
- Relay Race. Lewiston High vs. Edward Little High. (The winner to race the winner of the Brunswick High-Morse High Race).
- 20-Yard Dash. Trial Heats.
- Running High Jump.
- Broadword Drill. Class of 1913.
- Class Relay. 1913 vs. 1915.
- Putting 16 lb. Shot.
- Relay Race. Brunswick High vs. Morse High.
- 20-Yard Dash. Finals.
- Dumb Bell Drill. Class of 1914.
- Pole Vault.
- Relay Race. Finals. (Between winners of High School races.)
- Indian Club Drill. Class of 1915.
- Class Relay Races. Finals. (The previous winners to run for first and second places. The previous losers to run for third place.)

Following are the officers of the meet:
Referee: Dr. W. W. Bolster, Lewiston.
Judges of Drills: Dr. Copeland, Prof. Hutchins, Prof. Alvord.
Judges of Floor and Track Events: Prof. Nixon, Wm. F. Marsh, V. S. Blanchard of Bates.
Timers: Dr. Whittier, Dr. Loomis, L. McFarland, '11.
Starter: B. C. Morrill.
Announcer: W. A. MacCormick, '12.
Clerk of Course: H. L. Robinson, '11.
Assistant Clerks of Course: G. W. Badger, '15 and M. H. Kuhn, '15.

In an interview with Captain R. D. Cole of the 1912 track team he stated that the entries for the senior class in the dashes would probably be McKenney, R. Cole, Smith, and Kern. In the 300-yard run the entries will probably be Cole and Gray and in the 780-yard run will be Wilson, who ought to make a good race. The probable men in the mile-run are Timlake and Auten; high jump, Millin; hurdles, Smith, McKenney and R. Cole; shot put, Kern and Smith; pole vault, Smith. The seniors having won the cup twice, it is necessary that they win it this time in order to hold it as the property of the class.

Captain Emery, of the 1913 team, said that the juniors are rather weak in the weights and pole vault, but in the runs they ought to make up to put them in the lead. Hall is in the mile run; Emery and Walker in the 780-yard run; Haskell and Skolfield ought to "figure" in the 300-yard run; C. Tuttle will enter the hurdles; and Skolfield will run in the 20-yard dash.

Captain Donahue of the 1914 team stated that he could not name his entries but that the sophomores intend to do their best for the cup.

Captain Smith of the 1915 team, said that as most of his men have never competed before in an indoor meet, it is rather uncertain what place they will get, but that they hope to make a good showing.
CONCERT IN PORTLAND

On Monday evening, in Pythian Temple, Portland, the Bowdoin Musical Clubs gave a concert similar to those given in the recent Maine trip. The audience was large and appreciative. Tibbetts, ’12, who gave a tenor solo, and Newell, ’12, who played a cornet solo, were features of the evening. "Artie" Welch, who gave selected readings, was just as popular as ever, and the audience called him back again and again.

The concert was given under the auspices of the Alpha Delta Sigma fraternity of Portland High School. At the close of the program an informal dance took place, in which a large number participated.

BOWDOIN FENCING

On Friday afternoon, March 8, the Bowdoin fencing team lost to Harvard in the Hemenway Gymnasium, Cambridge, the score being eight bouts to one. Bowdoin's one point came in the second round when Briggs defeated G. B. Wilbur of Harvard, after an extra period. In the other two rounds the Harvard men made a clean sweep:

The summary:
First round: Boyd (H) defeated Briggs (B); Wilbur (H) defeated Warren (B); Loomis (H) defeated Holt (B).
Second round: Briggs defeated Wilbur; Loomis defeated Warren; Boyd defeated Holt.
Third Round: Loomis defeated Briggs; Boyd defeated Warren; Wilbur defeated Holt.

On the following (Saturday) afternoon the Bowdoin team held a series of informal bouts with fencers of the Fenway Studio in Back Bay, Boston. Nine or ten bouts were played, but no formal record of the score was kept. The Fenway team was in excellent condition and easily excelled the Bowdoin men, though the latter showed good fight.

MEETING OF N. E. I. A. A.

Bowdoin was represented at the recent meeting of the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association in Springfield by Alan Cole '14, Assistant Manager of the Track Team. At the meeting plans for the annual spring meet were discussed. The meet will be held May 17 and 18 at Springfield under the auspices of the Springfield Intercollegiate Alumni Committee, of which H. P. Chapman, Bowdoin, '06, is a member. The referee of the meet will be announced in two weeks. It was voted to change the name of the Association, so that "Intercollegiate" should be spelled as two words, "Inter Collegiate." A committee was appointed to inspect cross-country courses for the spring cross-country race. Cedric Crowell, '13, manager of the Track Team, has been elected Vice-President of the Association, in place of Assistant Manager Cole, who was elected through a misunderstanding. Cole was elected to the executive committee.

IBIS LECTURE

Professor W. W. Lawrence, Ph.D., Bowdoin, '98, of Columbia University, will lecture to-night in Memorial Hall at eight o'clock. His subject will be "Maurice Maeterlinck: Old Tales for New."

BOWDOIN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

At its annual meeting in March the Bowdoin Club of Boston, elected officers for 1912-13 as follows: President, John Clair Minot, '96; Secretary, Geo. E. Kimball, '04; Assistant Secretary, Geo. P. Hyde, '08; Executive Committee, Dr. C. R. C. Borden, Med., '96; J. E. Hicks, '95; Francis S. Dane, '96, and Edward Stanwood, Jr., '08. The club, which is an inside circle of the general alumni association of Boston and vicinity, meets the first Friday evening of each month at the University Club, and for the past year the attendance has ranged from 50 to 100. There are no dues, and any alumnus or former student is welcomed to these informal monthly dinners. The club has been in existence nearly 30 years, and no other college has maintained so long a similar organization in Boston. For the past year the president has been Ellis Spear, Jr., '98, and the secretary, Dr. J. A. Furbish, '02.

CLASS ELECTIONS

The Class of 1912 have elected Arthur Deehan Welch of Portland, Vice-President of the class in place of George F. Wilson, who has left college to join the Toronto team of the Eastern League. William Holt of Bridgton, has been elected squad leader and Charles F. Adams of Auburn, class pianist.
The Class of 1913 have elected John C. Carr of Frankfort, squad leader, and W. Fletcher Twombly of Reading, Mass., class pianist.

The Class of 1914 held a meeting, Wednesday, March 6, and elected Francis T. Garland of Bangor, squad leader. Herbert M. Shea of Hallowell, was elected class pianist.

JOINT BANQUET OF MAINE AND BOWDOIN

CHAPTERS OF BETA THETA PI

The second annual joint banquet of Beta Eta chapter of Maine, and Beta Sigma chapter of Bowdoin of Beta Theta Pi was held last Saturday evening at the new Augusta House at Augusta. The members of both chapters were out in a body, and a large number of alumni of both colleges were on hand for the festivities.

After the banquet, a number of speeches were made on matters of vital interest to the colleges and the fraternity. Clarence L. Newton, Wesleyan, '02, a member of the board of trustees of the fraternity, acted as toast-master. The other speakers were Henry D. Evans, Bowdoin, '01 R. H. Flynt, Maine, '04, of Augusta, Mayor Pattangall of Waterville, Me., W. H. Parsons, Maine, '11, J. H. Newell, Bowdoin, '12, D. P. Washburn, Maine, '12, and Clarence A. Brown Bowdoin, '14.

COLLEGE TEA

The third and last College Tea of the year was held in the Alumni Room of Hubbard Hall, from 3:30 to 5:30, Friday afternoon. The room was beautifully adorned with spring flowers and handbells. Not only many Brunswick people and students, but also several visitors from various parts of the State, enjoyed the occasion. The caterer was Grant of Lewiston.

The reception committee consisted of Mrs. William E. Lunt, Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. George T. Files, Mrs. Orren C. Hornell, Mrs. Henry Johnson, and Mrs. William A. Moody. The introduction committee was composed of Mrs. G. A. Brooks, Mrs. Gardner Cram, and Miss Belle Smith. At the punch table, were Mrs. Wilmot B. Mitchell and Mrs. Paul Nixon; tea table, Mrs. Frederick W. Brown and Miss Chapman; coffee table, Mrs. Chas. C. Hutchins and Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff. Brunswick young ladies assisted in serving the refreshments.

THE NEW ENGLAND INTERCOLLEGIATE

ORATORICAL LEAGUE

The third competition in the New England Intercollegiate Oratorical League will be held in Providence on Thursday, May 2. In this competitive speaking one representative from each of the five colleges—Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Wesleyan, and Williams—will deliver an original oration not more than 1800 words in length. A Preliminary Speaking will be held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday, April 17, when a committee of the Faculty will select the speaker to represent Bowdoin. Commencement parts or '68 parts may be used in this competition, and it is open to any student in college.

All students who wish to enter this competition will please give their names to Professor Mitchell not later than Saturday, March 30th.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

At the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday evening, March 7, Mr. William I. Cole, Sr., of the South End Settlement House of Boston, gave the sixth of the series of talks on the "Practical Applications of Christianity." Mr. Cole took for his subject, "Christianity and Poverty" and spoke in part as follows:

"In my travels abroad, I once saw, in a little Italian village, a picture representing the marriage of St. Francis and the Lady Poverty. When I was asked to speak before the Bowdoin Y. M. C. A. and thought of my subject, I remembered this picture and how well it represented the espousal by the church of the cause of the poor. But this antedates St. Francis by many centuries. The duty of relieving the poor was insisted on by the whole line of prophets, and it has come down to us, reiterated through many centuries. At first the duty was mainly alms-giving. St. Francis was the forerunner of modern charity. When he went to a town, he did not ask for the rich and influential but for the lepers and outcasts. Modern charity has come from the early injunction to give to the poor, but it has a broader duty, to remedy and to work for the future. Modern charity puts emphasis on the benefit which the recipient derives and discourages indiscriminate giving, which tends to increase what it tries to cure. Poverty must be cured and it is a problem how to do it. Pauperism is different, a disease which should not be tolerated. The old-fashioned workhouse has its place as a reformatory for those who can work and an asylum for those for whom. Poverty is an educational and moral problem. Most men who are unemployed, are so because they are unemployable through ignorance of how to work. Education must lift the burden of poverty from the poor. The church, too, has a vast responsibility. The burden of poverty can be lifted when men are willing to do it and it is the duty of the church to create in men the willing will."

A Plan

The Orient is glad to receive communications at all times from the alumni, faculty, and undergraduates. Such letters show signs of progress in all college affairs. It is especially glad to print this week a plan for making Bowdoin more democratic along fraternity lines. The sentiment expressed in the letter from a "fraternity man" is certainly that which should be fostered by all who hold the name of Bowdoin dear. Although we do not say whether or not the proposed plan is the best, we do agree with the writer that the relations between the fraternity and non-fraternity men of the college, should be closer. Other colleges throughout the country have faced this problem and have solved it in a way similar to the one advocated. One of the colleges in our own State has recently organized a club to provide better social conditions for the non-fraternity men and to promote the best interests of the college in general. That Bowdoin should make better provision for the men who are in the minority, here, there can be no doubt. The communication tells its own story and every undergraduate should give it serious consideration.

Are We Democratic?

A general criticism of the inefficiency of certain undergraduate organizations in Bowdoin is based on the fact that a few men hold too many offices of responsibility. We find here that one man has many honors heaped upon him by his fellow-students which although he might deserve, he could well do without. As a result of this, one man may either be at the head of or closely connected with at least five or six college activities all at one time in his course. This has an evil effect which is two-fold for in the first place it puts too much strain upon the individual, and in the second place it keeps other men from taking an active interest in the various activities. The man who occupies five or six positions in athletic, literary, or social organizations finds that he cannot give equal attention to all. One organization has to suffer at the expense of another. Moreover, as it is in Bowdoin to-day the few men who are actively engaged in managing undergraduate affairs, are forced to sacrifice to a large extent the attention and time which is due their academic courses. This is a fact which is often regarded as insignificant except by the individual concerned.

Then, too, Bowdoin stands for democracy. Why should not the undergraduate honors be more evenly distributed? If one man was allowed a limited number of interests for which he would be responsible to the student body, he would put more time, energy, and attention into the management of those interests. Our organizations would then become more effective and conditions could be gradually improved. By our undemocratic choice of leaders many men are kept out of office who would make efficient managers, editors, leaders, and committee men. If given an opportunity to serve, more men could show their worth in academic life. It is one of the duties of a college to train all its members and not merely a few to become good citizens in later life. Why shouldn't Bowdoin foster more closely the spirit of democracy of which she boasts and use more men in the management of undergraduate affairs? In this way the scholastic standing of the college would be raised and undergraduate organizations made more efficient.
A COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the Orient:

We men of Bowdoin pride ourselves on our democracy. We like to think that every fellow is judged on his own merits without regard to his wealth, or social position. Yet true democracy cannot exist unless all men have an equal chance. Equality of opportunity is necessary before we can judge men on their merits.

Can we say that A is a better fellow than B, if B has not had as many advantages as A? And it is the duty of the college, which includes the faculty, alumni, and students, to give to every man as nearly an equal chance as possible. This equality of opportunity is found in the class room. Here every man is judged for just what he is. Yet in the vital part of a college man's life, his associations, this is not found. "Man is a social animal" and his tendency is to form associations will link himself with others. He does not attain the highest degree of efficiency until he does. This is the principle that lies back of our fraternities. They are the most important factors in our life here. We eat, sleep, study, and loaf there. It is there we form our closest friendships. They are the strong ties that will bind us to the college in after years.

Yet such an opportunity as this should not be denied to any one. If there are advantages in the mere gathering together of fellows of diverse types, why should not all have them?

But there are over 45 fellows in this college who do not have this privilege. They are not having a fair chance. Very few of them "make" teams or collegiate organizations. This is not so because they are less able than the fraternity men, but because they lack the force that drives men out for college activities. And if they do go out, they are apt to feel that the entire college is against them. Yet this is so because they are unorganized. "In union there is strength," without it a man feels as if he were alone.

College activities, however, are but superficial at best. The real life of the college is far deeper. The intimate knowledge and friendship of a few fellows, the wide acquaintanceship with all in college, linked by the tie of old Bowdoin. These are the biggest things in our lives here. And from this, the non-frat man is, to a large extent, barred. There is no common meeting ground of either place or ideals, where he can meet his fellow non-fraternity men, or the fraternity men themselves. For, deny it tho' we may, the fact of one man belonging to a fraternity and the other not belonging to any fraternity, is something that comes up between two fellows, and, unless they are unusually frank, prevents a complete understanding. The non-fraternity man, therefore, lacks the big means of social contact that exists here. His knowledge of the men in college is limited. And because of this, he must inevitably feel that, to a large extent, he is alone.

Nor is this all. Not only as an undergraduate is he deprived of much of a fellow's life, but to an even greater degree does he suffer after he graduates. He loves the college just as much as any man, yet there is not the tie to bind him to Bowdoin, which a fraternity affords. Where can he go when he comes back to commencement? Investigation shows that a very small percentage of non-frat men ever come back. There is no reason why they should. All others have pleasant ties to renew, but for them there is only some lonesome boarding place. Hence the man drifts farther and farther apart from the old college.

This loss to the non-frat man is a big loss to the Bowdoin which we love. Her men are the greatest asset which she has. And it is her loss if her alumni weaken in their devotion, or if her sons go forth from the doors deprived of some of the best things in the life here.

The importance of this problem will increase as years go by. For we are going to grow in numbers, and consequently, there will be an even greater number of non-frat men than now. Yet they will always be in the great minority, and hence will suffer.

As Boss Tweed said, "What are you going to do about it?" Any successful movement must be the result of co-operative effort on the part of both fraternity and non-fraternity men. We have all felt that there was something that was decidedly evil in the present fraternity system, but have taken no definite steps to solve it. The more this question is threshed over, the nearer we can approach a solution. To start the ball rolling, I should like to propose this plan, as a basis for discussion.

My plan is this: A club open to all non-fraternity men, having a house where an eating club could be maintained, and where some of the fellows could room. All non-frat graduates would be considered members and membership in this club should not prevent a man from entering a fraternity. He should be free to enter one, if an opportunity to do so came.

This club could give all the real advantages which a fraternity affords. The non-frat men would be organized, there would be a common meeting place, both graduate and under-graduate. The social life would be strong and clean. Every man would have his college home.

Clubs similar to this have been instituted in many of the colleges, Wesleyan and Tufts being the most notable examples. In those colleges, they are among the strongest. Men quite generally refuse to join fraternities, preferring to belong to the club.

This plan may not be the one which the fellows will favor. Yet there is some remedy and we should find it. We fight for old Bowdoin on the athletic field, but the greatest battles for her are within our walls. Let us all, whether fraternity men or not, do our level best to establish true democracy here, and give to every man an equal chance.

SUNDAY CHAPEL

President Hyde spoke Sunday afternoon in chapel from the text, "Freely ye have received, freely give." He said: "College life affords an excellent opportunity to follow out Christ's teaching in these words. It is much that we receive, and very little that we are called on to give. For the paltry sum of $25, the student gets the advantage of the great endowment fund, the services of the two dozen men who form the faculty, the benefit of the work some 2,000 men who have gone before have done, and countless benefits. Once in a while there is an opportunity for us to give, and then it is a pleasure to do so, as in the case of new buildings. Practically all the student body have a share in the giving for the new gymnasium. There are other ways to help the college. At a recent meeting of teachers, the oldest of them said that the students themselves can do more to build up a college than the faculty. Prof. Lunt has suggested a plan to you whereby you can help with regard to next year’s entering class. These are some of the opportunities to pay for what comes as the fruit of the toil of hundreds who have gone out. In the same way as in college, so in the great world outside, we should plan to act so that we shall leave it a little better for the part we have taken in the affairs of the world.”

REPUBLICAN CLUB HAS SPEAKER

On Friday evening, March 9, in Memorial Hall, the Hon. Asher C. Hinds, Representative in Congress from the First Maine District, spoke to a large audience on the subject of “National Political Issues.” He declared that the depression of the value of gold was one of the causes of the present high cost of living, and defended the protective tariff and other doctrines of the Republican party. Mr. Hinds did not speak in detail of the Republican candidates for the Presidential nomination, and only brought in President Taft’s name in speaking of men who hold positions of trust in Washington. He defended what his party has done in the past and is doing now, and in addition spoke substantially as follows:

“I speak as a Republican to Republicans on what the Republican party is doing to-day. From history and experience you know that it is the great constructive party of the nation. Ten and twenty years mark the span of usefulness of such parties as gathered around Cromwell in England, and around Washington and Hamilton in the United States. For fifty years the Republican party has lived as an example of constructive statesmanship, and has made the United States one of the greatest nations, agriculturally, industrially, and commercially, in the world. It has brought more results than can be found in the history of any party in any free country.” The speaker declared that the Republican party is still marching in the path of its founders, and has carefully studied and knows the ground on which it is walking.

Mr. Hinds then took up the matter of trusts, explaining the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company and the Powder Trust, and the thirty suits brought by the government against other combinations. He spoke in detail about the American Sugar Company, telling of its formation in 1891, its success in gaining control of the beet sugar industry in the West, and how, through suits brought up in the New York courts by the United States government, the company is now giving up its control of the beet sugar refineries. This same warfare is being fought against other trusts. The government has brought about a chance for competition, but not destructive competition, for capital should be allowed to combine to secure the most satisfaction as far as cheapness is concerned.

Another question discussed was that of the high cost of living. The Democrats have claimed that the tariff is responsible, but since they have agitated this question before the people, the cost of living has not been materially reduced. Mr. Hinds explained that since 48 out of 100 people now live in cities, material must be stored up there, and men must be allowed to do this. In attempting to explain the cause of the high cost of living, he said that he subscribed to English papers and found that, even with the absence of any Republican party, of any trusts—for the English say they have no trusts—and of any tariff, England was not so well off in living as are the people of this country. The most important cause of the high cost of living, a theory advanced by the “London Economist,” and with which Mr. Hinds agrees, is the increased production of gold, which has been brought about by the discovery of the cyanide process of extracting that metal from its ore.

Mr. Hinds next discussed the protective tariff and its opposing doctrine, tariff for revenue only. The Republican party, he declared, wished no change until the question had been thoroughly and carefully studied, as well as the effect of any change on the industry involved. The party has been grossly misrepresented by its opponents in the last fifty years, but has lived through it and will continue to do so.

Representative Hinds’s address was delivered under the auspices of the Bowdoin College Republican Club, and is the first of a series of addresses which the club is planning. Mr. Hinds was introduced by William R. Spinney, ‘13, as president of the club, and the speaker was excellently received, being frequently interrupted by applause.

HOW THE HIWALE FUND STANDS

March 12, 1912: Total amount subscribed, $889.10

Of this there have been paid, $204.00

Can’t we make this year’s subscription at least $300? Hiwale needs it and he is worthy of our hearty support.

A letter was received from him a short time ago. It was dated Feb. 9, and he writes that he has just recovered from an attack of the terrible plague of India. He wishes to be remembered to “all the Bowdoin men.”

Checks for Hiwale can be made payable to Kenneth Churchill.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On next Thursday evening, March 21, the last speaker on the program for the year will be here. He is Mr. Robert H. Gardiner of Gardiner, a prominent lawyer and one of the leading Episcopal laymen in the state. He will speak on the Laymen’s Missionary Movement with which he has been closely connected. We are very fortunate that the program can be closed with such a strong man.

The third of the Lenten meetings will be held Wednesday, March 20, under the leadership of Rev. J. H. Quint.

A deputation was sent to Kent’s Hill last week to interest the men there in the work of the Y. M. C. A. Those who went were E. G. Fifield, Secretary, W. A. MacCormick and A. S. Merrill.
College Notes

Wandtke, '10, was on the campus last week. A Republican Club has been organized at Colby. A meeting of the Student Council was held Tuesday evening. The Masque and Gown picture was taken at Webber's Thursday noon. Professor H. L. Chapman is improving, and hopes to be out this week. Pictures of the site of the new gymnasium were taken by Webber last Monday. Otto R. F. Jones, '15, who has been ill at home in Skowhegan, has returned to college. A meeting of the B. B. B. Club was held at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house on Tuesday evening.

On Tuesday evening, March 12, a meeting was held for the organization of a New Hampshire Club. A new drop curtain has been purchased for the Town Hall stage. It is of deep green and makes an important improvement to the stage equipment.

In response to a circular sent to the graduates of the college there have been numerous requests for the Address List of Bowdoin Graduates which has been recently compiled and published.

A series of Lenten meetings is being held in the Y. M. C. A. room each Wednesday noon during Lent. The dates and speakers are as follows: March 20, Rev. J. H. Quint; March 27, Prof. W. B. Mitchell.

A special meeting of the Class of 1915 was held in the Gymnasium Monday morning. It was voted that seventy-five cents be collected from each member of the class to pay for class squad expenses at the Indoor Meet.

Within a few days President Robert J. Aley of the University of Maine will reach a decision regarding the offer that he has been considering for several months to become president of the University of Oklahoma.

A delegation from the Y. M. C. A., consisting of President MacCormick, '12; Ernest G. Fifield and Arthur S. Merrill, '14, were at Kent's Hill, over Sunday, on Y. M. C. A. work.

On Wednesday, March 20, a four-man relay team from the Freshman class will race a team from the Bates Freshman class at the Bates Indoor Meet in Lewiston. The four men and alternate chosen are: MacWilliams, Stetson, Roberts, Prescott, and Coxe.

On a card to one of the members of the faculty one of the older graduates of the college, William Gray Nowell of the Class of 1859, states that he has been skating three times this winter. This is a better record than some of the undergraduates can present.

Prof. Files took a prominent part in the annual town meeting held on Monday, Mar. 4, by introducing a plan by which Maine Street is to be improved at an expense of not more than $15,000, which was carried by a vote of 107 to 46. Prof. Files and Prof. Alvord were appointed to the committee on permanent roads, which is to have charge of the improvement of Maine Street, and Prof. Moody was appointed a member of the Committee of Twelve.

Cedric R. Crowell, '13, Merton W. Greene, '13, Harry Paulkner, '15, and Jacob Weintz, '15, will take part in "A Russian Honeymoon," a play to be given in Town Hall on Monday evening, March 18, under the auspices of the Madisses Club of the First Parish Church.

Professor Wilmot B. Mitchell represented the college at the annual banquet of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Aroostook County, held in Houlton, March 6. During his trip to Aroostook County he also spoke to the schools in Presque Isle and Fort Fairfield.

The members of the fencing team who made the trip to Boston last Saturday for the Harvard and Fenway Club boats are: Captain Henry A. Briggs, '13, of Gorham; Carl O. Warren, '12, of Gorham; William Holts, '12, of North Bridgton, and Manager Sumner T. Pike, '13, of Lubec.

The Western Association of Bowdoin Alumni has been organized at Denver, Colo., with the following officers: President, Hon. R. H. Gilmore, '03; Vice-President, Dr. George F. Libby, '91; Secretary-Treasurer, Paul A. Buttrick, '07. The new association held its first banquet Saturday, March 2.

Melvin T. Copeland, Bowdoin, '06, Ph.D., who is an instructor in New York University at New York, has recently won the David A. Wells Prize of $500 at Harvard University for the best paper on an economic question. The article on which Mr. Copeland won this large prize was written on "The Cotton Industry in the United States."

At Orono on Friday, March 8, University of Maine won the dual indoor meet with Colby, 38½ to 30½. Maine won all three places in the 120-yard hurdles and shot-put, second place and tie for third in the broad jump, third in the high jump, second in the low hurdles and second in the 25-yard dash. Maine also won the 608-yard and 492-yard relays and forfeited the 1340-yard relay for failing to touch a man. Wood of Colby did 5 feet 7½ inches in the high jump and Shepard of Maine put the shot 38 feet 9 inches. The 608-yard relay was won in 1 minute, 14 seconds.

An Ozonator, one of the latest devices for the purification of air, has been installed in the Pastime, the first theatre in Maine to have this modern device. The Ozonator is operated by an electric current, which transformed to a high voltage produces within the apparatus a series of purplish flames. These flames, which are barely visible, make ozone or oxygen in an active or highly electro-negative state. The effect is complete purification of air, and it is in many respects superior to ordinary methods of ventilation. The ozone has a fresh and invigorating smell, like the air of a warm spring morning.

The New England Association of Zeta Psi held its annual banquet at the American House in Boston, Saturday evening, March 9. Among the speakers were Fred H. Nymane, Traveling Secretary of the fraternity; H. M. Waldron, J. H. Raven, and H. L. Bagley, '94, who are Grand Officers of the fraternity. After the speeches a business meeting was held at which it was voted to extend an invitation to the Grand Chapter to hold the annual convention in Boston next year. Between the speeches musical sketches were rendered by the delegates from the various New England chapters. Among the delegates from the active members of the Bowdoin Chapter were: J. C. O’Neil, ’13, and T. C. Wyman, ’12.

FOR A BOWDOIN SONG

(Boston Globe)

That tum-tum noise that you may hear from the direction of Bowdoin College is very likely the result of the offer of Graduate Snow, of the Class of ’73, of a cup to be given to the class which produces the best Bowdoin College song, with a cash prize of $10 to the writer of it. Any student who can find an effective rhyme for “Bowdoin” deserves to get more than $10.

’43.—On Oct. 26, 1911, there occurred at Bristol, Me., the death of Dr. Samuel W. Johnson. Dr. Johnson had suffered from a stroke of paralysis since April, 1904, growing more helpless every day up to his death.

’60.—Major Frederick A. Kendall died at Cleveland, Ohio, on February 14th, following a protracted illness, during the latter part of which he endured with fortitude very great suffering. Mr. Kendall was a member of the firm of F. A. Kendall Son and Company, general agents for the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Major Kendall entered the insurance business on June 2, 1886, being then a retired officer of the United States Army with the rank of captain. He chose his home city as the field of his operations, where he was well known and greatly respected, and applying himself vigorously, with a high degree of intelligence and with that irresistible tact and persuasive faculty which made him in many directions a leader among men, commanded from the start a very considerable volume of desirable business.

Major Kendall was well-known throughout Northern Ohio and in Army circles, equally so throughout the United States, being a leader in social, political and municipal affairs, in many of which he interested himself to the benefit of the various organizations with which he was identified. As a commander for a series of years of the Loyal Legion his services were appreciated and recognized by very many voluntary testimonials as to his ability and worth. He had great facility in the expression of his views, in writing and orally; and wherever he spoke or lectured he was listened to with great respect for the sincere thoughts which he uttered and because of an appreciation of the inherent wealth of his character.

Simple in his tastes, unpretentious, manifesting cordial good-will to everybody, he was deservedly popular, and his loss is a deprivation which will be long felt. Very active in the agency ranks of his company, his efforts were exerted to improving the well-being of the institution, and had much to do with the favorable conditions which now surround agency management. His work in the National Association of Underwriters was a notable one. He gave of his time and talents to that movement, and its members will necessarily share the loss which his death imposes.

NEW BASEBALL COACH

According to an announcement made Tuesday by Capt. L. G. Means of the baseball team, James J. Conroy, Dartmouth, 1911, of Boston, has signed a contract to coach the team this spring. Mr. Conroy will report on April 3 to get the team in shape for the game with Brown on April 10. Conroy played shortstop four years for Dartmouth. He will use the same coaching system that Coach Norton used last year. Before Conroy's arrival, "Pop" Williams, the Pine Tree pitcher, will coach the candidates for battery positions for a few days.

MUSICAL CLUBS' CONCERT

At the concert to be given by the Glee and Mandolin Clubs to-morrow evening in Memorial Hall, the undergraduates will have an opportunity to enjoy the program which has been presented with so much success on the trip through the State. The concert will afford an excellent entertainment for sub-Freshmen visiting the college and will call forth a large attendance.

Next week the clubs start on their Massachusetts trip, giving a concert Wednesday at Saco, Thursday at Portsmouth, N. H., Friday at Reading, Mass., and Saturday at Bath.

SECTIONAL CLUBS ORGANIZE

Several sectional clubs have been organized during the past week. The clubs, with the officers elected, are as follows:

Cumberland County—President, Stanley F. Dole, '13, of Portland; secretary and treasurer, Edward H. Snow, '14, of Brunswick; executive committee, Jesse H. McKenney, '12, of Brunswick; Clifford L. Russell, '14, of Portland; Alfred H. Sweet, '13, of Portland; Fred D. Wish, Jr., '13, of Portland; Barleigh C. Rodick, '12, of Freeport.

Aroostook County—President, Charles R. Bull, '13, of Monticello.

Somerset County—President, Reginald E. Foss, '12, of Skowhegan; vice-president, Charles B. Haskell, Jr., '13, of Pittsfield; secretary, Arthur S. Merrill, '14, of Skowhegan; treasurer, Elroy O. La Casce, '14, of Skowhegan.

Kennebec County—President, Herbert E. Locke, '12, of Augusta; vice-president, Theodore E. Emery, '13, of Randolph; secretary and treasurer, Ruel B. Soule, '15, of Augusta.

Franklin-Oxford Counties—President, James A. Norton, '13, of Phillips; secretary and treasurer, Luther G. Whittier, '13, of Farmington.

Sagadahoc County—President, Clifton O. Page, '13, of Bath; vice-president, Joseph H. Newell, '12, of Richmond; secretary and treasurer, Earle S. Thompson, '14, of Bath.

Knox County—Alfred W. Newcomb, '14, Thomaston, president; W. C. Coombs, '14, of Camden, secretary, treasurer.

LECTURE BY PROFESSOR LAWRENCE

The lecture "Maurice Maeterlinck: Old Tales for New," given by Professor William W. Lawrence, '98, of Columbia University, in Memorial Hall on Friday evening, March 15, under the auspices of the Ibis, was attended by a large audience of the students and faculty.

In a brief introduction, Professor Lawrence spoke of the difficulty of estimating the real achievement of any contemporary writer. Nevertheless, he said, the extraordinary popularity of Maeterlinck's work both in Europe and America makes it impossible to ignore him in any survey of the literature of the present time. Maeterlinck is particularly noteworthy as a dramatist; his essays show, on the whole, less originality. Yet it is interesting to study his plays in relation to their sources, to see how greatly he is indebted to the past, particularly to medieval literature. In an age which is constantly insisting upon originality, Maeterlinck has gone back to earlier times, and offered the public old stories in new guise. Four plays were selected for discussion: "Pelléas and Mélisande," representing the medieval romance; "Sister Beatrice," the pious tale; and "The Blue Bird" and "Ariane and Blue Beard," the fairy-tale. Illustrative passages from the plays were read, and the real originality of the dramatist, despite his dependence upon earlier material, emphasized. In closing, Professor Lawrence spoke of the function of a poet as the interpreter of the literature of the past for the present day.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKERS

All men whose names are on the provisional list of Commencement speakers are required to write Commencement parts. These parts, which should be not more than twelve hundred words in length, will be due Monday, May 13.
A COMMUNICATION

For several years there has been growing among the non-fraternity men at Bowdoin a desire for organization and the advantages that go with organization. This feeling has manifested itself in the founding of two clubs. These clubs have, however, been only partially successful, and it remains for the whole non-fraternity group to organize itself into a club which shall be strong enough and democratic enough to live down the difficulties which may meet it.

The need of such an organization must surely be apparent to the non-fraternity men. That the Greek letter fraternities might not be so fully conscious of this need is reasonable to suppose, and it is a cause of congratulation when we can realize that the fraternity men are broad-minded and fair-minded enough to recognize this need and to be willing to co-operate to help meet it. The problem concerns more than the non-fraternity men alone. In a measure the college as a whole suffers under the present conditions. One-eighth of the student body cannot in absolute frankness feel that Bowdoin is giving to them all that it gives to the other seven-eighths. The result is dissatisfaction. Until this dissatisfaction shall be removed the college as a whole has a problem to solve.

In the communication printed in the last week's issue of the Orient, is described a scheme which might be put into effect as a possible remedy. Those who attended the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Thursday, March fourteenth, heard the same plan discussed there. Briefly, it is as follows: "A club open to all non-fraternity men, having a house where an eating club could be maintained, and where some of the fellows could room. All non-fraternity graduates would be considered members and membership in this club should not prevent a man from entering a fraternity. He should be free to enter one if an opportunity so came."

Since that Y. M. C. A. meeting twenty-four of the thirty-eight non-fraternity men have been consulted and among these twenty-four only three or four were found who were not in favor of such an organization. As far as can be ascertained at present the majority of the faculty is in favor of a club of this sort. Professor Nixon and Mr. Wilder constitute a committee which has been appointed to investigate the matter and report the result to the faculty.

For the present it remains for these most directly concerned, the non-fraternity men, to think over this matter, to determine, if possible, what features are desirable and what are not, and if they have objections, to prepare to state them with clearness and frankness. If the desirability of the proposed scheme comes home to all non-fraternity men as it does to the writer, and if all non-fraternity men will overcome certain silly prejudices which may form the ground for their objections, then the greatest difficulties have been overcome. Once the members of the faculty feel assured that the proposed club is really desired and that the men are willing to co-operate to help secure it, I feel confident that their aid is secured.

Before vacation this matter will be discussed at a general meeting of the non-fraternity men. For the present "think on this thing."

BRYANT, 1912.

Y. M. C. A. ELECTIONS

The annual election and business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. room on Tuesday evening, March 26, at 7 o'clock. Brief reports of the work of the different committees will be given and there will be an informal discussion open to all of the members on how the work of the Y. M. C. A. can be improved. This is a very important meeting and every member should be present.

The following officers have been nominated:

Vice-President, Laurence A. Crosby, '13, Leon E. Jones, '13.
Corresponding Secretary—Clarence A. Brown, '14, Alfred E. Gray, '14.
Treasurer—Maurice W. Hamblen, '14, Robert D. Leigh, '14.
Recording Secretary—George A. McWilliams, '15, Jacob F. Weintz, '15.

It is with a feeling of regret that the old Board retires from its weekly task of publishing the ORIENT. But it is also with most hearty and loyal congratulations to those who have been privileged to enjoy this privilege for the next year. In passing, however, we do feel that a few statements should be made in regard to Bowdoin’s weekly. In the first place, we want to express our appreciation for the way in which students and alumni have contributed to the paper. It is a very significant fact that an editorial board can do much better work when it has the best support of those interested in the paper. Articles received from graduates show that they have not forgotten the college which they have left behind and communications from undergraduates are signs of progress in the internal solution of the problems of student life. It has been the pleasure of the retiring Board to report these signs to its readers and we hope that such a spirit of co-operation will ever exist in relation to the ORIENT.

But at this point we feel that we are justified in asking the question, “Is the ORIENT serving the college as it best can?” Much outside criticism has been made to the effect that the ORIENT serves merely as a record of college events. This is, indeed, true to a great extent and we feel that conditions can and should be changed so as to remove this defect, if defect it is. It should be remembered that it is not easy to make a weekly paper in a college like Bowdoin, more than a record. But it seems quite possible and practical to publish the ORIENT earlier in the week, and thus bring the events which happen at the week ends more quickly to the attention of the readers. Although this change would not abolish entirely the “record” aspect of the paper it would improve conditions considerably. Around this change other minor changes which we feel would raise the standard of the paper, could be made.

With this one main suggestion for improvement we lay down the pen to our successors and once more urge that the student body, alumni and friends of the college co-operate with the Editorial Board to make the ORIENT represent the lofty standard of Bowdoin’s ideals. To new positions we welcome the following men: Editor-in-Chief, Douglas H. McMurtie, ’13, of Portland, Me.; Managing Editor, Robert D. Leigh, ’14, of Seattle, Wash.; Alumni Editor, Fred D. Wish, ’13, of Portland, Me.; Associate Editors, Austin H. MacCormick, ’15, of Boothbay Harbor, Me.; Francis P. McKenney, ’15, of Brunswick, Me., and John F. Rollins, ’15, of Bangor, Me. To the business department we welcome H. Burton Walker, ’13, of Biddeford, Me., as Business Manager, and Ermond Sylvester, ’14, of Freeport, Me., as Assistant Business Manager.

The Meet

To-night Bowdoin’s track season for 1912 opens officially with the twenty-sixth annual exhibition and the seventeenth annual Indoor Meet in the Town Hall. The great interest which has been manifested for the past few weeks will come to its height in the struggle for class supremacy. Since the arrival of the new track coach on the campus every man has worked faithfully towards making the Indoor Meet this year mean more than it has ever meant before. Every class team is primed to do its best to win the Meet and every man who participates is on his mettle to show his best for the weeks ahead before the State Meet. Although the Indoor Meet is only a forerunner of what is to come it is by no means less important. On the contrary, the spirit of this meet will show the coach and management about what can be expected of Bowdoin in May.

A Reminder

We wish to call attention to the debate between Bowdoin and Wesleyan University to be held next Thursday night in Memorial Hall. For the past few months the debating teams have been working hard in preparation for the Intercollegiate debates which are to be held on that night—one here and the other in New York. Owing to the small attendance at the preliminary debates held a few weeks ago none of the teams was able to show its best form. It is certainly up to the student body in general to show some interest in this form of collegiate activity. Every man should turn out to the debate and show that we appreciate the efforts of the members of the debating teams and those of the Department in making this Bowdoin’s best year with the work.

AT THE LIBRARY

SMOKER AND MASS-MEETING

On Monday evening at seven-thirty in Memorial Hall will be held a business meeting and a smoker under the direction of the Student Council. The business of the evening will be the discussion of Professor Lunt’s plan which has been presented during the past week. After the business is over the band will furnish music, entertainers will provide enjoyment, and refreshments will be passed around. The small sum of ten cents will be charged for admission. Get your tickets and be on hand for a good time!

GIBBONS CLUB MEETING

The regular meeting of the Gibbons Club was held at the Beta Theta Pi house, Wednesday evening, March 20. Father St. Martin, curate of the Church of St. John of this town, and spiritual director of the club, was present.
Laurence A. Crosby, '13, read a letter recently received from Cardinal Gibbons, in which he sent his blessing and his best wishes for the success of the club.

MASSACHUSETTS CLUB MEETS
The regular monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Club was held at the Alpha Delta Phi House last Saturday night. Prof. W. E. Lunt was the guest of the evening and was elected to honorary membership in the club. John Clair Mimot, '96, was also present and extended an invitation to the men to attend the Bowdoin Club dinner to be held in Boston, April 5, 1912.

SUNDAY CHAPEL
The speaker at the chapel exercises Sunday was President William Trufant Foster of Reed College, Portland, Oregon, formerly Professor of English and Argumentation at Bowdoin. He spoke on "Loyalty," emphasizing the way in which we can show our loyalty to Bowdoin in our studies, aspiring to some thing higher than the "gentleman's mark."

THE HAWTHORNE PRIZE
The Hawthorne Prize of forty dollars, given by Mrs. George C. Riggs (Kate Douglas Wiggin), is awarded annually to the writer of the best short story. The competition is open to members of the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. The stories offered in this competition must be not less than fifteen hundred words in length, must be typewritten, and must be left at Room 3, Memorial Hall, not later than Monday, May 3.

THE FEBRUARY QUILL
The Quill for last month is a well rounded number, containing, as it does, two essays, one story, two sketches and two bits of verse. The opening number by Mr. Hale is a very beautifully worded description of the glamour that Spain casts, and is a sketch of much charm and distinction of style. It is always pleasant to have a former editor of the Quill maintain his interest, particularly so when the contribution comes from across the seas. Mr. Robinson's story, that of the Country Mouse, is clearly conceived, but is not long enough to give much of a chance for dialogue, and is consequently not very well proportioned. In order to get the solution the author makes use of a rather mechanical device; and, on the whole, the story does not live up to the promise of the first two pages. The lines on a Magic Carpet form a bit of verse of unusual attractiveness. There is just that air of light pleasantness and of gentle humor that is missing in so much college poetry; and the last phrase with its quaint disregard of grammatical accuracy enhances the charm of the whole piece. Mr. Coffin's essay on a lost art, the sculpture of the Greeks, is well phrased and scholarly in its nature. There are, perhaps one or two purple patches; but nowadays ornateness is not out of common, and is much to be preferred to slovenly, or ordinary dictum. The verses from Horace are a pleasant attempt to render the well-known description of Spring in musical English, and although one or two of the lines halt, the effect in the main is very good. Perhaps the strongest thing in this number is the pen sketch of the cobra by Mr. Gibson, entitled The Nuisance. It is unusually effective. The Gray Goose tracks are a little more serious than usual and return to the somewhat cryptic style of some of their forerunners. The message that is intended to be conveyed is admirable; but the means to convey it are not so patent that he who runs may read. The editors of the Quill should be more careful about their proof reading. It is too bad to have the excellence of the periodical marred by unnecessary typographical errors. It also would be a good thing to have the year printed with the title, particularly for one who keeps a file of bound volumes. It is a great nuisance to have to look long in order to discover in what year the various numbers were printed.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING
The Y. M. C. A. meeting, Thursday, March 14, was a students' meeting, in which MacCormick, '12, Means, '12, Douglas, '13, and Crowell, '13, spoke on "What can he done to improve our undergraduate life?" Means, '12, spoke first, dealing with knocking and the harm it does to all the best college institutions. Crowell, '13, spoke next on "Profanity." Douglas, '13, was the next speaker. He outlined a plan which he had formulated to give the non-fraternity men more of a show by uniting them. The plan as outlined was received with a great deal of interest by all present. MacCormick, '12, the last speaker, took for his subject, "Drunkenness," speaking especially in behalf of the man who is down and out. The speeches were heard by a large and interested crowd of undergraduates.

COMMUNICATION
March 9, 1912.

Editor Bowdoin Orient:
Dear Sir—I was interested to read in your last issue of the Orient of a chess match played between the faculty and students of Yale University, and the thought occurred to me that possibly a similar match could be arranged at Bowdoin.

If the undergraduates here would form a chess club I am of the opinion that the faculty chess players would be willing to arrange their side of such a match.

It may be questionable whether either body has in it very strong chess material, but to my mind that is of little importance, since the main result would be a greater social intercourse between the two of a pleasant nature, and which would be of mutual benefit.

Sincerely yours,
HENRY B. ALVORD.

LETTER TO THE DEAN

60 CLARK STREET, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Mar. 8, 1912.

Dear Dean Sills:

In computing the standing of the fraternities on a basis of points for the Friar Scholarship Cup it seems to me that the number of courses a man takes has altogether too great an influence upon the final figures to give results that are absolutely fair, while the average rank per course is not considered at all. Take the case of the man who gets four A's out of four courses. His score is 16, the same as the man's who takes five courses, getting 2 A's, 2 B's, and 1 C, altho it seems to me that the first man is entitled to the greater credit. The present method of computing points emphasizes the getting of fair rank in many courses rather than of practically perfect rank in few. It disregards the possibility that the first man we mentioned might have been able to get another A had he taken another course.
It furthermore greatly handicaps the fraternity, some of whose men receive incompletes.

If to the number of points as computed at present we add the average rank per course, it seems to me we will get results that will more nearly show relative scholastic ability. The score would then read:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>4 A's</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 A's, 2 B's, 1 C</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Average rank per course</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>3.20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>19.20</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

We thus compromise the two factors without giving undue prominence to either.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD W. SKELTON.

College Notes

Marston, '11, has been on the campus for a few days.

Myles Standish, Jr., '14, is ill with diphtheria at his home in Boston.

A. P. Hovey, '03, has been appointed to the Democratic State Committee.

Warren D. Eddy, '14, came back to college
Wednesday, after his long illness.

The Monday Night Club held a meeting at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House, Monday evening.

About 25 candidates for the Masque and Gown took part in the trials in Memorial Hall, Tuesday afternoon.

Prof. Copeland gave an address on Thursday evening, March 14, before the Bristol County Academy of Sciences at Taunton, Mass.

The Children's Hospital of Portland recently received $5,000 from the estate of the late Ira S.
Locke, '74.

The Seniors celebrated their last gym, Wednesday, with much ceremony, finishing with a tour of the campus.

Merrill, '14, left Thursday for New Haven to attend the President's Conference of Eastern Studen-Y. M. C. A.'s.

President MacCormick of the Y. M. C. A., spoke Sunday before the Methodist Sunday School at Boothbay Harbor.

Bodurtha, '14, left Thursday, for the conference of Eastern College and University Men at the Hartford Theological Seminary.

A number of men interested in baseball have removed the snow and ice from the diamond on the Delta, in order that it may dry up more quickly.

Dean Sills and Prof. Ham attended the Democratic Convention at Augusta. Tuesday. Newcomb,
'14, was the delegate from his home town, Thomaston, and J. Lewis, '15, represented North Haven.

In the Brunswick Record of March 15, there is an article on "Maine's Economic Waste in Highway Construction" by Prof. Files, and an open letter by Prof. Alvord on the no-school signals of the town.

It is interesting to note that in 1852 Bowdoin had political clubs. At that time the late Chief Justice Fuller was President of the Democratic Club, and ex-Senator Washburn of Minnesota, was President of the Whig Club.

A number of fellows took part in the play, "A Russian Honeymoon" given in Town Hall, Monday evening. Harry Faulkner took the principal part, while Crowell, '14, and Merton Greene, '13, also had leading parts. The other men in the play were Weinert, '15, Weatherill, '14, Eaton, '14, and Winthrop Greene, '13.

77.—The death of Ex-Governor John Fremont Hill occurred in Boston, Mass., March 16, while he was journeying to the National Headquarters of the Republican National Committee, of which committee he was the chairman.

Governor Hill was born in Eliot, Maine, October 29, 1855, his ancestors having been original settlers and men of mark in the community. He was educated in the public schools of his native town, and at the South Berwick Academy. After the completion of his academic studies, he entered the Maine Medical School, from which he was graduated in 1877. At the conclusion of his professional studies, he practiced medicine for about a year at Boothbay Harbor.

His business instincts being stronger, however, he gave up his profession and entered the publishing business at Augusta, Me., in 1879. As a member of the firm of Vickery and Hill, he was very successful and rose rapidly in the business. His rise in the business world was rapid and substantial and as new fields of development opened, his interests became widely diversified.

Governor Hill always took an active and honorable part in the politics of the state of Maine, and his fellow-citizens called him to many places of public trust and responsibility, the splendid majorities that were always accorded his candidacies being a fine proof of his high standing with the voters. During the years 1889 and 1891 he was representative to the state legislature and served well on various committees. During the years 1893 and 1895 he was the Senator from Kennebec County, serving through both periods as chairman of the railroad committee. He was a presidential elector in 1896, and a member of Governor Powers' council in 1897 and 1900.

Dr. Hill had impressed himself so strongly upon the people of Maine, by the high quality of his work as a legislator that in the summer of 1910, he was nominated by acclama-
