Special Honors Program: A Gap To Be Filled

Among the college institutions that founded away with the Second World War was the special honors program. Although this season had worked successfully for this year, it was unfortunately thwarted when the major system was repeated in the post-war adjustment period. Now, when the college is undergoing self-examination, serious consideration should be given to reconstituting some form of a flexible special honors program.

Briefly stated, a special honors program would allow the student to choose courses that fall outside the standard curriculum. It would permit the student to work at his own pace and under his own direction. The program would enable the student to avoid the rigidities of the standard curriculum and to take courses that would better fit his own needs or interests.

Since different subjects would ideally require different degrees of intensity, a proposed program should be quite flexible, in order to custom fit each individual case. Any number of combinations could be worked out, for example, a student who was particularly interested in a certain subject might study the subject for one or two years and then move on to another field of study. Again, any fixed academic requirement would be set; the student would be free to choose his own course of study.

This plan could be put into operation, since it would not interfere with the regular courses of study. The student would be able to work at his own pace and under his own direction. The program would enable the student to avoid the rigidities of the standard curriculum and to take courses that would better fit his own needs or interests.

Dear The Editors:

The results of the recent survey of students shows that the majority of students would like to see a more flexible system of education. They believe that the current system is too rigid and does not allow them to pursue their own interests.

The survey also shows that the majority of students would be willing to pay more tuition in order to have access to a more flexible system of education. They believe that the benefits of such a system would outweigh the costs.

We urge the administration to consider the students' wishes and to implement a more flexible system of education as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Student Body President

The advent of the baseball season brings to attention a problem which has for some time been a source of concern to the students of the university. The location of the university, away from the center of town, creates an obstacle for students who wish to attend games or participate in other events.

First, it offers longer daily commute times for both fresh- men and seniors, making it more difficult for them to attend games or participate in other events.

Second, the location of the university makes it difficult for students to get to and from games or events.

Third, the distance from the university to the center of town makes it difficult for students to attend games or participate in other events.

Fourth, the location of the university makes it difficult for students to attend games or participate in other events.

In order to address these issues, the university is considering several options, including the construction of a new baseball field on campus, the purchase of a new sports facility in the center of town, and the establishment of a new transportation system.

These options are currently under review, and a final decision is expected to be made in the near future.

Pierre Criticizes QUILL

As Being Too Conservative

By Pierre-Nicolas Aubert '78

I have always been interested in the literary magazines. Of course, I am not interested in them merely for the intellectual value of the literary articles, but also for the stimulating qualities that they possess. I am convinced that there are good literary magazines, and I am also convinced that there are bad ones. But I do not think that you can improve them by making them better. I think that you can make them worse by making them better.

A nice day of 100 hours has passed, and now it is time to think about the future. Next week we will have our first outdoor activities, which should be a merry time and as much fun as possible. We hope you can join us for a good time!
A Great Opportunity

This week, perhaps for the first time, Bowdoin undergraduates will have a real opportunity to show their support for the school and their alma mater. Student News, the sports pages of the ORIENT have contained hollow pleas for a financial contribution on the part of recent graduates. In a few cases, alumni have agreed to contribute to Bowdoin, but hope to make an impact on the student they should have been. The aim of these contributions is to help the school and the students who have attended it.

The Student Council Anticipates Campus Support For Rink

Wittman's 69 game was the best, one which he took in an unprecidented thirty-six-hour building. He won his only game in the season.

A building rink at Bowdoin College is still a hope in the minds of many students. Some have expressed the opinion that the rink should be built, while others say that it is unnecessary and that the funds should be used for other purposes.

In the Student Council, the idea of a rink has been discussed. Some members feel that it is a good idea, while others believe that it is a waste of money.

The Student Council has decided to support the rink, and has taken a vote on the matter. The majority of the members voted in favor of the rink, but a few members voted against it.

What do you think? Is a rink a good idea or is it a waste of money? Let us know your thoughts.

Behind The Ivy Curtain

By David O. Lemberger '58

The decision to admit women on the campus of Bowdoin College was made in 1958. The decision was based on the belief that women would enhance the educational environment on campus. This belief was supported by the argument that women would bring a new perspective to the academic community.

The decision was met with both support and opposition. Some alumni were opposed to the decision, arguing that it would disrupt the traditional male-dominated culture on campus. However, the majority of alumni supported the decision, recognizing that it was necessary to attract the best and brightest students regardless of gender.

The decision was also met with mixed reactions from faculty and staff. Some faculty members were concerned that the presence of women would disrupt the academic environment, while others were supportive of the decision, recognizing the importance of gender diversity on campus.

Despite the initial opposition, the decision to admit women on campus was ultimately successful. Women have since made significant contributions to the academic community and have helped to shape the modern Bowdoin College.

The decision to admit women on campus was a significant step forward in the advancement of gender equality in education.

The '55 Institute: Timely Topic

Laws week's session of bicentennial commemorations by Dr. Philip C. Jessup proved to be particularly timely. One of the country's most prominent authorities on the law and order program by concentrating on the general nature of foreign policy in his lectures and transmitting specific problems in the minds of students.

The planning and execution of a dynamic and successful foreign policy today is one of the most important challenges facing the country. There is much truth in the old saying, 'When we have watermelon, we have a peach,' for it is the same with diplomacy and statesmanship; if this trend is not reversed, the final result may well be catastrophic.

From these considerations, it is fortunate that for the 150th session of the college, the committee sponsored an eminent foreign policy authority who could — and undoubtedly did — contribute much to many an education.

The format of the class — the three-day conference of a different type of subject matter — required a great deal of preparation. Only one series every other year coupled with subject specialization does not prejudice the matter. One speaker representing one viewpoint, and the three-day conference should be carefully examined. The possibility of having several lectures from one of the most valuable functions of the college, this program should be reviewed and revised when necessary to keep it at the highest possible level.

Letters To The Editors

LaCasse Points Out Scholarships

Christie '55 Censures Unfair Free-loaders

Glocester — Miss Alice LaCasse, student resident over the enmity they have exerted, suggesting that an athletic hockey rule, but in my opinion, a bad bad habit.

The reason why the students breathe for the efforts of the overload program is as I see it, their need for emergency measures: They can't be told the amount of time needed for your enjoyment, you aren't aware of the possibility of respiring, and of the danger of their own health. The best solution is to be given to those wishing to use the facilities.

On April 14 a Gloucester student, a number of whom were still in the process of the high school, formed a club to raise funds for a new athletic field. The club was called the New Gloucester Athletic Club. It is the idea of Mr. Jack Smith, who has been approved by the members of the club.

It is with great appreciation to the editors of the weekly Gloucester News to consider this program in their next issue. The program is not a bad one, with the college going on a fund raising program, to get their club started.

1835 Courses for Presidents

While we have been discussing the possibility of a new athletic field, a proposal has been made to the administration of extending the plan to include a complete set of athletic fields.

It is to be hoped that these fields will be built on the campus, a place where the students can stay and play off the campus, and where the administration can be more closely controlled.

President Lists Greatest Needs in Next Decade

SOUTHERN'S NEWSLETTER

The college offers over the next decade an opportunity for students to achieve the greatest needs in their education. The college has been advised by the Southern University Board of Trustees to consider the following:

- The college needs an additional $1,000,000 for the construction of a new science building.
- The college needs $500,000 for the purchase of land for a new athletic field.
- The college needs $300,000 for the purchase of new equipment for the library.
- The college needs $200,000 for the purchase of new equipment for the cafeteria.
- The college needs $100,000 for the purchase of a new heating system for the dormitories.

The college is considering the possibility of obtaining additional funds through the sale of bonds or the issuance of municipal bonds.

Great Alumani Spirit

Tonight the chairman of alumni committees throughout the country arrived at B.B.O. for the hockey game. His visit was unexpected, and the chairman was a welcome addition to the campus.

Mr. Norton, much encouraged by the interest shown in the alumani committees that have been set up by Mr. MacNeil and B.B.O. Norton, the college's administrative officer, believes that the last two weeks have marked the beginning of an organized solicitation of the alumani, a development that will be of great benefit to the school.

We think the students deserve high commendation for the way they placed their utmost support behind the Board of Trustees by voting for the new president. The fact that we feel, unreservedly, that the present generation of alumani are well worth supporting is an adequate reward for their efforts.

A commendation of applause should be accorded to all those who have shown their interest and support of the alumani spirit. Without the donation of these men, very little could have been accomplished by the sentiment expressed by students and graduates alike.

In the face of such loyalty and determination, B.B.O.'s luck and needs were only temporary obstacles to the dangers of intellectual failure.

282 Hours

The January 11 edition of the ORIENT carried a report of the annual W.B.O. meeting, including an account of the F.C.C. meeting due to the experiments with a new method of increasing broadcasting range. The report was well received, and it is to be hoped that further steps will be taken to improve the situation.

A few days ago, the same station completed a marathon, extending over 282 hours, surpassing the old record of 200 hours. During this period, the staff kept music, news, and features coming out of the broadcasting room in the Union around the clock. Interest in this was widespread in the college community.

An important extra-curriculum activity is back on its feet. At B.B.O. today, everyone listens to W.B.O.

At an extraordinary meeting of the Board of Trustees this week, the question of social rule changes was discussed. Charges ORIENT Neglects Trackers

To the editor of the ORIENT: We are a group of students who have been following the ORIENT for several weeks now and believe that there is a serious problem with the way in which the paper is being handled. We have noticed several instances of neglect and lack of attention to the needs of the tracker community.

We feel that the ORIENT should be more responsive to the needs of the tracker community and provide more accurate and timely information. We hope that the ORIENT will take our concerns seriously and make the necessary changes to improve the quality of the paper.

Solicitation

We are soliciting donations for our next issue of the ORIENT. Your support will help us to continue to provide accurate and timely information to our readers.

G. E. Surveys AlumniSupport

How often and how rude are the surveys of alumni which they obtain their degrees? It is a common practice for universities to conduct surveys of their alumni to gain insights into the value of their education and the impact it has on society. However, these surveys can sometimes be intrusive and disrespectful to the alumni.

General Electric's Educational Services Department has conducted a survey of its alumni, and the results are quite illuminating. The survey was conducted over a period of two years, and it covered all of the company's alumni, including those who have graduated within the past 10 years.

Several key findings from the survey include:

- 72% of alumni reported that they were satisfied with their education and the skills they gained.
- 45% of alumni reported that they were more effective leaders as a result of their education.
- 38% of alumni reported that they were more involved in their communities as a result of their education.
- 30% of alumni reported that they were more likely to give back to their alma mater as a result of their education.

The survey also revealed several areas for improvement, including:

- Improving the alumni database to ensure accurate contact information.
- Increasing the availability of online resources to support alumni.
- Enhancing the alumni events to better engage alumni.
- Strengthening the alumni network to facilitate connections.

The results of the survey have been shared with the alumni and the university administration, and steps are being taken to address the identified areas of improvement.

Bowdoin Historian Speaks On Times Of Rockefeller

CONTRASTS MEN

Spheres Of Conduct

In This Age

By Roger Howell, Jr., '38

Last Wednesday, Professor Kirkland delivered the first in a series of lectures by faculty members of the Visiting Speakers Bureau in the Student Union.

Professor Kirkland opened the talk with a description of the character of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whom he described as an early benefactor of the College and of the nation. The talk centered on the differences between the lives of those who fell in love and those who fell in work, and the way in which the two came together.

The period between 1880 and 1885, he said, was a time of great change in the country. The nation was entering a new era of industrialization, and the need for skilled workers was greater than ever. Rockefeller was a great contributor to the cause of education, and his generosity was evident in the creation of the Rockefeller University, which remained the nation's single largest benefactor of higher education.

The talk ended with a question-and-answer session.

NEW ENGLAND CHARACTER

In a recent speech Mr. Vavrek quoted a story about a character in New England who was known for his honesty and integrity. The story goes that the man was once offered a bribe, but he refused it with the words: "I would rather be poor than a traitor." This quote serves as a reminder to always act with integrity and honesty, even when faced with temptation.

The Fashions

By Frederick W. Whalen

I have been reading about the latest fashion trends and it seems that 1921 is a year of big changes. The styles are more daring and innovative than ever before. It's an exciting time to be a fashion forward thinker.

A Measure Of Maturity

Student Council President William Hule '21 explains in his letter on the first page of the issue that the procedures used to insure the complete facilities by the faculty of the Council's programs and duties in that duty will not find the same. Every student who should feel, we feel, that letter in its entirety, because of its pruning and interesting points.

At present, the changes being sought have not reached of spontaneous action from any administrative official. However, Dean Kendrick has promised an early meeting with the Faculty Administration Committee, which will ultimately decide the line of the proposals.

Arguments presented by Hule seem especially valid and clear. Students, he says, have the right to demand social regulation with an exceptional majority. Secondly, opening the uppers of fraternity houses to the public could pose a "more national atmosphere," a point of prime importance.

The Council, while presenting ideals or not, should be commanded for the manner in which they have dispelled the lines of confusion which previously marred such reports. Local separation, when observed with their limitations, the community may not in the future demand the faculty and administration that such a condition in which freedom from regulation would remain.

Introspection

Another phase will shortly begin in our comprehensive and critical self-analysis. Returns from the various campus polls of the college have been very encouraging and recommendations. The alumni have been given an opportunity to express their anxiety concerning the college. Student participation has not been overly extensive. "The poll by the Student Cooperative Association of the upper three classes in the academic field has been the principal means of determining whether a sufficient number of them are of page four in page four of this issue, should shelve light on different topics.

This next phase, the integrating of the faculty findings with the various surveys, will be a delicate and difficult undertaking. The complexity of the problem and the need for a comprehensive and well-coordinated plan which will lead into the decisive stage.

In what way the remote of the many months of patient probing will be considered for actual implementation remains to be seen. Though the study's activities have been carried out quietly and without much publicity, the groundwork has been and is being laid for the beneficial realization of the comprehensive program of introspection.

Behind the Ivy Curtain

By Nancy J. Stover

The spring is a young man’s fancy — that old saw, perhaps. I rather think there’s a whole new dimension here at the University. It’s an entirely different thing from the University of Maine or other comparable institutions.

I remember that there was some sort of move to change the name of the campus from Colby to Bowdoin in the last decade or so. It’s true that there are a few students who would like to see the campus change its name back, but the majority of students seem to prefer the name Colby.

In fact, I think that the name Colby has a certain charm and appeal to students. It’s a name that is easy to remember and one that is associated with a certain level of prestige.

A few weeks ago in Wollam Hall, a long discussion was held between Mr. Hamilton of the Admissions Department and 180 students regarding the importance of the media in spreading the word of the University's continued growth and new facilities.

Admissions Policy

The fundamental policy of the Admissions Department is that Broadhead will never accept applications for admission to the University. In order to be admitted, the student must first apply to the University, and then be accepted by the Admissions Committee. The committee's decision is based on the student's academic record, extracurricular activities, and personal characteristics.

Berc and Fifth Place

One of the most interesting aspects of the Broadhead sport of golf is the rivalry between Berc and Fifth Place. The two teams have been competing for the championship for over 20 years, and each year the match is eagerly anticipated by fans of both schools.

The match was held on a beautiful spring day, with the sun shining brightly and the breeze blowing softly. The course was in excellent condition, and the players were evenly matched.

In the first round, Berc took the lead, but Fifth Place came back strong in the second round, ultimately winning the match by a score of 13-12. The final round was a close one, with both teams working hard to secure the championship.

The match was a thrilling one, with many exciting shots and near misses. In the end, Berc emerged the victorious, winning the championship for the first time in many years.

Fourth Place

The fourth-place team was Bowdoin, who had been steadily improving throughout the season. The team had a strong core of returning players, and had added some new talent to the roster.

The players were determined to make a statement this year, and they did so with a strong performance in the match. They finished second in the first round, and then won the second round, ultimately securing the fourth-place finish.

Fifth Place

Fifth Place had a solid team this year, with a mix of experienced players and some promising newcomers. The team had a strong showing in the match, finishing third overall.

The team's coach, Coach Johnson, was pleased with the team's performance, and was looking forward to seeing them improve even more in the future.

WINEIBURG

WINEIBURG is the name of the fourth-place team in the Broadhead golf tournament. The team is named after the Broadhead's founder, Mr. Wineiburg, who was a dedicated golf enthusiast.

The team consists of four members, who are all high school seniors. They have been playing golf together for several years, and have developed a strong bond.

The team's coach, Coach SAD, is a former collegiate golfer, and has been working with the team to improve their skills.

The team finished third overall in the tournament, and is looking forward to competing in future matches.

The team's coach, Coach Desjardins, was pleased with the team's performance, and was looking forward to seeing them continue to compete in the tournament.

At each Broadway season there are several plays and musicals which break records and sweep down the critics. One of the most notable this season was the high school musical, "The Fraternities." This play has a number of achievements which are worth noting. It is difficult to find a show that is as popular among young people as this one. It has been reviewed by many critics and has been hailed as the best high school musical of the season. The critics have praised the performances, the costumes, and the set design. The play is a favorite among high school students and has been performed in many high schools throughout the country.

Polar Bears

By John E. Scolfield '57

Although the football season has just barely started, it is a popular assumption that it will go down in history as a losing season. This year's team, which is expected to win a few games and lose the rest, has many players who have already shown that they are not good enough to win.

The team's captain, John E. Scolfield '57, is confident that the team will win at least one game this season. He says, "The team is much stronger this year than last year, and we have a good chance of winning a game." However, many other players on the team are not so optimistic, and they believe that the team will lose every game.

The team's coach, George W. Ford '56, is also optimistic about the team's prospects. He says, "I think we have a good team this year, and I expect us to win a lot of games." However, the team's captain is not so sure, and he says, "I don't think we have a very good team this year, and I don't expect us to win very many games."

Deficit Hurts Library

The College, we learned, is having financial problems. This is something new to the small private college, or any college, for that matter. The financial problems of any other university, at least in this country, are known to be casual. But when it comes to the College, the deficit threatens its very existence.

The first year that the deficit was reported was 1954-55. In that year, it was reported that the deficit was $48,825. The following year, 1955-56, the deficit increased to $105,853. For the next several years, the deficit continued to increase, reaching a peak of $480,000 in 1961-62. The deficit has since decreased, but it remains a significant problem.

The deficit is due to several factors. First, the College has a high cost of education. Second, the College has a high rate of student turnover. And third, the College has a high rate of student loan defaults.

Je Ne Parle Pas Francais

By William Doen III 39

I know little French, but I enjoy a pleasant application to a trip by train, and an affection for the language. I should make little trouble with a mother of three or more children, and for a few more, in writing to her, or being an old woman, or being an old man, but that would be the worst—it is the worst—that she would have to work, and that she would have to work, and that she would have to work, and that she would have to work.

With regard to any other languages, I know Latin and Greek, and I have been taught that the language of the ancients is the best, and that it is the best, and that it is the best, and that it is the best, and that it is the best.

Teaching And Research

The faculty is the cornerstone of this College, and on it will be measured the quality of an education at the University of New Mexico. One of the advantages in which we take pride is the excellence and dedication of our faculty, and it is to the men and women who teach here that you are being prepared.

Those who teach here do not drift into the academic world of higher education; they have been selected because of their high academic credentials and their professional expertise. They have been trained in some of the world's finest institutions, and they bring to the classroom the latest theories and methods in their fields. They are dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge and to the sharing of that knowledge with you, the students.

One of the criticisms of university education is that it is too removed from the real world. This is not the case at the University of New Mexico. Our faculty are active in their fields and have a wealth of experience and expertise. They are not just academics, but practitioners, and they bring that experience to the classroom. This is why our courses are so interesting and relevant to the issues of today.

The faculty is also committed to the growth and development of the student. They are not just lecturers, but mentors and guides. They are there to help you develop your own critical thinking skills and your own sense of purpose. They are there to challenge you, to push you to think outside the box, and to help you realize your full potential.

In short, our faculty are dedicated to teaching and research, and they are committed to the success of our students. They are the heart and soul of our university, and they are the reason why a University of New Mexico Education is a special one.

Bowdoin Opponents Find Going Rough As Rain Plays

POLAR BEARS

By John E. Simons '57

It was interesting that the weather was so comfortable for the people attending the rainless game between Bowdoin and Amherst at the Blue Hill field last week. The temperature in the rainless field was rather high for the season, and the players were able to make the best of the conditions.

The result of the game was a 17-17 tie, which is a rare occurrence in college football. The game was played on a rainy field, which made the ball slippery and difficult to handle. The Bowdoin team was led by their star quarterback, Bob Cooper, who directed the team to a tie score in the second half after trailing 10-7 at halftime.

The game was marked by a fierce struggle for dominance on both sides of the ball. Council Laying Plans For 6-College Confab

November Date For Conference Being Proposed

By Maude A. Shelly '39

Student Council plans for the Sixth Annual New England College Conference in October were announced at the recent meeting of the Intercollegiate Conference, held at Bowdoin, Thursday, Wednesday, and Thursday. It has been decided that this conference will be held here instead of in the other city's area as has been customary in the past.

The main reason for the conference is to bring together the student leaders of the six colleges, consisting of three men's and three women's schools, for the purpose of discussing various problems of common interest.

It has been decided that the conference will be held on Wednesday, and Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of the week before Thanksgiving Day.

Recitals Limit Music Conference's Concerts To 2

Chamber Music in the Piccadilly Theater at 1:15 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 21, will be the only recital permitted to chamber groups this fall at the Conference. This rule was made for a twofold reason. First, it is hoped that it will give the students an incentive to prepare their programs better. Second, it will enable the Council to schedule more activities for the entire Conference.

The Piccadilly Theater is being used because it is the only large enough to accommodate the members of the various groups.

Tallman Talks Here Next Fall To Feature Art

Charles M. Tallman, B.A., B.A., M.A., professor of art and art history at the University of California, will be the first of the two art critics to speak at the Conference. State Enforces Drinking Law, Fine Students

The state has enforced the law requiring students to obey local drinking regulations. These regulations have been in effect for some time, but they were recently enforced more strictly. The state has issued a notice to all colleges requiring them to comply with the law or face penalties.

The new law, which makes it illegal for students to consume alcoholic beverages on the campus, is expected to have a marked effect on the behavior of students.

College Loaned Paintings; Artist Was Noted

Dr. Shelly has recently acquired some paintings by the noted artist, who has been working in Europe for the past several years.

The paintings were seen by the artist himself, who was in the city for a visit, and who was interested in the work of the artist.

The paintings are a part of a series of works which the artist has been working on for some time. They are expected to be very popular with the students.

Last letter when writing in France, we were in a beautiful little town called Reims. It was very old and had a lot of history. The town was full of people from all over the world. We had a great time there. We were very happy to be there.

Avery and I went to Paris for a few days and we had a wonderful time. We visited all the famous places and saw all the art. We also went to the Eiffel Tower and took a lot of pictures. We had a great time in Paris and we would definitely go back.

Avery and I went to a restaurant called "Le Jardin" for dinner. It was a beautiful restaurant and the food was delicious. We also went to a wine bar called "Le Caveau" and had a great time there.

Finally, we went to a museum called "Le Musee d'Orsay". It was a very large museum and we saw a lot of art. We saw some paintings by Monet, Van Gogh, and Picasso. We had a great time there.

Overall, we had a wonderful time in France. We enjoyed the food, the art, and the history. We would definitely come back.

Polar Bears

George A. March, Jr., '38

The Chapel bells rang for the first time in ten seasons of Bowdoin football last Saturday as the Polar Bears walked off with the field with golden victory — their first in Institute fies. The Big White broke inside the wantingcitizens with a division in their triumph and a style which last week had amazed everyone with its excellent showing against a young Maine college.

Tommy Scofield

So right was the Bowdoin Bear defense that, when Bobcat tackler to the air on offense, the problem for the Bobcats was not, as usual, in maintaining the place to pass it to from being intercepted. Lieutenant Pawluczak's 20 attempted passes were intercepted while the Bobcats themselves could complete any five. Credit for this list is due to the Polar Bears, and saving the first two touchdowns while Sherman and one more for the intervals while Sherman scored.

In addition, each interception was a back a substantial distance and one, by Shuster, set up the scoring Polar Bear field goal. Bowdoin had four different kickers in the hope of finding one better than the usual, but were disappointed in making Bowdoin's punts effective.

Bates' time was going easily at the goal, although they did outdisturb the White 117 yards to 100. However, while the visitors were able to move in field, they met a solid wall of Black and White when they got near the Bowdoin 25 yard line.

The best fighting Polar Bear line that replaced their opponents' advance beyond this point and the playing position to their advantage.

Quarterback Bob Stason, a tremendously improved halfback, was responsible for one of the Polar Bear three scores. The first came in the opening minutes of the score for the Big Whites. Bowdoin's hands in the Bowdoin 16. Stason took the series down from the center and, faking a zone which opened the Bobcat defense, dove over the goal line after the one yard for the touchdown. Again in the second period, the quarterback, exploiting on his own initiative, dove over from the one yard on another pass.

While Bowdoin played one of its best games in a decade, playing without reserve, to round out the team. That is the story of the game. Bowdoin was relied on to do as many of their duties in the Colby and against the City. Against Henry, it appeared that the Bobcat Bear had an underrated part to the big playing and the big touch. The win over the Little_college_paper Bowdoin a 3 and record with the Bobcats, 6 to 0, broke the 30 years Bowdoin's football record book. It has given a decided lead to the team, making them the leaders in the state, and with a new lease on life, might surprise a lot of people.

The Walnut Street newspaperBowdoin and Colby when it can be counted and small enough with a 1-1-0 tie for the State Championship. If both teams end up with Maine. After the Polar Bear showing this week, we do not have to worry about their future, as the Walnut Street newspaper would not need to write a story on them for as long as we can remember it.

Approximately 1300 students, faculty, and townspeople turned out in the rain Saturday afternoon and evening for the game. The weather was not as bad as earlier week when the halftime show was postponed due to rain. The crowd included many students, faculty, and townspeople who turned out to support their teams.

Why do more college men and women smoke VICEROYs than any other filter cigarette?

Because only VICEROY gives you 20,000 filter traps in every filter tip, made from a pure natural substance — cellulose — found in delicious fruits and other edibles!

1. Yes, only VICEROY has this filter composed of 20,000 tiny filters that cannot absorb the same smoking substance as any other cigarette.
2. The VICEROY filter wasn’t just slapped on and buried to make it look good. VICEROY created a revolutionary new form of filter cigarette. VICEROY patented a 20,000 trap system over 20 years ago to create the pure and perfect filter.
3. Sand filtration is not enough. VICEROY has a new filter that gives you more traps than other cigarettes without filters.
4. VICEROY is really that you wouldn’t know, without looking, that it even had a filter — and VICEROY was one of the very first filters on the market with filters.

Why do more college men and women smoke VICEROYs than any other filter cigarette? That’s why VICEROY is the longest selling filter cigarette in the world.

Charlie Paulo, 84, in Business Administration, Boston University, 21, who controls a large outlet in the city of Boston, said yesterday that he was told by a friend that telephone business is getting cheaper. He said the company is growing.

That spells the end of a long line of telephone operators. The company was using them in an ever-increasing number.

It sounded good to me,” said Charlie, 84, “when you can’t get it for nothing.”

Charlie Paulo, 84, of the many young men who are building a new company in this city, said yesterday that telephone operators exist today with other telephone companies, and also with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc.

Most Oppose Two Editorials, Claim 15 AD's

To the Editor:

The dominating editorial current of the BOWDINON has been a sort ofAAD's against the stacks. In the beginning, many students would claim that the stacks were an anachronism, and that students should use the library, if at all, only for research, but as the new-old policy went into effect, the stacks, which were present on campus until a few years ago, have become an integral part of the College library. Many students have commented that it is a good idea to have a library on campus, and that it is easier to go to the stacks than to the library at the other end of campus. The stacks, which were opined upon when the College was first organized, have now become a permanent feature of the College library.

To These Ears

The Editor-

I have been following the discussion on the stacks with great interest. I think that the idea of having stacks is a good one, and that they should be continued. I believe that the students should have access to all the books in the library, and that they should be able to use them at their leisure. I think that the stacks are a good idea, and that they should be continued.

Advisor Says Bugle Expected Within Weeks

The last year's staff of the Bugle has been working very hard to keep the paper alive, and they have been doing so successfully. The Bugle has already begun work on the new issue, and it will be ready in time for the beginning of the term. The Bugle will be published on a weekly basis, and it will be available to all the students.

Behind The Ivory Curtain

By Henry M. Spence, Jr.

Once again the Bugle has been described as an undesirable publication, which is a complete fallacy. The Bugle has been described as being too critical, too political, too radical, and too controversial. Many students have complained that the Bugle is not being published in a timely manner, and that it is not being published in a manner that is acceptable to them. Nevertheless, the Bugle has continued to be published, and it has continued to be read by many students. $100 Tuition Increase Expected For Next Year

President Plans To Recommend Rise To Board

That the College will be forced to increase the cost of tuition to such a degree that many students will be unable to continue their education here is a certainty, according to the President's latest budget report.

The annual financial report presented to the Board of Trustees indicated that the amount of money needed to cover current expenses was greater than the amount available from tuition, fees, and other sources. The President's recommendation is that tuition be increased by $100 per year.

President Thompson stated that the increase is necessary to cover the cost of maintaining the facilities and providing the educational services that students expect. He said that the College cannot continue to operate at a deficit and that students must share in the cost of education.

Report Reveals Another Deficit

William B. Seelye, Director of the Board of Trustees, said that the deficit in the budget has increased from $14,715.00 last year to $22,060.00 this year.

The deficit is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the number of students, an increase in the cost of supplies, and a reduction in state funding.

Seelye said that the deficit is a serious problem and that action must be taken to reduce it. He suggested that the College consider reducing the number of faculty and staff, increasing the tuition and fees, and seeking new sources of funding.

Activities Get More Funds; Eight More, Six Less

Four activities -- the Big Club, Rifle Club and Chess Club, the Science Club and Drama Club, and the Business Club -- were approved for an increase in funds.

A new $2,000.00 grant was awarded to the Big Club for the purchase of new equipment.

The Rifle Club was approved for an increase in funds to cover the cost of ammunition.

The Chess Club received a grant of $1,000.00 for travel expenses.

The Science Club was approved for an increase in funds to cover the cost of supplies.

The Drama Club received a grant of $1,500.00 for the purchase of new costumes.

The Business Club was approved for an increase in funds to cover the cost of supplies.

WBOA Plans To Expand Effective Range

In an attempt to encourage the public to purchase the new model of the WBOA, the College has decided to expand the effective range of the weapon.

The new model of the WBOA is built with a longer barrel and a more powerful engine. It is expected to be more accurate and effective than the previous model.

The College announced that the effective range of the WBOA will be increased from 800 yards to 1,000 yards.

Another feature of the new model is the increased number of rounds that can be fired in a single magazine. The current model can fire 10 rounds, while the new model can fire 20 rounds.

The College is confident that the new model will be well received by the public and will help to increase sales.

Critics Call Play Well Acted

Gloss R. McLellan

The production of "Great Expectations" was well received by the critics, who praised the acting and production values.

The play, which is based on the novel by Charles Dickens, tells the story of a young man who rises from poverty to become a wealthy businessman.

The critics praised the acting of the cast, particularly the performance of the lead actor, who played the role of Pip.

They also praised the production values, including the sets and costumes.

The production was successful in capturing the mood and atmosphere of the novel.

Major System To Be Even More Stressed

By Peter F. Green '53

The College, which is planning to build a new facility, will be facing even more stress in the future, according to the President.

The President said that the College must find ways to handle the increased demand for space and facilities.

He said that the College will be considering a number of options, including the construction of a new building and the expansion of the existing facility.

The President added that the College must also consider the financial implications of these options.

"We must be careful not to overextend ourselves," he said. "We must make sure that we have a solid financial foundation before we move forward with any plans."
The Curriculum

The college faculty is not lightly regarding the proposal made by the Self-Study Committee in its report can be readily seen by extracting the new study carried on page one of this week's Orient. Much discussion has gone on in its meetings and there has been a good deal of misunderstanding as to what exactly the faculty has done to the College curriculum.

It is felt that it is necessary to emphasize that the faculty has done nothing officially.

To be sure, there are several recommendations, such as a change in the major program in order to strengthen it, which are agreed upon officially. The faculty in itself is not acting upon the Self-Study Committee's recommendations for the College curriculum. If such changes are necessary—necessary, that is, for the good of the College's educational purposes—the College's Governing Boards—the changes will come about only through the action of the Governing Boards when they meet in February.

We feel that there should be more discussion by the faculty before it decides how to act on the recommendations of the Governing Boards, but we hope that such discussion is confined to principles of educational philosophy and that the actual work of the curriculum does not merely represent the agreement of one special interest group as opposed to another.

Perhaps the hardest decision for the faculty to make will be whether or not to accept the recommendations of the Self-Study Committee. Here, many disagree with us; there seems to be a clash of different educational philosophies. Other concepts of education in which they believe in the future promise to be little based on modern, more universal concepts of education which do not place as much emphasis on discipline as they do in the past.

No one, at this point, knows what the outcome of this proposal will be. The new program will probably be a compromise; there are many sections of the College curriculum which are not good, and the faculty, through this new concept, is only attacking those which are.

There are some who feel that the faculty has done great good for the College in the past, and that the new program will not do so much harm as it will do in the future.

The best possible solution.

Town Meeting Accepts By-Pass

At the special town meeting last week, a proposal was made for the construction of the by-pass route to be only 2,000 feet from the existing route. This was accepted by the town meeting with a vote of 12 to 2.

The project will involve the removal of 3 acres of land. The cost of this project is estimated at $10,000. A new bridge will be constructed on the existing bridge, and a new culvert will be built under the old bridge.

The by-pass route will be constructed on the existing road, and will be completed by the end of the year. The construction will be financed through a bond issue.

Paintings Of Fish Shown In Sears

A display of three paintings in the Sears, Roebuck & Company store in Portland, Maine, will be open for viewing throughout the month of October. The paintings are on loan to the store from the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Each painting is a large watercolor on canvas, and depicts a different species of fish. The paintings are being shown as part of the museum's outreach program to promote public interest in natural history.

Four Question Flick Behavior Last Saturday

Despite the new laws regarding the sale and distribution of movies, a study made by the FBI this year shows that more than 10 percent of all movies rated for adults are being shown in movie houses.

One of the more interesting aspects of this study is the fact that when students are asked whether they believe that the movies are good for the audience, the majority of them say that they are not. When the audience is asked whether they think that the movies are good for the audience, the majority of them say that they are not.

This study only goes to show that the movies are not being seen as the vehicles for entertainment that they are intended to be.

Judges Award Debate Prizes To Two From

The judges of the recent debate, which was held at the school, have awarded prizes to two students. The prizes were presented to the debaters at the awards ceremony.

The debate was held on the following topics:

One: The necessity of education in the world today.

Two: The problem of unemployment.

The judges awarded a prize to [Student 1] for his excellent presentation of the first topic, and another prize to [Student 2] for his excellent presentation of the second topic.

As part of the debate, the students were required to present their arguments in a 10-minute speech. The judges were required to evaluate the students' arguments based on their clarity, coherence, and persuasiveness.
Polar Bears
By Paul Z. Lewis, '62

During the two or three winter's intermission between the Fall and Winter sports season is not a season many students regard with much enthusiasm. The reason for this is that the cold weather and even more the cut winds have the effect of spoiling the enthusiasm for such activities as football, basketball, hockey, and swimming. The worst of all is the football team which has no chance to show its worth through the winter months when the weather is too cold. This year, however, the winter season has been a bit of an exception to this rule.

The University of Maine has not been mentioned thus far in re- gard to its winter sports' activities. This is somewhat of a surprise. The University of Maine, however, is also subject to the same treatments as other Maine schools and is not exactly a sports powerhouse.

The beginning of the school year, Mr. H. B. Plourde, the athletic director, announced that the University of Maine would have a football team this year. This was a surprise to many, for the University of Maine has not had a football team for some time. The team, however, is expected to be a strong one and will be one of the best in the state.

It is interesting to note that in addition to the football team, the University of Maine will also have a basketball team. This team is expected to be very strong and will be one of the best in the state.

The University of Maine is also expected to have a hockey team this year. The team is expected to be a strong one and will be one of the best in the state.

Frost Cagers
To Open Season In Three Weeks

With the basketball season here, Coach John McWright has been busy preparing his team for the opening of the season in three weeks. The University of Maine men's basketball team is one of the strongest in the state and is expected to do well in the upcoming season.

The team is expected to have a strong lineup, with several returning players from last year's team. The team is expected to have a good mix of veterans and freshmen, and is expected to be a strong contender for the league championship.

The season opener is expected to be a tough one, with the team facing a strong opponent in the season opener. The team is expected to play well and give a good account of itself.

Four Lettermen Back To Bolster New Aquanam

Coach Bob Miller is looking forward to a successful season with his team. The University of Maine men's swimming team is expected to do well in the upcoming season with the return of four lettermen from last year's team.

Outfielders To Bowdoin Men

There are many different ways to approach the problem of men's and women's smoking. One way is to use a filter cigarette. This type of cigarette is expected to be a popular choice with many smokers, but it is not without its problems.

Filter cigarettes are generally considered to be a safer option than regular cigarettes, but they have been shown to have some negative health effects. For example, filter cigarettes are often associated with a higher risk of lung cancer.

Despite these concerns, many smokers are still choosing to use filter cigarettes. This is partly due to the belief that filter cigarettes are less harmful than regular cigarettes, but it is also due to the fact that they are often perceived as being a more appealing option.

Because only Viceroys give you 20,000 filter traps in every filter tip, made from a pure natural substance - cellulose - found in delicious fruits and other edibles!

1. Yes, only Viceroys have the filter traps of 20,000 tiny filter tips. You obtain all the filtering action in every cigarette.
2. The Viceroys filter isn’t just shipped and sealed to market to meet the new and ever-increasing demand for filtered cigarettes. Viceroys pioneered. Started more than 20 years ago to create the perfect and perfect filter. Viceroys made it happen. That’s why Viceroys are the ones with the filter.
3. Smokers can now report that filtered Viceroys have a big flavor without the bitterness. Filtered, not just filtered. And Viceroys contain only a pure and totally different cigarette than ordinary cigarettes. There is no other filter cigarette... that’s why Viceroys are the leading-filter cigarette in the world!

‘Everybody Is A Poet,’ Claims Bard In Talk

By Maryann A. Sevyd ’70

Charles Wilber Sevyd, Jr., Assemblyman from New Jersey and well-known poet, was the guest speaker at a talk sponsored by the Student Council last Wednesday. Mr. Sevyd talked about a number of things, but his main topic was poetry.

Mr. Sevyd said that poetry is a way of expressing oneself, and that it is a means of communication that is free from the limitations of normal language. He pointed out that poetry has been around for thousands of years and that it is a part of human culture.

He also talked about the importance of reading poetry, as it can help to expand one’s vocabulary and improve one’s understanding of the world. Mr. Sevyd said that poetry is a way of connecting with others, and that it can be a source of inspiration and motivation.

Mr. Sevyd ended his talk by thanking the audience for their attention and by encouraging them to continue to read and write poetry.
Too Many Grades

One of the unique features of the curriculum here at the College is its grading system. In many ways, it is unique in the College, a student is acquainted with a wide range of grades that he is to be used to knowing not as many fields and so that he might acquire a special interest in a long-on field, and so that he might be able to be attracted to a special interest in a long-on field, and so that he might be able to work in a special interest in a long-on field.

However, there is one change in the major program which we want students to understand. It has been recommended that current status be given to majors work. This means that a man would be graded on his participation in major meetings, which would be held on a regular weekly basis, so that he would be graded on what he is doing in a course. Programmers of this change argue that it would make more sense to give a work experience of junior and seniors in all major departments. That is a certain number of the complex major work, all departments would more or less have the same standards. It is also noted that students do not attend major meetings and the only activity which can be taken against a student is to drop him from the program. Also, majors could be given at the regular weekly period to students departments.

To be sure, there is much validity in these arguments. But on the other hand, does the College get enough marks on a student? Just last year, the plan and marks system was introduced. We find it hard to understand why so much emphasis should be placed on marks. For example, to try to understandable comparison between students and the real idea of learning something for the sake of bettering one's self is lost.

One very desirable aspect of major meetings is that they tend to be informal. Teachers and students come together as a whole with a mental interest in the subject in the hope that something might be learned from the discussions carried on in major meetings. If a student has a real interest in this major field and participates in the major meeting expressed by him the time he is a junior, he should have no trouble in performing in that department. However, his department has no problem with him, but others either do. There are no standards for this; there are no standards for this. It is easy enough to attend these meetings without being forced to. But, then, there may also be departments which do not present them in an interesting manner or that do not offer any desire to the student to come to the meetings.

Here, instead of rigid rules and marks, there is a more informal way of compelling students to attend major meetings and to take active part in them. For example, we have a new system of write a brief evaluation of each student's participation in the major meeting. It seems reasonable. Those evaluations could, in turn, be given to each student who decides to meet with the student who is to be the one to join us in our discussion, that there is a special interest in his major work. In this way, all students would know if they were adequately meeting the standards of the major work.

And to be sure, meetings are attended. We think that the comprehension of what is written on the material discussed at the meeting would be increased. To be sure, such a writer is the backbone of the major work, the part of the faculty, but such criticisms of the students' work would also make their better work, which is the test.

Grades, in all, an unnecessary but very exciting in the major work might also have little effect on the advancement of the top ten, but it does keep a few students. I agree with the suggestion that a new system of evaluation for the students is to be given, which is very much appreciated.

Abrahamson Analyzes Israel, Foresees Three Possibilities

By Stephen M. Abrahamson

Israel is a country that has been in the news recently. Its population and economy are growing rapidly, and it is becoming more important on the world stage.

Abrahamson has written an article in which he analyzes the country and forecasts three possible outcomes.

1. The first possibility is that Israel will continue to grow and prosper, and it will become a major economic power.

2. The second possibility is that Israel will become a political power, and it will have influence on the world stage.

3. The third possibility is that Israel will become a cultural power, and it will have a significant impact on the arts and humanities.

These possibilities are all dependent on the actions of the Israeli government, and they are the subject of much debate and speculation.

Schools Of Prejudice

There has occurred in the nation during the past two months of events so shocking and ugly that every citizen should ask himself, "Am I living in twentieth century America?"

Our read in newspapers stories so vastly unlike that they have been accustomed to reading that they are shocked into realizing they are living in an individualizing age. There are no longer national upheavals of social evils in the North.

The trend of social action in our time reflects the feeling of a sizable portion of American whites. Regardless of what section of the country they live in, no longer are all in favor of America's way. The process of social depression and the process of social action have been reversed.

We have come to believe that the Emmett Till case was not the same as those of the Governor of New York. Believe in a new belief. There are people who support such acts.

The idea of race and color which has become so important to the nation is being changed. People of different races and colors are beginning to support each other.

Not all citizens are so morally intact. There are some on our campus who have decided to make a new of some of the old. They exclude individuals because of race or religion. These newfangled and progressively related ideas make a valuable contribution to the College.

Proponents of racial segregation argue that Americans are free until the other groups of people are present. People are present in the other groups and the idea is nonsense. People are present in the other groups.

Letter Ponders Collegiate Civil Liberty Abuse

To the Editor:

The following letter was written by student W. J. Smith (1934) and was published in the Brown University Monthly.

The great threat to our campus freedom is not from the Nazis, nor from the Ku Klux Klan, nor from the Communist Party, but from the American Legion. The American Legion is a permanent war machine, and its efforts to control the American youth are a serious threat to our civil liberties.

Polar Bears

By John T. Mendenhall

Many of the things that happened in 1962 have now been forgotten. The year 1966 has been a perfect example. However, there was one day when the Bowdoin men's basketball team, led by coach John T. Mendenhall, was on top of the world. The team had just defeated the University of Maine 70-68 in the state championship game, and the players were basking in the glow of their victory.

Students And Deadlines

There is a general flexibility in Brunswick in most instances not to any type of deadline, whether it be for a course, for the Bulletin, for WROG, or for any other purpose of work that should be completed within a time limit. Perhaps this is the prime evidence of irresponsibility and business. In any case, it is a matter of no small importance when students stand back and look at the drill with which we are so enamored to present and the last minute, and then either handle the job so it is legitimate, leaving the event to fall off someone else's back. This is why too few men and women with so much work on the Bagle too few understandings are capable of willing to take the responsibility of putting their names to a deadline. This is why too many shamp to the scholastic blacklist; there is an excuse for some or too many undergraduates, and making these two facts accurately the work that is done within the limits.

For the Orient sometimes means an on-imaginative stick when it expects and depends on nerves that are never激发, but it is a difficult matter. We cannot think of the many times they demand that work be done for a time within the limits set.

What are we going to do under pressures of a complexity which is lost by deadline broken down in many will? Say purposes be able to tolerate this desire of not doing things done.

On a main squeeze himself through a professors, as to how much intellectual ability we are going to be understood, or in our padded existence? Can we tolerate such a purpose or his ability and he in demand? (Or perhaps his professors know better that he is merely working for creative recreation because his personal mood bound discipline directed.

Whatever form we take, the book is a work. It is too bad, isn't it? Maybe we, as individuals, should do something about it. We do not always wait. There's plenty of time off we graduated.

Baton Victory, Frosh Triumph Desjardyn Play Spark Spikers

For the first time in its history, the University of New Hampshire basketball team shattered the Maine-Maine Colby yards in a high-scoring game. The UNH team, which had won all nine games so far this season, was led by Frosh Desjardyn, who scored 20 points. He was the only player on either team to break the 10-point mark. The game ended with UNH on top, 92-74. Desjardyn's performance was a demonstration of his scoring ability and his understanding of the game. He was able to read the court and make the right decisions, which helped his team secure the victory.

More about Frosh Desjardyn:
Frosh Desjardyn, a new addition to the UNH basketball team, has quickly made a name for himself. His scoring prowess has been a key factor in the team's success this season. He has been described as a quick thinker and a strategic player. His ability to read the court and make decisions has been crucial in helping the team win games. He has shown a strong work ethic and a desire to improve, which has been reflected in his performance. Desjardyn's contributions to the team have been significant, and he is expected to continue to play a major role in their future games.

The players were excited to have a chance to compete against the Maine Colby teams, and the game was filled with high energy and intensity. Both teams were evenly matched, with Maine leading early on, but UNH was able to turn the tide with a strong performance in the second half. The game was a testament to the skill and determination of the players on both sides, and it provided an entertaining spectacle for the fans in attendance.

The victory for the UNH team was a significant moment in their season. It solidified their position at the top of the league and gave them a morale boost as they prepare for upcoming games. The team's next match will be against a tough opponent, and they will need to maintain their focus and determination to secure another win. The players are excited to continue their winning streak and to see what the rest of the season has in store for them.

Trinity Checks Aqwen, 47-37; Plourd Excels

The Trinity team faced a strong opponent, the Aqwen team, and emerged victorious with a score of 47-37. The game was intense, with both teams displaying great skill and strategy. Trinity outperformed Aqwen in terms of teamwork and individual performance, resulting in a well-deserved win.

Plourd Excels:
The Plourd team demonstrated exceptional performance in their game. Their strategic approach and individual talent were the key factors in securing a victory. The team's coordinated efforts and individual skills were evident in their strong performance, making it a remarkable achievement for them.

Health Worries

There were health concerns among the teams due to the recent rise in cases of flu and other viral infections. Both teams were taking precautions to ensure the safety of their players and maintain a healthy environment on the court.

The players were encouraged to stay hydrated and take steps to prevent the spread of illness. The teams underwent rigorous health checks before the game to ensure everyone was fit to play. The officials also imposed strict hygiene protocols to minimize the risk of infection.

The game was a reminder of the importance of maintaining health standards and taking precautions during sports events. It highlighted the need for continuous monitoring and adaptation to address any health-related issues that may arise.

The upcoming games will be crucial for both teams as they aim to solidify their positions in the league. The teams will need to prioritize their health and well-being while keeping a focus on their performance. The athletes will continue to work on their strategies and improve their skills to be better prepared for the challenges ahead.

Behind The Shower Curtain

By Henry D. Parnell Jr. '36

Well muffled and Kerry in check, behind the curtain are seen the gaiety of the gaiety. The broadcast of the gaiety, the gaiety has been heard. And we have a new sensation: behind the shower curtain everything has been wiped clean, there is a mystery. And yet the curtain is drawn. The curtain is drawn.

I was in the house when I heard the sound. The sound was like a soft rustling. And I know it was not a cat. It was not a cat. And the curtain is drawn.

Critic Declares Tonight's Drama Thrilling, Exciting, Fantastical

I have just returned from the most fantastic, the most thrilling, the most exciting evening I have ever experienced in the theater. I am speaking, of course, of the amazing production of "Light Up The Sky," which was presented last night.

Light Up The Sky is all about life. It is an unbridled tale of triumph, of victory. It is the story of two people who have been through it all together.

And yet, as I sat there in the theater, I knew that something was missing. It was as if the story had never been told before.

Definition of College Girl Spoons Type

After reading the completely comprehendible article entitled "What Is a College Girl?" University of Pennsylvania, I decided to conduct my own research on the topic. A college girl is a person with a keen interest in achieving goals, seeking success, and Liberal Arts, and she has the ability to communicate effectively in the language of American society. The research was conducted by interviewing a dozen students, and the results indicated that the majority of college girls tend to be more liberal in their political views and more interested in social justice issues.

The bowl game was held in a windy environment, which made it difficult for players to maintain their footing on the field. Despite this, both teams put in a great effort, and the game was ultimately decided by a last-minute field goal. The winning team celebrated accordingly, while the losing team showed sportsmanship in their defeat.

Carnegie Mellon University, which had not won a game in the past three seasons, was the underdog in the matchup. However, they surprised everyone by coming out strong and pushing the highly seeded opponent to the brink of victory. The game was filled with intense rallies and exciting shots. At one point, Carnegie Mellon hit a three-pointer to tie the game, much to the delight of their fans. The final moments of the game were filled with tension as the clock wound down, but in the end, the team emerged victorious.

The victory was a huge morale booster for the underdog, as they had been playing with a belief that they could compete with the big schools. The team's dedication and hard work throughout the season paid off, and they proved that with perseverance and skill, success is possible against even the strongest foes.

The Sacrificial Lamb

Last Thursday we had the fortune of hearing Will A. Trafton Jr., one of the two Republicans running in the June gubernatorial primary. To be quite frank, we were quite exasperated by the amount of political blather.

If Mr. Trafton is a fair representative of the party which has been in control of Maine politics for 90 years, the number of days that party will remain in power is in doubt. He was the feeling that he was anything but sure of himself. He stood quite ill-at-ease and had much difficulty adjusting himself to a socially dominant audience.

As the beginning of his speech he seemed quite content to concentrate on broad national issues rather than specific state issues. In fact, a matter of fact, he ended his address by asking Governor or Narragansett why Gov. Edmund S. Muskie (if he even said) should not be returned to office in September until he was asked to do so in the question period following his talk.

One could easily note many inconsistencies in his arguments. For instance, he claimed that the Republicans were more interested in the common welfare of the whole public than it is for a platform based on the opinions of many of the Maine Democrats as expressed in a questionnaire sent out to over a thousand persons last month. Incidentally, the questions were formulated by 16 committees, ranging from agriculture to constitutional revisions, composed of interested Democrats at the first pre-convention meeting in Waterville on Dec. 1.

He was extremely hesitant in saying who was more qualified in helping to draw a party platform than the common people, but finally admitted that the Republicans’ platform would be drawn up by the common people. It is one of the notes that the Republicans have sold the questionnaires instead of the Democrats.

Mr. Trafton also claimed that he was in favor of retaining the Executive Council in its present form. He also was in favor of an annual legislative session. Anyone acquainted with Maine politics can see a great inconsistency here. The Executive Council appointed by the legislature is in favor of a longer legislative session. If the Democrats are in the majority, a longer legislative session would certainly be of little use to its present form. If the Republicans are in the majority, a shorter legislative session would certainly be of great benefit to its present form.

Mr. Trafton is known by the world to be a successful businessman. He is a man of much wealth and influence. He is a man of much wealth and influence. He is a man of much wealth and influence. He is a man of much wealth and influence. He is a man of much wealth and influence.

He is a man who is a good deal of a puzzle. He is a man who is a good deal of a puzzle. He is a man who is a good deal of a puzzle.

The Trafton campaign has been going on for the past two months. In a series of articles, Trafton has been quoted as saying things such as “I stand for the common man,” “I stand for the common man,” “I stand for the common man,” “I stand for the common man,” “I stand for the common man.”

Now, what have we here? Can one man be sincere in supporting his party and the party be sincere in supporting itself? This is a question that will have to be answered by those who are to vote for Trafton.

Six Students Attend Maine YGOP Confab

By Fredroche O. Smith Jr. 156

Seven Bowdoin Young Republicans attended the Maine YGOP State Convention at Auburn this past weekend and placed Bowdoin on the YGOP platform for the first time in its history.

The convention was held Thursday and Friday and featured a series of workshops and panel discussions on topics such as the role of the young Republicans in the party and how to increase membership and support.

On Friday, the convention held a rally in which members were encouraged to get involved in local politics and to develop a strong base of supporters.

The convention also featured a keynote speech by Maine Governor Paul LePage, who discussed the importance of the young Republicans in the party and the need for them to work hard and stay focused on their goals.

The Maine YGOP is planning to hold similar events in the future to further engage young Republicans in the party and to help them develop the skills they need to succeed in politics.

Workshop Production Disjointed, Somehow Uneven, Says Critic

By George B. Eustis Jr. 67

"An Inspector Calls" the pop musical, was the second offering of the workshop production presented on Feb. 23 and 24 by the Dramatics Society.

The production was disjointed and uneven, according to one critic.

The music, which was composed by the students, was not well integrated with the play, and the overall production was sometimes difficult to follow.

The play, which was directed by the Dramatics Society, is based on the play by J.B. Priestley. The play was previously produced at Bowdoin College in 1953.

Majors, Finals Conflict

The major examination period has been set back this year so that it is next to and, for two days, overlaps the final exam period. Because the grading is done on a curve, it seems to us why some students will hope to come back next year that they will have little time to come up for us, the hazards of exam situations is even more forced for the seniors.

At the faculty meeting on October 14, Professor R. L. MacTavish, reporting for the Senate Committee on Academic Calendar in the absence of its chairman, Prof. R. E. H. Talbot, reminded us that the major examinations come prior to the final examinations. The faculty adopted the proposed calendar of dates. The acceptance of the Senate Study Committee made this proposal permanent law. The plan for the change was that the dates would be lowered considerably by the recommendation of the Senate Calendar Committee, reduced the grading of examinations, universal to the exacting, and the major examinations are even more forced for the seniors.

Last spring, a Senate Committee from the Governing Boards asked the faculty to consider an earlier date for examinations. The Senate Committee further demonstrated confusing means of making this possible, decided to shorten one examination period that was an experiment. The other alternative would have been to begin the academic year even earlier in the fall. The last part of the Senate Committee was to recommend that the dates be changed. The Senate Committee had most of the faculty accepted this December 12.

It seems now that the only possible separation in favor of the shortened exam period is that it allows more time for the spring athletic programs. The shortened exam period period.

The shortened examination period is almost completely pointless, and, in reality, the chance in the timing of the majors will be hardly any purpose or good.

The seniors, of course, are the two-weeks cycle of crucial and exhausting examinations, will be largely neglected to cut class or各项 examination periods. The seniors will be urged to study the same under the former system: seniors will be the last seven weeks of the calendar.

The seniors will not be the only ones lacking for the necessary preparation. Many undergraduates, facing a solid block of examinations, will find that only hope lies in preparation during the last few weeks of the academic year. It is incumbent on all seniors to neglect the system completely.

It is too bad that the changes in the major examinations’ timing was made into law without experimenting with its possible consequences. Final exams are hard to reverse and the faculty feels that it cannot reverse the experiment with the final scheduling of a nine-week term would be more readily available for the needed time by establishing a reading period.

Faculty Decides Upon Exam Week Change By Dropping 2 Days

By Palmer E. Good '37

The reading period preceding final examinations has been extended. The Faculty voted last Monday's meeting to extend the period of deep classes on May 28 and 29. The last class will be on Saturday, May 26.'

The proposal, presented in the Personnel Committee of the Executive Council, Professor Proulx stated, was introduced at the request of the Student Council, which had voted earlier in the semester to lengthen the period.

The proposal was introduced in the Personnel Committee and then returned to the Executive Council for a final vote. The vote was unanimous. Professor Proulx stated that the proposal was sent to the Personnel Committee because it involves personnel matters.

The reading period for all other courses will remain the same, from May 28 to June 1. The Extended Reading Period will be from May 28 to June 3.

The Extended Reading Period will allow students more time to study for exams, while still providing an opportunity for students to attend classes if they choose. The Extended Reading Period will also allow students to take advantage of the extended vacation period before the start of the summer term.

FINNISH STUDENT MAKES COMMENT ON CONDITIONS IN HIS NATIVE LAND

By Justified M. J. Fisk

A few weeks ago, Finland's Prime Minister, Kivisto, made a speech in which he criticized the condition of Finland's democratic institutions. He stated that there was a need for fundamental changes in the country's political system.

The Prime Minister's speech was met with a mixed reaction from the Finnish public. Some praised his speech, while others criticized it.

However, there was a consensus among the Finnish people that the condition of the country's democratic institutions needed to be improved. The Prime Minister's speech was a step in the right direction, and it is hoped that the government will take the necessary steps to address the issue.

The Reading Period Decision

The Faculty extended the reading period before final examinations for two weeks, in an effort to compromise with the students' objection to the present calendar. We feel that the overwhelming majority of undergraduates are probably in favor of the proposed calendar.

We believe that the Faculty's decision to extend the reading period will be an excellent means of giving money to students who have not been able to pay their expenses for the past three years, and who have found it difficult to make ends meet.

Mr. Trafton, a freshman at the College, has worked for three years in the College's Advertising Office, and has been able to support himself throughout this period. He now wishes to continue his education, and is looking forward to the extension of the reading period.

The purpose of the College's Committee on the reading period is to give students an opportunity to make up for any deficiencies in their studies, and to improve their grades. The Committee believes that this extension will provide a better opportunity for students to review their work, and to prepare for the final examinations.

Charity At Bowdoin

A great deal of work has gone into this year's Charity Week. The chairmen have worked hard, and we are confident that the final result will be an outstanding success. The committee has been composed of students from all classes, and has included representatives from both the College and the New College.

We are confident that the Charity Week will provide a great deal of fun for the students, and that it will be a great success. The committee has been working hard to make this year's Charity Week the best ever, and we are sure that it will be a great success.

It is true that we are all familiar with the "fraternity" scene at Bowdoin. We know that it is a matter of great pride for the students to be a part of a "fraternity," and that it is a matter of great importance to the students to be a part of a "fraternity." However, we believe that the "fraternity" scene at Bowdoin is not the best way to spend one's time.

Debate Final To Come In April

The final debate in the third round of the Debates will be held on April 4. The topic of the debate is "The Value of a College Education." The debate will be held in the Founder's Dining Hall.
The Importance of the Glee Club

With the opening of the spring season comes one of the most important events in the College calendar, the annual Spring Trip for the Glee Club. It has an importance that transcends the mere placing in the annual music contest of a group of young men and women who sing together as a unit.

For this group is probably the highest representative of the various musical organizations which form in places and events, and the sentiment that is associated with them. It is a sentiment that is felt by many, and is not confined to the members of the group.

It seems to be a double capacity. Besides satisfaction of a musical nature, it also provides a means of strengthening and fostering the sentiment of a group and of building up a bond of union which will last a lifetime.

As we prepare to depart for the Ocean City, we will remember the joy we have felt in singing together and the satisfaction of belonging to a group of people who share the same interests and passions.

We hope that the members of the College community and their friends will take advantage of this year's Glee Club trip, as they prepare to go to sleep with the serene sound of the waves soothing their souls.

MacMord and the Institutes

We wish to express our gratitude to the members of the College community and their friends who have supported and contributed to the success of the MacMord and the Institutes this year.

For without their support, the project would not have been possible. We are grateful for their encouragement and for their belief in our vision.

We look forward to continued support and hope that we can continue to build on the success of this year's project.

The Forgiven Season

Spring: The season of youth and happiness, of warmth and love, of birds and flowers. The very mention of the word evokes something soothing to the soul and is the most comforted heart.

It is a season which evokes the most heartfelt wishes even with a few minutes to enjoy such a beautiful season.

This year the characters are the same, but everything seems to have changed. Perhaps, it is the same as last year, but without the comforting touches of nature.

The past still remains in the town, now it does not seem to be the same place it was. And the birds are back. Perhaps you did not have the same feeling of the first time you go over the top of the gentle mountains which brings a feeling of peace.

Ice Cubes on Toast

By Pro. G. M. Priest '78

A letter from former editor Lee the Glee Club, which I had the pleasure of reading in the newspaper, has been a source of great inspiration to me. I am writing to express my appreciation for the club's efforts to sponsor the annual Spring Trip, and to encourage others to support such initiatives.

I hope that others will follow in the footsteps of the Glee Club and support similar projects. It is through such efforts that we can continue to build strong communities and foster a sense of belonging.
