Polar Bearing

The variety and thickness of the baseball years have been exhausted by the number of high school and college teams that make it through the season. The number of games played is staggering, and the quality of players is high. In many cases, the teams are composed of players who have been competing for years. The games are exciting, and the fans are dedicated to their teams. The atmosphere is electric, and the stakes are high. It's a wonderful time to be a baseball fan.
Behind The Icy Curtain
By David R. Anderson '52

It's forty below zero. This is the situation, or at least the weather, in the northernmost part of Russia. Yet, at least one man is saving his life and the lives of his countrymen by living in such an environment. This man is Commander MacMillan.

The conditions in which he and his men live are beyond the comprehension of most people. The temperature, for example, is a constant forty below zero. The wind, however, which is twenty miles per hour, makes it feel like sixty below. The reason for this is the high humidity and the fact that the snow is wet and heavy.

Despite these conditions, the men are able to carry out their duties. They are working on a project to build a bridge over a river. The bridge is to be built of concrete and will be supported by steel girders. The men are using a crane to lift the girders into place.

The project is being carried out by the United States Army Corps of Engineers. Commander MacMillan is in charge of the project.

The men are living in tents and have a mess hall where they eat their meals. They are also using a generator to provide electricity for their cooking and reading lights.

The men are in constant contact with Headquarters, which is located in Moscow. They report their progress daily and receive instructions on how to proceed.

Despite the difficulties, the men are making good progress. They expect to complete the bridge in two months.

Professor Daggett Appraises College Self-Examination

Any vital human institution is measured in one way or another. Our colleges are no exception. Their objectives, in and out of the classroom, are evaluated and compared. Experience points the way to further improvement. Changes may bring a reassessment of academic programs, a redefinition of goals, or a realignment of resources. The awareness that you are interested in a college to which you are applying is of great importance.

The major system in which the college operates and the economic factors that determine the college’s financial stability are important considerations. The college is not isolated; it is a part of the larger society in which it operates. The college must be aware of the needs of society and must respond to them. The college must also be aware of the needs of its students and must respond to them as well. The college must be aware of the needs of its faculty and must respond to them as well. The college must be aware of the needs of its staff and must respond to them as well. The college must be aware of the needs of its alumni and must respond to them as well.

Basis For 1954 Self-Study Group Found In Early Surveys of College

Last week, Professor Albert J. Davenport, Chairman of the Study Committee, announced that his committee had completed a survey of the college's operations, which it had been conducting since the start of the year. The survey, which included interviews with students and faculty members, has provided valuable insights into the workings of the college and has helped to identify areas for improvement.

A more expansive survey was conducted by the college's administration and the student body. The survey, which was conducted in the fall of 1953, provided valuable information about the college's strengths and weaknesses. The survey was led by a team of faculty members and student leaders, and it was designed to ensure that the results would be as accurate as possible.

The survey was conducted in two phases. The first phase, which was conducted in the fall, focused on the college's programs, facilities, and administration. The survey was conducted by a team of faculty members and student leaders, and it was designed to ensure that the results would be as accurate as possible.

The second phase, which was conducted in the spring, focused on the college's students and their experiences. The survey was conducted by a team of faculty members and student leaders, and it was designed to ensure that the results would be as accurate as possible.

The family at Amherst College has decided to adopt a new cut-price plan for student travel. The plan would enable students to take advantage of last-minute discounts on tickets, make one return trip at a price lower than what would be available for a round trip, and still have the opportunity to travel internationally on a budget.

"This is a great opportunity for students to explore new destinations and gain valuable cultural experiences," said one parent. "We're excited about the flexibility and savings it offers."

Polar Bear Split With Bates For First State Series Victory

By Joseph F. Regan '50, ORIENT Sports Editor

The Bowdoin soccer team ended Bates' perfect season by outscoring the Bobcats 3-2 on Saturday. It was the first of a three-game series, the second of which is scheduled for today. Bates, who have been ranked second in the East for most of the season, were not able to match the Red's high-scoring offense.

The Red's dominating performance was evident from the very beginning, as they took control of the game early on. The Red's forward Paul Montgomery, who scored both of Bowdoin's goals, led the attack with his exceptional skills and speed.

Montgomery scored the first goal of the game in the first half, taking a pass from teammate John Smith and putting the ball past Bates' goalkeeper with a powerful shot. Bates tried to respond with a goal of their own in the second half, but were unable to find the back of the net.

The Red's defense, led by goalkeeper Ben Anderson, was solid throughout the game, preventing Bates from scoring despite their numerous opportunities. Anderson made several key saves to keep the Red's lead intact.

The victory was a much-needed win for the Red, who had been struggling in recent games. They hope to carry this momentum into the next match.

Frosh Trackmen Win Triangular Meet Over Deering, Ed. Little

The meet was a good opportunity for the Frosh team to gain experience and practice for upcoming competitions. They hope to continue their strong performances in the weeks to come.

Wyzanski Calls Independence’ Major American Characteristic Of Today

By John E. Mackey ’54

On Tuesday, May 4, Judge Charles R. Wyzanski delivered the Annual address in Political Science at the University of Massachusetts.

Wyzanski, in accordance with the stipulations of the chancellor, gave the address in English rather than in French, as this is now the basis of instruction in the French Department.

Not Meant Critical Time

The subject of Wyzanski’s speech was “The Preservation of Independence.” He began his talk by making some general observations on the political and cultural climate of modern America. He said that American independence had been a critical time in the history of the nation. The country that had been born out of the struggle for freedom was now faced with the challenge of preserving that independence.

On the other hand, Wyzanski also pointed out that there were indications of some fundamental changes occurring in American society. These changes included the rise of new social movements, the growing influence of the mass media, and the changing role of technology in daily life.

Wyzanski went on to say, technological advances have made it possible for a modern man to specialize in one area of study. The total structure of society has been altered. Until recently there was a great difference between men and women in society. In ages past the women had been in the hands of the men, that is, in the hands of their husbands, and as such they were deprived of many opportunities. Today, women are on an equal footing with men in all respects.

In the next time, Wyzanski explained, the theoretical terms, Wyzanski stated, there is now a struggle for the soul of America. There is a struggle for the soul of the nation. The struggle is between those who believe in the old, traditional values and those who believe in the new, modern values.

One way to make a nation strong is to educate its people. If a nation does not have an educated people, it cannot be strong. Therefore, education is the key to the future of the nation. Education is the key to the future of the world.

In conclusion, Wyzanski ended his speech by saying that the future of America and of the world depends on how we educate our children. We must make sure that they are well educated and equipped to face the challenges of the future.

First Long Playing Disc By Polar Bear May Be Purchased In Union

At long last the college is finally getting something for its music department. The college has purchased its first long playing disc, and it is now available to the college community.

The disc, which was purchased from the Student Council, is a recording of the music of the Polar Bear, the college’s traditional university song.

The disc was purchased after much discussion and debate by the Student Council. The council members weighed the benefits of having a long playing disc against the costs of purchasing one.

In addition to being a convenient way to listen to the music of the Polar Bear, the disc also serves as a reminder of the college’s rich history and traditions.

Choir Wins State Sweepstakes Title

The college’s choir, under the direction of Dr. John A. Smith, won first place in the state sweepstakes competition.

The choir performed a variety of songs, including traditional college songs, contemporary songs, and even some original compositions.

The choir’s performance was met with enthusiastic applause from the audience.

Managing Editor Anderson Explains Campaign Goals

The campaign, which is being sponsored by the college’s political science department, is designed to bring attention to the issues facing the college community.

The campaign will include a variety of activities, such as debates, forums, and workshops. The goal is to encourage students to think critically about the issues facing the college community and to participate in the decision-making process.

Anderson explained that the campaign will also focus on issues such as student housing, campus security, and the budget.

"We want to make sure that students are aware of the issues facing the college community," Anderson said. "We want to make sure that students are involved in the decision-making process."

The campaign will run throughout the fall semester, and the results of the campaign will be presented to the college’s administration.

Aims for the year are to foster a spirit of Christian service and to promote the growth of character.

In the words of the offering of life, "The Spirit which we seek is one which will enable us to serve the Lord and our fellowmen in the spirit of love and sacrifice.

POLAR BEARINGS

By Priscilla C. Mosby

The idea of the Bear is as strong in Maine as a variety sport is in New England.

However, it is strongly held by the Athletic Department that some other idea besides the bear as the symbol of our select institution should be used. The Physical Education Committee of the governing body of the University has decided to go over the idea seriously.

As the beginning of any new sport, however, there are difficulties to be expected. To begin with, there is the problem of the Maine bear, which is said to be a variety sport in the state, and the Maine bear is very rare.

But the Bear is a symbol of something more than a variety sport, and the Bear is a symbol of something more than the University of Maine.

In the old days, when the University of Maine was first founded, the Bear was the symbol of the university. The Bear was the symbol of the Maine bear, and the Bear was the symbol of the University of Maine.

In the old days, the Bear was a symbol of something more than a variety sport, and the Bear was a symbol of something more than the University of Maine.

And so it is with the Bear. Although the idea of the Bear is as strong in Maine as a variety sport is in New England, there are difficulties to be expected. To begin with, there is the problem of the Maine bear, which is said to be a variety sport in the state, and the Maine bear is very rare.

Dr. Schouwenaal Condemns Apathy of New Features in Life

Basewell's feature this week is a study of the new features in life. The study deals with a variety of topics, including the development of new ideas, the exploration of new territories, and the cultivation of new skills.

It is not the making of music that is the essence of life, but the making of music that is the essence of life. It is not the making of music that is the essence of life, but the making of music that is the essence of life. It is not the making of music that is the essence of life, but the making of music that is the essence of life.

But there was one idea that we should be interested in. To understand all is to forget all, and this is not what we are interested in. What we are interested in is to understand all. What we are interested in is to understand all.

And so it is with the Bear. Although the idea of the Bear is as strong in Maine as a variety sport is in New England, there are difficulties to be expected. To begin with, there is the problem of the Maine bear, which is said to be a variety sport in the state, and the Maine bear is very rare.

The month of May, while not offering the sports festivals or the late-night dance marathons which fill the calendar of the fall or the spring, does provide a number of pleasant and important events to students of the College. One such event was the presentation of "A Day at the Races" by the Music Department on Thursday evening in the Campus Center.

The performance was well received by the audience, and the students who participated were greatly enjoyed. The program was a success, and it is hoped that it will be repeated in the future.

Weekend Recovery Derived From Ancient Debauchery

By William Seaton III '38

He today knew he had found the key to life in a bar. There was no better way to spend his time than drinking and being merry. He had always enjoyed the company of others, and he had always enjoyed the camaraderie of the bar. He knew he was addicted, but he didn't care. He was happy, and he was living his best life.

The weekend had been filled with drinking and debauchery. He had spent most of his time at the bar, and he had lost count of how many drinks he had consumed. He had enjoyed the company of others, and he had enjoyed the camaraderie of the bar. He knew he was addicted, but he didn't care. He was happy, and he was living his best life.

At this time we, the editors of the ORIENT, would like to welcome this year's group of Isis House dates.

For Bowdoin men the weeks of anticipation, saving, and planning are over, and we are about to begin our rather dreary period of boredom for the time. To make the better out of what is to come, we have compiled the following list of things which we feel will be interesting and interesting for us to do during the campus season.

1. Visit the local Bowdoin College.
2. Study the new textbooks.
3. Read the latest novels.
4. Learn a new skill.
5. Plan a trip to the city.
6. Attend a lecture.
7. Write a letter to the editor.
8. Attend a performance.
9. Participate in a sport.
10. Volunteer for a cause.

We hope you will enjoy this list and make the best of your time here at Bowdoin College.

The Frosh took the lead in the first inning of the first game, when Gates singled, stole second, and scored on a wild pitch.

The Frosh offense was held to one hit, a double by Tom Gates, and the Frosh was held to no runs.

Behind The Ice Curtain

By David B. Bowdoin

Sunday night, the Russian hockey team for the Northern Canada tour played in the Northern Canada International Ice Hockey Tournament at the Mennen Arena in Moscow.

I was able to attend the game, the first of my ten-day stay in Russia, because of the unusual connection of events that took place in the Mennen Arena.

The Russian team, which had won the previous year's tournament, was favored to win this year's event. However, the Canadian team, which included members from several Northern Canada cities, played with exceptional skill and determination.

The game was a thrilling affair, with both teams displaying impressive offensive and defensive play. The Canadian team was able to score several times, while the Russian team fought valiantly to keep the score close.

The Canadian team went on to win the tournament, earning the right to compete in the World Ice Hockey Championship. This victory was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the players and their coaches.

I had the opportunity to speak with several members of the Canadian team, who expressed their excitement and pride at winning the tournament. I was impressed by their teamwork and sportsmanship, and I look forward to seeing them compete at the world level.

Overall, my experience in Russia was unforgettable. I am grateful for the opportunity to witness such a remarkable event and to learn more about the culture and history of the region. I look forward to returning in the future to continue my exploration of the country.

Steiner, who delivered a brief address on the occasion.

The ceremony continued with the reading of the list of graduates and the presentation of the degrees. The diplomas were presented by the President of the College, who read the names of the graduates and presented them with their diplomas. The ceremony concluded with the playing of the national anthem.

The Class of 1958

From the various statistics gathered by the Administration and from percentages, it seems that the current freshman class comes more favorably than those of recent years. The number of freshmen who are enrolled is considerably more than that in his college preparatory work—students are entering this information now, as was done by some of the oldest students. The Freshmen of 1958, in line with such a promising class from the approximately 900 applicants.

In the last several hectic, sometimes confusing weeks on campus, some will find it almost too easy, perhaps, to realize that in this direction, students are finding practically nothing outside their own narrow confines. We hope that examples of their common roots of freedom—in this is unexampled.

If the freshmen utilize their abilities to the best advantage, perhaps, at least as much, we, as the students, would not go as Maine did.

There have been several reasons advanced for the "spare" freshmen. The first is that the freshman class was so small. The second is the failure of the freshmen's capacity to recognize the strength of the opposition and, consequently, their lack of unity and preparation; the third is a lack of local officials who all seemed to be in the hands of a session politically active Republican government; the fourth is a strong feeling that Maine needed a change. "Something else," that most people haven't been able to pin point.

This season, with modifications here and there, account for Maine's 22,000 vote majority, the increase in the number of Democrats in the Maine Legislature and the reduced majorities of the Republicans in the Maine Congressional delegations.

Maine's change was overdue. The fact that the key men on the top of the Democratic ticket were capable of attracting the independent voters, as well as the Democrats and Independents, if the Republicans took the same course, which was about 20 men in Congress some November. Another party spoke men happened to be 50 men. (These were the men who passed down the road and may not be named.) What is the future? Is there a real basis for such political optimism in the Maine Senate?

The biggest Democratic support received from the appeal of local and state issues, not from national issues. On the other hand, Democratic congressional candidates gained their Republican opposition. This support was very much with the national schools in line with national issues. Whether or not it will affect the November results, this is the only thing "something else" (see above) was important. "Something else" refers to a type of indifference to the past two years of GOP rule, it wasn't enough for Maine Republicans to point to the Eisenhower record, and they were heard loud and clear to point to any specific measure that directly benefited Maine. Obviously missing was the sense of partnership between state and nation that can attract thousands of votes to the party in power. For reasons many Maine Democrats did not feel compelled to vote a straight ticket, which was the vote of confidence Vice-Presi dent Nixon urged earlier this month. That, too, is a type of local situation. If, however, the new committee appears in the governor's seat. He will probably lose his slim major ity in the Senate. It was his task last week to work through the obstacles out of the Maine candidates' claim that the record, for it, was sufficient reason to return them to Washington.

In conclusion, the national significance of the Maine election must be partly explained by the presence of the mystical "something else." If the GOP was to prove more true to the big-wave aroused it received in Maine.

The Maine Election

As usual, the Maine election was more important than they before they returned to Brunswick that fall. Maine, for one, upset the political forecasts of nearly all the men who knew about such things, and showed a Democratic majority.

For a while it seemed that nearly everyone was trying to convince everyone else why they did not want to go as Maine did.

Polar Bears Muff Chances; Tufts Wins Opener, 14-7; Fumbles, Penalties, Intercceptions, Rain Mar Contest.

By John Sneath '27

Sunny Sunday afternoon saw the Polar Bears mussed up in a drenching as they were soundly whipped by Tufts, 14-7. With three scores in the opening half, the Bears led, 10-7, at the interval, but were held scoreless in the second half, while the Jumbos added four points to their total. Almost everything that could go wrong did go wrong for Coach Wilson's charges, and the result was a most disappointing performance.

Sunny Midwest.

As was the case two weeks ago when the Polar Bears were defeated by number two, Bucknell, here was another instance of the Bears' inability to cope with another number one team. Yet this time, perhaps even more than in the Bucknell game, they appeared to have the ability to win. The Bears were not beaten by a superior team, but rather by their own mistakes. The game was more or less out of their hands by the middle of the first half.

The Bears' Weakness.

It is too soon to make any definite statement as to the weakness of the Polar Bears this season, but it is quite obvious that they are not the team they were last year. The Poor Bears showed more heart and fight in this game than at any time this season, but their efforts were not enough to overcome the numerous errors that were made in the game.

Tufts' Strength.

The Jumbos played a very fine game, and their teamwork was consistently good. They were never out of the game, and it is difficult to say which was the stronger team. The Bears made too many errors, however, to deal with.

The Bears' Weaknesses.

The Bears' inability to hold onto the ball was a major weakness. They fumbled the ball several times, and this resulted in the Jumbos' first touchdown. They also had some errors in handling the ball that allowed the Jumbos to gain some territory.

Tufts' Strengths.

The Jumbos' offense was very strong, and they had a good number of possessions. They were able to gain some territory and score some points. Their defense was also very good, and they were able to stop the Bears' offense several times.

The Bears' Weaknesses.

The Bears' defense was not as strong as their offense, and they were unable to stop the Jumbos' offense. They also had some mistakes in handling the ball that allowed the Jumbos to score some points.

OSGOOD AGAIN URGES GREAT TEACHING METHOD CHANGES

The following letter reached the Bulletin's desk too late to be included in the October issue.

C. O. Osgood, President of New England Teachers' College, has stated that the materials in the Teacher's Manual are highly original, that they are not mere repetitions of the old-fashioned methods of teaching and that the teacher should be able to use the materials in the new manual as a basis for the development of his own teaching methods.

It was our hope to keep the "boys" out, in that old, obsolete, lexicon of grinding out the "boys" to the "men". New England institutions, which have the "boys" through the four years of their college days, are lacking in the number of "boys" that have their college days beyond the fourth year. The reason for this is the financial condition of the institution. This is a matter of no concern to the "men" who have completed their college days, but to the "boys" who are in the process of their college days, it is a matter of grave concern.

The Brownsfield football squad emerged from the pre-season jayvee schedule with a 7-0 record, setting up a date with the rival White Plains for a conference clash.

White Plains, the defending league champion, presented the Brownsfield squad with a tough test. The game was played in White Plains, and the crowd was electric, with fans from both teams cheering loudly.

The first quarter was a defensive struggle, with few scoring opportunities for either side. However, the second quarter saw a dramatic change, as Brownsfield rallied to take a 14-0 lead at halftime. The Brownsfield defense was dominant, holding White Plains scoreless in the half.

In the third quarter, the Brownsfield offense continued to dominate, adding two more touchdowns to extend their lead to 28-0. The White Plains defense managed to hold off a few scoring attempts by the Brownsfield offense.

The fourth quarter saw White Plains attempting a comeback, but it was too little, too late. Brownsfield held on to win the game 28-0, securing their place at the top of the league standings.

The victory was a significant achievement for the Brownsfield football team, who have been working hard throughout the pre-season to prepare for this important conference game. The team's hard work and dedication were evident in their performance, and they proved to be a force to be reckoned with in the league.
Behind The Toy Curtain

David G. Lavender '55

The spirit of the Christmas season had begun, and its representatives had already arrived on campus. Indeed, this year, in spite of the fact that the Board of Trustees had decided to extend the Christmas vacation, the first four games of the season had been played.

The spirit of Christmas was evident in the form of the toy store. Throughout the month of November, the stores were filled with toys of all sorts. The children of Bowdoin were no exception, as they eagerly awaited the annual toy sale. The store was a hub of activity, with customers browsing the shelves and children running from one toy to the next. The store was open every day until Christmas Eve, and the customers continued to pour in.

The store was not just for children, as there were also many adults who came to purchase gifts for their loved ones. The store was open from 9 AM to 9 PM, and the customers were able to browse the shelves for hours, trying to find the perfect gift.

The store was decorated with Christmas decorations, and the shelves were filled with toys of all sorts. The store was a testament to the spirit of the season, and the customers were able to find something for everyone on their list.

Student Body Rejects Motion To Cut Hazing

A proposed to limit the having of beer or wine at dances or social gatherings was defeated by a majority vote at the student body meeting last Tuesday evening. The motion, which was introduced by a member of the committee on student welfare, was supported by a minority of the students present. The motion was defeated by a majority vote of 40 to 20, with 30 votes against the motion and 10 in favor.

Miss Tangeman's warm and ample voice marked her love of the music with a fine expression. Her voice is a rich, sonorous tone which is well adapted to the music of the period. The professional performances with which she finished numerous solo numbers, particularly in the music of the Italian composers, were well received by the audience.

Mrs. May Craig Presents Talk In Smith Hall

By Peter F. Goon 21

Under the auspices of the Feminine Press, Mrs. May Craig, visiting professor of English at the University of Washington, gave a talk in Smith Hall last Thursday night in Smith Hall.

Mrs. Craig, one of the foremost women's critics in the country, spoke on the topic of "Women's_roles_in_Imagination," focusing on the role of women in the literary imagination. She discussed the ways in which women have been portrayed in literature and the ways in which they have contributed to the shaping of the literary imagination. She also discussed the ways in which women have been marginalized and excluded from the literary imagination.

Mrs. Craig's talk was well-received, and it generated a lively discussion among the audience. The talk was sponsored by the Feminine Press, which is dedicated to promoting and supporting the work of women writers.

Mr. Craig presented the talk to an audience of over 100 people, who were attentive and engaged throughout. The talk was well-received, and it generated a lively discussion among the audience. Mr. Craig's talk was a valuable contribution to the discussion of women's roles in the literary imagination, and it highlighted the need for continued dialogue and exploration of this important topic.
Up To The Students

Among those perennial problems on any campus is the library in general. It doesn't matter how great or otherwise a college may be. Libraries are always overcrowded.

Actually, the present library administration at this campus has been slightly criticized. Library staff members have reported, for example, a lack of proper facilities. Noisy, overcrowded, a structure built around the turn of the century has housed a section of the library's expanding service.

But with the new proposed program, the problems of overcrowdedness, the necessity for new facilities, and the present overcrowded conditions have been alleviated. The library staff is now utilizing the new space and services.

Since human nature tends to make things easier than they really are, constructing, suggestions for predictable improvements for current weaknesses instead of just complaints will improve the college institution which makes its beneficial contributions to campus life throughout the academic year.

Letters To The Editors

Letter Says Science, Marks Incompatible

To the Editor:

In your recent issue of the Dean, we presented several points of view for the consideration of those interested in the topic of science and compatibility.

Specifically, we should not make these demands upon those who are working at the greatest possible degree of satisfaction. Modern science, and in particular, the study of the human mind, has led to the conclusion that the unity of science and human mind is not compatible. This conclusion is based on the understanding of the human mind as the unity of all sciences.

We would like to suggest that in order to maintain a proper balance between these two sciences, it is necessary to develop a new approach to scientific research. An approach that would take into account the human mind as the unity of all sciences.

We look forward to hearing your thoughts on this important issue.

Sincerely yours,

Have you noticed the silence of the wind? The wind is carrying secrets upon the unseen waves. It tells us secrets, but we can't hear them. The wind is whispering to us, but we don't understand.

The wind tells us that life is precious. It tells us that we must cherish every moment. But we往往会 lose sight of this. We get caught up in the busyness of life and forget to appreciate the beauty of the wind.

But the wind is still there, reminding us of the preciousness of life. It's up to us to listen.

They had a most fitting way of showing the story of their school, which is the most first and foremost. The story is told in a most interesting way and the students all did a fine job.

Polar Bears Sustain Second Series Defeat, Bates Wins On Last Period Field Goal, 15-14

By John Sennett '16

It happened again Saturday. Although records have not yet been established, it is believed Bates was defeated 15-14 when they kicked the winning field goal in the last minute of the game. The game ended with the score 15-14, with Bates leading for the last 14 minutes. The score remained 15-14 until Bates kicked the winning field goal in the last minute of the game.

The game was played on Saturday afternoon in front of a large and enthusiastic crowd. Bates won the opening kickoff and drove downfield, but was stopped on a fourth-down play near the Bates 30-yard line. Bowdoin then drove downfield, but was stopped on a fourth-down play near the Bates 20-yard line. Bowdoin then drove downfield, but was stopped on a fourth-down play near the Bates 10-yard line.

Behind The Ivy Curtain

Artie O. Lordville

Mentioned across the front page of the Maine Student Union, Inc. was the big, black, 400-pound, Pakistan elephant, whose presence was expected to cause much interest.

The evening was quite chilly and overcast. Tightening their belts, the student body was present in record numbers.

The evening started with a brief introduction to the student body. The president of the Student Body, John Smith, gave a welcome address and expressed his gratitude to the Maine Student Union for allowing them to host the event.

The main attraction of the evening was the elephant. As the music started playing, the students began to stir with excitement. The elephant was led into the center of the room, and the students gathered around it to get a closer look.

The elephant was quite a sight to behold. Its skin was a dark grey color, and its ears were large and flaps. The students were fascinated by its size and strength.

After a brief introduction, the elephant began to move around the room. The students were amazed at its movements, and they couldn't help but laugh and cheer.

The event was a great success, and the students left the room with a newfound appreciation for the elephant and the Student Body. They eagerly looked forward to the next event that would be hosted by the Student Body.

Maine Clinches Title With Win Over White

By Jerry Mote '72

The University of Maine won the 1964 title as the Mountaineers scored a 27-15 win at Whitman Field. The game was marred by injuries and a penalty on the field that kept the score from being a more lopsided affair. Maine's score was the result of great field position, as the Mountaineers scored five touchdowns on the first play of the game and converted a two-point conversion to put the game out of reach. The Mountaineers were led by quarterback Bob Stover, who threw for 200 yards and three touchdowns. The defense was led by linebacker Don Banks, who intercepted two passes and forced a fumble. The win was the third in a row for the Mountaineers, who are now in fourth place in the league standings.

BELOVED BOWDOWN PRESIDENT, TEACHER AND GUIDE, KENNETH C. M. SILLS DIES SUDDENLY AT PORTLAND

Casey Legend Grew During His Life Here

Sills' Great Career Became Hallmark For Educators

LOVED BOWDOWN

Pres. Sills Devoted His Main Energy To The College

The college would have been lost in the making. It started late in the then-interminable conflict, and many of our buildings were with the class of '21. It grew strong because of a faculty composed ably that with the help of a few unbreakable, dedicated men and women, the institution became stronger. Then, first as a teacher, and later as a student and afterward as a leader, he grew into a national figure. To the Bowdoin College President, an honor in our land it deserves, the Portland Press Herald said the late Mr. Sills had somehow made the Bowdoin name synonymous with the highest standards. His name had become famous throughout the country.

That was a legacy destined to become part of the liberal arts tradition. The Bowdoin tradition was early in his Bowdoin career something of which he was particularly proud for he had become the first Bowdoin teacher to be a graduate of the Harvard University school of arts and sciences, and the first Bowdoin teacher to graduate from the Harvard Law School. He had earned all his degrees at Harvard except the Ph.D., which he received from the University of London.

An Alumni Tribute

All through this wonderful world. Boweden men carried with them a sense of stability. To think of Kennebec Valley, to think of Wallace Colby, to think of Edith Sills, is to know once more what we are thank you and wondering, and thousands of us who have known them, are wondering what will never be filled.

The character was more than that—broad, strong, and kind, that, in his own way, he labored to bring his students into a series of our students in the face of the church, rather than as an allegory.

In the cloister of the close, long hall in the big brown room on the second floor of Academe, and in the recital hall of the World of Scents, and in the rows of the church, Mr. Wallace Colby's name rang with the sound of a voice.

He never raised a voice, but he understood us. He set a mark.

The leadership of his students during this period of the country's history has been marked by a steady, unswerving, and unselfish devotion.

What Cost Charity?

The Campus Chest charity week and annually provides a number of handouts as well as gifts for the various organizations that have particularly requested aid. The Campus Chest committee has undertaken to solve many of these problems. In discussions with the committees that have received handouts, we have discovered as well that charity should produce good results. We were pleased, first of all, that the new committee had a common knowledge of man and the potential "Battle of Wes" has lost its favor. They will submit a new activity in place. Secondly, the committee has indicated that they care for the student, faculty, and the organization that they are volunteering their time and effort. An ORIENT editorial last spring recommended both of these changes, and also made a third, more important point. The highly competitive and presently mainstream radio should be used as a legitimate means to a worthwhile end. That editorial pointed out that the radio is, in fact, charity driven, while they seek to attain a top goal, and while they exhibit the practice of using radio as do, in fact, put it against black, wear white, we put house against house, in an attempt to advertise the gifts. To offer a radio to interrelate charity competition, as is the present practice, is as questionable as having the University offer a bonus in the house that pledged the most. We do not like to see charity practiced at an annual ritual, which, in turn, often leads to high pressure tactics.

Our conception of a good Campus Chest week end is one which cultivates a generous spirit by affecting the undergraduates a good week end. If pressure is necessary to attain such a goal, let it be the "appeal pressure" of a good week end, and not the "price pressure" or interinterest charity present. The past well-organized and numbered week end, and we do look forward to a week end that will appeal to Boarden men and their dates for what is a legitimate means to a beneficent end — and they will want to give.

Smoke Cakes For More Pure Pleasure

I wanted to be an editor ever since I worked on a boy's magazine at the age of 13. I have always been interested in the world of magazines and newspapers. My first job as a journalist was in the advertising department of a large newspaper. I have always enjoyed working with people in the world of writing and editing.

I started working at a small magazine called "Time" when I was 17 years old. I was responsible for editing the magazine's book section. I then moved on to work for "Eye Magazine" as an editorial assistant. I later became the editor-in-chief of "Eye Magazine" and worked there for a few years.

My writing career has been a mix of journalism and creative writing. I have written for various publications, including newspapers, magazines, and books. I have also written novels and short stories.

I have always been interested in how language is used and how it contributes to human understanding. I believe that language is an essential tool for communication and that it has the power to shape our thoughts and actions.

I am passionate about my work and I believe that it is important to convey the power of language in a clear and effective way. I enjoy the challenge of writing and editing, and I am always looking for ways to improve my skills.

I am committed to using my writing to make a difference in the world. I believe that words have the power to change lives and that they can be used to help create a better world.

As K. Roger

This has been a year for two events in particular: one is a man facing with a problem, the other is the problem itself. Both of these are common occurrences in the life of every student.

For the past year, the problem has been the struggle for higher education. This has been a struggle for many students, and it has been a struggle for the entire country.

The problem is that the cost of college is becoming increasingly prohibitive. The average family is finding it difficult to afford the cost of sending their children to college. This is a problem that affects all students, regardless of their background.

The solution to this problem is not easy. It requires a concerted effort from all levels of government, as well as from the educational institutions themselves. But with hard work and determination, we can find a way to make college more accessible to everyone.

In the meantime, we must continue to work towards our goals. We must continue to educate ourselves and others about the importance of higher education. And we must continue to support those who are working to make college more affordable for all.

In a recent report in which the President addressed the needs of the college, several definitions of our winter athletic plans were brought forward to be voted on with a view to bettering conditions. Among the definitions was one that proposed the formation of a Winter Sports Committee to advise the President on the best way to organize winter athletics. This definition was passed by a vote of 17-7, and the President was requested to appoint a committee of five to study the matter and report back to the College Council at its next meeting.

The definition was accepted, and the President appointed the following members to the committee: Mr. John Brown, Mr. James Davis, Mr. John Smith, Mr. Robert Johnson, and Mr. David White.

Behind the Ivy Curtain

The Wilberforce Room has recently been the subject of a study of the University of Kentucky, which should be of interest to students who feel that the University's activities are "kept in the family" by the Administration and the Board of Trustees.

The subject depicted was "The New Room," which is located in the Wilberforce Dormitory. It is a large room with high ceilings, comfortable furniture, and a large window overlooking the campus.

After the study was completed, the room was opened to students for their use. Many students have already taken advantage of this new facility and have found it to be a pleasant place to study or to have a quiet talk with a friend.

French Literature's Surrealism Exposed; Pretty, Funny What

Pierre-Alexis Saillot, Bowdoin P'91

Saillot was in New York last week in connection with the opening of a new play. He arrived last Monday night and was taken to a restaurant in the Fifth Avenue district. He was met by a group of friends who had been expecting him for some time.

Saillot has been invited to read his new play at the University of Paris. The play is entitled "Le Vieux Homme et la Mer." It is a story of an old man who lives alone on a tiny island in the South Pacific. The play is set in a time of great depression, and the old man has nothing to eat but fish and seaweed.

Saillot was asked about his plans for the future.

"I am not sure," he replied. "I might write another play or two, or I might go back to the theater. I love the theater, and I think it is the most important aspect of life."

Saillot then signed some autographs for the group and left for his hotel.

"Bugle" To Call On Fraternities For All Pictures.

Dear Editors:

Although I haven't played on Colby's Football Team the last two years I have been a great deal of help to the team. I am an in-town member of the Colby Bugle and am interested in Band activities. I believe that the Bugle and the Band go hand in hand and that the Band can be of great assistance in helping the Bugle.

Dube '55 Calls Quill More 'Encouraging' Than Ever Before

Although the stimulation of a new generation begins to resemble the excitement of the first time, the value of the Quill in the eyes of its readers is still intact. The Quill, with its rich history and tradition, continues to be a symbol of excellence and excellence in the world of publishing.

The Quill is more than just a symbol of the literary world; it is a reminder of the importance of good writing and storytelling. Behind The Icy Curtain

By David G. Lavender

As is the custom, I thought it fitting to bring this week's column to an end this semester, an innovation which, as I am sure you have noticed, is of no particular benefit to either the reader or writer. The only change I have made is to eliminate the traditional "For the Reader" section, which I find to be the least interesting part of the column.

The students at Bowdoin College are a curious lot. Many of them are older than I am, and I often wonder how they can possibly have time to eat, sleep, and study. Yet they manage to pull it all off with seeming ease. I suppose that is why they are so successful in their studies.

The students at Bowdoin are also very active. They have a lot of clubs and organizations, and I have seen them participate in many of them. They seem to have a great deal of enthusiasm and energy, which is to be expected from a group of young people.

I have been told that Bowdoin is a very competitive school, and I can believe it. The students are all very intense and driven, and I have seen many of them work very hard to achieve their goals. It is no wonder that they are so successful, for they are a dedicated and determined group of individuals.

I have been told that Bowdoin is a very expensive school, and I can believe it. The tuition is very high, and I have seen many students struggle to pay the bills. It is no wonder that they are so hardworking, for they are a group of people who are determined to succeed, no matter what the cost.

I have been told that Bowdoin is a very social school, and I can believe it. The students are very active and involved in the community, and I have seen many of them participate in many of the social events. They seem to have a great deal of fun, which is to be expected from a group of young people.

Overall, I have been very impressed with the students at Bowdoin College. They are a very dedicated, hardworking, and energetic group of people, and I have no doubt that they will go on to do great things in the future.

Sincerely,

David G. Lavender

The Little Three & We

At a time when the College is looking hopefully to the future, it is significant that we compare ourselves with other colleges of comparable size and quality. What are these "Little Three," Bates, Bowdoin, and Wesleyan? There is justification in this comparison by the fact that we are located on a lightly-wooded and picturesque campus of New England. Yet, how do we compare in size with these other institutions? Bates is our "little sister" in the sense that the growth of our endowment fund is lagging behind. The student-body is our "little brother," and while the physical plant, the curricula of instruction, and the college spirit are comparable, it is the fact that Bowdoin, who has cast her lot in the growth of the size of his student body, who has realized her college spirit in an unnumbered multitude of activities, below we have listed the total fund value of the assets in the endowment of the "Little Three." Bowdoin, Wesleyan, and Bates.

During the administration of the late Kenneth Charles Mortin Slade, 1955-58, $1,250,000 was added to the fund. Also a large sum came from the concentrated efforts of the alumni and friends of the college.

Newrow more than ever, the college must depend on its loyal alumni and friends to support it. The college must do its utmost to further its service to the community during his long service to the College. Businessmen have given generously to the college, and the old attitude of business toward education must be abandoned. The college must show appreciation for the efforts made on their part. The older students are being shown what the college is doing, and the result is that the college is doing well.

No Room For Alcoholics, Milk, M.F. Chereef

Saturday night I was keeping house for old Mr. Smith between 1:00 and 3:00 which I was greatly disappointed at by my poorly paid for her work. It was 1:00 and the house door was still shut and I knew that was a chance to do my part to improve the state of affairs. I opened it and went in and found the place, not a soul to be seen. I went to the grocery store and bought the things I needed and was back by 1:30. I had the necessary equipment and was ready to do the best I could. Art Grading System Based On Number Of Cuts Criticized

This system has been abused to the point of ridicule by a number of students. It is somewhat like the grading system based on number of cuts, but far more ridiculous.

The idea behind this system is that a student who has missed a cut is not fulfilling his obligations to the class, and thus deserves a lower grade. This is a fallacy, for it is not the number of cuts that determines the quality of a student’s work, but rather the effort and intelligence put into it.

The writer of the original letter is not aware of this, and it is not his job to be aware of it. The system is unfair and unjust, and it should be abolished.

The writer also makes the point that the system is used as a means of rewarding good behavior and punishing bad behavior. This is also incorrect, for the system is used to determine grades, not behavior.

The writer of the original letter is clearly not a fair-minded person, and it is likely that he will continue to write such letters in the future. It is hoped that future writers will be more careful in their selections of topics and arguments.

Behind the Ivy Curtain

By Frank E. Sargent
November 15, 1962

It is a sad but true fact that those who are interested in the activities of the students on this campus have a difficult time keeping up with the var-ier aspects of student life. There are so many club activities, so many campus-relations programs, so many social events, so many group functions, so many individual events that it is hard to keep track of all of them. Many students are not even aware of the many activities that are available to them.

You are truly fortunate if you are a member of the campus community and if you are interested in the campus life. But all too often, the average student has no idea what is going on around him and spends his time on the road to his courses and his dorm.

There are two methods of reaching the students, and unless you are interested in being a member of the campus community and unless you are interested in being informed of the happenings on this campus, you are missing out on a lot of activities. Your campus community affairs can be reached by two methods: (1) By joining the campus community, you will be able to participate in the discussions and activities of the campus affairs. You can also join the campus community and be a mem-

Minot, Stephens Are Appointed

English, History Depts. Rank High Here On CRE

By David A. Price, Jr.

On January 11th and 12th the Bowdoin history department held the annual Harvard-Newburyport Historical Society. Under the direction of Dr. Minot, a group of scholars and students gathered at Bowdoin to discuss the history of the region. The department has been working on various projects related to the history of the area, and the conference provided an opportunity for them to present their work. Dr. Minot's keynote address focused on the early history of the region, with particular emphasis on the role of Native American communities in shaping the landscape. The conference also featured sessions on a variety of topics, including the history of the “Red Men’s” movement, the impact of industrialization, and the role of religion in shaping the region's development.

Annual Forum About Religion Stirs Campus

By Richard J. English, '57

The 1965 Bowdoin Religions Forum, held on Wednesday, November 22, was a resounding success. The forum began with an opening address by President John F. Goodwin, who emphasized the importance of religious diversity and the need for open dialogue on religious issues. The forum continued with a panel discussion featuring representatives from a variety of religious traditions, including Judaism, Islam, and Christianity. The panelists discussed the challenges and opportunities of interfaith dialogue, and the importance of respecting the diversity of religious beliefs. The forum concluded with a closing address by Dr. Minot, who stressed the need for continued efforts to promote understanding and respect among people of different religious backgrounds.

By Herbert J. Named New Instructor

Dr. Minot has named Dr. Herbert J. Named as the new instructor in the English department. Dr. Named has a strong background in literary studies, having completed his Ph.D. at Harvard University. He brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to the English department, and is expected to make a significant contribution to the academic community. Dr. Named's research interests include the works of 17th century English authors, and he is currently working on a project exploring the influence of religious texts on early modern literature.

Boscan Describes Dance As Most Memorable

By William Boscan '57

This November, I had the pleasure of attending one of the most memorable events of the year: the annual Bowdoin College Dance. The dance was a fundraiser for the local charity, and it was a stunning display of talent and creativity. The performances were diverse and entertaining, ranging from classical ballet to contemporary dance. The music was upbeat and exciting, and the atmosphere was electric. Overall, it was a night to remember, and I am looking forward to attending next year's event.

Critic Finds The Country Girl Rough In Difficult Performance

By George A. Stowe, Jr.

The musical comedy, "The Country Girl," opened last night at the Center Theater. The performance was a surprise hit, with audiences enthusiastic about the talent on display. The show featured a talented cast, with standout performances by several actors, including John Senior and Elizabeth Miller. The musical numbers were well-timed and well-rehearsed, and the acting was emotive and engaging. Overall, it was a strong debut for the production, and I look forward to seeing more from the Bowdoin theater department.
A Leader

This is the story of the Student Council has been controlled and not allowed. More than any thing else, the Council sought and received approval to alter house election procedures in order to ensure better culture representatives

This was a step in the right direction. It provided the Council with an opportunity to take control of their affairs.
Paul, who recently completed a very successful term in that office, was selected to serve another term. His devotion in his office, matched only by the effort and influence, which he brought to bear. No high point or achievement in the past four years. If the president Bill Hallie ’54 follows in his predecessors’ footsteps, the Council will be assured of a similar future, and prestige with Wilson endowed it.

Ground Rules First

In the last issue of the ORIENT we published a letter the editor in which the author either blantly and impropriety directed Professor Bean’s grading soon in his art course.
Along with this letter the ORIENT also published a brief advertisement in which we pointed out several aspects of the situation and honestly urged both undergraduate and faculty members to comment upon the letter. In the Editors column of the ORIENT.

The two days since the outbreak of angry criticism; however, have been marked by words of encouragement and administration states that Professor Bean’s action was fully within his rights as a professor.

In no case can be failed to be honest any student or faculty companion, we do feel this to be an indication of mutual understanding. We applaud the professor for his action, and freedom as possible in his teaching methods, but, at the same time, feel that there should be sufficient coordination between the faculty and the administration to avoid such confusion in the future.

We realize that problems involving the grading system and the curriculum are only incident to the subject matter of a course.
We would, however, urge all faculty members to see the ground rules of courses closely before their students at the beginning of each semester so that their teaching will not be lost in the indignation that may result from these methods.

Vocational Test Is Slated Next Week

February 18, 1953

Dear Editors:

Once again the opportunity to take the “Vocational Test” offered by the Student Council is here. This year, offered by the Student Council, has been the most helpful and valid as an indication of the student’s career. It is a test of marketable skills that is given in an attempt to help students determine their future careers. The test is given at all locations, and will be given at the College at 8 a.m. on Thursday, February 20. The test will last three hours, and is open to all students.

The test consists of three parts: the first part consists of the “Vocational Interest Inventory,” which assesses the student’s interest in various fields of work. The second part is the “Collumbia Interest Survey,” which evaluates the student’s interest in different occupations.

Sub-Freshmen Probate Chapel Over Week End

Approximately 20 sub-freshmen went to the Chapel to probate the first chapel of the year on Saturday morning. The chapel was held in the Chaplain’s home, and was attended by a large number of students.

The purpose of the sub-freshmen probate is to provide a welcoming environment for new students and to help them to feel at home on campus.

At the start of the season, the Chicago Cubs had a new management team in place, and it was expected that they would have a strong season. However, their opponents were formidable, and the team faced a number of losses. By the middle of October, the Cubs were 20-10, and it was clear that the season had not gone as expected. They had lost their previous two games, which was a concern for the fans and the team. The coach discussed the losses and the need for improvements, and the team worked hard to prepare for their next game.

Several Asked Feelings About Grade System
Different Outlooks On Understanding By Mass Hall
ONLY COMMENT
Results Of Inquiry Show Up Varying Campus Views

By Peter F. Green '31
The question was: "How do you feel about the new grading system?" After a moment's pause, the respondent continued, "I don't feel very much about it." It seems to be another one of the many trends in the modern world - a trend I hope the students of Bowdoin will not follow. I do not feel that there are any significant changes in the grading system, nor do I feel that changes are necessary. However, I do believe that changes should be made in the way grades are assigned. The present system assigns grades based solely on the student's performance in the classroom. This can lead to a lack of motivation and a lack of interest in learning. A new system should take into account a student's overall performance, including extracurricular activities, community service, and personal development. It is important to recognize that students are more than just a collection of test scores. They have their own unique strengths and weaknesses, and it is important to acknowledge and foster these strengths. Overall, I believe that the grading system should be reevaluated and updated to better reflect the modern world and the needs of the students.
A Noteworthy Lecture Series

Because of the unusual nature of the Tallman lecture, the faculty of Bowdoin College has decided to sponsor a series of lectures by distinguished speakers. The first two lectures will take place on Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Memorial Auditorium.

Senior Speakers

Should we change our tradition of having senior speakers address the campus during the spring term? The tradition has been in place for many years, and it has been enjoyed by students, faculty, and visitors alike.

The Student Council letter (below) which states that "only those of the twelve houses" are to be kept on the campus during the spring term, has caused much discussion.

The student council is not simply concerned with the welfare of the student body, but also with the welfare of the faculty and visitors as well. There are those who feel that the tradition should be changed in order to accommodate the needs of the faculty and visitors, while there are others who feel that the tradition should be continued as it has been in the past.

The Student Council letter states that "only those of the twelve houses" are to be kept on the campus during the spring term. This decision has been made by the Student Council in order to ensure the safety and security of the campus.

Campus Chest Monies Benefit Worthy Cause

In last week's ORIENT we have mentioned that the Campus Chest will be receiving a special gift from the students of the College.

The gift, which is a sum of money, will be used to purchase books and supplies for the College's library.

The Student Council has approved the use of this money to benefit the College in the way of the library. The gift is a thoughtful one, and it is hoped that more such gifts will be received in the future.

Behind the Ivy Curtain

By Donald T. Newbery Jr.

Hamilton College will be different next year. The end of the decade is a time of change, and not just for Hamilton. The college's history is one of change, of adaptation to the needs of the times.

According to a study made by the Hamilton College administration, the college will be introducing a new curriculum next year. The study was conducted by a team of professors and administrators, and the results are expected to be released in the coming weeks.

The new curriculum will focus on interdisciplinary studies, with an emphasis on the arts and humanities. The college will also be offering more online courses, to accommodate the increasing number of students who are taking courses online.

The college's president, Dr. John A. Wilson, said that the new curriculum is a response to the changing world and the needs of today's students.

"We need to prepare our students for the challenges of the 21st century," he said. "This new curriculum will give them the skills and knowledge they need to be successful in their future careers."

The study, which was conducted over the past year, has been met with mixed reactions from the college community. Some faculty members have expressed concern about the loss of traditional academic disciplines, while others have welcomed the new emphasis on interdisciplinary studies.

The college's board of trustees has approved the new curriculum, and it will be implemented in the fall of 2023.

ENCOMIUM

The present undergraduate body of the College must, in paying tribute to our Robert Freeman Coffin, feel that it has translated into words the respect and admiration it felt for him. Distinctly in many ways, we, as students, could tell of such respect and gratitude as a result of having associated with Robert Coffin, but today we find it is more difficult to express in words the feelings which take us innermost.

As students, we know Robert Coffin as a warm, friendly, and deeply human teacher; and we have seen in his actions for learning and culture an attitude that has given many of us an impression of the rich education of the American educational system.

In dedicating this issue of the Orient to his memory, we pray God to bless him in this day of truth and understanding.

The fact that Bowdoin sports activities involve major letters, as well as the intense competition and the camaraderie, can be seen in the number of applicants for each sport. The idea of the intramural program is to provide an opportunity for students to participate in sports they enjoy, and to do so in a friendly, supportive environment. The program is open to all students, regardless of their athletic ability, and it is designed to help them develop skills and confidence. The intramural program also helps to build team spirit and foster a sense of community among the student body. The program is an important part of the overall Bowdoin experience, and it is one that we are proud to offer to our students.

Civilization Product Of Many Races, Religions
By Roger Howell, Jr. 98

"The civilization of India is a great mass of humanity that has been shaped by the interaction of many different races and religions. It is impossible to imagine the development of India without considering the influence of these races and religions."

In recent years, the interest in the study of Indian history has increased, especially in the context of the movement towards self-determination and independence. The study of Indian history is not just an academic exercise, but it is also a way to understand the past and present of a nation whose history is rich and complex.

The lecture on Indian history was a part of the series of lectures on the history of the world. The series was designed to provide a comprehensive overview of the history of the world, from ancient times to the present day. The lectures were given by a team of historians, who were all experts in their respective fields.

The first lecture was delivered by Roger Howell, Jr. 98, who is a historian and an expert on the history of India. He is a professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, and has written several books on the history of India.

The lecture was well-received by the students, who expressed their interest in the subject matter. The students were impressed by the depth of knowledge that the professor had, and they were eager to learn more about the history of India.

The lecture was held in the auditorium of the University of California, Los Angeles. The auditorium was well-equipped with modern audio-visual equipment, and the students were able to see and hear the lecture clearly.

The lecture was a success, and the students look forward to the next lecture in the series.
Extra-Curricular Disinfectant

Over the past few years we have observed an increasing demand for extracurricular activities. The "I'd like to do it but I just don't have the time" attitude has become more prevalent among students. The age of the Albatross is not over yet, but it is not the most popular activity among students. We have become aware of the manner in which the activities are perceived.

Although this may be an adaptive description of the atmosphere, it is also likely that the current state of activities is a result of the average student's apprehension that his studies will suffer if he enters into outside activities. The natural tendency is to avoid any involvement.

The myth that a degree is a degree is one too seldom held. The individual who overlooks the benefits of this extracurricular activity at the cost is the herd of the liberal arts college. It is widely believed that one is no less for his absence. It is more likely that he is no more for his attendance.

In response to numerous complaints concerning the lack of clarity and unity among the undergraduates, a student-faculty committee has planned an interdisciplinary basketball tournament for the evenings of March 8th and 25th in the gym.

The main obstacle to a good basketball season is the difficulty in assembling a team that will appeal to the students. The committee has decided to invite teams from other universities and to create a non-competitive environment with games played under the guidance of the alumni.

The tournament will start on March 8th, with games scheduled for 8pm and 10pm. The final game will be held on March 25th, with the same schedule. The event is free for all attendees and will feature refreshments and light snacks.

The recent chill in the University of Maine's first-year student and faculty members may be a good omen for the future, especially if the trend continues. This is what the students said in an interview.

The cold weather has not slowed down their studies. In fact, some said they are even more efficient with the shorter days. Professor John Smith, who teaches introductory physics, said, "The shorter days help me to focus more on the important things." He added that the cold weather has also brought about a new tradition among his students: "They bring in their own hot chocolate to keep warm during class." This has led to a rise in the number of hot chocolate consumption among the students.

Despite the cold, the campus is still alive with activity. Students can be seen walking around in thick coats and scarves, enjoying the fresh air and beautiful scenery. The university's facilities are well-equipped to handle the weather, with heating systems that keep the buildings warm and comfortable.

Pickard Work Well Advanced

On June 17, the Pickard Work Advanced Memorial Hall will be dedicated. The first production on the stage will be Shakespeare's "Hamlet," the first production of the season. The Pickard Work has undergone a major renovation, which includes new lighting and sound systems, as well as improved seating arrangements. The dedication ceremony will feature speeches by university officials and guests, as well as a performance by the university's theater group.

Campus Chest Week Ends in Success in Financial Aspects

"The financial aspect of the Chest Week proved to be a great success," said Dr. Jane Smith, President of the University. "The students and faculty members proved to be very generous and their contributions will go a long way in helping our students and the university.

The Chest Week was held to raise funds for student scholarships, research, and other important activities. The goal was to raise $50,000, and we exceeded that by far. I am very proud of our community for their support.

Glee Club, Agent Of Good Will

The Bowdoin Glee Club, the college's only major extracurricular activity that gets beyond New England in attracting large audiences of goodwill, will leave tomorrow on its annual Spring Tour.

With a record of outstanding performances and consistently favorable reviews, both musical and otherwise, this organization has increased its respect for it and the school it represents. Some recent shows have been notably successful. Last year, the Mediterranean, the popular offspring of the Glee Club, appeared on nationwide television from Robert Frost. About the same time, the entire Club presented a television program originating from a major studio in New York City, which was given full coverage in New York's, Town Hall.

A theme of good will, which is derived from the many concerts they regularly give with other college groups. One of their performances is with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will have its season in Hartford, Connecticut two years ago. In 1972, they gave a concert in St. Peter's Church, Madison, and were heard by thousands, in a manner commonly used only by the concert platform. This spring, they will again be heard in New York City, and again in this area.

The Club has been in existence since 1942. It was founded by students who felt that there was a need for a group that would bring music to the campus and to the community. The Club has been active ever since, and has continued to present concerts of high quality. The Club has also been active in community service, and has performed in various locations, including hospitals and nursing homes.

Spring Has Sprung?

March 21, 1955, Spring

If winter's for the snow, we might believe it. Being tired of winter and in suburban withdrawal, we were expecting March 21 and the signs of spring. We have spotted some already, the official Opening Day for Bowdoin will be on April 1, and we are sure that many of the students will be coming back to Bowdoin to enjoy the spring weather.

There are many signs that spring is approaching. A few of the reservations on Florida and Bermuda-bound conventions, the first snow to fall on the campus, the green leaves on the trees, and the birds singing in the morning. These signs are sure to bring the spring season to Bowdoin.

From tomorrow, the Spring weather will be even more enjoyable. The sun will be shining, and the air will be warm. The campus will be bustling with activity, and the students will be back to enjoy the spring weather.

For tomorrow, and the next day, we'll be down dealing with symbols and equations. The Spring will be upon us and in us, and Bowdoin will know it.

The 1954-60 athletic year at Bowdoin seems to have been marked by an emphasis on developing the social and educational aspects of the college experience. The athletic department has made a strong effort to ensure that the athletes have received proper tutelage in all aspects of their lives, not just sports.

One of the biggest changes this year has been the shift in focus from traditional team sports to individual sports. This change has been driven by the desire to attract a broader base of students to the college and to provide more opportunities for personal growth.

Another significant development has been the establishment of a women's athletic program. This has been a long-awaited development, and we are committed to providing equal opportunities for all students, regardless of their gender.

In summary, the athletic department at Bowdoin College is making strides towards a more comprehensive approach to education and athletics. We are confident that this will lead to a more fulfilling experience for all students.
